Deeper into Russia than their companions—but unarmed—these invading Nazi soldiers are marched off to Red prison camp after capture somewhere on the eastern front. Pratt of Ottawa "rides" a pneumatic drill as part of the road-making operations.

Mission Band Leader And Members Enjoy Annual W.M.S. Party

Rawdon — On Wednesday, July 9th, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Women's Missionary Society entertained the leader of the Mission Band and several members also some of the mothers and babies of the community. The attendance was not as large as in former years, however about fifty were in attendance and the day was ideal.

The service opened with quiet music played by Mrs. John Holmes. The president gave the call to worship which was a children's poem in the form of a prayer. The National Anthem was sung and prayer offered for our three special missionaries. The guests were welcomed and it was regretted that the attendance was smaller than usual due to other events all coming the same week. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver reported $78.52 remitted to date which is a decrease of twelve dollars.

Plans were made to quilt two supply quilts. Samples of World Friends were distributed to the guests and a beautiful basket of flowers adorned the altar. Thirteen W. M. S. members answered Roll call.

The Mission Band then presented their program with Miss Ruth Rose presiding and Miss Lois Weaver at the piano. All sang a hymn and repeated the Lords Prayer. Miss Marian Johnson gave a reading entitled "The Ten Commandments". Miss Eileen MacMullen gave the worship story based on "The Golden Gift" and it is more blessed to give than to receive. The leader outlined "The Friendship Trail" and Bible passages were read by Miss Muriel Sine, Miss Joyce Johnson, Miss Marian Johnson and Master Jack Rose. "Love never disappears" was placed on the Trail and all repeated together "The Mission Band purpose".

Miss Eleanor Johnson gave a reading "God's Way" and Master John Reid gave a temperance selection. Misses Ruth Rose and Lois Weaver sang "Cold water is the beverage". Miss Grace Dunham gave "The Watch Tower" and Master Jerry Melville contributed a number on Community Friendship. Miss Shirley Scott sang a solo and Miss Joyce Johnson read a selection on Peace.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers gave the study story based on "Nurse Marion Opens a Day Nursery in Trinidad, the land of the humming bird." The offering was gathered by Misses Shirley McKeown and Joan Johnson and the loose collection for the Mission band was $2.30 and envelopes for W.M.S. $2.91. Rev. J. E. Beckel spoke briefly and before closing the meeting the band was heartily thanked for their splendid program. The W.M.S. Ladies served sandwiches, cookies and lemonade and the band tendered thanks for hospitality.

Supply Lines Of Both Sides In Jeopardy

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 18—(AP)—Hitler's hope of a quick and crushing victory in the centre of Russia's main defense line may be justified. It depends upon the nature and scope of the indicated Nazi thrust to Smolensk, and upon the Red Army's ability either to offset it effectively by a flanking operation from the south, or to escape from a vast and dangerous past.

As this was written, however, Hitler's headquarters had not specifically claimed capture of Smolensk, although other German sources said it had fallen. Headquarters predicted "great successes in the making" in a stupendous fight involving 9,000,000 men, but to back this forecast it cited only a minor Nazi-Rumanian success far to the south of the main war theatre.

So far as available accounts reveal the situation in the Smolensk area, it is a variation of German blitzkrieg envelopment technique. A German drive southeastward from Vitebsk to Smolensk or possibly beyond that important rail and road junction is admitted in Moscow.

There is yet no word, however, that a companian drive across the Dnieper River near Mogilev, which is southwest of Smolensk, has kept pace with the thrust from Vitebsk. It appears to have been blocked, at least temporarily, by a Russian counter-attack across the Dnieper on its right flank. According to Moscow reports, this flank has been driven in to Bobruisk, thirty miles and more west of the river.

Thrust Too Narrow

Neither the German advance from Vitebsk to Smolensk nor the Red counter-drive westward to Bobruisk seems widely enough based to be of deadly menace. Each tends to put the far-strung communication lines of the other in jeopardy.

A Berlin claim that the Town of Polotsk, well to the northwest of Vitebsk, has also been taken further indicates that the plunge to Smolensk is in a dangerously narrow front. At Bobruisk, also a rail and road junction of consequence, the Russians would be in a position to strike further northwest ward against German communications, even cut the Minsk-Orsha-Smolensk road behind them if Red armies have the force available.

Nevertheless, the fall of Smolensk to the Germans, if confirmed, is the most serious blow yet dealt Red defenders of the vital centre of the Dnieper River front of the Stalin Line Unless the Russians can outflank that narrow salient or prevent its use to pour heavy forces through Smolensk to fan southward toward Roslavl and Bryansk, rail junctions far behind the Dnieper front, Red armies operating in the Bobruisk counter-attack would be threatened with entrapment. The whole Russian defense line from Orsha to Kiev could be undermined from the rear.

Must Widen Pocket

But unless a vast Russian rout is in progress, the Germans must pause in the eastward push in the vicinity of Smolensk pocket quickly to the south, behind the Dnieper line, before the march on Moscow direct can be resumed without serious danger of disaster.

That the Nazi High Command is endeavoring to do just that on a vast scale is obvious Berlin claims a minor advance toward Kiev in the Zhitomir-Berichev region to the Town of Gorodishe. It brings Nazi speed troops a step closer to Kiev and suggests a vast German pincer movement yawning from Smolensk to the front before Kiev to envelop the whole Russian centre or send it tottering backward in a mighty retreat.

It is for such reasons that Nazi predictions of vast "desive" victories cannot be disregarded. In view of the Smolensk break-through, it is possible that Red armies in the centre held the Stalin Line too long to escape annihilation.

TO MEN WHO ARE NOT LAZY...

But Just Can't Get Going

You say you are not the man you used to be! Check up on yourself in the mirror. If your eyes are muddy and dull and your tongue's coated as well, then you're not as well as you should be.

But there are other symptoms. Food doesn't interest you. Little things get on your nerves. You fall asleep when you should be awake. You try to get out of visiting friends or going to the movies. Worse, you are too tired for your job. You're not lazy—you just can't get going.

What's the cause? Your bloodstream isn't clear. There are toxins in it. Poisonous waste is in your system. Get rid of it. Kruschen is the thing for that.

There are several mineral salts in Kruschen, balanced in exact proportions to assist the organs of evacuation to get rid of waste matter every day. Kruschen is more than a laxative. It is a diuretic as well—helps to flush the kidneys and at the same time keep the colon moist, so that action is easy and gentle. A pinch of Kruschen every morning is all you need.

Kruschen costs only 25c or 75c, at all druggists. Good health for less than a cent a day.

LEAVE THE CAR IN GARAGE AT HOME

If motorists wish to avoid having to be rationed in their gasoline requirements there is only one way of doing so and that is voluntarily reducing the use of their cars. It is no use thinking that, just because there are closing hour regulations, there is going to be less motor fuel used. Any one with a little forethought can get their tank filled and the fact that they cannot buy a supply on Sunday or after seven at night is not going to cut the consumption to a sufficient degree. The whole question hinges on willingness of all car owners to co-operate and make the program a success.

The idea of rationing is not too pleasant to contemplate for then all our travelling must be drastically curtailed. For the majority that may not work any great degree of inconvenience except that they will have to walk more, But suppose a long unexpected trip has to be taken to a section of the country where the use of a car is almost imperative then if the full requirements of gasoline cannot be had what a lot of bother is going to be caused just because too many were too selfish at a time when it was important.

To get the most out of our present gasoline supply, a splendid article written for "The Blue Bell" of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, on "How To Be a Patriotic Driver," gives some advice and estimates that Canadians would save 33,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year by forcing 20 instead of 19 miles out of each gallon of gasoline used.

Written by, Robert Jones, the article goes on to point out ways and means of cutting gasoline consumption as developed by company truck drivers.

Run of the road ways of wasting fuel were found to include: beating the other fellow as the traffic light turns and racing away at 25 m.p.h. in second gear; "opening up on the highway and weaving in and out of traffic; leaving the motor running while waiting for friend, wife, or fiancee to finish shopping; failure to check engine performance regularly.

By observing six simple rules the author claims it is possible for every motorist to make the saving difference between 20 and 19 miles per gallon, the five per cent. difference necessary to effect a cut of 33,000,000 gallons a year in an overall annual consumption total in Canada of 663,000,000 gallons.

Rules include learning how to start an automobile without flooding and how to change gears at proper rates of speed, from low to intermediate at not more than 10, and from intermediate to high at not more than 15 m.p.h.

"Never drive at more than 50 m.p.h., to save gas," the article continues. "Death begins at 50, so does wind resistance." Guarding against weaving and idling and importance of making an efficiency check each 5,000 miles are other points stressed.

Quoting an anonymous article appearing recently in the Printed Word, the article points out a saving of 120,000,000 gallons of fuel a year would be effected in Canada if every passenger car registered here got along with two gallons less fuel a week.

It is estimated Canada has some 1,500,000 motor vehicles. The article issues the warning: "By not observing rules for gasoline saving you are wasting your own money and bringing the day ever nearer when gasoline for you, and the drivers of the Dominion's other motor vehicles, will be rationed.

THE BOYS WANT LETTERS

One of the Belleville boys overseas in a letter to a friend here says the men want letters and more letters from home and friends. They also appreciate snapshots of loved ones. Most of the boys have been away for the first time for any length of time and they hunger for the sight of familiar faces. A good picture can help to lift the spirits of anyone and don't forget to make the letters gay and full of news. Cigarets and candy and also flashlight bulbs and cells are appreciated for there is a great scarcity of these articles in Britain. How about getting that letter off tonight?

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

"So," remarked the man with the drawn white face, whose years of steering a more or less erratic course on the sea of matrimony had left their mark on him. "They want 1,500 women for the army." He flung a weary look at the newspaper office bulletin board which carried the announcement.

"That," he nodded, "would be a swell idea. And if the big boys want a sergeant-major who would be the last word in efficiency I can recommend the old girl. Brother, when that lady got through with the recruits they would feel as if they had been in the army since Napoleon's army ski-ied all the way back from Moscow."

"Y'know," and he waxed confidential. "A little military training and discipline would work wonders with the gals. Take for instance, when the old man is getting a bit tired of the whispering on the front porch, all he would have to do is get a bugle and blow Lights Out, if the gal hadn't already beaten him to it, and the arms conference would end on the spot."

"But there would be drawbacks too," he added with a grin. "Imagine two gals of a family marching in at dinner time, getting a whiff of delicious lamb stew and shouting 'Nell's Bells, cook, mulligan again.' And these demure damsels, if there is such a thing, would get a break. Imagine the smart 'Eyes Right' a couple of snappy flight-lieutenants would get from a bevy of the shy ones. They would probably 'eyes right' so far they would be following the fliers before they marched a city block."

The man with the drawn white fare sighed. "But it would be tough on we old hombres, who have gone through the mill. I suppose we'd have to get up at reveille, (think of a pair of bagpipers paradin' through the hall at six a.m.) and polish the old lady's boots, sam browne and buttons. And if we came home with a snootful some time she would produce K. R. and O. and inform us the first drunk is a free one, but God help you if it happens again."

The man with the W.D.F. turned sadly away. He shook his head as he ambled forlornly down the main thoroughfare. "To think," he mumbled aloud, "I put four years in the army during the last war and now it comes to the point where I go down to the station, wave flags, kiss all the soldier-gals who are leaving, and tell the old woman her job will be waiting for her when and if she comes back."

"But,' he grinned, "thar will be a sort of a recompense after all. I remember when the old girl in her first parcel to me, sent three tins of corned beef, little knowing that we made duckwalks out of it, had it thrown at us three times a day, ate it twice and at supper time had corned beef hash made from Fray Bentos and a few hardtacks that the mules ground up."

"And, I suppose," he continued, "that the gals will experience the lonely soldiers clubs we ran up against when we were paying a franc for Biere Belgique. And who knows, mebbe the old girl will come back to Canada with a young English lad who will be very curious to see the big ranch owned by the Canadian soldierette and count the cattle she said she had the night they ate fish and chips on the leas at Folkstone."

"And the old gal will have to loosen up if she wants to participate in the 'Famous Canadian Sport" of roller-skating. Sure, she'll go down to the pier at St. Leonards, (but that bristles now with machine-guns and anti-aircraft batteries, instead of ladies of the chorus from 'The Byng Boys Are Here' and 'The Maid of the Mountains.') She'll visit the Brighton we never knew. She'll see the Hythe, and Bexhill, Hastings and the rest of the towns we knew but they will have a different dress."

"Oh well, why worry," and the old soldier turned away. "That guy Hitler sure started somethin' when he coveted the world."

THE B.B.C. SCORES

When a Portuguese newspaper came out with the advertisement, obviously inserted by Nazi propagandists, "Germany broadcasts, and the world listens," the British Broadcasting Corporation came back with, "London speaks, and the world believes."

BIG RISK—The Italians are said to want Monte Carlo, although one would imagine that their present risks would satisfy their appetite for gambling—Toronto Star.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Do Something About it, Americans

New York, July 18—If the American people do not want to be held up in a dark alley one of these days with a pistol at their chests, and pushed around after that through the next epochs of history, they had better do something vigorous about the opposition in Congress. This opposition is behaving with a lack of intelligence and common sense that is unforgivable, the circumstances in the world being what they are.

That the Military Affairs Committee of the Senate should be headed by Senator Reynolds is worth ten divisions to Hitler.

Senator Reynolds is the nearest thing to a Nazi—a very small town Nazi—that we have in the United States Senate.

Senator Wheeler, who has spent his life fighting concentrations of power in this country, is quite indifferent to the most colossal concentration of power ever seen in human history — one big holding company for all Europe, and maybe tomorrow for a large part of Asia, under a single executive, without any checks and balances whatsoever, in alliance with the dominant power of the Far East—and with a definite plan for encircling America.

Hitler can move the workers of the whole continent of Europe wherever he pleases — Belgians to Czecho-Slovakia, Germans to Poland, Frenchmen to Belgium, Poles to Germany. He commands the greatest army that has ever been organized in human history. This army did not begin with Hitler.

Expanded Again and Again.

The army of the German Republic, small though it was, was perhaps the most modern and highly trained force on the Continent, with twelve years' service for every member of it. Since 1933—that is to say, for eight years—it has been built up to a force of five or six million men, all of whom have gone through the most prolonged and rigorous training—a training which actually began in Hitler youth and work camps, so that the conscript had already completed his physical training and considerable technical training before he was ever drafted into the army. This army is now augmented by Hungarians, Rumanians and Finns, all of whom come from countries with long established traditions of compulsory military service.

The German technique of warfare is to talk peace and mean war; to make pacts to secure time, but to break them at exactly the right moment; to lull the enemy to sleep and attack him with lightning swiftness and overwhelming force, in the place where he least expects it, and without provocation or warning. In but one case has Hitler declared war—that of Russia—and then he declared war after it had begun.

Now in this sort of world with this resort of menace the opposition in Congress is insisting that we will lose our democracy unless we cling to procedures and tactics of the past. If we do, we won't only lose our democracy; we will lose our country. Procedures, in dealing with a foreign foe, have to be adapted to the tactics of the foe. You can't defend yourself against blitzkreig and total war with either the political or military strategy of 1917. You need absolute unity of political and military command, complete freedom of action, and total secrecy.

No Secrecy in Congress

Our Congressional opposition cannot be entrusted with any secret —they blab what they know, and usually in a distorted form, to the first newspaperman who comes along.

Secret hearings before the Military Affairs Committee are a joke. One might as well ask Hitler to sit in them. This lack of discipline and responsibility is called democracy. It is not. It is the degeneration of democracy into personal and party politics.

The Selective Service Act was passed a year ago and a great deal of water—and blood—has flowed under a great many bridges since then. Now the President and the Chief of Staff urgently ask that the period of service be extended. They also ask that all restrictions as to the disposition of the army should be removed. Both requests should be granted immediately.

Every country in Europe, including Sweden and Switzerland, who certainly have no warlike intentions, has prolonged its military service indefinitely. In every crisis in the last eight years every Government has been allowed to retain its soldiers as long as possible.

This country is neither Switzerland nor Sweden, but a world power with outposts all over the globe. But the Congressional oppositionists act like provincial officials of a small town.

Strategy Impossible

It is impossible to make a strategy of defense if you tell your enemy in advance what you are going to do or not do with your troops. Even if there is not the slightest intention of sending our troops abroad, we should under the circumstances tell that to Hitler, and fix it in law that we cannot. That is just the most primitive common sense. You can neither defend yourself nor defeat an enemy in this world as it is today if he knows in advance the range of your moves. One cannot even conduct an effective diplomacy under such conditions.

All things have to be seen in perspective and in proportion. There is no freedom for any citizen of a country unless his country is free. Freedom is inseparable from power. The maintenance of power, in the world as it is, is not conditioned only by the way we want to act, but by the way the other fellow acts.

In time of peril free men do freely what they have to do to remain free. Debate is a very good thing, but it is also true that one can debate a nation to death. Freedom looks better on a banner than in an obituary notice. No nation has ever remained free that was not willing on occasions to restrict personal, party, economic and social freedoms for the sake of the larger freedom of the whole community.

Unfortunate Promises

It is unfortunate that during the elections promises were made which should not have been made. The President could, with every prospect of being able to fulfil it, make the promise that he would keep war out of this hemisphere. But he was only gambling on probabilities when he guaranteed not to send an army abroad. For the only certain way to keep this war out of the Western Hemisphere is to see that it is decided outside of the Western Hemisphere, and decided against Hitler.

The only promise therefore that any leader of a nation in a crisis like this should have made is to defend the freedom and the power of the United States of America, without war if possible, and with war if necessary, and if by war, then in that place and under those circumstances that best promise victory.

One thing is certain: This country can neither make peace nor war nor even survive unless it takes off its own shackles to start with and obtains complete freedom of action. We have got to end the period of prohibitionism and stop thinking that there is some peculiar virtue in impotence.

And if your life is at stake, you had better trust the doctor—in this case the President and the Army and Navy Command—and not the kibitzers.

Allowing Patients With Heart Disease to Work

Owing to the fact that industry is requiring more men, a question has arisen as to the employing of men with heart disease or high blood pressure.

It is definitely known that patients with heart disease lose much time from work and heart disease stands first as a cause of death. Further, more than one-fifth of cases of heart disease occurs in persons under the age of forty. Furthermore, heart disease has a repressing effect upon, and a tendency to break up the family in which it occurs.

Dr. H. M. F. Behneman, San Francisco, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, points out that when the question arises as to whether a patient with heart disease or high blood pressure should be employed or rejected by an employer, there are five parties to be considered or who have to consider the question. These are—the injured worker, the employer, the trade union, the insurance company, and the industrial physician. Of the first four, the workman naturally thinks he is fit to work, the trade union in its endeavour to protect the workman and his family thinks him fit, the employer is doubtful about employing him as he considers the history of these cases from the standpoint of efficiency, regular hours and mass production, and the insurance official wants to make a profit for his company without raising the employer's premium rates.

As the fifth party —the industrial physician—is the only one who is not "directly" interested, Dr. Behneman suggests that he should become thoroughly acquainted with the effect of work—effort—and of emotional disturbances upon heart disease and high blood pressure.

Some suggestions are:—

Establishment of an institute where worker with these diseases finds out how much work he can do safely. This protects worker and employer.

Establish wider use of electrocardiograph in examination of workers.

Give the the disabled worker prompt and porper medical care. Don't discard him but develop him and co-operate with bureaus which find work for disabled persons in skilled or unskilled labor.

Create legislation enabling persons with heart disease to work under medical supervision, yet releasing employer and insurance company of liability.

Certainly a worker with heart disease or high blood pressure, and also his family, are going to be happier if he is allowed to work than if left to worry at home.

SUM OF THE YEARS

What more has life to offer when you count its splendors o'er,
Than a loved one's kiss of welcome as you step inside your door?
Do you know a richer treasure, as you run earth's treasures through,
Than the laughter of your children and their pride in all you do?

Though the dictionary fortune is of lands and stocks and gold,
There's a deeper vein of riches, cherished highly though untold;
And a neighbor's good opinion and a friend's devotion true
Must be counted in the record of the things you gain or do.

There's the help you've been to others and the gifts of time and strength,
And the service to your country, through a lifetime's breadth and length.
There's the home! From needless hearache did you spare it best you could?
Well, that's all life has to offer
—that's success and fortune good.

YE STARS!

A thread of spider web long enough to go around the earth would weigh only about a pound.

But a ball of spider web containing enough thread to stretch from the earth to Sirius, nearest star visible in northern latitudes, would weigh a million tons.

Nothing on the earth weighs so much as the material believed to exist at the centre of certain stars.

If the material of which an ordinary watch is made weighed as much in proportion as these star cores the watch would weigh about a ton.

Star material is more compact with less waste space than any material on the earth because the terrific heat and energy at the centre of the star breaks up atoms and drives electrons from their central core.

Stars that can be seen through the largest telescopes are so far away that it takes 500,000,000 years for the light to travel from them to the earth.

Because of the time required for light to arrive from many of the stars, facts of astronomy as recorded in text-books do not deal with the universe as it exists, but as it existed millions of years ago.

A star that we think we see through a telescope may have ceased to exist millions of years ago for all we know.

It takes the light of even Sirius, a relatively close star, eight years to travel to the earth.

When an astronomer tells us a fact about Sirius we must wait eight years to learn if the star was actually there at the time.

Professor Jason Nassau, professor of astronomy at the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, estimates that the number of stars whose light reaches us within 100,000 years is about one hundred billion.

Yet Fred C. Kelly, of Peninsula, Ohio, points out that only about six or seven thousand stars are visible to the naked eye from all points on the earth.

Probably not more than 2,000 or 2,500 stars can ever be seen with the naked eye from any one point on the earth, because the other "lucid" stars are either below the horizon or are so close to it that they cannot be seen.

GASOLINE RESTRICTIONS TO CHANGE LIVING HABITS OF ALL CANADIANS

NO MORE HOPPING IN THE CAR TO DRIVE TO THE CORNER STORE

(Central Press Canadian Writer)

Gasoline rationing, even in the limited form at present prescribed, is bound to affect the living habits of Canadians. Will evening drives in the country be curtailed by the city motorist? Will young swains court their girl friends in their cars or on the family porch? Will gasoline station attendants hear "Fill 'er up!" instead of the customary limited gallonage bought by the average motorist?

No doubt Canadians will voluntarily curtail their gasoline consumption in preference to the threatened ration card system if pleasure driving is not drastically cut. City workers will most likely follow the suggestion of the oil controller and drive with a full car of neighbors in rotation rather than drive empty to the office or the factory. Parking lot operators will be able to tell just how far this suggestion is being followed; there should be ample parking space in congested business districts if office workers pick up their car-driving neighbors.

Many a motorist is going to find out that the corner druggist or cigar store is really not as distant as he thought. Walking will be fashionable again now that it is suggested that you leave your car in the garage to go around the corner to the store or the neighborhood theatre. There should be less parking on streets if party-goers arrange to use their cars to full capacity, instead of all driving in their own vehicles. And country club parking enclosures will not be as overcrowded if a foursome go out in one car instead of four cars. Hitch-hikers will find thumbing harder, rides less frequent as cars become more crowded with group driving.

Whether the gasoline restrictions will make an appreciable difference in consumption at once is doubtful, with holidays in full swing, with week-end commuting by the male members of the family summering more than a hundred miles from the city. Had the restrictions gone into effect in winter the immediate effect of curtailment would probably be more noticeable than during the summer. Nevertheless, restricted sale of gasoline is going to put many a crimp in holiday plans, with long distance motor trips suffering most.

This pony-express was put into operation in Holland after the Nazi blitz caused a shortage of gasoline.

There will be more old-fasioned tinkering with the car to bring it to greatest efficiency. Service stations and garages will get some extra business out of that, too. And if drivers follow the oil controller's suggestion, there will be less fast driving and more opportunity to view the scenery alongside the road.

It's also quite possible that boys will look for girls closer to home, with resultant less necessity for being out of gasoline at some hour past midnight on the way home from the girl friend's. Brought up to use dad's car, many a youngster is going to find it more costly if he has to pay for enough gasoline himself for an evening's outing in advance before the 7 p.m. deadline, instead of letting dad buy the gasoline.

There will probably develop a rush hour at the gasoline stations, as cars drive up for a filling before the closing hour. In rural communities Saturday evening business at the gasoline pump will be more brisk as the farmers in town for the market and shopping fill up for the trip home and visiting and church trips on Sunday. In the city there will likely be smaller lines of cars in front of church as more people walk to worship if they live within a mile of the church.

Motor car travel will undoubtedly decrease, but means of mass travel as street cars, buses and trains will gain. Many a person will find it more convenient to travel for pleasure by bus and train over week-ends than to chance running out of gas with service stations closed. Large commercial users of gasoline as buses and truck transport operators have frequently their own gasoline storage tanks and pumps.

Restrictions on the daily sale of gasoline and closed service stations on Sunday brings the war close to home to North Americans who have considered motors a necessity second only to food, shelter and clothing. Gasoline rationing in only its present mild form will change our living habits to a considerable extent.

KEEP 'EM FLYING
Save Gasoline

Planes on the offensive—planes to bomb Berlin—all must be kept amply fuelled at all times—day and night!

Ahead looms the threat of a national gas and oil shortage. The tankers that once brought these precious fuels to Canada are now being requisitioned to ferry them to Britain. Because of this diversion of tankers, our gasoline and oil supply has been drastically reduced. The needs of our Commonwealth Air Training Plan and the ever increasing demands of our mechanized army and driving munitions plants are enormous.

This dire shortage threatening our war effort must be made up!

Car owners can do it! Pledge yourself to go 50/50 with our Fighting Forces. Walk at every opportunity. If you drive to work, share your car with your car-owning neighbour—let him drive you the following day. Using one car a day instead of three or four will mean a substantial reduction in fuel consumption . . . Multiply this by over a million Canadian cars and the daily saving is tremendous.

Do YOUR part.

It is also vitally important that you reduce the use of domestic and commercial fuel oil.

Both Scalp and Hair Need Care

Gypsy Markoff, accordionist of the Waldorf, has beautiful lustrous hair

By HELEN FOLLETT

POLISH your teeth and polish your hair. Scrub your biters until they glisten. Groom your brain wool until it carries shimmering highlights.

How many women think of conditioning their hair? Not many. The whole business is a matter of putting in the curly cues. That's not enough, my hearties. Times was when scalp treatments were going on apace in the beauty booths, when brushing was a part of the before-going-to-bed beauty cars. With frequent permanents, which are bound to be a bit drying, it is more necessary than ever that one should not slack up on scalp and hair care.

Hair Care

Neglected locks lack luster. There are no lovely lights and shadows that make the glorious halo a thing of beauty. Shafts that are dull break easily. The poor little things are starving for attention. Even the healthiest head of silky threads needs grooming, airing, brushing. The scalp requires massage to stimulate the blood vessels and to keep the tissues soft and resilient.

Unless the scalp is easily moved circulation will be restricted. Every precious wisp is dependent upon the blood streams for its living. A five-minute friction every day is necessary for the well being of the skull covering.

Ill health, fatigue, worry may cause the hair to fall. Diet deficiencies, it is believed, are responsible for some cases of baldness in men; thank goodnes nearly all women escape that curse. A balanced diet is the first thing the seeker after good looks should think about, because it supplies us with the elements the body needs for creating energy and making up for wear and tear.

Keep combs and brushes free of dust. Have two sets, then one will always be clean to use after the shampoo.

Some hair specialists suggest that hair pulling helps. Take a small tress at a time, give it several quick yanks.

LENT WAY TO ENTERTAIN DRAFTEES

"Many letters have come to this column asking what can be done in the way of hospitality for soldiers.

After reading various suggestions in magazines and newspapers, it seems to me that New York had the ace solution in the Block Party it gave a couple of weeks ago. Public-spirited citizens of a certain block in residential New York gave a wonderful party to the boys from a nearby Post.

There was a feeling among these hosts and hostesses that if they threw a good party for draftees near at hand, other public-spirited citizens would be tempted to do the same for their blood-kin draftees in distant posts, all over these United States.

The Block Party was something to be remembered. Sixty-six families got in touch with the Commanding Officer of a Post adjacent to New York City, and the Commandant was as enthusiastic about the party as the boys themselves. Tables were set out on the sidewalks in front of the houses where the acting hosts and hostesses lived.

There was a sectional flavor to the food. Real baked beans for the New Englanders, fish cakes, doughnuts. The Irish were remembered with corned beef and cabbage. Real potato shortcake with plenty of butter. Southerners were regaled with ham, sweet potatoes, corn pudding and spoonbread. Americans whose forebears came from Italy gave their guests spaghetti, with plenty of good meat sauce, tomato paste and proper seasoning. There was Chianti too. Beer and coffee were pretty evenly divided among the other tables.

None of the diners-out was more vociferous in acclaiming their loyalty to Uncle Sam than the youngsters who washed down their sauerkraut, spare-ribs, wienies and apple cake with beer. These lads, who answered to real German names, thanked Heaven their fathers, grandfathers and great-grandfathers had left the Fatherland before the Hitler madness set in.

The Block Party demonstrated that we have no better Americans than the descendents of people who have experienced for two or three generations the benefits of Democracy. No dictators for them, and they hope the totalitarians get what's coming to them.

Immigrants may sigh reminiscently for some of the things the old countries stood for — the music, the feast-days, the holidays. But these things all went when the books were burned, the churches wrecked, and the sickening savagery of the purges made one thank God for America.

If the dictators who have turned Europe into a slaughter-house had been given a chance to listen in at the Block Party, they would have sighed for the millions wasted on their Fifth Columnists who now experience the feeling of having their chairs pulled from under them.

After the tables were cleared away, the boys danced and sang. Perhaps you listened in on the radio to the doings of the Block Party, and it may have given you some new ideas for entertaining these boys, even as good neighbors helped to make things more pleasant for your kith and kin who are a long way from home.

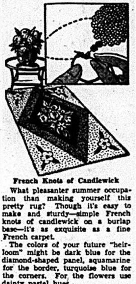
Lovely "Heirloom" Rug You Can Make Yourself



French Knots of Candlewick

What pleasanter summer occupation than making yourself this pretty rug? Though it's easy to make and sturdy—simple French knots of candlewick on a burlap base—it's as exquisite as a fine French carpet.

The colors of your future "heirloom" might be dark blue for the diamond-shaped panel, aquamarine for the border, turquoise blue for the corners. For the flowers use dainty pastel hues.

On the burlap draw first the outline of the rug, 20 by 30 inches, ruling the two diamonds 2½ inches apart. Then sketch in simple flower-and-leaf shapes.

To make a French knot, thread a tufting needle with candlewick yarn and bring it up through burlap. Now twist the point of the needle three times around yarn to right, as in our sketch, and insert the needle close to where it came up.

When the whole surface of your rug is covered with knots, turn under edges of the burlap and whip together with denim backing.

You'll be proud of your beautiful handiwork! Our 32-page booklet gives directions for French knot rug in detail, also tells how to make fine hooked, woven, braided, crocheted, tufted and other favorite types of rugs.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO MAKE OUR OWN RUGS to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Spy in the Pantry"

A suspenseful action-packed tale of high adventure and gay romance filled with intrigue and breakneck excitement, Columbia's "Spy in the Pantry" yesterday opened at the McCarthy Theatre. The new film stars, Rex Harrison, the handsome, sophisticated, debonair young Englishman seen here with Vivien Leigh and Charles Laughton in "Sidewalks of London", and with Merle Oberon in "Over the Moon". Harrison appears as an airplane crash victim who recovers consciousness to find himself in a Paris hospital being treated for a bullet wound. Determined to learn how he came to be shot, concerned about events of the ten days during which he had suffered from amnesia, he attempts to retrace his steps.

And he discovers himself mistaken for the chauffeur to a French general and to his lovely granddaughter, and that he is also accepted as the 'boy friend" of an attractive maid in the General's home. More important the young Englishman learns, both he and the maid are accepted members of an enemy spy ring.

"Spy in the Pantry", after this dramatic introduction, plunges into one of the swiftest, most entertaining narratives. Harrison's performance and that of lovely Karen Verne, who makes her screen debut in the new film as the girl in the case, are tops in smoothness, while supporting players are equally capable. The cast, in addition to the star and his beautiful heroine, includes C. V. France, Leo Genn, Joan Marion, Anthony Holles and John Abbott.

Irving Asher, who made "U-Boat 29" as well as "Clouds Over Europe", produced "Spy in the Pantry", which is based upon a novel, "The Disappearance of Roger Tremayne", by Bruce Graeme.

"King Kong"

The second feature in addition to "Spy in The Pantry" is the smash hit King Kong" which is one that should not be missed. A clever cartoon in technicolor and a new episode of "The Green Archer" completes this top rating program now showing at the McCarthy, which will be presented continuous Saturday.

Sparkling Romantic Comedy

"Million Dollar Baby" a sparkling romantic comedy starring Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn and Ronald Reagan, has been scheduled as the next attraction at the Belle Theatre this week-end. AN EVENTFUL, perhaps memorable day, is forecast from interesting planetary configurations. While there is much of the sudden, unforeseen and unusual likely to whirl into being, yet there is a stabilizing force making for permanent and enduring success providing these spectacular or unprecedented visitations do not sweep away sound reason, good judgment and wise decisions.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured a year of spectacular or peculiar adventures, with many unexpected and breath-taking developments, likely to uproot and demand reorganization of plans and objectives. The vision, imagination and intellect will be able to cope with such situations, being practical, original and audacious as well as sound and constructive. Collaboration with superiors, public and groups bring best results.

A child born on this day should have much originality, genius and ability of sound and enduring worth as well. Its inventiveness and exceptional talents will be supported by solid and practical qualities.

HOW ARMY DOCTORS DETECT MALINGERERS

In these times when men are being called up for examinations to enter the military service, special attention is being given to those who are able to imitate various forms of illness and thus to escape responsibilities which they should have. The person who endeavors to show that he has a disease when he is actually healthful is called scientifically, a "malingerer."

Recently Dr. Mortimer A. Laskey of Brooklyn has given special attention to the malingerer who is trying to show that he is not able to see very well. Almost everybody now knows the technic that is used in the examining of eyes. The person whose eyes are to be examined sits in a chair about twenty feet away from a chart on which appears letters of various sizes, with the largest on top and the smallest on the bottom. These letters are arranged irregularly and the subject endeavors to read the letters one at a time. For those who cannot read, pictures and various geometric forms are used.

Obviously, a person who does not want to see the letters will not see them. It is easy, however, for the doctor who examines the eye to determine whether or not the various portions of the eye are normal in appearance and capable of seeing.

The malingerers who pretend blindness are divided into two general groups: those who are clever and who study all of the tests before being examined and, second, those who desire to magnify some slight defect which they have but who will find it difficult to deceive a careful examiner for any length of time. The examiner has to be cleverer, of course, than the person who is being examined, at least in his use of the tests. It is found that trickery can be overcome by trickery and that falsifiers convict themselves.

If the examiner thinks after making the tests that the person being examined is endeavoring to avoid any indication as to his actual ability to see, the examiner can make certain observations which cannot be avoided. For instance, it is impossible for any one to control voluntarily the dilating and constricting of the pupil. If the person being examined is put in a dark room and if a beam of light is flashed on the eye, the pupil will contract.

If the eye which responds to this test is screened and a beam is flashed into the other eye, the healthy eye will not react if the second eye has a retina which does not respond. If the suspected eye is blind, the pupil of the other eye will react in proportion to the intensity of the light and the degree of blindness. The doctor has to know, of course, whether or not drugs have been put into the eye in order to produce a dilation of the pupil, so that it may be necessary to keep the person examined under observation.

There are innumerable tests which examiners can use to detect simulated blindness. These tests involve the use of mirrors, prisms, screens and specially designed charts. A psychologist once said that the eye is an organ of illusions and the methods of deceiving it are numerous. The magicians, who say that the hand is quicker than the eye, know this. The mirrors are used to cause the suspected person to see with the so-called blind eye what he believes he is seeing with the good eye. Especially designed apparatus, called the pseudo-scope, is used for this purpose.

Special charts have been developed which gradually change in size of type as they are being viewed. There are also specially designed eyeglasses of different intensities which may be used to test vision. There are also color tests and blind spot tests. The tests are so numerous and so complicated that the person who starts out to deceive an examiner on the matter of eyesight is undertaking a task which is far beyond the ability of even an aphthalmologist himself.

Simulated blindness of both eyes is exceedingly rare. Most malingerers merely try to show that they are blind in one eye, or that they see badly with one eye or the other. One of the simplest tests is merely to permit the patient to leave the room when a number of small objects have been placed on the floor as obstacles. The malingerer usually avoids them by elaborate or exaggerated motions or else walks directly into them forcefully. It is practically impossible for a malingerer to deceive an expert in this manner and to imitate definitely the actions of a person who is really blind in one eye or in both.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Peculiar Problem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance is my stepfather's son (in other words, my step-brother). What would be the correct form of our wedding invitation? Should it be "Mr. and Mrs. William Jones request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mary Smith to Thomas Jones", etc., or, "Mrs. William Jones' requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Mary Smith to Thomas Jones, son of Mr. William Jones", etc.?

A.A.

If your father is living it would be best form, especially in your case, to omit your stepfather's name from the wedding invitation. Also it is not customary to include "son of Mr. William Jones."

If your father is living, this would be the form of your invitation:

Mrs. William Jones request the honour of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Mary Smith
to
Mr. Thomas Jones, etc.

However, if the reception is to be held at the home of your mother and stepfather, the reception invitation may read:

Mr. and Mrs. William Jones request the pleasure of your
on Tuesday, the tenth of November at five o'clock
The Home Place

If your father is not living, the invitations and announcements may be issued by your mother and stepfather:

Mr. and Mrs. William Jones request the honour of your presence
at the marriage of their daughter
to etc.

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, thirty-two years old, and I am going to be married for a second time at an afternoon wedding very soon.

1. Would it be proper for me to wear a white dress? I would like to wear a simple white dress, and have my attendant wear a gown in a color becoming. The men are going to wear white suits.
2. Is it proper for my father to give me in marriage when this is my second marriage?
3. Who pays for the dinner after the ceremony? I would like to have a little reception for the relatives.

S.S.

1. It is not considered in good taste to wear a white dress. It's far wiser not to do something that might easily be criticized.
2. Yes.
3. The bride's family, or the bride herself, pays for the dinner or reception after the ceremony.

The July meeting of the Endeavors' Sunday School class was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wright and was largely attended. The program as prepared by Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Arthur Wilson was presided over by Mr. Clifford Green. The worship service was very inspiring, a number of the old fashioned gospel hymns was sung and many favorable comments were heard, all agreeing that these hymns carry a lasting message. Mr. Stewart led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was given by the entire group repeating 23rd Psalm in continuous form and revealed that more of this form would be beneficial. The roll call was suggested by Mrs. H. R. Burke and was answered by each member giving a miracle from the Bible. Mr. Frank Palmer of Ivanhoe was the guest soloist for the evening and besides giving a solo led in the sing song. The special speaker for the evening was Rev. Sam Delve of Ivanhoe who chose as his subject the name of the class "Endeavors" This address was most encouraging and inspiring as Mr. Delve, a gifted speaker, urged all the members to be worthy of that name "Endeavor". The speaker stated that our lives are perhaps the only Gospel some will ever read. We must practice our religion especially in our dealings with our fellowmen. In closing he urged all to re-dedicate their lives to God by using a verse of a well known hymn "Just as I Am".

Made Long Drive At Record Speed

London, July 18 (CP)—Incredible feats of endurance during the advance of British forces from Kenya to Addis Ababa were described by two officers who took part in the gruelling campaign.

The drive from Kenya to the capital of Ethiopia, a distance of 2,100 miles, was one of the longest and quickest in military history, they said. One of the officers covered 800 miles in seven days while some of the troops covered even greater distances.

The forces left Kenya in three columns and stormed their way to the banks of the River Juba where they encountered superior Italian concentrations. After three days of intense fighting the British decided to send tanks, armored cars and machine gun carriers on a wide flanking movement to attempt a rear attack.

"For two days we heard nothing of this small armored force," said one of the officers. "They had to cut their way through dense forests, hewing down trees sometimes five feet in diameter, skirting marshes and forcing their way through scrub and bush.

"By a wonderful piece of reckoning the force landed 10 miles behind the Italians and then attacked. They first came to his food and munitions dumps and afterwards to divisional and brigade headquarters. Finally, when the Italians realized what had happened, they quickly broke."

About the same time a reconnaissance plane reported a large column of Italians marching along the coast flying a white flag. We left two or three lance corporals to collect the prisoners and pushed ahead."

After a slight pause at Mogadiscio the troops advanced to Harar, 800 miles away. Within seven days the town had been reached and captured. A short time later they overcame further resistance and reached Addis Ababa.

London reports that the campaign, backed by Germany in her quest for a "holy war" against Communism, has failed, the Spanish people refusing to be led into another war.

FIGHTER LEARNS EVERY WRINKLE OF AIR WARFARE

Young Airman Completes Course in Seven Months Under British Commonwealth Air Training Plan

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 16.—(CP)—Thousands of young Canadian have received their call to the Royal Canadian Air Force within the last year, and the equipment and instructors are available to turn them into first-class fighting men within seven months.

Under the $1,000,000,000 British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, now nearing the peak of performance in training Empire airmen, Canadians and other British subjects, along with volunteeers from the United States, are assured of rapid training to make them unsurpassed in aerial combat.

The seventeen recruiting centres throughout Canada are kept busy. Prospective pilots must have passed their 18th but not their 31st birthday. Air observers and wireless operator air gunners must be over 18 but not more than 32. Future pilots and air observers must have their junior matriculation or the equivalent, and wireless operator air gunners must have successfully completed two years at high school.

Delays have been cut down to a minimum for the young man anxious to get into action. If he is found suitable after interviews and medical examination, the recruit is enlisted and given leave without pay until the time comes for him to be absorbed into the training plan.

When his call is received he must report to one of four manning depots, where he receives his uniform and kit, inoculation against disease and a thorough introduction to air force life. He is given military and physical training, drill and organized sport.

Air Training Schools

After two to six weeks at the manning depot, pilots go to one of three initial training schools for a ground course of five weeks in a primary training aircraft at one of the 26 elementary flying training school units, where they spend seven weeks. Thereafter, they go to a 10-week course at one of the 16 service flying training schools for advanced instruction.

Air observers go to an initial training school for five weeks, then for twelve weeks to one of the ten air observer schools with further courses in bombing and gunnery and air navigation to follow.

Wireless operator air gunners go from the manning pool to one of the four wireless schools for a course in aerial gunnery.

At the elementary flying schools, the student pilot receives 50 hours of flying, about 25 dual and 25 solo, including elementary aerobatics, cross-country flying and the like.

Advanced flying is taught by experienced Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Air Force fliers who pass on their knowledge to future fighter pilots and the men who will be in charge of multi-engined bombers. The advanced course provides from 75 to 100 hours of flying. The planes are twice as fast as the primary trainers used at elementary flying schools.

Most of the young airmen who come to Canada from partner dominions in the air training plan have their elementary training behind them and go directly to the service flying schools.

From Many Countries

The graduates of the air training plan—British subjects, Americans, from the Straits Settlements, Mexico, the Argentine, Peru and almost every country in the globe—all have similar skill and equal training. The vast majority will fly alongside the Royal Air Force, with each order and each manoeuvre familiar because of the similarity of the instruction they have received.

A matter of pride to Canada is the speed with which training aircraft have been made available, and service flying craft have come in quantity from both the United Kingdom and the United States. Before they actually go into combat, the airmen will receive some finishing touches of instruction with the high-speed squadrons of the R.A.F. in "front-line" types of machines overseas.

The supply of trained airmen is continuous. In revelwing the progress of the air training plan recently, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said:

"From this source is flowing to Britain an ever-growing stream of pilots, observers and gunners. They have crossed to Britain in thousands, and will continue to cross in ever-increasing numbers."

Baalbeck, Lebanon, July 17 (Delayed)— (AP) —Several hundred prisoners—British, Australians, Indians and three Arab Legion Scouts—were liberated today by Vichy French Forces.

The captives arrived in a freight train of 28 boxcars which came from Aleppo during the night. They alighted in a field within sight of the famous temple ruins of Baalbek where British officers checked them in and gave receipts to three Vichy officers escorting them.

A meal of cold corned beef, pickles, army biscuits and tea awaited the Britains and Australians—but the Indians sat down in the field to a big east. Lambs were slaughtered on the field, a bakery was set up to turn out the pancake-like bread eaten by the Indians, and soon steaming platefuls of curried meat and vegetables were served.

The prisoners taken mainly at the Battle of Kuneitra, Merdjayoun and Mezze, said they had been treated well but food was not plentiful. The Indians said they felt the hardship especially because the Vichy French were unable to provide the kind of food to which they were accustomed.

More prisoners of the Vichy forces are to be delivered tomorrow. Meanwhile, British and Free French troops continue to move up to North Syria.

Yankees May Be Better Off With Dimag's String Broken As Pressure Will Be off Squad

Indians Defeated by Gomez and Lead of Yankees Increased to Seven Games

RIDDLE WINS 11TH

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The baseball season lost some of its zest last night when Joe DiMaggio's phenomenal hitting streak came to an end, but the pennant aspirations of the New York Yankees may be better off.

Millions of fans have been anxiously following the feat of the poker-faced outfielder in rolling up an all-time major league record for hitting safely in 56 consecutive contests.

They telephoned their newspapers for information before editions could reach the street, or even before the games were over; they listened to play-by-play descriptions; they waited patiently beside slowly-unwinding tickers and they turned out by the tens of thousands at the ball parks.

Biggest Crowd of Season

The biggest night crowd in baseball history and the largest throng of the present season, day or night, 67,468, jammed Cleveland's Municipal Stadium last night, more to watch DiMaggio than to see the two top contenders in the American League settle their pennant problems.

Last night Joe didn't hit. He was stopped for the first time since May 15 by two great stabs by Ken Keltner and the pitching of Al Smith and Jim Bagby. But the Yankees won a 4-3 decision from the Indians and came close to locking up the championship.

Gomez Whole Show

Lefty Gomez kept the tribe in check, with some ninth-inning help by Johnny Murphy, on a total of seven hits. This put New York seven games in the lead.

Another batting streak, a 24-game achievement by Cecil Travis, also was snapped yesterday. This one never received much attention because all eyes were turned on DiMaggio, but it was there until Paul (Dizzy) Trout pitched Detroit Tigers to a 7-1 triumph over Washington Senators with a four-hit ration.

The season's best pitching streak, however, was preserved as Cincinnati Reds downed New York Giants 5-2 in a night engagement for Elmer Riddle's 11th victory without defeat. He allowed ten hits, but paced himself well and had the benefit of five runs his teammates got for him in the first three innings.

Rain Halts Contest

The only other National League game ended in a 2-2 tie between the Phillies and the Chicago Cubs, when rain halted their struggle after six innings.

Dominic DiMaggio collected the hits his brothers needed as the Boston Red Sox whipped the White Sox 7-2 and bumped Chicago out of the First Division of the American League. Dominic hit a home run and a triple to drive in three runs. Lefty Thornton Lee failed to go nine innings for the first time in seventeen starts.

The St. Louis Browns edged past the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 with a ninth-inning run on Harlond Clift's single with the bases loaded.

DEFENDING GOLF CHAMPION MEETS BOBBY REITH

Reith Advances to Third Round With Scorching 12-Under-Par Performance

GRAY IS "HOT"

Toronto, July 18 (CP)—Bobby Reith, tall Windsor, Ont., shotmaker who was practically the whole show in opening rounds of the Millar Trophy championship for Eastern Canada Golf professionals, is on the spot today.

The youthful player who became pro at Windsor after rising to stardom in Winnipeg amateur ranks, is pitted against defending champion Bobby Gray in the third round.

Reith advanced to the third round Thursday with a scorching 12-under-par performance. He clipped six strokes off regulation figures in both first and second-round matches.

An exceptionally long hitter, he eliminated the six-time champion Les Robson of Peterborough 3 and 2 and then came through with a bang-up 6 and 5 victory over Frank Locke of Burlington in the second round.

Gray, Scarborough pro, thrust aside Bobby Lamb of Toronto Lambton after being extended to the 21st hole and in the second round eliminated the Toronto player's brother, Willie, 2 and 1.

Peterborough's other entry, Willie Spittal, posted two well-earned victories. He whipped the veteran, Willie Stevens, 4 and 3 in the morning round and scored a 2 and 1 upset over Bill Kerr of the Toronto Hunt Club in the afternoon round.

Other out-of-town second-round winners included: Normie Himes of Kitchener, who scored a one up victory over George Kelly, Toronto; Vic Corbetter, Owen Sound, who whipped Griff Owen, Kirkland Lake, two up.

Nicol Thompson, Jr., of Guelph ousted Dick Borthwick of Toronto Oakdale, 1939 titlist, 2 and 1 in the second round and now meets Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener who was carried to the 21st hole by Clark Knox, Toronto, before winning one up.

Dark-haired Jack Littler of Ottawa who posted a 7 and 6 triumph over Bill McWilliams of Toronto St. Andrews, opposes Les Franks, Toronto ,today.

Other third-round matches bring together Vic Corbett, Owen Sound, and Norm Himes, Kitchener; Ben Norris, Toronto, and and William Freeman, Toronto; Willie Spittal, Peterborough, and Bob Burns, Weston, and Sam Kerr, Toronto.

TORONTO LEAFS CAP WILD RALLY WITH FOUR RUNS

Score 13-12 Win Over Montreal Royals in Ninth Frame

BEARS BEATEN

(By the Associated Press)

The individual performances of Pitcher Freddy Hutchinson and the collective performances of Toronto Maple Leafs, although in no way alike, are making International League baseball history this year.

The amazing Hutchinson specializes in winning ball games for Buffalo Bisons, and today, with the season scarcely past the halfway mark, his record reads 18 victories against three defeats.

Toronto on the other hand seems to specialize in losing ball games, as indicated by 67 losses. It has won only 25 games and has been in the cellar all season, but what makes it interesting is its ability to come through every once in a while with spectacular triumphs against great odds.

Both Hutchinson and the Leafs were in peak form last night, as Buffalo downed Rochester Red Wings 10-2 and Toronto came from behind to edge out a 13-12 victory over Montreal Royals.

Had Little Trouble

Hutchinson had little trouble turning back the Wings, yielding eight hits and striking out nine. He was equally impressive at the plate, contributing a double and two singles in four trips.

The Leafs repeated a stunt they pulled on the same Royals three weeks ago, overcoming an 11-4 lead in the last three innings. Last night they capped off a wild rally with four runs on one hit.

Steve Rachunok, who relieved starting pitcher Ed Head in the eighth, fanned Toronto Catcher Garbark to start the ninth, but walked Al Rubeling and Frank Colman and made a wild pitch.

Tex Carleton went in to stem the tide, but only lasted for two wild pitches and a pair of walks. Wes Flowers replaced Carleton and retired Tom Morgan, but Johnny Hill singled home Floyd Yount with the tying run and when Alex Kampouris threw wildly to third Merullo raced in with the winning run. Each side used four pitchers, with Joe Piechota gaining credit for the victory and Carleton charged with the loss.

Ken Burkhart kept pace with Hutchinson and Toronto last night, tossing a three-hitter to blank Newark Bears 4-0 for Syracuse in the only other game. The Jersey City-Baltimore game was postponed on account of rain.

Vikings Down Trenton Girls By 25-15 Score

In a free-hitting exhibition softball game played at the Armouries lawn last evening the Viking girls of the Belleville League defeated the Allore lassies of the Trenton Girls' Softball League 25 to 15.

Scoring ten runs in the first two frames the Vikings coasted in to win behind Rita Rabbie's fine mound effort. Except for the fifth inning when the Trenton girls scored eight runs, Miss Rabbie had matters well under her control. The Vikings scored in every inning to mount their count.

Norma Maker had a perfect batting average of six hits in as many tries, M. Chambers, Mary Wright and L. Adams showing some strong power at the bat also. McDonald, Drake and Donaldson carried the potent Trenton bats.

The line-ups:

Trenton—Filmore, s.s.; Kerr, c.f.; Donaldson, p.; Chase, 1b; Drake, r.f.; McDonald, c.; Smith, 2b; Bassett, 3b and Glover, l.f.

Vikings—Wright, r.f.; Chambers, s.s.; L. Adams, l.f.; Maker, 2b; E. Adams, 3b; M. Zebedee, c.; Cook, 1b; Tummon, c.f. and Rabbie, p.

STAR SLUGGER ON BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY

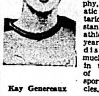
Kay Genereaux is Ontario's Outstanding Girl Athlete

Heralded as Canada's most outstanding girls' softball team, the Sunday Morning Class of the Sunnyside League in Toronto, will represent Canada at the World's Ladies' Softball Tournament to be held in Detroit in September, Manager Frank Doughty of the S.M.C. told President Ted Schwab, of the Belleville Ladies Softball League, when he promised President Schwab his team would play in Belleville on Civic Holiday in aid of the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund.

Included on the Sunday Morning Class girls' team are two former Point Anne girls, Kay and Marie Genereaux, who commenced their colorful softball career on the Armouries Lawn in the old Belleville Girls' Softball League some years ago. Kay Genereaux, who is considered the "Babe Ruth" of the S.M.C., has gone far in her chosen field of sport since leaving the Belleville lots. Last year Kay Genereaux was awarded the Norman Craig Memorial Trophy, emblematic to Ontario's outstanding girl athlete for year 1940, a distinction much coveted in the realm of ladies' sporting circles.



Kay Genereaux

Play All-Stars

The Sunday Morning Class team boasts of many other star players besides the Genereaux sisters, who will be the chief attraction when th S.M.C. come to Belleville to meet an all-star team to be selected from the five local clubs. For instance there is Bea Hughey, the club's leading hitter, whose batting average in the Sunnyside League as of last Monday was a cool .441, as well as Marge McDonald, their ace moundsman.

As there is to be absolutely no administration charges in connection with the games to be played at the Armouries on Civic Holiday, every penny realized from the sale of tickets and collections at the games will go directly to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund Mrs. Stewart Lazier, President of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, assured the executive of the Belleville Ladies' Softball Association, sponsors of this war charity effort, the whole-hearted support of the members of the Red Cross in Belleville and publicly urges the citizens of Belleville to assist the girl softball players of the city in their efforts to raise money for this worthy fund.

Manager Frank Doughty, of the Sunday Morning Class team, is bringing his full team personnel to Belleville on Civic Holiday and playing two games at absolutely no expense to the local organization in order that all proceeds may be given to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund.

JOHNNY GAUDES K.O.'D BY LINDSAY

Vancouver, July 18 (CP)—Kenny Lindsay of Vancouver was recognized today by the British Columbia Boxing Commission as Canadian bantamweight champion.

The Vancouver boy, who broke into professional ranks last year after winning the United States amateur crown in 1938, knocked out Johnny Gaudes of Toronto and St. Boniface, Man., in the auditorium here last night in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Lindsay weighed 117 1-2 and Gaudes 118.

The bout was not recognized as a title fight in eastern Canada where Eddie Petrin of Montreal is recognized as Canadian bantam champion.

A crowd of 1,800 fans saw Gaudes decisively outpoint Lindsay for seven rounds. Then, after 2:27 of the eighth, the Vancouver boy sank two hard left hooks to the solar plexus that dropped Johnny for the count of 10.

Gaudes forced the fight all the way prior to his knockout.

LONG HITTING STREAK ENDED FOR DIMAGGIO

Yankee Outfielder Fails to Get Hit in Game With the Indians

KELTNER BLAMED

Cleveland, July 18 (AP) — The amazing Joe DiMaggio steps to the plate against Bob Feller today as just another hitter trying to get a hit.

After connecting safely in 56 consecutive games against the best pitching in the world for a major league record, the loping Yankee outfielder was stopped by two ordinary hurlers and an all-star third baseman.

Once southpaw Al Smith walked Joe on a three-and-two pitch. Twice sure-fielding Ken Keltner dashed behind third base to make sensational backhand stops and throw out the New York slugger by a step.

The San Francisco star finally bowed out in a tense scene. One man was out and the bases loaded in the eighth inning when Jim Bagby was called from the bullpen. With the count one and one, DiMaggio rapped a sharp grounder to Lou Boudreau that ended in a double play.

DiMaggio himself named Kletner as the villain.

Amid a Yankee victory celebration in the clubhouse, Joe commented:

"I can't say I'm glad that it's over. Of course I wanted to go on as long as I could. But Smith and Bagby didn't break my string. The guy who turned the trick was that Keltner. He was a little rough on me."

Joe broke two records during his sensational spree, passing George Sisler's modern major league mark of 41 set in 1922 and Willie Keeler's 1897 record of 44. His deluge of base hits inspired the Yanks to victory in 36 of their last 41 tussles.

In the 56-game period, the Yankee star went to bat 223 times and made 91 hits for 160 bases. He had 16 doubles, four triples, 15 home runs and batted in 56 runs while scoring the same number himself.

His average for the epochal string was .408. His mark for the season is .371.

C. N. R. ALL-STARS BEAT FRANKFORD

Game Marked by Lusty Clouting and Good Hurling by Bawden

The C.N.R. Allstars had a trifle too much on the ball for the Bata Allstars and won handily by a 15-10 margin as the railroaders and the boys from out Frankford way hooked up in an exhibition softball tilt at Coleman Flats last evening.

The railroad nine took a four-run lead in the first inning as the homesters clouted Chard's offerings for five runs with only a one-run return by the shoemakers. Bata evened matters in the third inning however as the visitors got to Galpin, who was hurling for the railroaders for a bunch of runs to tie the score.

Starting the fifth, Skipper Tuttle sent Bawden in to hurl for the C.N.R. nine with the speed ball artist promptly applying the brakes to shut out Bata for the balance of the game. Sable finished the game on the hilltop for the visitors but was nicked plenty by the railroad nine.

The game was marked by some rather lusty clouting by both teams, no less than five home runs being pounded out, five by the homesters and one by Bata. Urch with two homers and a brace of doubles easily led all the hitters of the night with Bawden and Tufts also conking out round-trippers.

Score by innings:

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

'Tis rumored girls who are willing to play ball never call the game on account of darkness!

Did you know—Ty Cobb was never known as a great slugger — but in 1921 he turned in a batting performance that was tops up to that time....The Georgia Peach (as Cobb was known in his heyday) hit two doubles a triple and a home run in one game....And even today with the lively ball such a batting feat would be considered outstanding and worthy of prominent headlines.

Softball moves into an important role locally this evening with three games carded, two being league play-offs. The City League semi-finals get under way with Reliance meeting Corbys A.C. at the Flats, while down at Point Anne the Esquire kids will battle "Bubby" Gaulin's high-flying Cementmen. Another important fixture is the Zeller-Corbin gals game at the armouries, where the lowly "lockmakers" must win if they expect to get places in the hunt for a league play-off slot. However, the big tussle will be at the Flats between the strengthened Reliance and Corbys. Although the Corbys have beaten the Reliance on three previous occasions during the regular schedule, the victories were never too one-sided. For instance in their first meeting Corbys won 6 to 1; the next time they clashed the count was 8 to 4 and in their last meeting the count was even closer at 5 to 2 for Corbys. Corbys have Bawden and Harris to throw tonight, while Reliance have the veteran Archie Major and the youthful Ray Smith for mound duty and it's anybody's tussle.

Congratulations are in order for Joe Marsh, who entered baseball's hall of fame by pitching a no hit no run game for Latta against Shannonville in a South Hastings Baseball League fixture on Wednesday. Be it major league or back lot baseball, pitching a no hit no run game is a mound effort worthy of recognition.

Do you remember when for "getting into an argument that was none of his business," Johnny Rizzo, rookie Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, was fined $25 by President Ford Frick of the National Baseball League three years ago today. Rizzo had rushed off the bench to protest a third strike called against Jim Tobin. Angry fans bombarded umpire Larry Goetz with pop bottles when he ordered Rizzo out of the game.

Bits of this and that .... The word from the dugouts is that Muddy Ruel, who has been doing such a great job with the White Sox pitchers this season, is in line to succeed Bucky Harris as manager of the Washington Senators in 1942....Ruel had charge of the White Sox recently while Manager Jimmy Dykes was under suspension....When the owners of the St. Louis Browns were looking for a pilot to replace Fred Haney not so long ago, they offered Ruel the job....Being a resident of St. Louis, Ruel was ready to accept but was talked out of taking the post by Dykes.... Incidentally, Ruel, a law school graduate has more poise and dignity than just about any big league manager you can name and should do all right in Washington..We notice where the Indians have benched their first baseman, Hal Trosky, for Oscar Grimes against left-hand pitching....And the word is that Trosky may be kept on the bench even against right-handers.... Hal has been the biggest disappointment of the year as far as the Cleveland club is concerned and it would surprise no one if he were traded or sold before another season rolls around.

Down in Kingston the management of the Ponies in the Interprovincial baseball loop are wondering how they are going to overcome the "gasolineless Sundays," as their club depends upon the generosity of citizens, who donate their cars each Sunday to transport the Ponies to Hull and Ottawa. When the Ponies lost two games recently, here is some comment as to the probable reason as suggested by Peterboro Fred Craig, who says: "The reason the Kingston ball club has fallen out of first place in the Interprovincial senior loop is that the veteran players on the club have been failing to make the trip to Hull for games there and as a result the Ponies have dropped battles they might otherwise have won. That will have a familiar sound to a lot of Peterborough fans who will remember that for years the Petes were similarly handicapped in games played at Kingston. Some of the regulars rarely made the long hike to the Limestone City and the Petes usually went into action there with a weakened lineup. On several occasions, as a matter of fact, they landed in Kingston with only nine players and two or three of them in positions with which they were not familiar. It was this habit of sending weak lineups to Kingston that put the Petes behind the eight-ball in more than one season. The Ponies on the other hand usually had a full team when they performed here."

SPORT SPICE—Belleville softball nines triumphed somewhat over Trenton in exhibition games last night when the Viking lassies beat the Allore girls from Trenton 25 to 15 while the C.N.R. "Railsaw" squad downed a picked team from the Trenton league in a men's tussle...... Joe Dimaggio is all through at 56—it took a night game and some tall fielding to stop Dimagg, but before nearly 68,000 fans Joe Dimaggio failed to connect for a safe hit for the first time in 68 games (including the all-star tussle at Detroit) and fell five short of equalling the minor league record of consecutive games, which is 61...... But the Yankees won to extend their lead to seven full games over the Yankees, as Lefty Gomez won his own game with some timely hitting...... Joe Dimaggio hasn't fanned since June 8th...... George Dickey, brother of Yankee Bill and Chicago catcher, is headed for the United States army draft...... The Detroit Lions don't appear at Briggs Stadium this fall until their fourth league game, while the New York Giants, of the pro. grid ranks, play one more home stand than any other club in the loop......port your helm.

East Hill Wins Softball Game

Making their hits count into runs, the East Hill nine downed the West Hill lads for the third consecutive time in a Playground League softball game played at the West Belleville Playgrounds yesterday when the East-enders scored seven runs in the last inning to win by a 17 to 13 score.

The West Hill team pounded out no less than five circuit blows, but could not produce hits when they meant victory. Kessler and Mills pounded out two home runs each while Clarke hit another round-tripper for the losers. Wilson had the only circuit smash chalked up by the winners.

Wardaugh started on the hilltop for the East Hill kids, but was replaced by Doug Adams in the third while Barney Wright pitched the full game for the West Hill nine.

The line-ups:

East Hill, Cronin, c.; Newson, c.f.; Wardaugh and Adams, p.; Taylor, l.f.; Paulini, 3b; Blake, s.s.; Milligan and Adams, 2b; Kelleher, 1b.

West Hill—Smith, c; Kessler, 1b; R. Rossati, 1b; Reeves, s.s.; Day, 3b; Clarke, r.f.; D. Rossati, 2b; Mills, l.f. and Wright, p.

No Canadian Records Broken At Swim Meet

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Verdun, Que., July 18 (CP)—Many Canadian swimming crowns were remodelled to fit the heads of the new champions today as top-notch swimers from various parts of the Dominion either rested or travelled homeward after two days of stiff competition.

The crowns—that is those which didn't topple off the heads of defending champions—were redistributed last night at the conclusion of the Canadian Swimming and Diving Championships meet in Verdun's municipal natatorium where not a single record was broken either in preliminary or final events.

Perhaps most prominent of the new titleholders was young Tommy Parke of Hamilton, Ont., who scored an easy victory in the senior men's 440-yard free style event before diving into the pool to head home the field in the junior men's 100-yard free style competition.

Sharing the spotlight with Parke was Winnipeg's attractive Key Gordon, who staged a brilliant comeback to win for the third successive time the Dominion senior women's 100-yard free style title.

Another defending champion to put on a smart display was Aurel Thomas of Montreal, who piled up 126.77 points to retain his senor men's three-metre springboard diving championship.

Although edged out in the senior women's 100-yard free style, Bernice Belbeck managed to take a title to Hamilton by winning the senior women's 100-yard backstroke event.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

by JANE DIXON

COPYRIGHT 1940, BY JANE DIXON

"Of course you will, Clara. You will indeed. Just hand me the silver sandals off the floor, will you dear? I'll tuck them here in the side—"

"Listen, Ma, suppose you take the bag and go on and wait for me in the Sugar Bowl. Maybe I'll run across Mr. Martino on my way out — Al Martino — he's the swell-looking fellow who gives the prizes for that Metrople Company, the one who introduced me on the stage. I got something I wanta talk to him about. Do that for me. Will you, Ma? If I don't show up in ten minutes, take the bag home with you. Maybe Mr. Martino will want me to go to supper with him — if he does I'll have to go after all they're giving me. Oh, Ma, isn't it simply marv'lous! Me being a prize beauty. I mean? Here's the bag. Gee, the darn thing's heavy as lead. Be sure and save a piece of fudge cake for me. I'll eat it when I get home, 'Bye, Ma."

The little drab woman picked up the bag, retraced her steps along the dusky corridors. The heavy bag struck awkwardly against her thin legs. Her Clara! She ought to be happy. Why then this heaviness on her heart?

Marilyn Marsh turned in at the gate of the gray house with the green shutters. The house had once been gray with paint; now it was gray with the battering of time and weather, a depressing gray where the paint had worn off or was in process of peeling. Shutters despite their sagging, were its most attractive feature. They had taken on tones of blue with their green until they were of a shade artists strive for, but seldom achieve. Nature is still the most magnificent painter of them all.

The flower beds bordering the worn gravel path leading to the gray house were a tangle of old-fashioned bloom. They clambered out onto the path, and in the beds, struggled with one another for predominance.

"I wish I weren't so dog-tired," Marilyn Marsh said aloud, "I'd get out here in a pair of dad's overalls and do some fast and furious gardening. The place certainly needs a lot of going over — it looks scrabblier every day.

Marilyn stopped to rescue a rose bud from the clutch of a morning-glory vine that was strangling it. A slim eager young thing, Marilyn Marsh, with a wind blown cap of chestnut-brown hair, eyes the color of wood violets growing in a shady spot, a touch of bronze in her skin and glowed right on through the winter snows. Presently she reached the steps leading to the broad somewhat rickety veranda and let herself down in a heap on the lower step.

"Mums," she called, "anybody home?"

Mrs. Marsh came through the open door, her hands in a flutter. "Oh, Baby," she managed breathlessly, "I'm that glad you're home I declare I don't know what to do. The most wonderful thing has happened—"

"Good." Marilyn tumbled the damp hair back from her face. "Are there any lemons in the house, darling? The most wonderful thing on earth this minute is a pitcher of lemonade with a large chunk of ice in it. My mouth is absolutely chalky—"

"But, Baby, your sister — she—"

"I know. Clara won the beauty contest at the Bijou Theater. A customer stopped in the store and told us about it."

"But aren't you happy, Baby? Our Clara — six counties — a trip to New York!"

"Of course I'm happy. I'd shout with glee if I had enough energy left to raise a shout. This family can do with a few strokes of good luck. My word, look who's coming down the street! The queen in person accompanied by her faithful outriders, dad and the kid brother. Now we can all join hands and sing ring-a-rosy!"

Clara Marsh swept up the flower-grown path in what she believed to be her great-lady manner. She was followed by a gaunt man with stooped shoulders, a man done in tones of gray like the worn house, by a rangy lad of twelve or thereabouts, redheaded and plentifully bespattered with freckles.

"Hi, Lovely!" Marilyn called gaily. "Congratulations. I hear you've brought fame to the family."

"Thanks." Clara swished her skirts beyond the reach of an encroaching lilac bush. "Why doesn't somebody cut these darn things back where they belong. And why can't pa fix that gate — it's been hanging on one hinge for months. this place is a disgrace. How you can expect me to make anything of myself, living in a — a —"

"Aw, give it a bone, Big Stuff, will ya?" William Marsh, Jr., the redheaded boy with the freckles, kicked loose gravel off the toe of his shoe. "You ain't Hedy Lamarr — not yet. Mom, can I have some cookies?"

"Yes, son." The mother welcomed an appetite that swung attention away from Clara's complaints. "You'll find them in the jar on the pantry shelf. I baked them this morning — molasses."

"Gee, Mom, that's swell!" The boy dived into the house, leaving the door to slam sharply behind him.

"You'd think a boy of his age would have some manners." Clara gave a theatric shudder. "My nerves are a wreck, all those lights in the theater, the strain, the applause — and now that boy—"

The senior Marsh interrupted with a chuckle. "Bill's all right, Clara girl," he said in his ghost of a voice. "Just a healthy colt."

"That's what you think." Disdain, Clara judged, should go with this line. "If you'd take the trouble to correct him once in a while, to give him a good healthy tanning, he might not turn out to be a — a — pest!"

"Whose a pest?" Bill demanded, busting from the house in a whirl of flying arms and legs. "Ya, pes yourself. If I was givin' prizes I'd give you the Nitwit Prize, Nitwit! Hey, Sis," to Marilyn, who was trying to close her ears against the familiar family jangle, "I forgot to give you this. A boy brought it after you left for the store this noon. Bill dug into the pocket of his blouse and brought forth a crumpled yellow envelope. "I hadda sign your name so's he'd leave it with me."

"It's a — why it's a telegram." Marilyn stared with unbelieving eyes.

"A mistake, of course." Clara stretched forth her hand for the message. "Some one got our names mixed. I've had oodles of messages from admirers, wishing me luck in the contest."

"It's addressed to me." Marilyn tore open the envelope, glanced hurriedly at the words typed on the yellow paper. Glanced, reread slowly, then tossed sheet and envelope high above her head in an abandon of joy.

"Mums, Dad!" she sang. "I won, I won, I won!"

Mrs. Marsh was frightened by the intensity of that cry. "Now Baby," she soothed, "Don't act so. I'll get you a nice glass of lemonade. All this excitement about Clara has been too much for us. It was Clara who won the beauty contest, Baby—"

"Sure, Mums, Clara won the beauty contest and I won the Jingle Jubilee — one thousand dollars for the best last line to a jingle about Clarco — America's super soap flakes."

Mrs. Marsh could do no more than whisper, "A thousand dollars. A thousand dollars! Baby! It can't be."

Mr. Marsh fumbled with a lapel of his wrinkled cotton coat. "Poetry," he murmured. "My little girl wins a poetry prize. She was always making up rhymes, even when she was a teeny tot. A poet!"

Young Bill Marsh went galloping around in circles, giving tongue to shrill noises. "Yi yippi yi," "Ride 'em cowboy." "Toot, toot yee-e-pi!" Between circlings he stopped long enough to yell! "Hey, Sis, read it again. Maybe you made a mistake. Maybe it's a thousand pennies. Oh boy, have I got a smart sister! Oh boy, wait'll I tell Fats and Shrimpy. Mom, can I go tell Fats and Shrimpy? I gotta. Mom! You don't want me to bust, do you Mom? Hey Sis, how does it feel to be rich? Hey Sis — yi yippy ye-e-e!"

Clara Marsh stood silent, tense, an angry red rising from her throat to stain her cheeks.

"Ol Clara can't take it!" Bill jibed, still on the gallop. "Lookit her. She's gonna' blow up!"

The taunt unleashed Clara's tongue, thick with malice. "You did this on purpose, Marilyn Marsh," she said wildly. "You fixed it so you'll get this telegram right after I'd won the contest. You couldn't stand to have me get ahead of you. You can't bear it because you're plain — because I got the good looks of the family. You think you can make me look cheap. You think you can show people how much better it is to have brains than beauty. You schemed to cheat me out of the attention I'd get as a beauty contest winner. But you won't get away with it! You hear me, you won't get away with it. I won't let you, I'll I'll—"

The lash of her sister's malice stung Marilyn to speech.

"Clara," shock was leaving her a little weak, "have you gone out of your mind completely?"

Clara drew the bow of her lips to a hard straight line.

"I was never more sane," she said, "more clear-headed. Clear enough to see your cute game, my bright sister. You can wire back to those fools, whoever they are, and tell them you don't want their cheap money — you won't accept it. You wire 'em now, this very evening, before the newspapers get hold of it. Bill can take the wire down to the office—"

Bill yowled defiance. "Me send back a whole thousand dollars of sis's money? Like heck I will! She won it, didn't she, same as you, only Sis ain't a beauty nitwit. Dad, does Sis have to send back her own good money she earned just 'cause ol' Clara is such a doggone drip? Does she- Dad?"

Marilyn folded the yellow paper, returned it to its envelope, slipped them into a patch pocket of her cotton dress. "Take it easy, Bill," she said evenly. "There will be no need for you to go to the telegraph office. I haven't the slightest notion of refusing the Clarco award."

"Ma, Pa," Clara was in a frenzy of hate, of resentment. "Are you going to stand there like a couple of numbskulls and let her cheat me — are you going to stand by and — and —"

Marilyn turned to go into the house. At the top of the steps she paused and said, "You shouldn't do it, Clara, whip yourself into a foam. When you do, you're really quite ugly."

Clara's strangled scream followed her into the dim hall.

Marilyn did not come down for supper.

"I'm fagged out," she said when her mother tapped on her door, urged her to take "just a bite so's you won't get headachy."

"Put a sandwich on a plate, there's a lamb," she begged. "Bill will bring it to me. And a glass of milk. I'll nibble and sip while I rest."

Mrs. Marsh did not insist. Such a day! No wonder her girls were upset. It might be better to keep them apart while they were so high-strung like this. Dear Clara was just a bundle of nerves. A bundle. Whatever made her say such crazy things? Of course she didn't mean a word she said. Just dear Clara's temper.

Marilyn slipped into her blue kimona (most of the pink flowers had been washed out of it). "The luxury of communion with an old friend," she mused, and pulled the soft blue folds close to her. She paced the room, flung herself on her bed, rose hastily and stood gazing out of the window, seeing nothing. She was hugging her good fortune. Dreaming dreams. Building fantastic castles, only to topple them over and start building new and more dazzling ones. Dream Castles. None of them would come true, none of them real, but it was fun to pretend.

HOPKINS SAYS

"I am convinced that the British Empire and the United States and those people who still are free can produce the mechanical equipment which is required in this war in vastly greater quantities than Hitler can, so that those depressed peoples throughout the world who may be worrying how this war is going mst know that this war just cannot be lost".

Although he answered negatively when asked if United States flag merchantships were engaged in convoys to the United Kingdom, he said American-built ships under foreign registry were carrying war supplies to this country.

Britain's needs, Mr. Hopkins said, "are going to require a major change in our agricultural program", particularly in dairying.

"We are going to increase very substantially the plant production of tanks, anti-tanks guns and anti-aircraft guns", he also said.

Particular attention is being given to the production of the heavy, four-engined bombers, he said, which "can knock out factories and sources of supply in the most distant parts of eastern Germany".

ICELAND'S DEFENCE

PLANES

Bombardment of Nazi positions in France continued in daylight today.

Coast observers said British planes sped over the Channel and attacked the Calais, Dunkirk and Ostend regions. Other planes centred the attacks well inland.

Bombers Sweep Over Channel

British planes early last night carried out "further operations", the Air Ministry said, presumably over France. Coast residents reported seeing fighters and bombers swept over the Straits of Dover heading for the Nazi-occupied French coast. Earlier bombers attacked Calais.

In elaboration of yesterday's atday over the English Channel and Northern France the R.A.F. destroyed nine enemy planes and lost six fighters.

In a elaboratio of yesterday's attacks the Air Ministry said today that pilots flying United States built bombers started fires on an airdrome in Northern France which were visible 40 miles away.

A Press Association writer said that the gigantic attack on the Netherlands port of Rotterdam Wednesday "was the biggest success achieved by the R.A.F. against shipping in one day since the war started". Twenty-two Axis ships were attacked in low-level dives, while citizens waved greetings from city streets. Seventeen ships put out of action and five more damaged severely.

Offensive Successful

The Press Association said that the offensive against Axis shipping on the west front has compiled a harvest of 56 ships totalling 200,000 tons sunk or badly damaged in the past ten days.

In another estimate, retired Admiral Sir Lionel Preston said in a broadcast that 85 Axis ships have been sunk during the past month by "air and submarine". The total is "nearly as many (ships) as they have sunk of ours", he added, in suggesting the intensified blasting of Axis land fortifications had forced the Nazis to turn to water transport

CONVICT NEGRO

COMPOSER PARDONED

Trenton, N.J., July 18 (CP) — Clinton P. Brewer, 36-year-old negro who learned to write music while serving a life term for murder, was ordered paroled from State prison yesterday.

Brewer's first original work, "Stampede in G Minor," was recorded by Count Basie's orchestra last year.

Pardon Clerk William Hildebrand, Jr., said Brewer had been offered a job as a music arranger upon his release from prison. He was convicted in 1922 for killing his wife.

OLD RESIDENT DIES

Campbellford, Ont., July 18 (CP) —John A. Frederick, 90, one of Campbellford's pioneer citizens, died very suddenly while eating his supper at his home here Thursday evening. For many years he was engaged in the clothing business retiring only two years ago.

He is survived by one son, Dr. E. V. Frederick of Orangeville, his wife having died about three years ago.

BABE OF 20 MONTHS DISPLAYS PRESENCE OF MIND

Brazil, Ind., July 18 —(AP)— Virginia Strong is only 20 months old but she knew what to do when she fell into a well. The lid on the well gave way beneath her and she plunged 20 feet into chilling water. She caught hold of the pipe from the pump and held on for 20 minutes until firemen could let down a man to save her.

RESCUE BOAT CREWS NEEDED

London, July 18 (CP)—The Air Ministry appealed today for men of 18 to 42 years of age to man high-speed launches of the Royal Air Force's rescue service which patrols the seas around Britain.

GERMANY CLAIMS

Acknowledge Counter-Attacks

(A DNB broadcast, heard in London, acknowleged strong Russian counter-attacks on German infantry trying to advance toward Kiev in the wake of armored units).

Sandwiched between the meagre accounts of land operations was a DNB dispatch claiming Nazi naval units had severely damaged the Russian destroyer Tashkent. (The Tashkent, a 2,895-ton vessel, was launched in 1937.)

To fill out the lack of detailed information concerning the fighting, German spokesmen gave generalized description of "the great battle exceeding in magnitude the mightiest engagements of the Great War."

"So tremendous are the forces engaged in the conflict," the spokesman asserted, "that its outcome will have the most far-reaching consequences in determining the fate of Europe."

Dienst Aus Deutschland, Nazi commentary, asserted the last reserves of the Red Army would be exhausted in a "futile attempt" to halt the German forces advancing on Moscow and Leningrad.

THREE ADMIRALS,

Construction Department and director of Naval Aviation Headquarters.

Vice-Admiral Seizo Sakonji became Minister of Commerce and Industry, Toyoda's old post. The Ministries of Communicaitons and Railways were both taken by Shozo Murata, who had held the Communications portfolio.

Influence Evident

Lt. Gen. Chikahiko Koizumi became Minister of Welfare succeeding Yasuo Kanemitsu. Maj. Gen. Teiichi Suzuki and Lt. Gen. Heisuke Yanagawa became ministers without portfolio.

Ousted, besides Matsuoka, were Isao Kawada, Finance Minister; Tsuneo Kanemitsu, Welfare; Gotaro Ogawa, Railways, and Kiyoshi Akita, Overseas Affairs.

The last three were Party men. Their removal meant that the Government had been "cleaned 100 per cent," as Domei, Japanese news agency, expressed it, of "party influence."

(Konoye has led the movement for elimination of Japanese political parties. He has instituted instead a campaign for a "new national structure" which, aside from being partyless, is still a vague totalitarian concept so far as general public knowledge geos.)

Domei said that Kanemitsu, Ogawa and Akita had been regarded in the old Cabinet as "more or less representing the interests of defunct political groups."

The influence of former Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, who previously was Prince Konoye's Home Minister and now becomes Vice Premier, is evident.

Prince Konoye assumed the office of Minister of Justice himself.

Harumichi Tanabe, Communications Minister in the 1939 Hiranuma Cabinet, became Home Minister.

The War Minister is Lt. Gen. Hideki Tojo, and the Navy Minister is Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, both hold-overs from the previous Konoye Cabinet which was installed just a year ago today and resigned two days ago.

Swing Away From Axis Policy

London, July 18 —(CP)— At first glance, the Japanese cabinet revision appears to be a swing away from Axis influence toward a "purely Japanese policy," a well-posted British political source declared today.

He emphasized, however, that this did not necessarily mean a policy favorable to British interests.

Another view in these quarters was that the re-shuffle was intended merely to ease Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka out of office.

"Undoubtedly Matsuoka lost face with his own people when the Germans marched into Russia," one commentator said. "It is a safe bet he never was given the slightest intimation of such action when he visited Berlin and Rome."

There is nothing in the changes, it was said, to give a clue to Japan's immediate course of action, especially regarding any possible moves against French Indo-China or Soviet Russia.

The new Foreign Minister, Vice-Admiral Teijiro Toyada, was described by this source as "a distinguished admiral but of unknown quantity as a politician as far as Britain is concerned."

ALL VITAL

mans were using rockets as signals for night action—red to open fire, white for orders to attack and green to cease fire — and related how one Russian officer sent up his own green rocket, silencing the Nazi fire, and then led his troops into a counter-charge.

Reports from the front said rain was falling, drenching the flat lands and marshes and threatening to ground German dive bombers and halt tanks at the critical moment of the German offensive.

The Red Army is hanging on, determined and unbudging at every vital position, the official Russian war report declared.

The battling, contrary to recent days when a lull had been experienced on most sectors at dusk, rose to a fierce tempo almost the entire length of the front.

Only in a variation of the sectors where especially heavy engagements were mentioned did the communique covering night operations differ from that of yesterday.

Heavy Fighting Near Bobruisk

Heavy fighting was reported during the night in the Bobruisk area on the south side of the Smolensk Salient where the Germans have driven to within 230 miles of Moscow. Yesterday it was on the north side of the Salient that fighting was hardest.

The Novograd-Volynski area before Kiev was not especially active, according to the Soviet Command.

But in the Pskov-Porkhov sector on the road to Leningrad, in Bessarabia where the Germans evidently were pushing harder toward Odessa, the Black Sea port, and the Smolensk zone before Moscow there was a continuous roar of artillery fire, the rapid shifting of mechanized forces and the heavy action of bombers.

The Soviets said they had destroyed 22 German planes in air battles and bombings yesterday in exchange for a loss of eight of their own planes.

Hang on To Flanks

Russian advices pictured Red arm troops hanging on to the dangerous flanks of the German salient driven toward Moscow, offering prolonged and sometimes suicidal resistance at many strong points far behind the Nazi spearheads and conducting a ceaseless guerilla warfare behind the lines.

As on the day before, the main fighting was reported in the Smolensk district, 230 miles from Moscow, the Pskov-Porkkov area 150 miles southwest of Leningrad and the Novograd-Volynski sector 130 miles west of Kiev.

To these sectors of activity, the Soviet command added Bessarabia, which it had not mentioned in recent days.

Omitted from mention as a battle-zone was the Bobruish area south of the Smolensk salient where the Red army previously was reported on the offensive, beating the Germans back from the Dneiper River.

Heavy Fighting at Rear

But on the other flank of the Smolensk salient, the Soviet command said heavy fighting took place at Polotsk, 140 miles to the rear of the Smolensk spearhead.

The only action reported on the Finnish front was in the Arctic Ocean off Rybachi Peninsula where it was said a Nazi submarine was sunk by a mine.

It was evident the Soviet command attached great importance to the action of the Red air fleet in delivering counter-blows to the Nazi offensive. The communique said many German aircraft were destroyed when Soviet planes attacked German airfields, and truck and tanks were smashed in bombing of mechanized columns.

Ninety eight German planes had been destroyed the past two days at an expense of only 23 Soviet planes, it was claimed.

ATLANTIC FERRY

The men said that sometimes they fly in groups and sometimes singly. All prefer to fly singly because "we feel we have more room to ourselves."

A senior executive of the ferry service who attended the interview said that "we consider ourselves as an airline. We run with adequate range margins with the best possible crews we can get."

"Additions" Made

When a plane lands in England, he said, some 'additions" have to be made before it goes into service. Some of the "additions" are secrets, but others are made in England simply for convenience.

Hudson Aircraft carry flotation bags, an automatic rubber dinghy, lifejackets, rations and flashlights. The bags, he said, would keep an aircraft afloat indefinitely on a calm sea. The machines all set out for a definite airport in Britain, but where they actually land is decided by the aircraft control in England.

Pay in the service is $500 per trip for captain pilots and $400 for first officers, with a minimum of two trips per month. American papers have recently announced a substantial increase for American pilots.

Australians, South Africans, New Zealanders, Rhodesians, French, Norwegians, Poles, Dutchmen, Americans and Canadians are employed but most of them are commercial flyers from the United States.

Asked if he thought airlines will be established across the North Atlantic after the war, the executive said, "My only worry is that there will be so many airlines the traffic congestion will be terrible".

Neither he nor the men believes the Germans have bombers which could make a bombing trip to Canada and return non-stop

Montreal, July 18 (CP).—A senior executive of Atfero, the Atlantic bomber ferry service, said in an interview today that "we are and have been right along in a position to handle at least three times as many plants as have been supplied to us."

Some are calling the Atlantic ferry service "a bottle neck" in the delivery system, he said, but no aircraft has been held up through any fault of the company.

"We have delivered everything that was slung at us and we did it through an Atlantic winter which was never done before. I feel the achievement should be considered in a different light."

At one time, he said, 20 bombers were held up because alterations had to be made in the motors. On another occasion a B-24 was delayed also becuse an alteration was necessary.

SEVERE ASSAULT STAGED BY NAZIS ON PORT OF HULL

FIRES STARTED

London, July 18 (CP)—Nazi air raiders dropped bombs on a northeast coast port of Hull during the night in one of the most severe assaults on the British Isles in weeks.

Incendiary bombs started a ring of fires and many heavy explosives fell on houses, commercial buildings and shops, causing extensive damage and many casualties.

Three shelters on one street were hit and most persons in them were believed killed. Two banks and a small post office were destroyed and a theatre was cut in half.

Five men in a hotel were trapped by debris when a bomb demolished part of the building. Two were rescued and squads searched for the others.

In other parts of Britain, enemy activity was light. Some bombs were dropped but no damage or casualties were reported.

German long-range guns fired 16 shells from emplacements on the French coast in the darkness early today, apparently at a convoy in Dover Strait, although no ships could be seen from the English cliffs.

Hollywood Stars Entertain Airmen

Ottawa, July 18 (CP)—Jimmy Cagney, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale and George Tobias—Hollywood movie stars here to make "Captains of the Clouds"—last night entertained student airmen at Rockcliffe Air Station with a show in Rockcliffe Auditorium.

On the way to the field the actors, who have leading roles in the (Warner Bros.) picture based on the Royal Canadian Air Force, had to fight their way through nearly 1,000 movie fans who stormed their hotel for a glimpse of their "idols."

They were helped to their car by a detachment of soldiers on hand for just such an emergency.

REGINA SOLDIER LOCATED

Regina, July 18 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Gardner of Regina have received word that their son, Second Lieutenant James Charlton, 20, has been located after being reported missing since June 19 while serving with the Royal Tank Regiment of the British Army in the Middle East. Lieut. Gardner was born in Regina and graduated from the Royal Military College, Kingston Ont.

Blacklist of 1,833 Firms Issued

Washington, July 18.—(AP)—United States publication of a blacklist of 1,833 firms and individuals deemed to be serving the interests of the Axis Powers in Latin America was described in official quarters today as a severe blow to such commercial activity as Germany and Italy have been able to carry on in the southern republics.

Authorities said the Nazis especially had been trying to hold on to their Latin American customers in some instances by supplying them with products actually made in the U.S. but packaged and represented as German-manufactured. Distribution of the blacklist and imposition of United States export restrictions against the firms named therein was expected virtually to shut off this source of supplies for the Axis.

The White House said the list would serve two principal purposes—to prevent those named in it from receiving any of the hundreds of articles now under export control "except in special circumstances" and to prohibit them from using any of the Axis assets in the U.S. which recently were frozen by the President.

GERMAN GENERAL INJURED

Berlin, July 18 (AP)—Gen. Von Schroeder, German military commander in Serbia, has been injured slightly in a plane crash, DNB, German news agency, reported today in a Belgrade dispatch.

His plane was caught by a gust of wind in landing and thrown against some electric wires.

Now Up to Falcons

Montreal, July 18.—(CP) — It seems to be strictly up to the Falcons today.

Plans are complete for an attempt to capture the two adult birds that have made the top of the Sun Life Building their home for almost six years, but the plans will not be carried out if the Falcons will leave workmen repairing the building alone.

The big birds with a 200-mile-an-hour power-dive drew a respite yesterday when workmen went about their task on a high scaffold unmolested from the sky. The day before the workmen had been driven to cover by repeated attacks.

If the work goes on unhindered the Falcons can stay where they are, if the workmen are driven to cover again, the capture plan goes into effect.

Germany's Armies and Air Force Threatened With Oil Shortage If Russian War Continues to Sept.

London, July 18 (CP)—Germany's armies and air force are threatened with a severe oil and fuel shortage if the Russian campaign continues through September, a Ministry of Economic Warfare source declared today.

German supplies already are "severely cut" by the war with Russia and the Red air force's bombardments of the Rumanian Ploesti oil fields and oil-shipping port of Constanta, according to this source.

He said the Germans lost an annual supply of about 1,000,000 tons of oil when they attacked the Soviet Union, this being his estimate of what Russia supplied Germany under their trade agreement.

Although this tonnage was small he said it was oil used as a lubricant and in Diesel motors and hence was "very important to the German war machine."

Used Up All Stock

Nazi war needs now have used up all oil stocks captured in the Polish, Norwegian, Flanders and French campaigns, this source continued, and "there are many signs of a serious shortage among civilians in Germany."

In the occupied countries, he said, there is no fuel for anyone but the air force.

(The Italian government announced today there would be no gasoline for privately owned vehicles isued in Italy after Oct. 1.)

This informant attached importance to the bombing of Constanta where, he said, large supplies of oil were lying on the docks waiting to be shipped.

Forced to Use Sea Routes

He added that the Germans had been forced to use sea routes for oil transport because of the weight of railroad traffic due to the Russian campaign and said the British navy "has carried out a ceaseless campaign against German tankers in the Mediterranean and the Russians report success against other tankers in the Black Sea."

British air blows at German synthetic oil plants are damaging to German economy, and the British airmen are looking forward to the longer nights when four-motored American bombers can carry the attack to Nazi plants beyond the present range of night raids, the informant said.

Even if the Germans win in Russia, he asserted, their oil supply situation will not be improved "if proper demolitions are carried out."

"Our experts," he said, "estimate that it would take even American oil workers with the best tools over a year to get Russian fields into production if the Russians carry out maximum demolition in the fields."

THE WAR TODAY

BY DON GILBERT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Harry Hopkins' disclosure in London today that at least 6,000,000 tons of shipping will be completed in United States shipyards in 1942 means that if losses can be kept to the average of the last six months—and the toll has not been light in those months—the battle of the Atlantic will be won in another year.

British, Allied and Neutral losses in the first half of 1941, including the heavy non-recurring losses involved in the evacuations from Greece and Crete, approximated 2,500,000 tons, indicating that sinkings are now taking place on an annual basis of 5,000,000 tons.

Today's announcement by Mr. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's supervisor of the Lend-Lease Program, indicates that next year even if the Germans can keep up the present rate of sinkings, United States shipyards alone will make a net addition of 1,000,000 tons to the British merchant fleet. To this will be added tremendous building program in full swing in Britain, Canada, Australia and other British countries.

Two days ago, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said recent results in the fight against German U-Boats "would encourage any First Lord". It appears that success is slowly being achieved in the northwestern approaches to Britain—the waters between Ireland and Iceland, and that the weight of the enemy's attack is now being brought to bear farther south.

For a while German submarines were active south of Greenland, but it is likely that President Roosevelt's assumption of responsibility for the safety of communications between Iceland, now part of the western hemisphere defence system, and North America will make further U-boat activities in these western waters impracticable.

American Tourists Allowed to Use Credit Cards for Gas

Toronto, July 18 (CP)—G. R. Cottrelle, Oil Controller for Canada, announced today the relaxing of the new restrictions on purchases of gasoline and oil to allow American tourists to use credit cards issued by distributors who carry on business in the United States.

The regulations announced Tuesday banned the use of all credit cards starting next Monday.

The gasoline purchased by a tourist on the credit card must be used "only in a motor vehicle bearing a licence issued by one of the United States of America."

Mr. Cottrelle said also that the industry has been instructed to notify their United States correspondents that credit cards issued by Canadian companies must not be honored after Monday, July 21."

Five Missing Men Searched by Guardsmen

Sackets Harbor, N.Y., July 18 —(AP)— United States coast guardsmen searched today for five men, missing since their boat overturned during a severe storm Wednesday on Lake Ontario.

"There's hardly a chance they have survived," Chief Boatswain's Mate Thomas Dailey said last night.

The coast guard office identified the fishermen as Joseph Millica, John Galletta and Benny Normandia, all of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Anthony Surace and Kenneth Belko, both of Watertown, N.Y.

SIX CHILDREN DROWN IN SLOUGH

Five of One Family Victims When Home-Made Skiff Capsizes

Edmonton, July 18.—(CP)—Five children, all members of one family and perhaps a sixth from another family, were drowned yesterday in a slough near St. Paul, Alta., 128 miles northeast of Edmonton, Royal Canadian Mounted Police here reported today.

R.C.M.P. said their office at St. Paul reported five children, aged two to 13 years, of Steve Schmelyk of Goodfish Lake, were drowned after falling from a home-built skiff. The report added Nancy Melnychuk, six, daughter of John Melnychuk, was missing and it was believed she had been with the five others.

Corporal Raymond of the R.C.M.P. detachment at St. Paul and Dr. Gagnon, coroner at St. Paul, were said to be investigating.

No other details were received here.

The skipper was thrown into the water when his trawler capsized after a bombing attack by a Nazi airman. He hauled himself aboard a raft and saved two of his crew. Then he saw a third shape in the darkness and pulled it on to the raft. It turned out to be his own trousers with 10 pounds in notes in the pockets.

Four persons — Two auxiliary fire service men, a girl and a boy who attempted to rescue her—lost their lives when the ground collapsed in a street near a bombed house in a northeast town. The girl fell into the crater and the boy who went to save her was overcome by fumes. The two firemen tried to bring out the children but they, too, were overcome. A third man eventually recovered the four bodies.

Stan Horne Moves Into Quarter-Finals

Toronto, July 18 (AP)—Stan Horne, of Montreal, one of the leading contenders for Bob Gray's Millar throphy golf championship, moved into the quarter finals at the Islington Club today by defeating Art Hulbert of Toronto, one up.

A three-foot putt decided their third-round match on the 18th. green. Both drove to the green in two and both putted to within 3 feet of the cup. But Hulbert missed his short shot and Horne calmly stroked his into the cup for the match.

Advancing with Horne into this afternoon's quarter finals, Normie Himes of Kitchener, was at the top of his game in defeating Vic Corbett of Owen Sound, 3 and 2, and Ben Norris of Toronto, defeated Willie Freeman of Toronto, by the same score.

Gray was one up on Bobby Reith of Windsor, at the end of 13 holes. Reith was the hottest man on the course in yesterday's two rounds, shooting 11 under par in winning two matches.

McNab's Squadron Patrolling Coast

An East Coast Canadian Air Base, July 18—(CP)—Men who earned their aerial spurs in the war-torn skies over Britain last September are now patrolling the Atlantic approaches to Canada. Part of the 118th Royal Canadian Air Force Fighter Squadron transferred yesterday from Central Canada to this East Coast air base.

Led by Wing Cmdr. Ernest A. McNab who flew at the head of Canada's intrepid first Fighter Squadron in the early days of the epic battle of Britain, the 118th is built around a nucleus of three other "originals" of those hectic days. They are Flt. Lieut. Hartland Molson, FO. Arthur Yuile and FO. Dal Russell, all of Montreal.

Worthy wing-mate with that Port Hope, Ont., holder of the Dis-Port Hope, Ont., holder of the distinguished Flying Cross. Lone survivors of his original squadron, Mitchell was sent back to Canada for a rest and attached to the new R.C.A.F. unit as soon as it was formed.

Two Toronto Men Fined and Jailed On Gaming Charge

Hamilton, July 18 —(CP)— Two Toronto men, Joseph Pancer, 35, and Rocco Sannella received fines and jail sentences today following conviction by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge on charges of being the keepers of an East End club, in the township of Saltfleet, which was raided by Provincial Police early last Saturday.

Last Saturday in magistrate's court 51 men charged as found-ins pleaded guilty and were fined and 10 other men, charged with keeping a common gaming house, were granted an adjournment until today. In the meantime the charge was reduced to that of being found-in for eight of these.

Sannella was sent to jail for four months and fined $176.15 and $23.85 costs. Pancer was fined the same amount and sentenced to 60 days in jail. Both men pleaded guilty to the charge.

Five of the men charged as being found in were fined $40 and costs when Constable A. F. Grant testified that they were assisting in the operation of the games. The other three were fined $20 and costs.

Nixon Admits Newell Given "A Strapping"

Toronto, July 18.— (CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial Secretary, today termed Aircraftman Bill Newell, prisoner in Toronto jail awaiting his third trial on a charge of murdering his wife, as "the worst inmate we have had to deal with in all my experience as head of the department of Prisons and Reformatories".

He was replying to a complaint by G. E. Elgie, Newell's counsel who said that no authority exists for a strapping given Newell recently for misbehavior.

Mr. Nixon said authority exists in Statutes for this disciplinary action, strapping to consist of not more than 12 slaps, administered by the jailer, in presence of the jail suregon.

In the recent strapping incident Mr. Nixon said Newell had asked to see Mr. Elgie, who had been so notified, but had paid no attention to the call, after which Newell 'became most unruly'. The strapping followed.

Libyan Coastal Cities Heavily Bombed by RAF

Cairo, July 18 (AP) — Heavy bombing attacks on the Axis-held Libyan coastal cities of Tripoli, Bengasi, Derna and Bardia on the past three nights were reported today by the Royal Air Force Middle East Command.

Aircraft of the fleet air arm were credited with a torpedo hit on a 6,000-on tanker at Tripoli. The vessel was left enveloped in black smoke, the communique said. Another merchant vessel may have been exploded by a bomb hit it was said.

Docks, coal stores, railway workshops and sheds were bombed at Bengasi. Hits near the post and telegraph office, barracks, electric power stations garages and repair shops were reported at Derna and huts and tents were fired at Bardia, according to the communique.

A formation of Italian planes was intercepted yesterday over Malta by the R.A.F. which shot down two of them, and damaged several others. In all these operations the R.A.F. reported loss of two planes.

PRODUCTION HIGHER

Ottawa, July 18 (CP)—Aircraft production in Canada in the three-month period between April 1 and June 30 was 10 times greater than the entire 1939 output, Munitions Minister Howe announced today. He gave no actual unit figures.

The Minister said the output in the last quarter exceeded the first three months of the year by 25 per cent. Production in the first six months of 1941 was greater than in the entire 12 months of 1940.

Fifth Anniversary Of Start of Spanish War Celebrated

Madrid, July 18—(AP)—With a blaze of red and gold bunting, speeches by Gen. Francisco Franco and pardoning of more than 15,000 political prisoners, Nationalist Spain celebrated today the fifth anniversary of the start of the Civil War.

Franco last night declared that United States' intervention in the war would lead to a universal conflict lasting years and ending in the ruin of nations.

But to Spaniards, chief interest in his speech was his attention to Spain's post-war domestic problems and her efforts to get food from abroad.

Speaking today at Villa Verde near Madrid, Franco said the Government hoped Spanish workers might gain a living wage. He said 300,000,000 other Europeans were threatened with starvation by the war blockade.

STILL IN TALKING STAGE

Washington, July 18— (AP) — President Roosevelt asserted today that the terms of repayment of Lease-Lend Aid to Britain still were in the talking stage and that there was no news on it.

Asked by reporters whether it was possible for Britain to make a profit on Lease-Lend materials, as by selling wheat at a higher price than that at which it was transferred from the United States, the President said he doubted if there was any desire in Britain to make a profit on food or anything else. It would not be quite according to Hoyle, he remarked.

Polish Mission In Canada To Recruit Men

By The Canadian Press

A Polish mission headed by Maj.-Gen B. Duch is in Canada to raise men to fight on land, the sea and in the air against Hitler.

Headquarters for the mission will be Windsor, Ontario, while all the men recruiting will receive their initial training at Owen Sound, Ont.

General Duch told reporters it was too early to predict how many men would be raised by the mission but he said there were several million Poles in North America, many of whom would be eager to join the colors.

Included in the mission is Wing Commander Krashodebski who commanded the Polish fighter squadrons in Britain and were credited with bringing down 126 planes in the early days of the battle of Britain.

Vichy Abandons Hope of Holding French Somaliland

Situation Grows Worse Since June, When Free French Started Blockade

MEDIATORS ACTING

Vichy, July 19 (AP)—The Vichy government has begun parleys with Britain over evacuation of women and children from French Somaliland, it was learned today, indicating hope virtually has been given up that the outpost can hold out against British and Free French blockade.

(British headquarters at Cairo reported yesterday that an offer had been made to the French government at Jibuti to remove women and children from the colony at the head of the Gulf of Aden, bordered by British-captured Eritrea, Ethiopia and British Somaliland.)

It was reported here that the situation at the colony has grown worse daily since June 21 when the Vichy government said it had received an ultimatum that the colony be turned over to Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Free French or be blockaded.

Informed sources said the present parleys were going on through "intermediaries" but it was not disclosed who they were. United States diplomatic circles said they had not been approached to serve as go-betweens in such discussions.

OFFICERS, MEN BACK IN CANADA

Rationing of Clothing and Food Tighter but Morale of People High, States Spokesmen for Group

Ottawa, July 19 (CP)—Maj. Rex F. Cosh of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa and a group of other officers and men are home from the United Kingdom, either invalided back to Canada or returning for duty.

Maj. Cosh, who served with the Camerons in Iceland, said Canadian soldiers who were stationed there last winter were glad to get out of the isolated northern country and into the United Kingdom.

But life in Britain had its disadvantages in wartime, he said. Rationing of clothing and food was getting progressively tighter, but morale of the people remained high.

Other officers coming here with Maj. Cosh were Lt.-Col. W. A. Townsley, Royal Canadian Artillery, of Vancouver who returned for duty, and Lt.-Col. Henshaw, Lieut. T. L. Ahearn and Lieut. D. A. Griffiths, all Ottawa.

Also in the group were these men:

Cpl. Maynard Hunt, Driver John Burns, Pte. George Walton, Cpl. A. Robert, Pte. Colin Carmichael, all Ottawa; Pte. R. Tizault, Quebec; Sigmn. Rolland Potvin, Westboro, Ont.

All except Col. Townsley will undergo medical examination to determine their fitness to remain on service in Canada.

20,000 Tons Oil Destroyed by Russian Bombers

Ankara, Turkey, July 18 (delayed) (AP).—Big refineries in Rumania's Ploesti oil fields and tanks containing 20,000 tons of oil have been destroyed by Russian bombers, an authoritative source declared today.

This informant said that Russian planes were swooping low to unload their explosives despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

An intense raid last Sunday started huge fires which covered the vital oil region with dense black smoke, according to this information, and scored damage chiefly on holdings of the Unirea Company, a British-owned firm which has been operated by German and Rumanian interests since last February.

British sources said there still were large crude oil stocks in the Ploesti area because of transport difficulties and that loss of the refinery would cripple deliveries of gasoline to Germany.

FAILED TO HEAR TRAIN'S APPROACH

Four Youths of Portage La Prairie Killed by C.P.R. Express

Portage la Prairie, Man., July 19 (CP)—Four Portage la Prairie youths were killed instantly last night by a trans-continental Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train.

Henry Turko, 19; Steve Sitoski, 18; Walter Derkatch, 17, and Tony Bodnaruk, 16, were mowed down by the eastbound flyer, The Dominion, when they failed to hear the screeching brakes and whistle of the train as they walked between the rails on a curve one mile west of here.

Railway officials expressed the opinion that the youths failed to hear the train because of the noise of a westbound freight train that was moving along a second track and which had just passed them.

CONCENTRATE TROOPS

Shanghai, July 19 (AP)—Foreign despatches from Peiping said today the Japanese were concentrating trains there to transport troops either to Japanese-dominated Manchoukuo or inner Mongolia. A majority of the troops which had been withdrawn from Shansi Province were said to have been assembled at stations west of Peiping, suggesting the possibility that they would be sent to reinforce Japan's inner Mongolian forces against the Russians.

"V" Offensive Against Nazi Tyranny Will Be Launched on Sunday

By GUY RHODES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Tomorrow a great secret army of ill-fed, downtrodden but spirited people in occupied Europe is scheduled to launch a nerve-harassing campaign against the Nazis, inspired by the Biblical story of Daniel and the handwriting on the wall that heralded the violent death of Balshazzar, King of Chaldeans.

In the early hours of this morning the mysterious "Colonel Britton" spoke to occupied Europe from a British Broadcasting Corporation studio, asking for a mobilization of Europe's invisible millions" for the underground fight against Germany, a fight which the letter "V"—for victory—is the symbol. Tomorrow is the date set for start of the great "V" offensive. Originally it was scheduled for July 14, Bastille Day, which symbolizes the rise of French democracy, but it was postponed for an undisclosed reason.

Like the early Christians who scribbled IHS or drew pictures of fish on walls or pavements, in the sand or wherever it might be seen, recruits in the new campaign for emancipation will write "V" wherever it can be seen. They will tap it in Morse code on doors and tables (dot, dot, dot, dash); whistle and hum it in the streets in the form of the beginning of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony—Fate knocking at the door.

Already the campaign, reputedly started a couple of months ago in conquered Czecho - Slovakia, has brought arrests, caused the Germans embarrassment and apparently fear, as the German radio has sought to persuade Germans and the outside world that the campaign is a German idea.

Germans Worried

The Nazis, after shouting "Sieg" as the victory cry for years have rediscovered the obsolete word "Viktoria." That, they claim, is the significance of the symbol "V."

"Colonel Britton" told his listeners, who, incidentally, are expressly forbidden to listen to the BBC, that the campaign already i one the Germans fear.

PROVINCES TO BE REIMBURSED FOR GAS REVENUE LOSS

Financial Spokesman Says Government Will Vacate Income Tax Field

MAY RATION GAS

Ottawa, July 19—(CP) — Any loss of revenue suffered by a province through the present campaign to reduce non-essential consumption of gasoline by 50 per cent will be made up by the budget proposal to vacate the income tax field, a Finance Department spokesman said last night.

Smaller consumption of gasoline will cut into the amount of money now collected by the provinces by way of gasoline tax. The federal treasury also will suffer through reduced collections of its new gasoline tax of three cents a gallon.

Last April 29 in his budget speech Finance Minister Ilsley announced imposition of the federal tax and added:

"It has been clear for a long time that the Dominion could not ignore the growing demands for foreign exchange which the expanding consumption of gasoline entails; we are undertaking to protect the provincial gasoline revenues at last year's highly satisfactory level."

"Even then," the Finance Department spokesman said last night "it was clearly recognized that the progress of the war probably would make necessary some further steps to restrict sale of gasoline, or perhap even some rationing.'

Must Accept Proposal

But, he said, while Mr. Ilsley was expressing federal willingness to maintain provincial gasoline tax revenues at the 1940 level no matter what made them drop, that willingness was contingent on provincial acceptance of the budget income tax proposal.

Eight provinces—all but Ontario—had indicated their intention to agree to this plan whereby they would withdraw from personal and corporation income tax fields in return for compensation from Ottawa. But pending complete study of the effects of its application on each province no definite action had been taken.

The campaign for voluntary 50 per cent reduction in private gasoline consumption began this week. When it was announced, Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle also made public restrictions on hours and method of sale of gasoline, and a one-cent-a-gallon price boost for gasoline, kerosene and distillate. The price raise already is in effect and the restrictions become effective Monday.

STUDENT PILOT KILLED

High River, Alta., July 19 (CP)—Lac. F. F. S. Oldham of Vancouver, student at the elementary flying training school of the Royal Canadian Air Force here, was killed last night when the Tiger Moth plane he was flying crashed ten miles east of the school.

Hitler Has Suffered "Epileptic Collapse" Says Moscow Radio

London, July 19 —(AP)— The Moscow radio was heard last night to quote what is described as informed circles in Berne, Switzerland, as saying Hitler had suffered an "epileptic collapse" during conferences at his headquarters.

The Moscow report added its Berne source said a number of famous German physicians, most of them nerve specialists, had been summoned to Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain retreat, for consultations.

The radio also said it had been learned from Italian circles in Shanghai that there is a growing conviction spreading in Italy that Hitler may be defeated this year and that opposition to Mussolini is increasing.

Crown Prince Umberta is said to be the strongest opponent, these reports say, adding that he was a proponent of a separate peace with Britain. It said further that Mussolini's private secretary is reported to have disclosed that the Duce was ready to negotiate such a peace if it would preserve his authority.

These reports could not be confirmed in London.

SPECTACULAR OIL REFINERY FIRE KILLS 2 PERSONS

Blaze Started by Sparks From an Automobile Exhaust Pipe

6 HOMES BURNED

Seminole, Okla., July 19 (AP) — A spectacular oil refinery fire, believed set off by sparks from an automobile exhaust pipe, killed two persons, injured three others and destroyed the plant distillery and six nearby homes last night.

Firemen from Seminole, and Shawnee devoted their all-night efforts to preventing the flames from spreading to more than fifty homes near Sinclair's No. 12 refinery, a mile southeast of here. Also endangered were 18 producing oil wells in the vicinity.

The dead:

Mary Elizabeth Sacksfield, 87, who was hurled from her bed by one blast. Her body was found in a nearby creek. Her home was demolished.

Frank R. Vaugh, 38, refinery employee, who died of burns.

Damage to the plant was estimated at $1,000,000 by Fire Chief Everett Broadnax.

One after another, 28 storage tanks, each filled with 1,000 barrels of gasoline, exploded sending flames more than 2,000 feet into the air.

Police said Vaughan saw a car driven by C. R. Haskins, 37, approaching the fire and tried vainly to head it off. Haskins, also an employee of the refinery, was burned critically.

Haskins' two daughters, Foydell, 10, and Betty Lou, 9, suffered serious burns.

The plant proper was not damaged seriously, but its adjoining distillery was destroyed.

Heat Wave Moving To Prairie Provinces

Vancouver, July 19 (CP)—While hundreds of firefighters battled forest blazes started in British Columbia by an electrical storm Thursday night, the Pacific coast's week-old heat wave moved today through the Prairie Provinces.

The weatherman promised decidedly warm conditions in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta after thermometers rose over the 100-above mark yesterday at several points.

Most of the fires, caused by lightning, are in the Fraser River Valley of coastal British Columbia and on the lower end of Vancouver Island. Dry conditions for several weeks have made fire hazards "extremely serious," forestry officials said, necessitating the closing of logging operations and camps this week.

Forty-five fires were spotted yesterday in the Chilliwack area alone. Others were reported in the Harrison Lake district.

FLIERS GO TO NORTH BAY

Ottawa, July 19 (CP)—Stunt fliers Frank Clark, Garland Lincoln and Howard Batt plan to fly today to North Bay, Ont., for filming there of flyight sequences of "Captains of the Clouds," the new (Warner Bros.) movie based on the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Technicians working on the picture left for North Bay, Ont., last night. During the past few days work has been proceeding on the movie at nearby Uplands airport.

300,000 TONS ENEMY SHIPPING SUNK IN 4 MONTHS

"As Much More Damaged" Secretary of State for Air Tells Audience

AIR FORCE GROWING

London, July 19 (CP).—Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary of State for Air, told a Liberal party conference today British bombers have sunk "no less than 300,000 tons of enemy shipping and damaged as much again" in the past four months.

"Our fighter aircraft," he added, "are fighting at the extreme range over enemy territory and they destroyed on the average more than twice the number of German aircraft that we ourselves lost."

Sir Archibald said Royal Air Force strength is growing steadily, "and as the night becomes longer the bomber command will strike ever more deeply and more heavily into the vitals of Germany."

The minister, speaking to nearly 700 delegates, referred to the "vital sense" of the fresh responsibilities the war had brought the Liberal party.

He said that after the war, when the world is ready for revolt against tyranny and dictatorship, it would be the party's task to provide "a broad and strong rallying ground for those who think with us in putting first among all political causes the cause of freedom."

Sir Archibald's address came at the close of a morning session at which the assembly adopted a resolution urging the government to create a ministry of civil defence to take over direct responsibility for civil defence services in areas likely to be attacked.

HEAT AND FIRES TAKE HEAVY TOLL

Lives, Timber and Grain Lost in Pacific North West but Relief in Sight

Seattle, July 19—(AP)—Heat and fires has taken a toll of lives, timber and grain in the Pacific Northwest, but the weatherman held out hope today of relief from blistering temperatures of the past week.

In Oregon, nine deaths were attributed to the heat, four persons drowned and one was killed by lightning. Washington charged two deaths to the heat and reported dozens of prostrations.

Temperatures in the two states have climbed as high as 115 degrees in recent days, breaking all-time records in several areas.

Hundreds of men were rushed to fire lines in Washington.

Army methods were used in the Chelan - Wenatchee region where eight parachutists from Missoula, Mont., dropped to the fire fighting scene.

The worst fires were reported in the Rapid River sector of the Snoquimie National Forest and in the Wenatchee region of Eastern Washington. Travel was prohibited in the former area, where the main blaze has swept 5,000 acres.

Flames menaced the vast granary of Southeastern Washington. Shortly after control of the principal 4,000-acre grain field blaze was reported last night, lightning set uncounted new fires.

LOCKHEED BOMBER FORCED DOWN BY BAD WEATHER

Four Men in Aircraft Escape Injury and Plane Only Slightly Damaged in One Wing

LANDS NEAR OTTAWA

Montreal, July 19 (CP)—Officials of Atfero, the Atlantic ferry organization, announced today a Lockheed bomber made a forced landing near Ottawa this morning while on a routine practice navigational flight.

The four men in the aircraft escaped injury.

The announcement said the landing was made in a field after the bomber was caught in a series of thunderstorms and heavy rain and was unable to return to its base as the ground was obscured.

The pilot made for an alternative airport at Ottawa but found the atmospheric conditions equally bad. After flying about for some time a landing was made on a country field near Ottawa with only slight damage to the bomber.

The crew were all members of Atfero.

(A dispatch from Ottawa said the aircraft landed in a grain field on the farm of F. Martineau, near Masham village, Que., 30 miles from Ottawa, damaging a wing.)

11 NORWEGIANS ESCAPE TO CANADA

Will Train in Army, Navy and Air Force for Service With British Army

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP)—Eleven bright-eyed young Norwegians, determined to continue the fight for their country, have reached Los Angeles after a three-month flight from their homes.

Demanding anonymity to protect relatives, they said they would leave today for Canada to join the army, navy or air force and later will go to England. They are 18 to 28 years in age.

They left home with no passports but knew they could find help once they reached the United States. They entered this country by undisclosed special arrangements.

They suffered hardships on their trip across Siberia and through China to a port where they boarded a Norwegian freighter.

R. A. F. Offensive Against Germany Temporarily Halted

London, July 19—(CP Cable)—The Royal Air Force offensive against Germany and enemy-occupied territory came to a temporary stop last night.

Weather conditions over the continent were believed to have kept aircraft grounded. A few German planes flew inland over the British East Coast during the night. Some bombs were dropped but no damage or casualties resulted.

Master of Four-Masted Sailing Ship Offers to Sail 'Old Ironsides'

BY TOM HORGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Boston, July 19.—(AP)—Few, if any, now alive, have witnessed the U.S.S. Constitution under sail, but if the offer made today by Captain Oscar Malmberg, 30-year-old Master of the Swedish four-masted barque Abraham Rydberg is accepted ,'Old Ironsides" will be seen coursing down the wind again propelled by her long-folded white wings.

Anxious only to see the last sailing vessel in the United States Navy under canvas, he would provide the experience which now may be lacking in this age of machinery and, from his own ship, youths who are at home in swaying rigging and yards.

Malmberg in the last eight years has travelled 230,000 miles of blue water in his stout charge.

Lamberg and his English wife, Millicent, are in Boston while part of a cargo of cotton seed meal from South America is going unloaded.

The ancient barque, one of the windjammers still in the lanes of commerce, carries about a score of Swedish youth studying for their navigators' papers.

Constitution, for generations a symbol of American naval might, was launched at Boston in 1797, at the then fabulous cost of $302,917, and she wrote her name large in the annals of the war of 1812. She was recommissioned last in 1932, largely with the pennies of school children the nation over.

4 Million Russians Wait Near Moscow As Reinforcements

Turkish Report Says Troops Will Be Thrown into Battle At Opportune Time

NEW TECHNIQUE USED

Moscow, July 19 (AP).—Russian detachments waging guerilla warfare behind the German lines reported today the recapture of two cities identified only as "SH" and "Z".

Red Star, the Soviet army's newspaper, said in a dispatch from the front that the original band numbered only "0 men but that others were quickly recruited and these broke up an armored German column, capturing three whippet tanks and a number of armored cars as well as munitions.

The paper described the bands as "partisans", and said after the attack on the armored column they turned against the bulk of the German troops, surrounding the city of "SH".

A battle followed during which the German garrison was destroyed. The partisans" then marched into the city where the population welcomed them with food and clothing.

Red Star said that in the Latvia area there were 1,000 of these partisans engaged in attacking isolated German units and disrupting communications and that Russian cavalry also was operating, in one instance capturing German officers and 65 motorcycles and two batteries.

Part of the personnel of the United States Embassy meanwhile has moved to Kazan, 450 miles from Moscow.

All through the night, a Soviet communique said, the Red army fought stubbornly in the Polotsk-Nevel, Molensk and Bobruisk areas.

The roar of cannon, planes and tanks and the cries of battle came from the 140-mile deep salient the Nazi mechanized forces have driven to Smolensk, 230 miles southwest of Moscow, and the areas on its flanks.

Omitted from the Soviet communique was mention of the oper-

High Command Claims Breach in Stalin Line Widened By Heavy Offensive

UKRAINE FRONT QUIET

Berlin, July 19 (AP)—The German high command claimed today that the German wedge past Smolensk into central Russia has been widened, with Nazi troops astride the road to Moscow and striking eastward.

The war bulletin also claimed gains on the northern and southern flanks.

It declared German and Rumanian forces moving into the Ukraine from Bessarabia had crossed the Dniester River "in several places" and said the Red Army had been pushed back in the north to the northern shores of Lake Ladoga.

The German and Finnish drive from the north was said to have smashed through stubborn Soviet resistance.

A continuing advance on the important central front was claimed in the communique which said Nazi forces were pushing a widening salient beyond Smolensk, 230 miles from Moscow.

How far the motorized troops had pierced beyond the historic Russian city on the upper Dnieper was not revealed by the Nazi high command, but it claimed Soviet efforts to recapture the city had been repulsed since it fell on Wednesday.

Wedge Driven in

Berlin newspapers and military commentators, elaborating on the official account, claimed that a wedge probably had been driven into territory beyond the fortified city of 100,000 population while infantry and follow-up forces were cleaning up Red Army units in the rear.

Ambassadors For Japanese Resign Posts

Tokyo, July 19—(AP)—Kumataro Honda, Ambassador to the Japanese-sponsored Chinese Government at Nanking, and Vice - Minister Chuichi Ohashi submitted their resignations today to the new Foreign Minister, Admiral Teijiro Toyoda.

Other resignations, an aftermath of the organization of a new cabinet by Prince Konoye in which Yosuke Matsuoka lost the Foreign Ministry post, came from Yoshiya Saito and Toshio Shiratore, two Foreign Office advisers.

Shiratori, who had been an early advocate of alliance with the Axis, was appointed an adviser last August after having served as Ambassador to Italy attache at Washington and Minister to Sweden, Denmark, Iceland and Finland.

TWO HOLSTEIN COWS PRODUCE 20,000 LBS. MILK IN 365 DAYS

Two Prince Edward Holsteins produced more than 20,000 pounds of milk in a period of 365 days, according to a story in the Picton Gazette. These were Rose Lawn Abbekerk Plus, 336,363 a five-year-old owned by Mr. H. Hubbs of Bloomfield, and nine-year-old Minnie Abbekerk Vale 263,416 owned by Hudgin and Dodds, R.R. 3 Picton.

Mr. Hubbs' cow produced 20,758 pounds of milk, while Hudgin and Dodds' cow produced 20,619 pounds of milk.

Another Prince Edward cow, Wellington Sylvia Keyes 285,610, owned by Bonter and Son, Carrying Place, produced 14,014 pounds of milk in a period of 305 days. This animal is six years of age.

When it is considered that the average cow produces 4,500 to 5,000 pounds of milk in a season, it will be realized that these 20,000 pound cows are really remarkable producers.

Sailor Rescued After Paddling In Lake 2 Hours

Toledo, O., July 19 (AP)—David H. Doherty, 23-year-old Flint, Mich., sailor, toppled from the deck of the steamship Great Buffalo into the inky blackness of Lake Erie off Ashtabula and the big boat plowed on into the night.

For two long hours Doherty paddled in a circle, 25 miles from land. His clothes became heavy, so he kicked them off. Finally he sighted the British-American oil tanker Britamolene and hailed it.

Doherty, clutching $17 in water-soaked bills in his hand, was pulled onto deck complaining of losing 35 cents in change when he discarded his clothes.

The ship landed him here yesterday.

Don't Drive and Dream Truck Drivers Warned

Toronto, July 19.—More than 4,000 truck drivers started out on their rounds today with a stern warning ahead of them. Newspaper truck drivers are included in the groups which are face to face with a safety warning issued by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, set up in a prominent place in the front of their truck cabs.

The current safety warning, a three-color card, warns and exhorts truck drivers: "Don't Drive and Dream." An accompanying cartoon shows a motorist lying in a bed on wheels, with a "balloon-like illustration above the driver sitting on the side of a river bank enjoying a quiet fishing session.

The cards, changed every month, are placed in metal slots in the cabs of many industrial trucks whose drivers are on the road for eight or more working hours every day. Safety officials feel that the frequently-changed, and humorously-inclined cards are widely circulated in the trucks of newspaper publishers, transport companies, dairies and bakeries, whose employees spend the large part of their working hours in driving throughout the streets and highways of Ontario.

Street Karnival In Preparation

Featuring another of the street Karnivals for which they have become famous in the entertainment field, the Belleville Kiwanis Club is selling another automobile for one dollar to the holder of the ticket, which will be drawn on the last night of the Karnival, August 21st.

The Karnival will live up to the traditions of the Kiwanis Club, an organization that has brought attractions that are "tops" in their field to Belleville for many years. This year, officials claim the affair will be bigger and better than ever.

During the past few days householders have been handed a book of tickets on the car. Karnival officials respectfully request that those desirous of purchasing the tickets and in this way add to the fund for the clubs social work, mail the five-ticket stubs with one dollar to Car Committee headquarters, Box 192 Belleville. But don't forget to fill in the stubs.

Kiwanians are going all out to make their Karnival this year one of the best events of its kind ever staged here. They are greatly appreciative of the response given them in years past and feel confident that a generous public will again support them in their efforts to raise funds for humanitarian causes.

STILL LEADS JAPAN

Japan's emperor has commanded astute and aristocratic Prince Fumimaro Konoye, ABOVE, to form a new cabinet to replace the one he led which resigned in a body. Experts believe any new government is likely to lead Japan toward new aggressions, against French Indo-China, Thailand and the Dutch East Indies, or against Russia.

SHUFFLE THROUGH SUN DANCE

Fort Hall, Idaho, July 19 (AP)—Bannock Indian Braves and Squaws shuffled through their Sun Dance today, prepared to wave the sun up over the distant crest of the Blackfoot Mountains. The ancient greeting to the Sun God, symbolized by a buffalo skull mounted on a tall pole in a willow-wand enclosure, was part of the traditional tribal ceremony which the Bannocks carry on for 72 hours without eating or drinking. It began at sundown last night and will end Sunday night.

Honors Evenly Divided at District Bowling Tourney

Championships were evenly divided at the Belleville Bowling Club on Friday afternoon when the district playoffs for District 16, group "B" were contested. The games were played on lightning fast greens and the bowling was exceptionally keen especially in the Doubles competition. A Belleville rink skipped by Charlie Sulman won the rinks competition from the Stirling entry, while A. J. Rendell of Deseronto defeated Ernie Vanner and Fred Harper after the latter pair had disposed of Tommy Solmes and "Happy" Thompkins of Stirling. Earl Fox of Stirling easily defeated Harvey Stewart of the Belleville Club in the singles and went on to take Alex MacKenzie of Deseronto in the finals.

A five-ender scored by Harper in the double match with Thompkins put the game on ice for the Belleville pair. Some beautiful bowling was witnessed in this contest by a large gallery. Charlie Sulman battled S. L. Lucas and his rink from Stirling on even terms to the half-way mark of the rink competition but from there in with the top half of the rink bowling well, Sulman worked out into a long lead. The winners of the several competitions will play off with group "A" of District 16 and the winners from this competition will go to Hamilton for the Provincial play-offs. The results:

Red Pine Saw-Fly Found Infesting Norway Pines at Tweed

Tweed — Mr. Joseph Emerson this week reported to the local Forestry Branch that his Norway pines were being eaten by worms about three quarters of an inch in length. An investigation by members of the Branch showed that the pines were infested by Lacntis red pine saw-fly. The infestation is exceedingly heavy and has resulted in one of the young pines, about fifteen feet in height, being entirely denuded of its needles. Some of the branches were literally covered with hundreds of the larvae of the insect. The Forestry Department recommends cutting and burning pine trees infested with this insect pest.

Mr. Roy Thompson has leased the restaurant and Supertest station at the Log Cabin, Actinolite, from Major Merritt Price, who will, however, retain the cabins and the Shell garage. Major Price has an extensive lumber business which requires all his time. He and Mrs. Price and their family will reside in one of the cabins.

Enumerator Lawrence Rashotte has completed his duties as census taker. He reports the population of Tweed to be over thirteen hundred, which, however, includes men on active service or in the Canadian Militia and a number of others who make their homes in Tweed and are employed elsewhere.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Kenneth Arney, sister-in-law of the groom. Mr. Clayton Clancy was groomsman. Wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents. A shower was held on Monday evening in the Community Hall for the young couple. Music for dancing was supplied by Messrs. Donald and John Perry.

It will be 70 years tomorrow since the colony of British Columbia became a province of Canada, which thus literally became a Dominion from sea to sea. There had been a hard fight in Victoria before union was accomplished. The legislative council in 1870 had adopted proposals for union, and a delegation had been named to go to Ottawa and discuss terms. This consisted of Dr. Helmcken, (who had been an anti-confederate), J. W. Trutch, (afterwards the first lieutenant-governor), and Dr. Carrall. They were well received at Ottawa and in July, 1870, a telegram (sent by San Francisco, and then by steamship to Victoria) told that terms had been arranged. Canada agreed to take over the colonial debt and to make an annual grant to British Columbia. Most important was the promise that the Dominion would within two years commence the construction of a railway to connect the Pacific seaboard with the railway system of Canada.

The terms had to be ratified by both Victoria and Ottawa. The legislative council was reconstituted and a majority of elected members substituted for the official majority. The confederationists won every seat in election and in January, 1871, the council passed the address in favor of union without a dissenting voice. The House of Commons and the Senate adopted the address in April and on July 20, 1871, British Columbia became a province of the Dominion. Joseph Trutch was appointd the first lieutenant-governor; the legislative council was abolished and replaced by an assembly, like that of Ontario, with responsible government, and J. F. McCreight was sworn as the first premier.

It was 15 years before the railway was completed from Montreal to Burrard Inlet. Up to that time the development of the province was slow, but thereafter it was transformed. Who then could have envisaged the great city of Vancouver or the tremendous development of the provinces? Who then would have predicted that the city built around Fort Camosun by John Douglas in 1846 would become a bastion of empire 70 years later, the keystone of the defence of Canada's Pacific coast? What will British Columbia be like when its 75th anniversary comes in 1946, which will be also the centenary year of Victoria and Vancouver Island?

A DANGEROUS STREET

Whenever we drive over to Prince Edward county at night by way of Coleman and Dundas St. West we never fail to be impressed with the potential accident hazard that this route presents.

The Dundas St. portion is particularly bad with its winding, narrow roadway, pedestrians walking along the side of the road and the sharp corner at the east end. Here and there a few street lights gleam dismally, quite ineffectual in illuminating the street.

Over this route passes some of the heaviest traffic that we have in the city, including pedestrians, many of whom are airmen who are returning to their quarters at Mountain View and Picton. While a large number are dressed in khaki, others have on the regulation blue uniform that is not easily seen at night.

One of the most surprising things about the matter is that there are so few accidents reported in this area but, just the same, the hazard is there and we feel that the lives of many people are jeopardized so long as the condition remains as it is.

To improve the situation we suggest a system of street lighting be installed along the same design as has been done on Station St., Bridge St., and other well-travelled streets in the city. This should extend from the Bridge St. corner to the railroad crossing at least. In fact the roadway to the main span of the Bay Bridge should be lighted because there are no sidewalks and the road is narrow. However, the former part of the road should get attention and it should be done soon for sometime an accident may occur when it might have been prevented by good lighting.

GOOD FISH THROWN AWAY

A friend of ours who returned recently from a tour of the Gaspe peninsula in the Province of Quebec told of a surprising incident which he and his wife witnessed at Perce, a fishing village at the eastern tip of the peninsula.

He said that about a dozen large fishing schooners arrived in port in the late afternoon of a day in June, each well loaded with cod, mackerel and some salmon. Buyers, either government or private, inspected the catch and bought the supply of all the boats except two. The two boats, whose catch was not purchased, thereupon left their pier, and sailed a short distance around a point below the village. There the crews, using forks, unloaded the full cargoes of fish overboard where they were pounced upon by large flocks of gulls. The gentleman who witnessed this action had no way of estimating the amount of fish thus disposed of, but said that many hundreds of large and small fish were tossed overboard.

He made inquiry as to the reason for this action but was not able to learn much because of language difficulties. However, the cause was either the fishermen refused the price or else the buyers had bought their quota and could not take any more. Whatever the cause he was amazed at the economic loss especially in times like the present. As a further commentary on the low price of fish he said that he bought a six-pound Gaspe salmon for which the asking price at the dock in this same village was ten cents. When he paid several times more the old fisherman nearly kissed him on both cheeks in gratitude.

We regret that we do not know definitely the reason other than the expressed opinion because we feel that those in authority could take action to prevent repetition of such wastage. We realize that the loss of the continental European markets must have its effect on fish prices over here but surely there can be some plan devised whereby fishermen will not have to throw away valuable cargoes through lack of markets or low prices. Feeding fish to gulls certainly does not solve the problem.

To acknowledge our faults, when we are blamed, is modesty; to discover them to our friends, in ingenusuness, is confidence; but to proclaim them to the world, if it does not take care, is pride.—Confucius.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

WE HAVE THE TORCH, McRAE
(And Hold It High)

In Flanders fields the poppies weep
In Flanders fields Peace bows her head
In sorrow, for the living dead.

In Flanders fields there walk, again,
The ghosts of God's great valiant men
Who boldly fought and bravely died
For Freedom's cause, thrice glorified.

From Flanders fields, that cry we know;
"Take up our quarrel with the foe!"
Calls to our hearts, across the years,
To vindicate their blood and tears.

A few brief days, and we shall keep
A silent tryst with them that sleep;
But while on earth, we own the right
To lift aloft that sacred Light:
To take the Torch! to hold it high!"
To keep our freedom—or to die.
We have one chance to do our part
In thought and deed; with hand and heart.

We must not fail the men who died
On mountain, plain and ocean wide—
The little children's anguished cries,
Stilled by a blitz-bomb from the skies—
The mothers, daughters, sisters, wives,
Who sacrificed their precious lives
That Liberty might still abide
Upon the earth. Let all, with light
And faith for good, now rise and fight—
'Till Victory, o'er Flanders fields,
(And every blood-stained battle field)
Shall sing again! and evil yields
Its wilful way unto the Right—
So give us faith, to match with might:
Oh give us courage, Lord to fight!

MODERN WAR

These things disturb us, one and all:
The news of shattered spire,
And some long-loved cathedral wall
Destroyed by shell and fire.

We take the papers up with dread
To read with startled eyes:
"Women and children maimed and dead!"
Since war is in the skies.

Two thousand years of art and skill,
And faith and evening prayer;
And still men set their hands to kill
And crush and rend and tear!

And watching as God's temples burn,
I think it very strange
That humans are so slow to learn,
And, oh, so slow to change!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Skin Irritations May Injure Personality of the Individual.

A slender young woman developed an inflammation of the skin somewhat resembling hives or eczema, and with a deep redness of the skin itself.

The family physician thought it was due to some food, but despite careful investigation and tests, he was unable to get a satisfactory cure. The rash and redness would partly disappear only to return within a short time.

Owing to some domestic difficulties, she was forced to go to the home of a relative some hundreds of miles from home. Within a week the skin irritation disappeared. It was naturally thought that the change of diet had affected a cure.

Returning home for a short stay, the skin eruption again appeared and again the home diet was believed to be the cause. Returning to the home of the relative, the skin irritation again disappeared. Returning home after some weeks she was pleased to notice that the skin eruption did not return despite the fact that she again ate the home diet.

The explanation was now clear to the physician who explained that the eruption had been due to nervousness and to emotional upsets of the home. When the domestic problems and difficulties had been removed, the eruption disappeared because the cause had been removed.

Physcians now recognize that while infection, poisoning from foods or other substances, sensitiveness or allergy, and even injury can cause skin irritations, the all round personality of the individual is also a factor.

Dr. John H. Stokes, Philadelphia, in Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology, points out that some of the characteristics of these individuals are, (a) a deep-seated feeling of insecurity, (b) an easily developed feeling of inferiority, (c) perhaps an air of aggressiveness to make up for their feelings of insecurity and inferiority, (d) very active mentally and physically, (e) tension, (f) restlessness, (g) a higher than average intelligence.

It will be noticed that the above type resembles or is the same as the asthma-hay fever-eczema complex type.

The treatment of this emotionally caused skin irritation is a thorough examination by physician and dentist to make sure no infection is present, and an endeavor by the patient and physician to remove or control or regulate the cause of the emotional disturbance.

'She Did Not Disgrace The Merchant Marine'

In the annals of British heroism and dogged endurance at sea during the first phases of the Battle of the Atlantic, there are linked together in unforgettable fame two brave ships — H. M. armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay and a Canadian Pacific fast freighter. All the world has heard how the Jervis Bay, protecting her convoy, faced the grim challenge of the Nazi battleship, steamed straight for the enemy with blazing guns, holding him and drawing his fire while the convoy scattered to safety. All the world knows that the Jervis Bay, outgunned by the marauder, went down most gallantly with flag flying, and fighting her guns to the last. Nobly the Jervis Bay did her duty. Well was her glory won. Now read the story of the other ship.

The story is not told by a survivor, for there was none who survived the sinking of that sturdy ship on the night of November 5, 1940. She went down with all hands, fighting to the last for the freedom of the seas. Like the Jervis Bay, she went down with her flag flying, not the white ensign worn by the Jervis Bay as one of His Majesty's ships, but the "Red Duster" of Britain's Mercantile Marine; and in the words of the captain of the ship next to her in convoy, "She did not disgrace the British Merchant Service."

It is from this captain — his name, and the name of his ship and the C.P.R. ship must be withheld for war reasons — that the story has been obtained. Of the part played by his own good ship in that fight he would say but little although his ship also did not disgrace the British Merchant Service. Both freight ships fought their guns bravely, but the C.P.R. ship took the brunt of the raider's attack, as her fate shows, just after the Jervis Bay had gone gallantly to her duty and her doom.

At 5 p.m. on that unforgettable date, the 5th of November, under the lowering skies of an early Winter twilight in the North Atlantic, the enemy raider pounced on the British convoy. Guns flashed and barked. Shells shrieked overhead. Great fountains of spray splashed high where they hit the water about the ships. Instantly the Jervis Bay headed for the foe, her guns blazing. Upon her was concentrated the whole fire of the raiders' far heavier guns; but in the desperate 20 minutes of her noble effort to draw the raider's fire, the convoy had time to scatter for the darkening horizon in all directions.

5.20 p.m. saw the end of the Jervis Bay. Savagely the raider pressed on to attack the nearer ships of the scattering convoy.

Three ships of the convoy were still within range of the enemy's guns; and the guns of those merchant ships had not been idle during the brave fight of the Jervis Bay. A certain hit or two had been made against the heavy armor plate of the Nazi pocket-battleship. Vengefully the foe singled out for concentrated attack the Canadian Pacific freighter. Thus it fell to her lot to take the place of the lost Jervis Bay, and to carry on, with her slight defensive armament, the delaying action against the enemy by which so many of the convoy were saved.

Both she and her nearest neighbor in the convoy had thrown out a smoke screen to shield the other ships in their vicinity. Now these ships were parting company, the C.P.R. ship steaming south, and the ship next her steaming north. From his bridge and with his after gun still firing, the skipper of the north-bound ship could watch the fight and her ordeal to its very end. It was a running fight. For more than five hours she was afloat, followed by the raider, firing and fighting to the last. Using her big reserve of engine power for speed, and superb seamanship for steering and manoeuvring to battle and evade the enemy's aim, for all that time she held her own, hit by shells but hitting back, drawing the raider's fire and delaying him hour by hour while the rest of the convoy, scattered fan-wise, made their escape in the rapidly gathering gloom.

So dark did it grow during the brave battle that the raider had to use star-shells to illuminate his mark, and to maintain the range for his guns — a dread display of fireworks for the Fifth of November!

The sky was filled with star-shells descending over the devoted ship, when, at 10.45 p.m., there arose a great burst of red flame from where she had been, and that fine Canadian freighter's splendid fight was over. It is thought that her end was due to the firing of a torpedo from the raider. Her staunch hull had stood up to shellfire magnificently throughout the fight. But there is none left of her officers or crew to tell how that fierce final explosion sent her to the bottom. She went down with all hands, in a glare of red flame with a great shower of enemy star-shells above her as she sank. She had fought a good fight; she had finished her course. Fadeless shall be her glory in the annals of the British Mercantile Marine: her epitaph the words of the captain who watched her fight and saw her finish:—

"She did not disgrace the British Merchant Service."

For long months after her loss hope was cherished even against hoplessness, that there might be some survivors of that gallant ship. But her lifeboats had been shattered by the raider's shellfire; no raft or wreckage drifted away from her foundering hull. Her captain and officers and all that heroic ship's complement perished that night as nobly as ever good seamen and brave fighters could perish in the service of their country and self-sacrifice for comrades afloat.

SKIMBLE SKAMBLE STUFF

The bristles in brushes used to paint American naval vessels, merchant ships and other defence equipment come from the backs of hogs that run wild in Manchuria and parts of China.

Long tapering bristles, with split ends, are developed on the backs of wild hogs in northern Asia to protect the animals from the cold.

These bristles retain a large amount of paint or varnish, give smooth finish without brush marks and reduce painting costs.

Domestic hogs in America generally do not develop bristles of sufficient length and quality for the best paint brushes because of climatic conditions and because the animals are usually slaughtered for pork while comparatively young.

A Malay or East Indian native sailor is called a lascar. Yet the word "lascar" is derived from a Persian term meaning soldier.

The portrait of every Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives is painted at government expense and hung in the Speakers' Lobby adjoining the House chamber.

When Speaker Thomas B. Reed first saw his portrait on the wall he exclaimed: "My God, now all my enemies are avenged!"

Our contemporary, Robert. L. Ripley, says Cumberland Falls in Kentucky presents the only "Moon Bow" seen in America.

The U. S. Weather Bureau says moon bows or rainbows by moonlight are an unusual but not a rare phenomenon. Aristotle referred to them about 2200 years ago, and they are well known to science, although they are not often observed, chiefly because of the faintness of light at night.

Only under exceptional conditions can the colors of a moon bow be seen. Lunar rainbows are most likely to occur after showers on nights when the moon is bright but not too high in the heavens.

It would be interesting to hear from readers who have seen moon bows either in waterfalls or in the sky.

Julius Caesar, stopping at a small village while crossing the Alps on his way to Spain, said: "I would rather be the first man here than the second at Rome."

Nowadays we express the same thought by saying that we would rather be a big frog in a little puddle than a little frog in a big puddle.

Peterboro Training Camp Recruits Display Wholehearted Enthusiasm as Entire Centre Goes Active Service

Peterboro, July 19—No camp in the entire far-spread organization of the Canadian Army-in-Training is more at peace with itself this week than No. 32 Training Centre situated at Peterboro. Perhaps no muster of recruits anywhere is so enthusiastically and high-heartedly engrossed with the job of learning to soldier. Certainly none is so cheerful, or so proud of itself. The whole arm-swinging, heel-clicking camp is wearing a grin, and has a new pride in its stride, on or off duty.

The Peterboro training centre, commanded by Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., of Belleville, is—or was—largely comprised of 21-year-olds, taking four months' military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act, and headed for the home forces. Last week the camp created military history and something of an army sensation by volunteering en masse for active service wherever the exigencies of the war against Nazism require them. The whole establishment was caught up by a surge of war enthusiasm and solid, old-fashioned patriotism which inspired the entire camp to "go active."

The movement to enlist for active service was entirely sponteneous. There was no drum - beating, no bands, no speeches, no cheers — until the sensational transformation from a N.R.M.A. training centre to one for the Active Army had been accomplished. No silver-tongued orators fired the 550 youths with patriotism; there was no attempt at an emotional conversion to the cause. Overnight, Training Centre, No. 32 became an establishment with 100% active service recruits.

The remarkable mass enlistment at Peterboro had previously had its counterpart at Cornwall, Ont., and it is already clear that a similar impulse is sweeping almost every camp of N.R.M.A.- trainees in the country . Reports of a large and growing percentage of active service volunteers among trainees are reaching Defence Headquarters at Ottawa in a steady stream.

Undoubtedly the trainees at Peterboro had done much and deep soul-searching before volunteering, which refutes the idea that it was any sudden impulse caused by a beat-up enthusiasm. The striking feature of the camp today is its new mood. It comes from the tremendous change in the men's minds. A feeling of overwhelming relief was plainly experienced by every young Canadian when he took his one pace forward last week and so signified his desire to "go active."

That New Attitude

That new attitude toward the army is both interesting and impressive to a visitor. Because it had suddenly become a new type of training establishment, the volunteers were given leave of absence to go home and tell the folks of their new status. They are all back and throwing themselves into the work of acquiring the fundamentals of military life with a new spirit and earnestness. Not a man was late getting back from leave. Their vociferous and boisterous greetings on return were a revelation. The army and their camp had suddenly taken on a new meaning.

In the search for the intangible something which pervaded the camp to send that new spirit through the hut-lines, the answer was suggested and sensed in various places and in several features of life in training camp, but all go back to the expected point, to leadership. Perhaps it goes back to the day when the staff saw youths arriving to start their one months' training last autumn—actually shaking with dread of this strange and inexplicably fearsome institution called "The Army."

In any event, the sustained effort of the camp has been to dispel that false understanding of the army and army life. The Commandant puts the mass enlistment down to the fact that the boys found they liked it. He gave the credit to his subalterns.

"I think the platoon commanders have succeeded in convincing the men that the army is a mighty interesting and pleasant institution in which to have membership," he explained with typical military reserve.

It is certainly true that the fascination of military life, which most men experience sooner or later after enlistment, has come to the youths reporting for training at Peterboro much earlier than is usual. Within a week they were inspired by the team-work and singleness of purpose! they were enthralled by the great comradeship of arms that springs from common knowledge of common dangers to be faced and shared, and of great work to be done.

Genial C. O.

The mass enlistment was not achieved by pampering. The officer commanding is a genial, just, terse-talking soldier who believes in and insists upon rigid discipline and smart soldiering on and off parade.

The camp, situated in Peterboro's weather-beaten exhibition grounds, instantly reveals that touch. Officers and men are housed in roomy, well-lighted huts. There are large lecture rooms, and a big recreation hall which includes "quiet corners" for the Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains, as well as the usual concert, stage and game tables. Entertainment and comfort are major attributes of the camp's life. But every blanket's fold has the mark of the army, the stones of the pathways are lined with military precision and even the weeds are close-clipped. Soldierly neatness is apparent in the last swept cranny of the big barracks.

No Pressure Brought

Nor is there truth in the inference that older, stronger personalities among the active service men had brought pressure on the 21-year-olds. Every trainee turned soldier hotly denies it.

"I got a taste of army life and I liked it," declared a Matachewan youth, "and that's all there was to it."

"Do you feel better now?" asked Lt. J. Keir, his company commander.

"Sure. I was wondering whether I had the guts to do it; now I know. And it feels great."

Another, a fine hockey player, said that his new status as a soldier felt like passing from the amateurs to the professionals in sport. By his athletic shoulders and alert soldierly bearing he'll do well in the faster company.

Both officers and non-commissioned instructors insist that any influence on the trainees by the active service men was solely through example. The trainees were not the object of taunts and jibes except in the course of inevitable, but always good-humoured, barrack-room raillery. The trainees and active service men mixed indiscriminately in their quarters, mess halls and at work. In some platoon huts they were gven alternate beds.

"Instead of friction, I think it was the friendships and comradeships so formed that had much to do with the wholesale enlistment of the trainees," said Major J. L. Wallbridge, second-in-command.

Private C. A. Dawson, a cook from Maple Lake, said he had been thinking of volunteering for a long time. This just seemed like the opportune moment. Elmer Downes, of Roseneath, had left a good job in a cereal plant and could go back to it, but he also had two brothers in the army. "What else was I to do" was his reason. Fred McLeod, of Douglas, has been a sawyer, and had volunteered for active service because, "I just wanted to."

They explained themselves awkwardly when it came to voicing the sentimental reasons motivating their actions. Pte. E. Morton, Brockville, said what all meant when he confessed: "I volunteered because I thought I should."

Rural, Urban Cross Section.

The camp comprises a fair cross-section of young people's opinion in rural and urban Canada. It is revealing that most of the trainees were deeply stirred by once scorned patriotism and love of country, and that they had only been waiting for someone to help them straighten out their minds. Again and again they referred to "something the officer said" which had put them straight.

That reference was to the brief recruiting talks given to the trainees every Monday. They are informal, quiet, informative chats, and they alone comprise the only definite recruiting effort to persuade the trainees to turn active. They must be effective; the mass enlistment took place after the last classes of trainees to be called up had heard two of them.

"We did not even have a band, remember," reiterated the pleased Commandant. "I merely said that morning, that the rolls for active service enlistment closed on Saturday. I added that I would like all those intending to enlist to come forward without delay.

"The whole shooting match thereupon took one pace forward—and it was done!"

The only band the camp possessed was a sound truck, but it was not until the entire establishment had taken that one pace forward that the "bandmaster" put on a few patriotic airs records such as "Rule Britannia", and "O Canada" and "There'll Always Be An England". They were played as a gesture of celebration, not persuasion, over the unique parade of volunteers that had formed at the orderly room. First was the entire establishment of 21-year-olds, and then every man in camp who had not already enlisted for active service.

It even included Pte. Barney Howie, of Peterboro, who had weighed only 108 pounds when summoned to appear for compulsory training three weeks before. Given a job in the mess hut, he weighed 123 on the now famous day. "So I went active service with the rest," he grinned.

Boys Increase Weight.

Undoubtedly the rations and cooking have had their effect in making army life attractive. Lieut. W. A. Bowerman, called the "miracle messing officer", relates that in two months the average weight increase in the camp had been 12 pounds. Pte. "Tiny" Spencer, who is 19, wears a 19 collar and weighs 280 pounds, and who has to have made-to-measure uniforms, blames good eating for the fact that he is still growing.

The enterprising spirit also spread to the hospital. Ralph Langley, of Madoc, who was supposed to be in bed with shingles immediately shouted for his hospital blues when he heard about that line at the orderly room. So did every other man who could walk. They got up, shaved carefully, polished and shined, and fell into line. So did the orderlies.

The procession from the hospital was headed by an Indian youth from Baptiste Lake, Joe Yateman, who had just had his appendix removed.

It was not surprising that the hospital should get up and march. The cool clean wards are presided over by Capt. C. D. Hewitt, the Medical Officer, whose good spirits and contagious smile are pain-killers in themselves. A malingerer couldn't live in the place. The atmosphere of the hospital is so cheerful that when Orderly Jack Conroy yelled: "Where's the guy with the broken leg?" and received the reply, "Gone out on a route march", a visitor could visualize the occurrence actually happening. As a matter of fact, the hospital has so few patients that the orderlies act as bad cases in order to provide photographers with a little realism.

Sympathetic Attitude.

An unfailingly sympathetic attitude by the officers toward the recruit's personal trials and perplexities, even his home troubles, is a rule of administration. There was the man, for instance, who explained that an accident had incapacitated his father and that there was no one to work the farm. Things were done. There was the man with romantic difficulties and good advice at least was forthcoming. There was the son of the late Rev. A. E. Morton of Brockville, who had been two years out of school, but who wanted to try two papers for his matriculation before taking the momentous step into the Active Army. Through the interest of his officer he has written, and thinks he has passed, both.

Perhaps strongest influence of all in creating the true impression of the army as a prideful, enterprising, and even exciting institution, was the general mood of the camp from the outset. Cheerfulness is the salient feature. There is no more room for neurosis, nostalgia and moodiness than there is for dirt in the spotless kitchens or microbes in the hospital.

Asked if the camp had always been so good-humored, a veteran sergeant said: "Yes, veen the grousing has always been in good part. Belonging to this training centre is like being in a 'happy' battalion in the last war. Remember how that used to strike some battalions and miss others? Some of 'em were happy and some weren't, and it was never the happy ones who had the heavy casualties. You never knew where it came nor why, and I don't know what you'd call it. But this camp has it."

"Regimental personality?" was suggested.

"Perhaps," agreed the sergeant.

All At Ease.

The great lesson in the unique mass enlistment at Peterboro is clear in the reiterated proofs that the mind of every man in the camp is now at ease. They were not at ease before, but their vacillation and doubts are now behind them, their decision made. There is no lurking suspicion left that by deliberately holding back to be called for home defence only, and so escape service on foreign battle fronts, they were actually dodging their personal duty because the other fellow was evading his.

"If the slackers get our jobs, let 'em — my conscience is clear!" is their attitude now.

If there was a stigma in waiting to be called up, while they were well able to enlist for active service, it has been banished.

"I had sworn that I'd only fight if Canada herself was invaded," explained a clean-cut farm boy from Kinmount district, "but it bothered me. It's plain that Canada is really attacked if not yet invaded, so went the whole hog."

All his confusion of mind and inner debating were summed up in that: "It bothered me." He wryly admitted that he had never felt quite so proud as when he decided to "go the whole hog".

Perhaps the realization came to them slowly, or perhaps the truth burst upon them like a sudden and revealing light. But it came to all of them. They made their own decision, after realizing that the army is the proper place for a self-respecting young man to be when his country is at war.

The fact that the trainees at Peterboro are now right with themselves was graphically expressed by a slim, fair-haired youth who has not been using a razor very long. He told of the great personal pride of the youths who have determined to be worthy custodians of their heritage, when he grinned and said: "I can look myself in the face, now, when I shave."

Training Centre No. 32 is a proud and inspiring place.

Training Centre No. 32, at Peterboro, recently created an army sensation by volunteering en masse for active service. Above are officers of the camp. Left to right: Lieut. W. A. Bowerman, Capt. A. R. Harrington, Lieut.-Col. O. E. Keeler, M.C., V.D., Major C. L. Wallbridge, Capt. A. A. Mutton, and Capt. D. Loomis, M.C.

Drenching Rains May Assist The Russians

BY KIRK L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 19—(AP)—Russia's hopes that the weather will intervene against the Nazi invaders are reflected in Moscow reports that drenching rains have been falling in the central area of the vast battlefront.

As a Russian winter saved the country from Napoleon, July downpours not uncommon in White Russia and the Ukraine could balk Hitlers' grandiose plan for annihilating the Red Army before the first snow flies.

July and August are the "wet" months in that part of Western Russia. Frequently in the past there have been deluges in summer or early autumn, turning Russian roads to quagmires, fields to bogs, trickling streams to raging torrents. The average annual rainfall west of the Urals is about twenty inches and there have been times when as much as a fourth or even a third of that average has fallen within a day or two.

Must Destroy Red Armies

However, it does not seem probable from any available data on Russian weather that the reported July rains could do more than slow up the lunging Nazi thrusts. And if German claims that key positions in the Stalin Line before Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev have already been overrun heavy rains in the central battle area could be more dangerous to the Russians than to the Germans.

Cross-country escape from such deep pockets as the Russian counter-attack front near Bobruisk would be incredibly difficult through muddy byroads and over rain-swollen streams. German command of the main roads and the railroad rights of way could turn every attempted retreat into a panicky rout.

But Hitler cannot win in a really decisive victory unless he destroys the Red Armies. He has definitely fixed that as his objective. Anything less than that would be reckoned as a Hitler defeat.

It is wholly conceivable that if he were brought to a stand by weather by Russian resistance, by exhaustion of his furiously driven troops, and by supply and transportation difficulties hourly increasing along the north and north central sectors, Hitler might revert to holding tactics there and concentrate southward to sweep the Ukraine. It is there, in Russia's great "breadbasket", that the strictly economic resources lie for which he risked his great "crusade".

Cannot Risk Change

Via the Ukraine runs the route to Russian high grade oil flowing from the Caspian fields. Whether he seeks to tap that flow by water across the Black Sea or by land via Rostov, a firm grip upon the Ukrainian coast and upon all of the regions Germany occupied in the first Great War would be essential.

That 1918 German sweep into Russia has thus far been overstepped by the Nazis only in the Smolensk salient and to an uncertain extent in the Pskov area in the north. South of that the 1918 line has not been reached by the Germans at any spot.

If, as British sources believe, the Nazi attack on Russia was primarily due to failing oil resources, a German concentration southward to reach Rostov and its pipelines connection to the Caspian fields might serve that purpose. Yet any such shift of objectives by Hitler now, in the face of his proclaimed crusade to destroy the Red Army and with it communism in all Europe, would be a confession of defeat. He cannot turn back nor limit his "crusade" without risking the ultimate disaster, collapse of the myth of Hitler invincibility in Germany itself.

The Ministry of Agriculture announced potato factories for production of flour and meal for livestock will be established in Northern Ireland.

Making Your Own Cosmetics

Alice Faye has a clear smooth complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE ARE still some old-fashioned ones among us who like to play drug store and make our own cosmetics. Not that these amateur preparations are any better than those compounded by chemists; they aren't. Our grandmothers mixed their own, took pride in formulas that were handed down from one generation to another.

Purchasing your materials from a reliable druggist. Put on your sweetest manner, because it is easier for him to hand you a jar from the shelves than to weigh or measure off several ingredients. Ask him to be conscientious when weighing the solids. A bit too much of either one of them will make the cream too firm.

Massage Cream

Here is a formula for a tried and true massage cream. If directions are followed carefully, it cannot fail.

Melt together one half ounce of white wax, one half ounce of spermaceti, one ounce of cocoanut oil, one ounce of lanolin and two ounces of oil of sweet almonds. Do not let it boil. Remove from the fire, add one ounce of orange flower water to which have been added a few drops of oil of lavender flower. Fluff with an egg beater until it is the consistency of whipped cream. Pour into jars. That quantity will fill three two ounce jars.

You can make a delightful hand lotion that will cost almost nothing.

Soak sixty grains of gum tragacanth in fourteen ounces of stronger rosewater for two days, maybe three if the tragacanth is not completely dissolved. Add one ounce of alcohol, one ounce of glycerine, a few drops of your favorite perfume.

This lotion will not pour from a bottle. It is most convenient to use when it is in four ounce jars. Grand for the whole family to dip into. Keeps hands smooth and lily white.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Never Takes the Initiative

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 22 years of age and find myself in love with a man of 38. It seems that a number of years ago he was in love with a girl and was engaged to her, but she married someone else. Since that time he has kept more or less to himself.

Two months ago he asked me to go to a dance, which I did. I have had several dates with him, and although he likes me very much, he doesn't ask me to go with him. I have had to assume the initiative. He's always friendly and tells people he thinks a great deal of me. But how can I get him to voluntarily ask me to go with him?

Please don't think this is a mere infatuation.

Isn't there an old proverb to the effect "once burned, twice careful?" Considering the difference in your ages, this man may hesitate to show you how much he cares, fearing a second disappointment. Inasmuch as he tells people he thinks a great deal of you, that question seems settled. The thing on which you should reflect is, will you be happy with a man sixteen years older than you are?

Should Engaged Girl Go with Other Boys?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are four girls, equally divided on a question. We would like to know if true love permits jealousy? For instance, a boy and girl are going steady. If the boy really loves the girl, would he be willing that she go out with other men and have a good time?

Confused

To my way of thinking, this question cannot be answered in a general way. It depends entirely on the boy and girl, or the man and women involved. I think in this case, if the boy is generous and fully trusts and believes in the girl, he would leave it up to her own good taste and judgment. Certainly, if he loved her well enough to marry her, he would not object to her going out sometimes before her marriage.

Youth does not last forever. Marriage brings its cares and responsibilities soon enough. A very definite compensation is the ability to look back upon a youth that is replete with fun and innocent enjoyment.

Doesn't Earn Enough for Two

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a young man of 22 years and very much in love with a girl of 18, who has just graduated from high school. I have not told her, but I am sure she suspects that I'm in love with her, and I think she cares a good deal for me too.

As I have only recently secured a steady position, which doesn't pay enough for two, but in which I have a good chance for rapid advancement, do you think it would be right to ask her to wait until I am better fixed? Please give me your reaction.

Bill

You tell me that you do not make enough salary for two. How could I have it on my conscience to tell you to marry a girl so young? So many young people have tried this hazardous experiment, only to part in bitterness and disillusionment.

It's the hardest thing in the world for young lovers to wait, but it is the wisest thing to do when the pay envelope is not enough for two. Certainly there would be no harm in telling the girl how much you care about her.

Boys Enjoy Being Spoils of Feminine War

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Every town has several girls who make a practice of snatching other girls' boy friends. They have no particular interest in these boys; they merely enjoy breaking up couples.

Why do boys go out with such girls when they know or should know the kind of girls they really are? We girls would like to know what to do about the girls who steal our boy friends.

Sub-Debs

Of course, boys enjoy being the spoils of war among girls. It flatters their vanity and they'd be more than human perhaps if they didn't enjoy being kidnapped.

Human nature being what it is, the only remedy seems to be to follow the example of Captain Kidd. He began his career by pursuing pirates, and wound up by being a pirate himself. Put on your prettiest dresses, your most attractive manner, and try kidnapping these girls' boy friends from them. Here's luck to your piracy!

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 20

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of very lively and interesting conditions in which there may be very pleasant as well as profitable culminations. There is promise of advancement, preferment, increased fortune and enhanced prestige and popularity by taking opportunity by the forelock and by cultivating those who are in high places, whose friendship and influence are of paramount importance. But individual energy, initiative and good will are indispensable factors.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should be on the threshold of a year of splendid opportunity and expansion. This in practical and ambitious projects and objectives supported by energy, initiative and the versatility, merit, and sound insight demanded by those in power and standing. Seek these with might and main and there should be lucrative and happy achievement, with promotion and perhaps surprising fortune, possibly a gift, bequest or trust.

A child born on this day should have great versatility, initiative and energy as well as many personal qualities and talents to assure it a place of achievement and recognition in life. It will also be lucky.

For Monday, July 21

Monday's astrological forecast is for a moderate degree of activity and accomplishment which may be born of steadiness, industry and sound judgment as well as enhanced by some sudden and unexpected boosts arising from secret, peculiar and surprising sources. With this there is need for alertness to intrigue, schemes and other hidden or dubious entanglements or snares. Private affairs should thrive.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of lively and interesting activities in both private and business associations. There are hints of singular or sinister involvements, coming from peculiar, baffling and hidden sources causing grief and regret, unless sound sense, reason and not imagination, be firmly maintained. Confer with elders, superiors and escape entangling alliances and pitfalls.

A child born on this day although being responsible, industrious and capable may suffer loss of peace of mind and reputation by doubtful or sinister snares and treacheries. It should be grounded in its more stable and trustworthy traits and inclinations.

British prisoners liberated in Italian Somaliland said that seamen captured by a German raider on the Indian Ocean quenched their thirst by licking condensation off steam pipes in the hold of the ship.

Know Do's and Don'ts in Training Your Dog

Healthy Dog Easy to Train

A bright, energetic puppy (and what puppy isn't?) is great fun to train in both manners and tricks if you follow right methods.

DON'T begin haphazardly if you hope for success. Plan regular lessons and stick to them.

DON'T try to train your dog unless he shows some spirit and aggressiveness. Unless he knows how to defend his doggish rights.

DON'T start training in hot weather. And remember not to overtire him at any time.

DO be sure your dog has a strong healthy body, good clear eyes and normal hearing.

DO know dog psychology. For successful training, you need your dog's respect and confidence.

DO remember only one person should do the training. Conflicting instructions may confuse him.

DO start with simple words of command. "Come," "Go," "Sit down," and generous use of "Good dog."

DO reward your dog, if he has been intelligent or obedient during a lesson, with a friendly pat or a tidbit.

DO be sure your dog is well fed, that he eats what he should to be husky and happy.

Our 32-page booklet gives right diet for dogs from puppyhood up. Tells how to groom your dog, take care of his ailments; how to train him and teach clever tricks.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The descendants, one hundred and fifty in number, of the late William Meiklejohn and his wife, Isabella Kerr of Fifeshire, Scotland, who came to Canada over a century ago, held a re-union at the home of Mrs. Jane Meiklejohn, Rawdon, boundary, near the ninth line, that being the original spot where they settled. It was dense forest and they cleared their own land.

With them came four sons, Peter, James, John and David Meiklejohn. The eldest member present was Mr. Andrew Meiklejohn, now in his 94th year, who is still very active. Possessed of a retentive memory he entertained the gathering with memories of days gone by, eagerly listened to by the younger generations. Mr. Meiklejohn had his photo taken with his namesake Andrew Jr., 8 years of age, son of R. Stuart Meiklejohn of Peterboro.

The old dinner bell, silent for over thirty years, rang at noon, calling the assembled guests to a sumptuous repast which was enjoyed by all, as well as the refreshments served during the afternoon.

After dinner, Rev. Grant Meiklejohn acted as chairman, a program of speeches, dancing, music and singing of patriotic and old time songs led by Mrs. A. G. Watson, which were much appreciated.

Very interesting was the old spinning wheel, also the relics found in the old work shop, where many a yard of cloth was woven, some of which is still on display. Photos of the pioneer couples were shown. There were also in attendance relatives and friends from Stirling, Belleville and other points as well as a large number of members of the local descendants of the original couple

A gloom was cast over this gay assembly when the sad news of the sudden passing that morning at Dryden, New Ontario, of Ross, son of George Meiklejohn of Tweed, was announced. The funeral was conducted from the home of his father in Tweed.

It was agreed that this gathering be an annual affair.

The following officers were elected:—President, Sanford G. Meiklejohn; Secretary, Harry Meiklejohn; Treasurer, Murray Meiklejohn; honorary committee, grandsons and granddaughters of the pioneer couple.

Several from this vicinity attended the Orange celebrations held at Wallbridge and Madoc.

The officers and conveners of the standing committee held a meeting at the home of Mrs. W. J. Barlow on Thursday afternoon and the programs for the new year were arranged.

Medicine in the News

A DOCTOR LOOKS AT WAR NEUROSES

(Ed. Note: This is the first of two articles on war neuroses.)

Wars and the stresses and strains which they produce results in peculiar actions on the part of human beings. During the Civil War an eminent physician named Da Costa described a collection of symptoms which became known as Da Costa's syndrome, and which were the result of emotions and fears. These related chiefly to the heart and the circulation which reacted secondarily to activities of the glands. A recent investigator finds that there is a tendency in some families to be more easily disturbed than in others and that the hereditary factor is important.

The person who reacts in this manner is found in childhood to have been timid and delicate, clinging too long to the mother's skirts. This is the type of child who is very apprehensive and who begins shrieking on the first day he attends school. These are children who have coughs and colds frequently in order to avoid disagreeable tasks. Among such children, fears, spasms, bedwetting, nightmares and stammering are common.

One case is described of a man whose mother suffered frequently from nervous breakdowns. As a child he was nervous and delicate. He never could walk very far without fatigue and up to the age of seven he was always carried on his father's back when he was tired. As a child he had numerous earaches, toothaches and headaches. In fact, he had symptoms as long as he could remember. In school he avoided all physical games and was constantly being advised to take more rest. On the day that he was drafted he developed a lot of symptoms and reported at once to the doctor that he was ill. In 40 out of 100 cases examined by a British physician, fear of war was the stimulus to a sudden development of innumerable symptoms.

Of course, the doctor who makes his diagnosis has to be certain that he is dealing with the emotional and psychologic condition and not with anything physical. When this condition is discovered it is customary to inform the patient of the nature of his condition and to treat him accordingly. He must have the condition explained to him fully and some effort must be made to discover the actual basis of the condition. It is impossible to treat this type of patient as a class. Every one of them must be individualized and carefully studied by the neuropsychiatrist.

It is up to the doctor of the draft board and of the induction center to find the man who has an anxiety neurosis. It is then up to the physician in civilian life to make certain that the condition is what the draft boards doctors or the induction center physician have diagnosed and to treat the man accordingly. Many of these patients actually suffer because it is quite possible to have symptoms closely associated with the fears that have been mentioned.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

GARDEN WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

In a garden wedding the latter part of this month, I am having a matron of honor, four bridesmaids, two flower girls and a ring bearer. There will also be the best man and four ushers. What is the order of the procession to the minister, and how do the attendants stand during the ceremony?

Marie

The order for the procession is the same as that for a wedding in a church or house. Just before the wedding procession starts from the house, the minister, followed by the groom and his best man, come and stand before the ceremony-place. The minister faces the assembled guests, the groom stands to the right of the ceremony-place, and the best man stands a few paces behind him and to the right.

First in the procession walk the ushers, two by two. Then the bridesmaids, followed by the ring bearer and the maid of honor. Next, the two flower girls, together. And last, you and your father, or whoever is to present you in marriage.

When the ushers reach the head of the aisle that leads to the ceremony-place, those on the right go to the right, and their partners go to the left. In the same way the bridesmaids divide and take their places in front of the ushers. The flower girls and ring bearer stand with the bridesmaids. The maid of honor takes her place at the left and a little behind the bride. The best man stands at the groom's right.

As you approach the head of the aisle, the groom steps forward to meet you. You withdraw your left hand from your father's arm, transfer your bouquet from your right arm to your left, and put your right hand through the left arm of the groom. Then together you and the groom face the minister.

Who Pays Admission?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Several weeks ago my school gave a play followed by dancing. Since then a group of my friends and I have had an argument about paying the admission. Now we have decided to write to you and ask you if you will please settle the argument for us.

The school is a private school for girls, and the girls were permitted to invite escorts. The admission was seventy-five cents. Several girls maintained that the boy should pay for the tickets. Several others said that the girl should buy her own ticket in advance and the boy should buy his ticket at the door. The girls said that the girl should buy both tickets in advance and give them to the boy before they leave for the dance. Who is right?

E. G.

Right about this are the girls who maintain that the girl who invites a boy to go to a party with her, where tickets must be paid for, should buy the tickets in advance and give them to the boy before they leave to go to the dance. When the girl decides to be a hostess, she should take the responsibility of paying for the hospitality she is offering, whether that guest is a boy or a girl.

COURTESY TIP

In these days of hot and belligerent arguments about international events, it's difficult for a group of talkers to keep good-tempered. It cools the argument to hear someone say occasionally, "Perhaps you're right. I hadn't thought of it that way." Knowing all the answers is a dangerous conversational mood these days!

Beauty Bazaar

DELIGHT DIXON

Going TO TOWN

Photos posed exclusively for The Beauty Bazaar by Miss Claudia Morgan, NBC Radio actress in "Against the Storm."

The commuter or business girl, after spending the day in town, can go on to an evening date looking fresh by following suggestions on this page.

A little care in choosing beauty aids makes it possible to keep good looks while in the city

THE feminine commuter and the business girl are, in a beauty way, sisters under the skin. One catches a suburban train for a day in town and perhaps dinner and the theatre with the Mr., while the other must appear at her best through a day of business and perhaps an evening date. Leaving the house early in the morning, not to return until hours after dark, offers problems which can only be met by one bent on maintaining a high degree of good looks.

A little foresight in choosing miniature packages of beauty aids, however, will find either the commuter or business girl prepared to keep her good appearance. An extra pair of gloves folded wrong-side out, together with a small tube of cleansing cream, a miniature bottle of freshening lotion, a few tissues, some eye make-up, a comb, some cotton and a flacon of perfume will enable any girl, regardless of the weather, to go on to an evening date looking as fresh and pert as ever.

The office desk or the rest room can, in a pinch, be turned into your personal make-up and dressing room. Whether you are a hard-working girl or have had an equally hard day shopping or seeing the town, the very same freshening-up routine should be followed. And you can follow all of these tips with very little fuss.

Arrange your freshening-up aids before you. Then, after removing your hat, use the cream from the little tube for cleansing your facial skin. You'll find small tubes of your favorite cream in most dime stores or at your favorite beauty salon. These creams, suited to the various types of skin, should be selected with care. Don't use an extremely heavy, greasy cream if your skin is oily. In this case either use a cream made for oily skin or substitute a good skin lotion for a cleansing aid. The point is, a heavy cream used on oily skin may make you feel hot and sticky, and the real purpose of cleansing the skin is to remove the accumulation of soil and make-up and make the skin feel fresh and cool. Use tissues for wiping off soil, cleansing agent and all lip rouge.

Next, take up a pad of cotton, moisten it with the freshening lotion and rub it over your face and throat and across the nape of your neck. This step will bring freshness to your skin and you will begin to feel like a "new woman." Rub the freshener over your ears and closed eyelids.

Because make-up will not easily adhere to extremely dry skin, a light, almost invisible coating of the cleansing cream may be used as a powder foundation. An application of any cream-lotion or special cream will serve the same purpose when used on oily skin. If you want to show real preparedness, have a small tube, bottle or jar of your everyday foundation with you. You can get small jars and bottles from your neighborhood druggist for a song and fill them from your larger container of foundation cream or lotion.

To make any make-up smooth and lasting, regardless of the skin under it, it is necessary to use powder correctly and this means using it liberally. First, load your puff or a fluff of cotton with powder. Then, holding it close to your skin, pat over your face and throat. Pat on as much powder as will adhere to the skin. Then turn your puff over and very lightly brush off excess powder. Use the other side of the puff or pad of cotton just as you would a powder-blending brush. Then put on cheek rouge and blend it smoothly. If you use a cream rouge for your cheeks, of course its application should be made before putting on powder.

Now fold the pad of cotton previously moistened with the freshening lotion, or moisten a fresh pad of cotton, and wipe powder from your brows, lashes and lids. Careful cleansing of the skin around your eyes will leave eye make-up intact. However, you'll probably find it necessary to go over your brows with a pencil and perhaps touch-up lash darkener. A light touch of cleansing cream or any greasy cream you have on hand can be used on the lids in place of shadow; it will add freshness to your expression and make your eyes seem brighter.

Liprouge is applied last. If it is a new rouge it will undoubtedly be one of those heavenly shades, truer red than your daytime rouge, and more on the blue-brown than the orange tone.

A spill-proof, leak-proof, evaporation-proof perfume container is the solution to carry perfume in the purse. A small bottle of perfume, encased in either gold, silver or a colored plastic case, is held in place by a plunger-type top and small spring. The perfume cannot come out until the case is turned upside down and the top, with a small opening, is pressed rather firmly against the spot to be perfumed. Press this cleverly-designed perfume container along your neck, behind your ears and over the backs and palms of your hands and leave a trail of perfume.

To relieve tired feet without benefit of long treatment and an array of special aids, do this: Remove shoes and stockings and rub a pad of cotton moistened with skin freshener over your feet. Let the freshener dry, then put on your stockings, making sure that their seams are straight up the center backs of the legs, and slip your newly-freshened feet into your slippers.

Before leaving the seclusion of your dressing room, wash your hands, tuck any out-of-place hairs into place, check up on your make-up and put on fresh gloves. The soiled gloves can be tucked into your purse or, if you're very smart, have with you a self-addressed and stamped envelope and mail the soiled gloves to yourself. This will save you toting them around all evening.

A small tube of cream will come in handy when it's time to freshen up for evening.

Cotton saturated with face lotion or a freshener will serve many purposes while you are in town.

You can carry perfume in a leak-proof, evaporation-proof holder.

A pair of clean gloves and a final check-up and you're all ready to go.

PROBLEMS

WHAT is meant by the term "muscle strapping"? I have heard it referred to in connection with facial massage, but have no idea what it means. SALLY T.

Muscle strapping is considered a very important step in many types of facials. After the skin has been cleansed and certain definite massage movements applied, the operator wraps the facial contour. Strips of gauze are wrapped over the underchin, up along the jawline and over the top of the head and left on for a limited time. Other steps of the massage complete the facial.

How can I cover scars left by incorrect removal of facial hairs? Three years ago a woman came to our door and said she was an experienced operator and gave treatments in one's home. I trusted her and after several treatments the hair was entirely removed. About six months later unsightly scars appeared and I have no idea where or how to find the operator.

MRS. H. J. POWELL.

A preparation made especially to cover birthmarks and surface scars and discolorations would be just the thing for your purpose. If you cannot find this splendid product in your local drug or department store, send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll forward you further information and tell you where it can be obtained. This product has the approval of reputable physicians. I'm sorry you had such an unpleasant experience.

I've recently reduced 20 pounds, thanks to your suggestions, and now I am faced with a new problem. Will you please let me know how I can keep my present weight without actually starving myself and without damage to my appearance and health? I am 19 years old. BLANCHE H.

Send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for my weight-maintenance plan. These suggestions allow ample food and are easy to follow without danger to your appearance and health.

I have a great deal of trouble with my nail polish peeling off. Two days after it is applied the polish along the nail tip gets cracked and within a day or so it is half off. How can I overcome this trouble? JOYCE G.

To help prevent polish from chipping or peeling off, do this: First see that the polish is applied to dry, clean nails. Then, after making the application to one finger, use the cushion of a finger on the other hand for removing the very edge of polish. This is called tipping. Repeat on each nail tip. This makes a smooth edge so that the polish will not so easily peel back.

The freckles which I get every summer are coming back in leaps and bounds. Have you a good freckle preventive or erasure I could use? My skin is quite normal, more oily than dry.

CAROL.

Use a heavy cream make-up foundation all of the time, whenever you are exposed to sun or wind. This will protect your skin. Also wear a brimmed hat whenever possible. As a corrective aid use any reliable skin lightener.

Delight Dixon Says:

THINK thin. Follow sound reducing methods. Remember to sit and stand "tall" and the pounds will literally roll off. Keep your body stretched to its full height all of the time and visualize yourself with a youthfully erect body. This will go a long way toward reducing unwanted poundage and help rebuild your figure nearer to your heart's desire.

Soap is a habit. Whether we realize it or not, it is one of our best beauty aids, but all too often is taken for granted. Now the true fragrance of pine, geranium, gardenia, carnation, bouquet and honeysuckle have been duplicated in both bath and hand soap.

Put on a mitt and pat on powder! It's as simple as all get out this new way. The mitt is a refillable powder puff that fits the hand and is used for dusting on body powder. The business side of the mitt has a surface like a luxurious puff and the back is of heavy faille-taffeta with pink and blue flowers. Refills for this de luxe powder mitt come in apple blossoms or bouquet fragrance.

Don't be tense if you want to look pretty. Talk yourself into a relaxed mood and let the temperature soar. Keeping and looking cool is simply a matter of forgetting the heat. Use cooling methods, to be sure, to help you in this bit of self-deception. Spray cologne on your body before dressing, pat powder over your feet, midriff, underarm and the backs of your knees, wear dark sun-glasses to shade your eyes and make the day look cooler and go about your business leisurely.

How red is a red apple? You'll find the answer on some of the smartest lips and finger-tips. The companion pieces for the nail polish and lip rouge are cheek rouge, face powder and make-up film.

Reliance Aircraft Scores 12-8 Victory Over Corbys in First Game of City League Playoffs

Johnny Hamilton Ejected From Pastime for Strenuously Disputing Decision

POINT ANNE WINS

Upsets, verbal controversies and rivalry that saw excitement personified featured the opening of the City Softball League semi-finals last night, when the Reliance Aircraft staged a surprise 12 to 8 win over Corbys A.C. at Coleman Flats, while at Point Anne the Esquire kids ran into some ill-fortune to lose the other half of the league play-offs 3 to 0 at the hands of the Cementmen, as the juniors out-hit the homesters eight to four. The winning Reliance and Point Anne nines enjoy a game's advantage in their best-in-five semi-final series for the City League championship.

Umpire baiting and verbal protests were frequent when the Reliance earned a 12 to 8 decision over Corbys in a surprise win, but the credit of the victory goes to Archie Major, the "plane-makers" hitting-pitcher, who steadied his teammates in the clutches and hurled the Reliance to the first win in four games this year over Corbys. However, the victory was the sweeter coming in the moneyed playdowns.

Take Early Lead

Reliance took an early lead, when Major opened the third with a mighty hit to deep centre, that Archie hastened around and pulled up at third easily. Grey hit for three bases and LaBonne singled and three runs crossed the plate. Reliance were never headed from this point, as they added four more in the fifth during which Johnnie Hamilton was ejected from the game for throwing the ball at Umpire Colling, after protesting a close decision at first base, that the official called in favor of the Reliance. Hamilton had hit a home run in the fourth with Ronsky aboard while the Bawden-led clan made their big bid in the fifth, when they scored four to make the count stand at 7 to 6 for Reliance. Goyer's double in the seventh helped the Reliance to score three as they added a brace more in the eighth when Gow homered. Corbys rallied again in their half of the eighth to score two, following which the game was terminated on account of darkness.

Andy Grey with a triple and three singles led the hitters of the night, while Gow had a round-tripper and a single. Major helped his own cause with a triple and a single, while Goyer had a double and single, as the Reliance chalked up five extra base hits off Harris' deliveries. Kiser and Hamilton hit circuit blows for Corbys, their only extra base blows, as the lion's share of the victory went to Archie Major, whose pitching, hitting and steadying influence carried Reliance to victory.

Make Hits Count

Down at Point Anne, "Bubby" Gaulin's Cementmen made their four hits count as they downed the Esquire kids 3-0. Mike Power hurled for the local Juniors and let the homesters down with a quartette of hits, but a walk, an error and bunched hits proved enough for the homesters to eke out a win, as the Esquires out-hit the Cementmen eight blows to four. Not a single Point Anne batter garnered more than one safety off Power, while "Ding" Luffman scattered eight hits well. The Juniors bunched three hits in the eighth, but failed to score, as Luffman and his henchmen proved invincible. Yarrow and Reid each had a brace of safeties for the losers. Point Anne scored one run in the first as Bennet hit safely. A walk, an error and Luffman's bingle gave the Cementmen two in the second and that terminated the night's scoring efforts.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, July 19 (AP).—Among those who came up with a low number in the new draft was Joe DiMaggio, the New York University outfielder. . . . That injury Paul Derringer got in spring training is giving him trouble. Has to get up nights and walk the streets. Some of the medicos think he may have to go under the knife. . . . If both the Yanks and Dodgers win and all the Series games are played in the stadium, the winner's share should reach $8,500 per man, or just about a new high. . . . Lacrosse Team Is Re-Admitted To Senior Loop

Toronto, July 19—(CP) — St. Catharines' Athletics, Dominion Senator Lacrosse Champions, were granted re-entry into the Ontario Association last night at an emergency meeting of the league executive. The Athletics withdrew about a month ago when the league executive refused to grant them the right to use player Doug Cove of St. Catharines.

Cove earlier was awarded to Hamilton in a shuffle aimed at keeping the Tigers in the league. Goaltender Frip Harrison of Mimico Mountaineers of the O.L.A., awarded Tigers at the same time as Cove was ordered there, has played with the Hamilton team.

Last night's meeting was brought about through efforts of St. Catharines players who expressed a desire to keep the game alive in that city.

The players voted to ask their club executive if they would sponsor a movement to get back into the league and by a 10 to 2 vote the Athletic Board of Governors allowed the players to present their case to the O.L.A. for readmittance. St. Catharines defaulted six games but Secretary Gene Dopp of the O.L.A. will revise a schedule calling for these contests to be replayed. The Athletics lost its forfeit of $100 for quitting the league and were bonded in the sum of $200 to assure their staying in the league.

BIG-Z LASSIES FORTIFY HOLD ON SECOND PLACE

Chuck Barnett's Team Scores Eight Runs in 6th of Abbreviated Contest

PACED BY STEWART

Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies fortified their hold on second place in the City Ladies' Softball League with a 20 to 8 win over the Corbin girls in an abbreviated seven inning game called on account of darkness at the Armouries last evening.

The teams battled along at fairly even terms until the sixth when the Zeller big bats swung into action and before the dust of battle had settled they had pushed eight runs across the plate in the one frame to cinch the piece after scoring five in the fourth. Corbins scored in every inning except the first, but with the exception of the fifth when they scored three, their counts were singletons.

"Stewie" Stewart, with a triple, two doubles and a single paced the Zeller lassies on the attack, Donovan getting two hits while "Lofty" Colden helped her own pitching cause with a seventh inning double. Crouter, Haslip and Blaind swung the stronger bats of the losing Corbin cause. The Big-Z team only out-hit Corbins 12 to 11 but capitalized to the fullest measure on the "lockmakers" miscues.

GRAY HAS CHANCE TO WIN TROPHY FOR SECOND TIME

Defending Champion Makes Semi-Final Round After Hard Match

MEETS LLOYD TUCKER

Toronto, July 19 (CP)—Brilliantly steady in the pinches, defending champion Bob Gray of Toronto meets Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener today in the bottom half of the semi-final bracket of the Millar Trophy golf tournament here after knocking over four of Canada's top-flight professional golfers in early rounds.

Gray, who twice has been carried to extra holes but always had that extra bit of stamina and control to outlast and outplay his opponents, defeated Willie and Bob Lamb, Toronto brothers, in the first day of play. Yesterday he eliminated Bobby Reith of Windsor and Bobby Burns of the suburban Weston Club.

Today's other semi-final match finds Stan Horne of Montreal pitted against Sam Kerr of Toronto, both seasoned campaigners.

Gray put up one of the finest displays ever seen in Millar Trophy play yesterday in disposing of Burns in his quarter-final match one up after 22 holes.

Previously, against the youthful Reith, who blazed over the Islington Club course with an 11-under-par effort on Thursday, Gray produced two threes on the 16th and 17th holes to win.

A Superb Putter

Tucker, a superb putter, won from Jack Littler of Ottawa in another quarter-final match, ending up 5 and 4. Tucker steadily improved after the eighth hole, when they were all square.

Horne has played par and sub-par golf in all his rounds. Yesterday he beat Normie Himes of Kitchener 2 and 1 in a very close match. Both he and Himes had three under par 33's on the inside nine and continued playing sub-par golf for the remaining 8 holes.

Kerr scored a 3 and 2 victory over Ben Norris of Toronto to enter the semi-final round. Kerr's steady play on the outside nine gave him the edge.

The semi-final matches will be played this morning with the 18-hole final in the afternoon.

WAISTLINES WON'T DO FOR POLE VAULTERS, SAYS THE MRS.

"No, no, Honey!" Mrs. Cornelius Warmerdam, whose husband is the world's very best pole-vaulter, intends to keep him in trim even if it takes a bit of rationing. Pole-vaulters have to keep their waistlines down, as Cornelius proved. When he weighed 185 pounds he topped the bar at around 14 feet, six inches. Shedding 20 pounds he found himself going over at 15 feet regularly. His present record is 15 feet four and three-quarter inches.

St. Louis Cardinals Pinning National Loop Pennant Hopes On Slim Southpaw, Ernie White

Defeats Brooklyn Dodgers 6-1 to Split Pennant Race Wide Open Again

FELLER STOPS YANKS

By JUDSON BAILEY

A slim youngster named Ernie White, somewhat overlooked in the shuffle, is the pitcher on whom St. Louis Cardinals are pinning their National League pennant hopes.

He not only is the ace of the Cards—he is the best left-hander in the circuit and he emphasized it by thumping Brooklyn Dodgers 6-1 yesterday to split the National League race wide open again.

The 24-year-old pride of Pacolet Mills, S.C., was the standout hurler in the American Association last year and he won six of his first seven decisions this season.

Then when he was just about to receive recognition alongside the Fellers, Wyatts, Riddles and the rest, he was knocked out of three straight games. The Cardinals lost five straight and the league lead.

What happened, says Manager Billy Southworth, is that White ate something that didn't agree with him on a hot Sunday, June 29, in Cincinnati. He couldn't finish the game; he lost 13 pounds and he went onto the Cards' sick list.

But he looked and acted healthy yesterday in handcuffing the Dodgers. He allowed only six hits and became the first south-paw to beat Brooklyn twice this year. John Hopp, Johnny Mize and Enos Slaughter made eight hits between them and made the Dodgers look helpless.

As the result St. Louis swept the two-game series and cut Brooklyn's lead to two games before heading for a week-end in Boston.

Yanks Stopped By Feller.

New York Yankees, American League leaders, also were stopped yesterday as Bob Feller pitched Cleveland Indians to a 2-1 victory for his 19th win against four defeats. This still left the Yanks with a six-game lead and a two-one edge in the three game series as well as nine victories in 13 games with the Indians for the season.

Rain and darkness halted play in the last of the eighth after a double by Oscar Grimes, a safe bunt by Ray Mack and a fielder's choice had provided the deciding run in the seventh.

Joe DiMaggio whose hitting streak was snapped at 56 games the night before, hit a bonafide single and also got credit for a double when Larry Rosenthal let a fly get away from him for New York's only run in the sixth. Feller gave six hits and fanned nine.

Lefty Grove failed a second time to nail down the 300th victory of his career as Chicago White Sox nosed out Boston Red Sox 4-3 in 10 innings. Grove allowed seven hits to the nine Boston collected off Johnny Rigney, but in the final frame an error by Lou Finney let in the winning run.

Home Run Only Score.

Dutch Leonard's four-hit hurling helped Washington Senators beat Detroit Tigers 8-1, with Rudy York's eighteenth home run accounting for Detroit's only scoring. The Nats made 16 hits.

Bob Johnson also hit his 18th homer, with two on in the ninth inning, to spur Philadelphia Athletics to a 6-5 margin over St. Louis Browns.

Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves divided a doubleheader in the only National League action outside Brooklyn. Ken Heintzelman pitched a four-hitter as the Pirates bagged the first game 5-1 and three Pittsburgh pitchers allowed only six hits in the nightcap, but two of them were singles following a walk in the ninth inning and earned Boston a 4-3 edge.

Kingston Man Earns a Draw In Hull Bout

Hull, Que., July 19.—(CP)—Leo (Darky) Fortier, 150, of Kingston, Ont., battled to a five-round draw in the main event at Hull Stadium last night as boxing made its debut here.

Lionel Vezeau, 146, hard-hitting Montrealer, knocked out Sgt. Terry Hayes, 147, of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps in one minute and 45 seconds of the second round of their scheduled five-round clash, and Paul Rivest, 129, another Montreal fighter, stopped Romeo Gingras, 130, of Hull after 38 seconds of the fourth round of a preliminary match.

In all five Montreal boxers appeared on the card.

Joe Brown, 145, of Hull won a decision over Roger Rivest 145 of Montreal, in five rounds.

Gordie Montagano, 115, Ottawa, won the decision over Johnny Farrell, 115, of Kingston, in their three-round fight.

Gene Racine of Montreal, lost a five-round decision to Cpl. Wilfred Ellett of Ottawa, former Olympic fighter from Winnipeg.

Fernand Demers, 145, Montreal, won a decision over Tommy Delaney, 140, of Ottawa, in three rounds.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

Baseball clubs, throughout the years,
Rise and fall through cheers and jeers;
Cleveland's Babies got the colic
When the fans waxed Vittriolic. . . .
While the Tigers started snapping,
When Detroiters started clapping;
Even Cobb, terrific Tyrus,
Bridled at the Bronxy virus. . . .
While the Babe did his best clouting,
When his praises fans were shouting!
So, if your bums ain't so chipper . . .
Cheer 'em up . . . or zip your zipper!

—Phil Stack.

It was just like old times at Coleman Flats last night when arguments were rife, players swarmed the umpires, one of which was ejected from the game for protesting a little too pugnaciously, and a general old-time donnybrook nearly resulted as the Reliance beat the Corby's 12 to 8 to take first blood in the City Softball League semi-finals. Regardless as to questionable decisions, biased opinions et al, the answer to the Reliance victory is quite simple—Archie Major, plus some over-confidence on the part of Harold Bawden's charges. Major not only hurled good ball in the clutches, but he started his team towards victory with a mighty third inning triple, for which he received the most pronounced applause to be afforded a player at Coleman Flats in some time. It was deserved. Major not only pitched steadily, but was a towering strength as he settled the shaky Reliance squad on each and every occasion when trouble confronted the "plane-makers". The game was productive of excitement all the way around and in their next meeting, these two squads should pack 'em in.

While Reliance surprised all and sundry at the Flats by trouncing Corby's, the Esquire kids really tossed a scare into the ranks of the Cementmen at Point Anne, although the Ox Point nine did eke out a 3-0 win. Mike Power let the hard-hitting Cementmen down with four hits, but "Ding" Luffman, firing for the homesters, scattered eight hits masterfully, but some poor base running in the eighth robbed the juniors of a possible scoring opportunity. The Esquires complain today they were victims of inadequate umpiring, two spectators having to be drafted into the arbiters' positions. However, as it is a five-game seriese the kids can even matters on Monday night. While the men were really giving the meagre handful of fans a thrill in the City League semi-finals, Chuck Barnett's Zeller girls had little trouble in beating the Corbin lassies 20 to 8 at the armouries.

"Ol' Diz" is no longer with Chicago. Another chapter in Cub diamond affairs has been completed, and it was, to say the least, a most unhappy one. At the cost of $185,000.00 and three players, Branch Rickey "peddled" Dean to the Cubs to prove he is baseball's No. 1 David Harum. Rickey and the Cardinals took all from Dean and gave nothing in return. Dean was always a source of trouble while a player. He was a winner with the Cardinals, so his transgressions were readily overlooked. His first two seasons with the Cubs netted him $20,000 per annum, plus doctor bills, and that just ain't exactly hay. The question the experts are trying to solve today is whether Dean drew $400,000 worth of fandom into Wrigley Field, because if he didn't, well Owner Wrigley took a financial beating on that deal. Statistics show that Dean was around last season when the Cubs' home attendance declined a cool 200,000 over the previous year, but can Dean be blamed for that? Today Jerome Dean should be in his element, as a radio baseball commentator in good old St. Louis, where he first came to major league prominence.

Do you remember when Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis Cardinals hit his 25th home run of the season 19 years ago today to better the modern National League home run record set by Garry Cravath of Philadelphia in 1915. Hornsby's record has been eclipsed numerous times since but he was the first player to smash the original record.

Great pitchers usually pitch fast games when they are right but not Bob Feller. Any time he takes less than two hours to pitch a game it's a near miracle. Mel Harder probably throws more curve balls than any American League pitcher when he's working well and Floyd Giebell, the Tiger rookie (and ex-Bison) who beat Feller in the pennant-clinching game last September, has an unorthodox delivery. It looks like he lets the ball go with his arm crooked.

Only three clubs were represented at yesterday's Provincial Lawn Bowling tournament here, each club winning one event and everyone seemed happy about the whole thing. Earl Fox of Stirling was laying down some hot bowls to win the singles, Deseronto took the doubles and the Belleville Lawn Bowing Cub team will represent this city in the Provincial Lawn Bowling playdowns. The Belleville quartette, skipped by that veteran bowler Charlie Sulman, was composed of Hugh Middleton, C. Iley, Chas. Tilley and of course Mr. Sulman as skip. The Deseronto pair of A. Rendell and Jim Hough ran off with the district doubles, as they drew a bye into the finals.

SPORT SPICE—The Esquire Juniors blame the City Softball executive for losing in Point Anne. . . . "There were no official umpires appointed for the game and we had to be satisfied with a couple collected from the crowd, and what this pair didn't know about the game would fill a big book," commented Acting Manager Art Mansfield after the game. . . . "There'll be a different story here promised Captain Vince Guay. . . . "We might just as well had a pair from the blind institute," chirped in Skipper Harold Bawden while comparing notes with the juniors. . . . Yea man, the Corby-Reliance series is not hot—it's torrid, as personalities are entering into the battle. . . . Cleveland's one-man team—Bob Feller—won another, when Feller chalked up his 19th win of the year by beating the Yankees 2-1 yesterday, while the Cardinals whittled the Dodgers' lead to two games . . . take it away.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma came down to breakfist with her hat on, on account of wanting to go downtown with pop, saying, Willyum, I feel so uncomfortable in this green suit I dont know how I'm going to wear it.

Does green affect you like that? pop said, and ma said, I mean it's definitely tighter than the last time I wore it, and I cant account for it. It cant be possible that I'm any stouter than I was then, I mean that idea is just too fantastic for human belief. That cleener must of shrank it, that's the plausible explination. O deer these cleeners. I mean it cant be my weight, because I've been watching the scales as conscientiously as a hawk, she said.

Obviously it's strictly a quetsion of the size of the suit and not the size of you, pop said. Maybe you left it out in the rain, or more likely you were out in the rain in it, he said, and ma said, No. I dont think so, a tiny sprinkle, perhaps, but that's all.

Sprinklers are deceeving, pop said. By gollies maybe it was sabotage, he said, and ma said, Why Willyum how do you mean?

Have you done anybody an injury, or have you an enemy that might creep into your wardrobe and rip the seams of your clothes and sew them up a size tighter? pop said, and ma said, Now you're getting into the preposterous, and stop laughing, that wasn't so funny.

I'm not laughing at that, I just thought of a funny Irish joke, pop said. It seems there were 9 men all named Pat and Mike so the upshot of the whole story is, there's no possible way of telling wich Pat and wich Mike the yarn is about, but anyway they were all accusing each other of putting on weight, he said.

And he kept on lauhging all a time he was folding up his paper to leave for his office.

Bomb damage prevented opening the May sessions at Old Bailey till mid-June and court announced all sentences passed would date from May 13 "so no one will suffer any injustice".

ONLY $4,000,000 LEFT

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—The Julius Rosenwald fund reported today it had spent $16,620,000 since it was established "for the well-being of mankind" in 1917. Edwin R. Embree, President of the fund, said there remains a balance of approximately $4,000,000 which Rosenwald, a Chicago merchant and philanthropist, provided must be expended with 25 years after his death, or by 1957.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Affectionately Yours"

Romantic comedy at its best—gay, frothy and swift-moving comes Sunday midnight to the Capitol Theatre. "Affectionately Yours," is the title, Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan and Rita Hayworth are the stars, and fun is the purpose of this completely delightful offering.

Top acting honors go to the three stars. Dennis Morgan (Kitty Foyle's boy friend, remember?) is a thoroughly charming young man, delightfully at ease in front of the cameras and completely believable in his role. Merle Oberon, who is deservedly one of the screen's most popular feminine stars, has one of her best roles in "Affectionately Yours," and is, incidentally, more lovely to look at than ever. In the role of the man-chasing newspaper girl, luscious Rita Hayworth follows up her recent smash hit in "Strawberry Blonde" with another bell-ringing performance. Ralph Bellamy is excellent as the bewildered bridegroom and George Tobias comes through with another swell comedy performance as a Turkish news photographer with a passion for unique angles.

Lloyd Bacon, whose inimitable deftness with comedy was so well demonstrated in "A Slight Case of Murder," has done as smooth a piece of direction with "Affectionately Yours," keeping it going at a fast gay pace. The screen play by Edward Kaufman, from a story by Fanya Foss and Aleen Leslie, sparkles with witty dialogue and myriad amusing situations.

"On the Spot"

"On the Spot," newest of the Frankie Darro starring vehicles for Monogram, is scheduled to open at Sunday midnight along with "Affectionately Yours."

Playing opposite Darro is 22-year-old Mary Kornman, former "Hal Roach Our Gang" comedy heroine. Also seen in the cast are Mantan Moreland, John St. Polis, and Robert Warwick.

The story concerns a small town soda jerker who becomes involved in a murder mystery when a wounded racketeer is about to announce where he has hidden $300,000 in loot, but dies before he reveals the hiding place. Overnight the small sleepy town is changed into a teeming metropolis crammed full of gansters bent on finding the money, as well as reporters and police authorities.

The same programme includes a coloured cartoon, "Ghost Wanted."

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Shop Around the Corner"

If Margaret Sullavan had been decked out in sables and diamonds and James Stewart in top hat, white tie and tails, Ernst Lubitsch wouldn't have spent as much time selecting and approving their wardrobe as he did the few simple costumes worn by the stars in "The Shop Around the Corner," which opens next at the McCarthy for an engagement.

Because it is a charmingly realistic story of everyday events in the lives of a little leather goods and novelty shop owner and his clerks, Lubitsch, director-producer of the picture, demanded that each item of clothing worn by the stars and featured players have definite character.

The entire wardrobe of Miss Sullavan, Stewart, Frank Morgan, Joseph Schildkraut, Felix Bressart, Sara Haden, Inez Courtney and William Tracy was valued by the wardrobe department at less than $100. But in many respects it was priceless.

Miss Sullavan's dress was purchased for $1.98. When he saw it, Lubitsch said, "Too smart for a clerk looking for a job." He had it altered to be ill fitting and then left out in the sun until it had a faded appearance. Schildkraut and Bressart dug deep into their theatrical trunks for odd items of apparel. Lubitsch permitted them to wear nothing new.

"Clothes," he said, "are an important factor in creating a mood. Old clothes are like old friends. They are comfortable and make a person feel at ease. The clothes a man wears are as much an index to character as his physical appearance and the thoughts he thinks."

On the same program, Jean Parker and Wallace Ford in "Roar of the Press," a splendid newspaper story, plus latest McCarthy-Fox News Events will be presented. The "Glasbake" Ovenware piece next week will be the large oval Baker Bottoms.

"King Kong"

If you are one of the few who have not enjoyed the excellent two features "Spy in the Pantry" and the thrill hit of the century, "King Kong," your path should be direct to the McCarthy Theatre this evening. We recommend these feature presentations highly as outstanding entertainment.

Newspaper men "have souls to be saved, never neglect an opportunity of personal contact with press men," Chairman A. B. Mortlock of the Church Assembly advised members of that body.

AT THE BELLE

"Million Dollar Baby"

With Priscilla Lane and Jeffrey Lynn, the sweethearts of "Four Daughters" fame, and Ronald Reagan heading the cast, "Million Dollar Baby," a delightful new comedy romance, is the feature attraction now at the Belle.

Hailed by audiences who previewed the film on the coast as the most heart-warming story of this or any other year, "Million Dollar Baby" chronicles the adventures of a hard-working young girl who suddenly falls heir to a million dollars. What it does to her life—romantically and otherwise—and how she eventually wins a million dollars worth of happiness, makes "Million Dollar Baby" a completely absorbing story.

Curtis Bernhardt, director of last year's comedy hit, "My Love Came Back," directed "Million Dollar Baby."

Besides Miss Lane, Lynn and Reagan, the cast includes May Robson, Lee Patrick, Helen Westley, George Barbier, Nan Wynn, John Qualen, Walter Catlett, Fay Helm and many more noted players.

The Belle world news events and a color fun cartoon precede the feature attraction.

"Virginia" Returns

The management of the Belle Theatre are bringing back the greatest woman's picture of the year so that all Belleville and vicinity might see this glorious romance.

Offering a wealth of entertainment rich in stirring drama, absorbing romance and bright comedy, Paramount's technicolor film of the modern South, "Virginia," is the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Together as a team for the third time, the picture's stars, Madeleine Carrol land Fred MacMurray both turn in performances that should result in keeping this charmingly romantic pair together for some time to come. Stirling Hayden, a stranger to motion pictures, making his movie debut in this picture, gives an entirely creditable performance. Young, handsome and dashing, this former yachtsman, who was lured from the sea by Hollywood, should go far.

Exceptionally fine performances are contributed by the brilliant cast headed by Helen Broderick, Marie Wilson and Carolyn Lee, that "Honeymoon in Bali" baby back to steal your heart again.

"The Get-Away" Exciting

Thrills, excitement, romance and comedy abound in a stream-lined story as modern as today's headlines. "The Get-Away" co-starring Donna Reid and Robert Stirling, announced as the added feature attraction.

Gananoque's Gift

London, July 19.—(CP)—Gift of Gananoque, Ontario, two mobile canteens were presented to the Salvation Army War Emergency Service. The presentation was made by Brigadier F. R. Phelan of the Canadian Military Headquarters, London.

The Indian government has published a "fish dictionary" describing for laymen the chief varieties of Indian fish with vernacular names.

Frankie Darro and his negro buddy, Mantan Moreland, are in trouble again—which means plenty of laughs for action fans when they see "On The Spot," next at the Capitol. The same program features Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan and Rita Hayworth in "Affectionately Yours."

Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart, romantic co-stars of the gay comedy-drama "The Shop Around The Corner," which also features Frank Morgan, next attraction at the McCarthy Theatre with the added feature "Roar of the Press."

LUCKY FOR LOVE

CHAPTER 2.

"SILVER GRILL EPISODE"

In the morning Marilyn snatched a cup of coffee, made gestures with a piece of toast, and hummed her way out of the house in a great hurry. Clara always slept late, and breakfasted in bed. Marilyn's humming and toast were for benefit of her mother, who was still in a flutter.

In the Bon Ton General Store, over a box of books they were unpacking, Marilyn told Sally Meacham ,her friend and co-worker, she had won the Clarco prize award. Sally collapsed into the book box. When thumpings on the back had been administered, she revived into a spluttering tangle of words, exclamation points, question marks and squeaks of delight peppered between "Oh—dear—mes!" and "Hot cricketies!"

"Lynn Marsh," she gasped, "what in the name of Christmas are you doing in this dump, with a fortune like that on your hands?"

"I'm unpacking books, pal, or I was, until you went limp on me." Marilyn placed two volumes on the shelf, stood back to admire the effect. "You remember me. I'm the other girl who works in this department."

Sally folded her arms, fixed an accusing eye on her friend. "Do you mean you're going on slaving for Bon Ton with all that gold in the vault?"

"Stop clowning, Sally." Marilyn continued placing books. "That pot of gold is not going to keep the Marshes in cake and caviar. Every dollar of the thousand has its job cut out for it. Meantime, yours devotedly will be right here in the emporium collecting the weekly stipend."

"S'pose you sneak a dollar or so away from the pile before the creditors get wise to it, and let's go to the Silver Grill for luncheon. Get it? Luncheon, not lunch. Something in cream sauce and a salad that crunches. What say, Lucky Break?"

"I say, 'Yes ma'am, and a plate of peach ice cream with angel food trimmings'."

The Silver Grill, catering strictly to Millville's upper brackets and boasting a modern setting of chromium, billious blue stucco walls and black fittings, was les than half-filled at noon-time. For the most part, Millville ate what was placed in front of it, not in quality. Millville's pocketbooks were gaited to quantity rather than to quality. Marilyn and Sally were shown to a table for two, near the entrance. Marilyn was studying the menu when Sally leaned forward and lowered her voice to say:

"Don't look now, Lynn, but the Queen of Beauty is just coming in with a gentleman camp follower."

"Clara?" Marilyn glued her eyes to the menu. Clara must not catch her looking. No telling what might happen when Clara was in a mood. "Who's the meal ticket?"

"I don't know, but from the visual evidence I'd say he's a city slicker. Dark and glossy. Say—I catch on. He's that chap who's been running the beauty contest at the Bijou. Clara's dripping honey. He's not looking so well. Maybe he doesn't like honey."

Clara Marsh was drinking deep draughts of the heady wine of conquest. She was an acclaimed beauty. As she entered the Silver Grill with a handsome stranger, she was so absorbed in putting on her act of elegant detachment that she did not indulge her desire to quest the room in search of envy and admiration. Not until she was seated opposite Al Martino in a pose of bright expectancy did she notice the two young women at a table near the front of the grill. Sally Meacham! And of all the tough luck, just when she was on the verge of the big thrill—Marilyn. What was her sister doing in the Silver Grill? And that snip of a Meacham? How could they afford to eat in the best place in town?

Clara felt the surge of anger that had shaken her the evening before when Marilyn waved the telegram announcing the Clarco award over the heads of her stunned family. Had Marilyn known she, Clara, was to be here with Al Martino? But no, she couldn't possibly. Clara hadn't been sure herself she could manage it until the last minute. She'd ignore the interlopers, pretend she didn't see them.

At that moment Sally caught Clara's narrowed eyes, smiled, waved familiarly. Clara favored her with a cold stare.

"Darling, the Queen is looking right through me with those big china blue eyes," Sally chuckled. "She's wiring me I'm not to dare let on I know her. So I'll wave again, to show her, she can't shush me. Umm. This time her boy friend saw me. He's speaking to her, asking her who the two ravishing femmes at this table are. Especially you, Lynn. He's getting two eyefuls of you—"

Marilyn said, "Let's not pay any attention to them, Sally. We came here for a treat. Let's have it. There's creamed chicken and mushrooms on toast. Sound yummy to you?"

"Yummy!" Sally's appetite for food bested her appetite for mischief. Diligently, she applied herself to the menu.

Her surmise as to what might be going on at the table where Clara and her escort had ordered cocktails was so near the truth that it would have surprised even Sally.

"There's a cute little number up front giving you the heigh-ho," Al Martino said. "Seems to know you well."

"I don't know her," Clara said, shortly. "At least I don't care to know her. She's quite ordinary."

"Ouch. Common people, huh? Too bad. Looks cuter than common to me. And the job across from her—sa-ay, strictly streamlined. Get the profile! Fine and clean. If I were a poet, or a painter, I'd do something about that profile. Maybe, if you know the owner, you'll go big hearted and stake me to a close-up."

Mingled anger and chagrin trickled Clara into forgetting her barrage of flattery.

"If you brought me here to introduce you to every woman in the place," she snapped, "we might as well leave. The streamlined job—as you call it—happens to be my sister." Might as well acknowledge Marilyn. If Al stayed in town for a few days necessary to wind up the Bouquet of Beauty contest he'd be sure to learn of the relationship. Better to have done with it now, to warn him she would not stand for nonsense with Marilyn.

"Your sister!" Al was enthusiastic. "But, Beautiful, why didn't you tell me you have a gem of purest ray serene in the family? Sister is—she's tremendous. Why don't we invite her and the little cutey to share our humble board?"

"If you dare—" Clara heard her own voice, shrill, shrewish. She'd have to control herself, take up the honey-drip again. "I'm sorry, Al," she said, registering what she hoped was a wistful sadness. "Sister and I don't get on very well. She insists on living her own life. It's a great sorrow for ma—for mother and for father. They're really such dears—I can't forgive sister for the trouble she causes them.

"On the level? I'd never take her for a meanie. What does the gal do to weigh down the parental hearts?"

Clare lowered her eyes. Lids and lashes, she felt, were among her best features.

"I'd rather not discuss it," she said. "It's—embarrassing."

"Oh, all right, beautiful." Al was thinking there are more ways than one to catch up with a pretty girl. Far be it from him to rattle any family skeletons. "What ho! The cocktails," he said. I tried to get Daquiris but the fair city of Millville is as yet entirely innocent of the super-pepper-uppers. It goes on getting hellish on gin. Here's to you, Beautiful. Here's that you knock New York into a cocked hat. It's been tried by experts, so don't be too disappointed if the Stork Club fails to fall in a swoon when you get around to favoring it with your presence."

Clara laughed. Her laugh definitely was not one of her good points. It was mirthless, affected.

"You do say the most outlandish things, Al. Half the time I don't know what you're talking about. You wouldn't be poking fun at me, would you?"

"What? Me?" reproachfully. "Why, lady, I'm less than the dust under your chariot wheels—that is if you'll furnish the chariot. Another wee nippie?"

"Wee nippie? I — don't understand—"

"Another cocktail, Backward!"

"Oh, no—I'd love it, of course—but you know how it is in a hick town. In Millville cocktails at noon are considered terribly fast. I'll probably be talked about for taking the first one. People are so disgustingly narrow-minded. It will be so marv'-lous to get away, to go where people really have fun, where they really live. You'll show me all New York, won't you, Al, every bit of it? Promise?"

"I doubt I'll live that long," Al said, wearily. "But be of good cheer, my pet. You'll see enough to shake the hay out of your hair." His eyes followed Marilyn and Sally out through the Silver Grill door. "If you've finished toying with that whipped cream gadget, we'll turn on the switch and get under way. I got work to do."

"You're not walking home with me?" protesting. "I know your car is out of order but I don't mind walking ,really I don't. I love walking."

"Good. I hate walking. But that's neither here nor there as the boys say—I'm a working man and the boss is likely to call a strike on me if I don't prove it. I'll ring you later, Beautiful. Meantime, don't mope."

Butter and Eggs In Good Demand

Toronto, July 19 (CP).—Prices in all sections of the Toronto open produce market rounded out the current week's action in firm positions, as they all held steady in yesterday's trading. Good demand and light receipts were reported for butter and eggs.

Though it assumed a quieter tone yesterday, with buying not so brisk, the egg market maintained a firm position. With continued light receipts meeting good demand, fresh arrivals have been readily absorbed. Grade A pullets have been scarce and registered an increase of ½ cent a dozen, as did grades A-large and A-medium. Wholesale to retail quotations increased from 1 to 2 cents a dozen over first of the week. The local consumer demand has been good and there has also been a good enquiry from outside points, shipments having gone forward to the north country and the Maritimes.

Butter prices held steady on a quiet market, as demand, though not heavy, proved sufficient to clear continued light receipts. No. 1 creamery solids held to the advanced price of 35½ cents a pound, while wholesale to retail quotation for first grade butter was 36½ cents a pound.

The poultry market assumed a slightly quieter tone this week. While receipts have not been heavy, there has been sufficient to fill requirements. Though broilers were not as plentiful as during the previous week, there was some surplus which was shipped to eastern points. Arrivals of fowl have been on the light side except in the case of lightweight chicken, where there has been a surplus.

La Guardia May Seek Third Term

New York, July 19.—(AP)—The question of whether Fiorello H. La Guardia will seek a third term as mayor of New York City probably will be answered Monday. The Mayor's closest political friends and members of his cabinet say he will run again.

To back their contention, Samuel Seabury has called a conference of Fusionists— the movement he founded in 1933 to sweep La Guardia into City Hall—for Monday to plan the fight for the Mayor's reelection.

The Mayor will broadcast Monday and that speech is expected to disclose his own view.

The Mayor holds two other important posts—National Director of the office of Civilian Defence and American chairman of the Canadian-United States Joint Defence Commission.

The Democratic organisation candidate is William O'Dwyer, who, as District Attorney of Kings County has built a reputation for fearlessness in law enforcement. Republican leaders will select a candidate next week.

WELLINGTON POLICE ARREST "PEEPING TOM"

Complaints of the residents of the Village of Wellington that a 'peeping Tom" was at work in the village brought about swift police action with the result that the man in question was hauled into police court where he paid a fine of ten dollars.

According to police, the midnight verandah visitor peered into lighted rooms of houses regardless of what the interior held. A young lady caught him in the act and laid charges with the above result.

Dorothy Thompson Flies to London To Report on Conditions in Britain

New York, July 19. — Dorothy Thompson ,columnist, whose articles appear in The Ontario Intelligencer will fly the Atlantic to spend a month in England, primarily to find out "what is going on in the British mind". She will continue writing her columns three times a week from Europe.

If it is possible, she hopes also to fly to Russia, and may visit Switzerland, an island of freedom still surviving in Continental Europe.

Miss Thompson had intended to board the Transatlantic clipper this morning, but weather conditions caused postponement of the flight.

"I want first of all to see my friends", Miss Thompson told the New York Post as she prepared for her departure. "In the second place, I am making the trip for pleasure. And then I want to know what the British are thinking. What are they thinking about the past, about the future, about the Russian alliance?

"I want to see the people in England who think, who have brains. I want to see what the cross-section of the English mind is. I want to talk to people who were against the war, to people like Shaw, the people in the Admiralty.

"Some Americans don't realize the importance of British survival. They are the only people left in Europe whose institutions are intact".

"Idiotic" Jap Policy

Miss Thompson sees the war becoming more and more a truly world war and moving relentlessly to a great final conflict between land and sea power. And it will be a long war, she said, as the invasion of Russia shows.

"Hitler is going right on to Vladivostok", she said. "And that means we're in it. It means that Japan is involved inevitably, unfortunately for Japan".

The tragedy of Japan in Miss Thompson's view is its effort to become a great land power. Now it finds its armies tied up in China and the world's greatest military power almost at its gates.

In the fall of the Japanese Cabinet yesterday, Miss Thompson saw a sign of the hopelessness of the Japanese position. Japan's only chance, she said, is to make peace with China immediately and enter into an alliance with this country and Britain.

"Japan's policy has been idiotic from the beginning", Mrs Thompson said. She has done exactly what Russia did and now is going to have Germany on her borders. She will be in Germany's pocket, just as Mussolini is. Nobody should make alliance with Germany because inevitably you find her at your frontier and she kills you". Add Dorothy. w 1

Hitler's drive in the Pacific will enable him to flank the oceans, fulfilling the Nazi geopolitical theory, Miss Thompson believes, and the plane perhaps will then decide the balance between land and sea power.

"Look at it from the view of the influence of sea power on civilization. When sea power prevails, the world is free and humanistic. When land power dominates, the world is oppressed and militaristic.

"Sea power depends on collaboration ,land power on military might. Look at it historically. The world has always been more lightly governed when sea power prevailed. That's why it matters so terribly".

Miss Thompson has little confidence in the ability of the Soviets to make a stand beyond the Urals. They will lack the essential supplies for mechanized war, and though the Russians are masters of guerrilla tactics, they cannot fight against fighting planes.

Sporadic civil wars will probably break out all over Russia, but Hitler need only keep open the Trans-Siberian Railroad and concentrate his administrative machinery in the Ukraine and the Caucasus.

Miss Thompson said she did not wish to indulge in wishful thinking, but expected that Hitler would find himself involved in a hopeless chaos of administrative difficulties in his effort to exploit Russian resources.

"Hitherto he has conquered civilized countries and taken over the existing civil machinery — perhaps I shouldn't say that our Russian allies aren't civilized. But in Poland he has encountered great administrative difficulties and in Russia he will be swamped.

"If he has taken Minsk, there is nothing there. When he takes Moscow, everything will collapse. In the other countries there has been a spontaneous local life in every community. But in Russia the Communists have destroyed that spontaneous local life. Every collective farm is administered from Moscow. When the central things cracks, everything will".

Head-on Collision Injures Two Airmen

Two airmen were injured and taken to the Belleville General Hospital after a head-on motor vehicle crash, which occurred immediately east of the Trenton R.C.A.F. base shortly after midnight Friday night. The injured men were Cpl. Hucker and LAC. Robt. Gagnon, both of the Air Force service police.

The men sustained their injuries when a motor car driven by FO. H. Chandler, of the R.C.A.F., was in head-on collision with the Air Force police service truck, driven by ACI. Stebbings. Both drivers escaped injury.

The front of Chandler's motor car was completely demolished as the result of the impact, while the police service truck turned over in the ditch, resulting in the injuries to Hucker, who had a fractured shoulder and lacerated face, and Gagnon, who was also cut about the head. Dr. R. Tennent attended the injured men while the accident was investigated by Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch, who revealed charges were pending in the case.

Otherwise activities were quiet and serene in city and Provincial Police circles. The Brockville authorities reported the theft of a 1934 model Ford coach bearing Ontario licence plates number 78 N 66 from that city yesterday.

PROSPECTS FOR HONEY YIELD MUCH BETTER

While the crop of light honey has been productive of approximately half a normal yield, prospects for the "dark product" have been considerably brightened by recent rains, Wilfred Marvin, Wellington apiarist, said today.

Early season drought was responsible for the low yield in the first season crop, Mr. Marvin stated. He had the opinion that recent rains would also enhance prospects of the second crop of light honey that bees are now producing from sweet clover.

Prices have increased approximately thirty per cent over those of last year, he said. Today four-pound pails sold for sixty cents on the city market. Export possibilities were hazy at present, due to war conditions.

WOMAN'S HAT LANDS ON BOY'S HEAD

Two heads are better than one, even for women's hats. A small boy at the city market today with his parents started with surprise when a floppy object suddenly landed on his head. He hurriedly grasped it and found it to be a lady's hat, swept from its owner's head by a sudden gust of wind.

REMOVE FRAGMENT OF NUT FROM LUNG

Victim of an unusual accident, Ian Findlay, ten-year-old Wellington youth was taken to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto this week, where a piece of a peanut was removed from one of his lungs. The boy was munching the nuts last Sunday when a large piece accidentally lodged in the lung.

The peanut was located by X-ray and removed by surgeons.

WAR EQUIPMENT DAMAGED

Omaha, July 19 (AP)—A large stock of machine tools and equipment for defence industries was damaged in a fire that destroyed the Fuchs Machinery and Supply Company building early today. Nearby buildings were threatened.

Fireman William Skarada suffered head and back injuries when a brick cornice fell. Capt. Joe Ferziley, on a ladder with Skarada, escaped the shower of bricks by sticking his head in a window. Three other firemen were injured, but remained on duty.

POLICE ANXIOUS TO GET INFORMATION

Belleville police are anxious to ascertain the name of a young lady who was in the vicinity of a hit-and-run accident on College Street, Wednesday night, when Mrs. James Ashbury was knocked down by a passing motor car and left lying injured on the roadway.

"We understand there was a young lady walking past that particular spot just prior to the impact and it is quite possible this lady might be able to assist us in apprehending the guilty hit-and-run driver. We would not embarrass the lady if she would come forward and assist us, but perhaps same small detail she might remember would be of marked importance towards the apprehension of a hit-and-run driver", stated Chief Kidd to The Ontario Intelligencer today as he asked co-operation in the bringing of the driver to justice, as hit-and-run drivers are looked upon as the lowest form of traffic violaters.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Today brings to a close four weeks of fighting on the Russian front. How far the achievements of the German army have measured up to the expectations of Hitler and his high command is not known with any certainty.

In the first days of the campaign Berlin promised success that would baffle the world's imagination. Destruction of the Soviet air force was an early claim. A week ago Leningrad was described as in "immediate danger," and on Monday of this week the German people were told the fall of Kiev could be expected "momentarily."

It turns out that the best showing of the German forces has been made in the direction neither of Leningrad nor Kiev, but in the central sector in the direction of Moscow. The German high command claims Smolensk has been in German hands since Wednesday, and Soviet communiques speak of fighting in the Smolensk area.

Smolensk, a city of 100,000 on the Dnieper River, lies 230 miles southwest of Moscow. The place is of historic importance because it was the first big town Napoleon found burned and deserted on his march to Moscow. In that campaign the Russians abandoned Smolensk without a fight in the early days of August, 1812, and retreated to Borodino, where the battle which decided Moscow's fate was fought.

That heavy fighting is now going on in the Smolensk area is apparent from both the Russian and German versions of the situation. Apparently the German armored forces have driven a deep, but narrow, salient in the Smolensk direction and are now engaged in an effort to widen it.

The rapid advance of the German tanks from Polotsk to Vitebsk, and from Vitebsk to Smolensk, means that a tremendous amount of territory has to be consolidated. The Soviet aim will be to smash through this salient and cut off the armored spearhead; the German aim will be to trap large numbers of the counter-attacking forces and thus contribute to the destruction of the Red Army which has been proclaimed the primary task of the campaign.

It now seems apparent that if Moscow is taken by the Germans the Soviet government will move to Kazan, on the Volga, 450 miles east of Moscow. The two cities are connected by rail which, except in the immediate vicinity of Moscow, would be well out of range of the German advance.

Skeleton staffs of the various Soviet ministries and of the foreign missions in Moscow already are reported in Kazan. This is a natural precautionary measure and is in no way an indication that the early fall of Moscow is expected.

The big job, of course, will be to keep the Red Army intact as a fighting force and prevent any large envelopment as the German strategy enters its advanced stages. What can be expected in the way of reinforcements was indicated by an Axis diplomat recently returned from Moscow who said in Ankara today that a Soviet army of four million men is assembled behind Moscow ready to be put into action at the opportune moment.

"V" OFFENSIVE

"You have probably noticed," he said, "that the Germans are so alarmed by your Vs that they are trying to cause confusion by using V themselves.

"Leave the confusion where it belongs—in Berlin."

Germans are said to have been pestered by the sound of Beethovens fifth—they played it at the United States in a broadcast Thursday to pretend they had not noticed the significance—by clocks in towers stopping at 11.05 to form Vs, by restaurant diners leaving their forks with the tines bent to form Vs and by countless scribblings of the symbol throughout the lands they have occupied.

German officers and officials overrun cities to discover later they are wearing "V" placards on their backs.

A German fighter pilot was brought down in England the other day. A 'V' was painted across the back of his uniform, but it was not clear if it was placed there as part of the campaign or as a German effort to persuade Britons it was their campaign.

Unlike Balshazzar, the Nazis will be able to read the hand-writing on the wall without aid. It appears already to have upset them, but whether they believe it is symbolic of their fate remains to be discovered.

Biblical Story

And here is what the Book of Daniel says happened that night long ago as he sat carousing with his court:

"In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall of the King's palace; and the King saw the part of the hand that wrote.

"Then the King's countenance was changed and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his loins were loosed and his knees smote one against the other."

But he did not know what it meant until Daniel was called to read it to him.

"And this is the writing that was written, Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin.

"This is the interpretation of the thing: Mene, God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it.

"Teckel: Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting.

"Peres: Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians.

"In that night was Balshazzar, the King of the Chaldeans, slain.

"And Darius the Median took the kingdom."

Party Stranded After Hitch-Hiking From Hornepayne

Ottawa, July 19 (CP)—Allan Lyman, 23-year-old Vancouverite, is in Ottawa today with his wife, his two-year-old son and his sister after hitch-hiking from Hornpayne in Northwestern Ontario.

The four left Vancouver by train, but during a stop at the Ontario town their baggage and railway tickets were stolen.

Trying to reach Montreal by Monday, where a job is waiting for Lyman, they started hitch-hiking. On the trip here they walked 40 miles, carrying the youngster as best they could, and rode with friendly motorists the rest of the way.

They missed a ride to Montreal last night. Now, Lyman says, they are stranded without money, clothes or means of reaching their destination.

4 MILLION

ations before Leningrad and Kiev to the north and south.

The Soviet forces admittedly were suffering and inflicting very heavy casualties in the fighting along the broad marshy valleys of the Dnieper and Dvina River valleys to the west and northwest of Moscow.

A new area of heavy engagements developed yesterday about Nevel, on the northern flank of the Smolensk wedge where the Germans evidently were trying to gain elbow room. The Soviet command said that during the night similar fighting developed in the Bobruisk area on the southern side of the wedge.

The desperate, determined character of the Russian defence was indicated by the government newspaper Izvestia which said the Red troops were resorting to trench warfare, digging individual foxholes where the soldiers waited out the storm of German shell and mortar fire and dive bombings and then turned loose sweeping machine-gun and automatic arms fire when the infantry advanced. When the Germans even then were not stopped the Red soldiers faced them with the bayonet, it was said.

Izvestia indicated these tactics were designed to slow up the German advance while the people's army, which Joseph Stalin has called into being from the rank and file of Soviet citizens, is being massed behind the front.

(A dispatch from Istanbul, Turkey, quoting an Axis diplomat recently arrived from the Soviet capital, declared a Russian army 4,000,000 strong is waiting behind Moscow, presumably ready to be thrown forward at the critical moment.)

The slowing tactics also were designed to permit the guerilla armies roaming behind the German lines to get in their maximum blows, the newspaper indicated.

Seventy-one German planes were declared to have been destroyed by Soviet aviation the last three days.

Both Russian and German forces are suffering tremendous casualties said the communique.

Polotsk, on the banks of the Dvina, is 140 miles west of Smolensk, while Nevel is 60 miles northeast or Polotsk and 120 miles northwest of Smolensk.

Drive 140-Mile Wedge.

(It appeared the Nazis had driven a wedge 140 miles deep, with the Dvina forming part of its northern side and that they now were launching a new offensive at Nevel to threaten the defenders of the northern bank with encirclement. They thus apparently hoped to widen their salient.)

Departure of 12 junior officers and clerks of the U.S. Embassy for Kazan was made known after Moscow had experienced a half-hour air raid alarm last night. No bombs were dropped.

Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and his principal assistants and attaches remained in Moscow, however.

Travellers arriving from Leningrad described that northern industrial centre as a giant fortress in which factories, stores, newspapers, theatres and trains are functioning smoothly. The travellers said the guns of the nearby Kronstadt naval fortress are booming daily, but that cannonading from the land front has not been heard in the city. The only plane that attempted to bomb the city was shot down.

Bombers Atack Convoy.

Destruction of five oil barges and two transports in a river fire when Red bombers attacked a convoy of the lower Danube was reported.

The Soviet information bureau issued a statement indicating an impending rapprochement with the Polish government in exile in England.

The statement said "The peoples of the Soviet Union extend a friendly hand to the fraternal people in the name of a final victory over the common enemy."

But "Poland can exist as an independent state only by keeping friendly relations with the Soviet Union," said the statement. It added that "the movement for the liberation of the Polish people from the German Fascist yoke recently was widened."

HIGH COMMAND

The Nazis reported reaching Smolensk through a gap in the Stalin defence line along the land bridge between the Dvina and Dnieper Rivers.

The German account said the Red Army suffered heavy losses in its unsuccessful fight to hold and regain the city—a milestone along Napoleon's 1812 march to Moscow.

After a week of assurances from the high command that all is going well along the entire eastern front, the German public is expecting that questions in the mind of the people about specific operations toward Leningrad and Kiev may be answered soon.

SHOULDER BADGES IDENTIFY AIRMEN FROM MANY LANDS

American Volunteers Wear Letters "U.S.A.;" Canadians Training in Dominion Make Up 74.1 Per Cent

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP) — Canadian airports have become the scenes of truly international gatherings, where men who never saw snow or tasted a hot-dog have come to receive training for the defeat of Hitler.

Familiar to all Canadians is the light-blue uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Air Force, and the deeper blue of the Royal Australian Air Force. But there are men of many other nations who participate in the training scheme and a start has been made on giving them identication.

The Canadian airmen bound for service in the United Kingdom, where the majority of graduates of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan will go to fight in the skies, wear on their shoulder the identification mark "Canada."

A recent order by air authorities in Canada permitted American volunteers to wear on their uniforms the letters "U.S.A." as identification. The badge is made available in the usual way on requisition of officers commanding stations, and they are granted to those who are qualified to receive them by virtue of having crossed the border.

"This special badge for United States airmen is being made available in line with the policy which permits identification of the various groups training in Canada to engage in the common fight," officials said. "Netherlanders, Belgians and Norwegians are among the 'free forces' preparing to take their part in battle at the side of Canada and the United Kingdom. They have their own identification marks and it is only right that volunteers for service with the R.C.A.F. from other countries should also have their identification symbols."

Operated by R. C. A. F.

The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is operated directly by the Royal Canadian Air Force, officials of which won fame in the First Great War. Among them is Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, V. C., who shot down 72 enemy airplanes.

Direction is given by the Canadian government, through the National Defence Department for Air, headed by Maj. C. G. Power, M.C. and a supervisory board which includes representatives of the Canadian, United Kingdom, Australian and New Zealand governments.

A recent breakdown of those in training and already across the Atlantic to aid the Battle of Britain as air crews showed:—

Canadians, 74.1 per cent; United States citizens, 10.21 per cent with the remainder Australians or New Zealanders.

Many young men — the air plan officials refuse to give figures — have come to Canada from the United Kingdom as members of the Royal Air Force to receive their training here. This does not mean that all R. A. F. training is concentrated in Canada, officials said, but relief is given the extensive training establishments maintained in the United Kingdom.

For administrative purposes of the training plan, Canada has been divided into four training commands. No. 1 training command is at Toronto, No. 2 at Winnipeg, No. 3 at Montreal and No. 4 at Regina.

Along the coasts, on the prairies and in the industrialized areas of eastern Canada, the training goes on, day and night.

"There is need to make haste, but it is our pride that our airmen receive the best training it is possible to give them, a training which is up-to-date and prepares them to meet all comers," officials say.

Belleville Foundries', Production Greatly Increased in 2 Years

Ted Willing

Expanding in two years from a foundry shop with five employees catering exclusively to the agricultural trade in casting of plow points and certain types of metal fabrication to a point where 21 molders are now employed with the firm engaged in turning out special alloy castings for essential government contracts, is the record of Belleville Foundries at 111 Station street.

Only two years ago Belleville Foundries were engaged in turning our agricultural castings and in the supply of sheet metal products for district industrial firms. Today, with the wheels of industry turning as never before in an all-out war effort, the firm has been drafted into the service of national defence and is a government-approved foundry entrusted with production contracts conforming to the exacting requirements of the R. C. A. F.

Capable Managership

No small credit of the success recently attained by this company is attributable to the capable managership of Mr. Ted. Willing, whose knowledge of metallurgy and his contacts with Toronto industrialists have been responsible for the firm acquiring valuable government contracts. "Ted", as he is popularly known, is a graduate metallurgist of University of Toronto Extension Course and, prior to his coming to Belleville two years ago to manage Belleville Foundries, had served fifteen years with the International Nickel Company.

Mr. Willing is also Major in command of the district detachment of the Ontario Voluntary Constabulary.

Add Oil Furnaces

Since Mr. Willing has assumed the managership of Belleville Foundries special pressure oil furnaces have been installed and, with the conventional furnace thus augmented, the casting of special alloy metals used in the construction of engine parts and other armament is made possible.

Under special orders from the Department of National Defence, the production of agricultural castings is now forced to take second place to more essential war contracts but almost every type of welding and metal fabrication is still carried on in their service department. Heavy metal plate work, such as the fabrication of factory smoke stacks and the production of canning factory equipment is work which the Belleville Foundry is well-equipped to handle.

Index Numbers Of Wholesale Prices

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics index number of wholesale commdoity prices, on the base 1926—100, has resumed its advance, rising from 90.3 for the week ending July 4 to 90.6 for the week ending July 11. In the corresponding week last year it was 81.7. Among the more important commodities to advance over the previous week were wheat, flour and milled products, potatoes, canned vegetables, hogs, leather, fresh meats, eggs, raw cotton cotton fabrics and raw wool while raw rubber, oats and steers declined.

Riggs Motor Sales Features Ford Cars, Tractors and Equipment

Providing for additional storage space and increased working accommodation demanded by unprecedented business expansion, Mr. Leo Riggs, sole owner of Riggs Motor Sales and local agent for Ford Motor products, has announced the incorporation into his business of the Quinte Motors building.

The new branch of Riggs Motor Sales will be in charge of Mr. Percy Dulmage as manager of the Fordson Tractor and Implement Dovision of the local Ford agency and will specialize exclusively in Ford tractors and Ferguson wheelless implements.

Light weight, plus power, plus traction in the new Fordson tractor with the Ferguson system hydraulic controlled implements makes for economical, easier farming and does away with the old idea of "weight for power" and "weight for traction." The Fordson tractor is an all-purpose' tractor; it is ruggedly built, powerful and thrifty and in combination with the exclusive wheel-less Ferguson system implements makes for mobility and versatility hitherto unheard of in a farm tractor.

Fordson Tractor and Equipment Demonstrated

In an effort to acquaint farmers with the advantages of the new Fordson tractor and Ferguson system implements, Riggs Motor Sales are staging two and three demonstrations of this equipment per week throughout Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. Farmers interested in power machinery are well advised to attend one of these demonstrations.

In addition to being agents for Ford cars, Fordson tractors and Ferguson implements, Riggs Motor Sales are distributors for genuine Ford parts and accessories, carrying the largest stock of any like agency in Cental Ontario. Their service department is capably taken care of by Roy Salisbury as Service Manager, while Mr. Frank Lawrence, formerly associated with the factory branch of Ford Motors, in Toronto, is a recent addition to their service staff.

Supertest Gasoline Distributors

Riggs Motor Sales are district distributors for Supertest gasoline and motor oils, this department being in charge of Mr. Lloyd Hicks, popular throughout the Quinte district sporting circles as a power boat racer. The gasoline distribution department as well as the mnagement of Riggs Motor Sales are wholeheartedly behind the government in their recently introduced measures to conserve gasoline for use of our armed forces.

Cost of Living Still Going Up

The Dominion-Bureau of Statistics cost of living index on the base 1935-1939—100 advanced from 109.4 on May 1 to 110.5 on June 1. This unusual increase was due very largely to the food index which mounted from 109.7 to 112.5. Sharply higher bacon prices and substantial advances for fresh pork and other meats combined with lesser advances for dairy products, eggs, vegetables and other foods to produce this rise. Other group indexes moved as follows between May 1 and June 1: fuel and light from 109.2 to 110.2, clothing from 114.5 to 114.9, home furnishings and services from 111.8 to 112.1, and miscellaneous items from 105.1 to 105.6. Rents were unchanged from 109.7.

Auto Parts Plants Mass in Ontario

Toronto, July 19.—(CP)— A significant industrial concentration is shown by the automobile parts manufacturers in the province of Ontario with 98 per cent of the Dominion production for the year 1939, according to recent Ottawa figures. Output of mechanized equipment for military purposes focuses attention on this industry which manufacturers automobile engines, differentials, transmissions, radiators, spark plugs and other vital articles.

Plants within a 50-mile radius of Toronto supply approximately 60 per cent of the total Canadian purchases of parts and materials by automobile manufacturers.

NEW NAZI DEFENCE WORKS HEAVILY BOMBED

V-FOR-VICTORY CAMPAIGN GAINS MOMENTUM

Industrial Lille Principal Target Of Daylight Raid

R.A.F. Bombers Swarm Across English Channel Following Overnight Raids On Rhineland and Rotterdam

LARGE FIRE STARTED

London, July 21 (CP)—The Royal Air Force will launch the heaviest air raids in history against Germany in the next three months, authoritative sources here said today as a stream of British bombers kept up the non-stop air offensive already under way.

British raiders which swept across the Channel in daylight today with a strong fighter escort were reported to have smashed at industrial Lille in Northern France after night squadrons had bombed the Rhineland and Rotterdam.

As the nights lengthen attacks on a scale "which will make Coventry look like a pinprick" will be aimed at German industry from the Ruhr to Prague, this source declared.

United States-built heavy bombers were expected to be the spearhead of these attacks which, it was said, will surpass in fury the period from June 16 to July 10 in which 7,000,000 pounds of bombs were poured on Cologne, Bremen and the Ruhr.

Six German planes were destroyed and three R.A.F. fighters were listed as missing in today's air assault.

Aircraft Plant Destroyed

Authorities said the continuing R.A.F. offensive against Germany had resulted in the destruction of an entire Focke-Wulf Aircraft plant at Bremen and of about a third of Germany's coastal shipping fleet.

This fleet had been expected to take a load off the railroad system, already overburdened by the Russian campaign, officials if the Ministry of Economic Warfare said. They added that the "problem of distribution in Germany, already acute, will grow worse as the effect of this loss of shipping spread".

An Air Ministry communique on the night raids said the R.A.F. attacked Cologne "in force" and started large fires in the city's industrial areas.

R.A.F. night raiders hammered Cologne "in force" an Air Ministry communique said, and its news service added that a "very brilliant fire a mile long" broke out in factories on the Rhineland's city's outskirts.

"Elsewhere, ten other fires were burning at a time," it reported, adding that R.A.F. fliers saw high explosives burst in one large industrial building which already was burning fiercely.

At Aachen, bombs exploded in factories and at Rotterdam a spume of smoke 6,000 feet high was reported from flames on the waterfront.

South coast watchers saw the early morning light reflected from the wings of fighters pouring over the Channel at an altitude of about 20,000 feet, while, in another part of the sky, vapor trails spreading south showed aircraft were speeding toward the continent at a height that rendered the planes themselves invisible from the ground.

British Patrol Raids Succeed At Tobruk

Cairo, July 21—(AP)—The British Middle East Command said today that British and Indian patrols had carried out from Tobruk a new series of raids with "remarkable" success and few losses.

"Several enemy strong points were attacked," said a communique on the sorties which took place Saturday night. "In one of them serious losses were inflicted upon the enemy before our patrol withdrew."

An Indian patrol in another area which was attacked by German and Italian units in force near the Libyan port "immediately counter-attacked with bayonets, inflicting heavy casualties and forcing the enemy to retire in disorder."

The Royal Air Force Middle East command told of destructive raids Friday and Saturday nights on Bengasi and Tripoli, Libya and Catania, Sicily and acknowledged the loss of two planes.

Fires and explosions "at the base of the cathedral mole near military headquarters, the government buildings and railway sidings" at Bengasi were observed, the R.A.F. said.

Terrorists Kill Three in Shanghai

Shanghai, July 21—(AP)—Three persons were killed and two were wounded today in an outbreak of terroristic violence in Shanghai.

Wang Teh-Chow, 35, officials of the Nanking regime's peace preservation corps, was shot and killed in the French settlement by a lone gunman who subsequently battled with police in his attempt to escape. The gunman and a policeman were wounded.

A Chinese merchant and his wife were shot and killed by unidentified assailants just outside the International Settlement.

Japanese authorities closed bridges over Soochow Creek for four hours while searching the Hongkew area for four terrorists who allegedly threatened to kill Chinese civilians employed by the Japanese navy.

DIES AFTER ACCIDENT

Gravenhurst, Ont., July 21—(CP)—Frank Oke of Huntsville died Saturday night from injuries received a short time earlier when the car he was driving left the road and overturned in a ditch. His wife, also in the car, was taken to hospital.

SUNDAY GASOLINE SALES REPORTED HEAVY IN ONTARIO

Motorists Take Advantage of Last Sunday Before Sales Restricted

SOME SPEED REDUCTION

(By the Canadian Press)

Ontario motorists took advantage of the last Sunday they may purchase gasoline and oil before the new regulations restricting Sunday sale come into effect and boosted traffic to what was said to be near record proportions in many parts of the province. Evidence of reduced speeds to conserve gasoline was reported throughout Ontario.

The greatest reduction in traffic flow was reported in the Hamilton and Niagara areas of the Queen Elizabeth Highway where a 30 per cent. decrease in travel was reported.

Reports from the Midland district, Cornwall, Stratford, Sarnia, Aurora, Newmarket, Peterborough, and Woodstock indicated that there was heavy traffic and in some instances no tendency to observe a 40-mile an hour speed. A Toronto policeman reported that traffic on one of the main arteries, Yonge St., was as heavy as any other weekend and a Provincial Policeman said traffic on the Queen Elizabeth Highway was "just as heavy as any other week-end with no reduction in speed."

Slight reductions in Sunday traffic were reported from Galt and the Owen Sound district.

While many tourists enquired about the new regulations at Sarnia, officials said there was little change in the number entering from Port Huron.

SIX SONS WEAR KING'S UNIFORM

Five in Khaki of Army and One in Blue of the Air Force

Toronto, July 21—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bambrough have six sons in uniform—five in the khaki of the army and one in the blue of the air force—and they're tickled to death about it."

The fighting Bambrough's are: Raymond, 27, overseas with the Royal Canadian Service Corps; Charles Herber, 34, and Fred, 31, who are serving together in the Irish Regiment of Canada; Alan, 18, and Wallace, 19, of the Royal Canadian Engineers; and Joe, 25, of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mr. and Mrs. Bambrough, who are living with two other sons and two daughters, have been residents of Toronto since coming here from England 31 years ago.

A nephew of Mr. Bambrough, Flt. Lt. William Alderson; 19, of the Royal Air Force, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

British, Taken Prisoners in Africa, Given Rough Treatment by Italians

By The Canadian Press

Ottawa, July 21.—(CP)—Britons luckless enough to fall into the hands of the Italians during the battle of Africa received rough treatment, according to B. E. Ammon, a chief cook in the Merchant Marine, who suffered that fate.

Now in Canada, Ammon was taken prisoner with 200 other seamen in Italian Somaliland before the Fascists capitulated to British troops. For the first three days they existed in a native village on one large biscuit and a quarter of a cup of water daily.

Then they were taken to a prison camp in Mogadacio where they were given a small tin of bully beef and three large biscuits. Ammon said the captives were driven there in a truck "packed in like sardines", and claimed the drivers released great columns of black smoke to torment them.

During the 10-hour trip, the men went without water and were forced to stand up. At Mogadacio, they were ordered into stone huts facing the sea——and any attack the British might launch.

Ammon said the stoves on which they were supposed to cook were useless and that their food generally was rice and water. There were no razors, cigarettes or soap. The heat was terrific and the camp swarmed with flies.

Ninety-four of the prisoners were ill with dysentery, some so seriously they had to be removed to a military hospital where there were neither doctors nor surgeons. The only aid given them was in the form of injections.

Ammon said the joint Italian-German officials of the camp sold their food to the natives and he was convinced they would have liked nothing better than to see them die. In January, they were moved across the desert to another camp in Merka where there was even less to eat. Bags of macaroni and rice were alive with maggots.

Their ordeal ended, Ammon said, when South African forces captured Merka.

Fierce Counter-Attacks By Red Army Indicate Nazi Drives Being Held

Berlin, July 21—(AP)—The German High Command again was in reticent vein about Russia today. Its communique gave no details of what it pictured in general terms an unceasing German pressure along the whole eastern front, particularly in the south, with Red Army units being isolated one by one and destroyed.

In much the same language as yesterday, the War Bulletin from Hitler's headquarters covered the vast battle in these two sentences: "In the southern sector of the eastern front, German, Rumanian and Hungarian troops are pursuing the defeated enemy. Operations on the entire front continue taking their successful course with the destruction of numerous encircled groups."

Claim 4,000 Prisoners

Nazi spokesmen claimed "annihilation" of a Soviet division near Mogilev on the eastern front where the Nazis are aimed at Moscow.

These spokesmen claimed more than 4,000 Russian soldiers were found dead on the battlefield and several thousand others were taken prisoner.

Despite extremely bad weather, these sources claimed stubborn Russian defences were broken in the Mogilev area, about 125 miles east of Minsk, and the division "completely destroyed."

On the southern front the Germans claimed a crossing of the Dniester River by German and Rumanian forces.

Claim Division Encircled

D.N.B., the German News Agency, claimed numerous Soviet divisions were encircled in the region north of Vitebsk, railroad town on the Dvina River.

The Nazi Air Force, it was claimed, destroyed 97 Soviet planes yesterday, 32 of them on the ground.

In operations over the Arctic Ocean from Finnish bases, the Nazi News Agency claimed German fliers sank a Soviet warship of from 3,000 to 4,000 tons, a Russian destroyer and a Soviet freighter of 2,000 tons.

Moscow, July 21 (AP)—The Red Army was reported today clinging tenaciously to its defences at the head and on the flanks of Germany's Smolensk salient toward Moscow, fiercely opposing the invaders from positions in Smolensk itself.

The high command indicated that the Germans were being held.

Private Soviet advices said that Smolensk (notwithstanding a contrary German claim) still was in Russian hands. This city lies 230 miles southwest of the Russian capital, on a good motor road.

With the war now in its fifth week and the Germans' second offensive in its second, the morning communique continued to mention the same areas where the battle has raged for days.

These are the Polotsk-Nevel sector, which would be on the northern flank of the German's Smolensk operations, the Smolensk area itself and the sector of Novograd Volynski, in the Ukraine, where Russian forces defend the path to Kiev, capital of that rich province.

Moscow had its sixth air raid alarm this morning, the alert lasting for 45 minutes, but no German planes came through.

The Russians reported shooting down 31 German planes yesterday and said:

"Throughout last night stubborn fighting continued in the Polotsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Novograd Volynski directions. On all other parts of the front nothing of significance occurred."

The Germans were reported still losing heavily along the fighting front and back of their lines where the Russians said marauding guerilla bands cut communications, waylaid troop columns and raided supply depots.

Tigtening his grip on the Soviet war machine, Premier Joseph Stalin took over the post of Defence Commissar, freeing Marshal Semeon Timoshenko from the duties of that office to concentrate his full efforts along the vital central front where he was placed last week in direct command of the troops guarding the road to Moscow.

BOLIVIANS HELD AFTER ALLEGED NAZI PUTSCH

Smashed by Police After Timely Action of President Penaranda

NAZIS EXPELLED

La Paz, Bolivia, July 21—(AP)—A number of prominent Bolivians, including former Finance Minister Victor Paz Estenssoro, were under arrest today in connection with an alleged Nazi plot which police said had been smashed by the timely action of President Enrique Penaranda, advocate of close co-operation with the United States.

Ernst Wendler, German minister, was ordered expelled from the country. President Penaranda said he had documentary proof that the minister had attempted to meddle in Bolivia's domestic affairs.

Estenssoro, a member of the Chamber of Deputies and Cabinet member until June 20 when he resigned in a disagreement over the exchange rate of the peso and dollar, was described by police as head of "the Nationalist revolutionary movement." That organization was dissolved automatically with proclamation of a state of siege.

The country still was under a state of siege, but the capital and provinces were reported quiet. Defence Minister Gen. Miguel Candia arrived at Cochabamba, a farm centre where a large German settlement is situated, to lead further investigations there.

Four newspapers, two of which were mentioned in Washington's Axis black list, were suspended by the government, and three newspapermen were among those arrested.

Commenting on the action against Wendler, the President declared in an interview that the government "could not adopt such serious measures without being fully convinced that its attitude was based on justice."

SIXTEEN JAPANESE TRANSPORT SHIPS LEAVE CANTON R.

Tension Grows in Far East Since Germany and Russia Went to War

BOUND TO 3 POWERS

Hong Kong, July 21—(CP)—A European observer reported today that a fleet of 15 Japanese military transport vessels left the mouth of the Canton River, South China, yesterday for an unknown destination.

Tension has grown in the Far East since June 22 when Germany and Russia went to war. Germany and Japan are bound in Axis military pact while Russia and Japan have a Neutrality Pact.

Last week's reorganization of the Japanese Cabinet, while offering no substantial hint as to future Japanese moves, had been preceded by a Japanese campaign against French Indo-China.

A move on Indo-China probably would permit Japan to keep intact her ties with both Russia and the Axis. At the induction of the third Konoye Government at Tokyo it was officially indicated that preservation of the ties would be the aim of Japanese policy.

At least one point of possible major embarkation from Japan itself, that is Kobe, now is under a 10-day ban to foreigners, and the administration of French Indo-China only Saturday abandoned its plan of making a site near Saigon its seat for the summer and returned to Hanoi.

In Shanghai, clearing house of all sorts of rumors on Japan's intentions, opinion has been divided on whether the Japanese planned a southward move or an attack on Siberia.

There has been talk in Tokyo of restricting the sea approaches to Vladivostok to curtail any United States aid to Russia.

PRIME MINISTER REVISES CABINET FOR THIRD TIME

Alfred Duff Cooper Goes to Near East Mission, B. Bracken Takes His Place

OTHER CHANGES

BY HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 21.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill revised his Cabinet today for the third time since May 2, naming Alfred Duff Cooper special war co-ordinator in the Far East and putting Brendan Bracken, his parliamentary private secretary, in Mr. Cooper's place as Minister of Information.

Mr. Bracken, a huge man with red hair, is the fourth Minister of Information to hold office since this war started. He inherits a post which often has been called the "graveyard of ministerial reputations", because its occupants have been the targets of such sharp criticism.

The exact nature of Mr. Cooper's new assignment was not disclosed, but it was understood his duties would be similar to those of Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, government co-ordinator in the Middle East.

Flying Training School at Brandon Officially Opened

Brandon, Man., July 21—(CP)—Thousands of citizens attended official opening of No. 12 Service Flying Training School of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan here Saturday.

Premier Bracken of Manitoba told students at the school in a brief address that they will soon be overseas "where you will meet your cousins in England who have given a new meaning to the words 'courage and steadfastness'."

"I hope that in going away you young airmen will fully realize you are playing your part in one of the greatest crisis civilization has faced," he added.

10 MEET VIOLENT DEATHS OVER WEEKEND

Montreal, July 21—(CP)—Ten persons met violent death in Quebec Province during the weekend, four of them by drowning and the others as a result of automobile accidents. All but three of the fatalities occurred in the Montreal metropolitan area.

The drownings took three teenaged boys and a middle-aged man. William Caddick, 53, a farm laborer of Lakefield, near Montreal, was drowned in a small lake while taking an early morning dip yesterday.

Australian Flier Awarded the V. C. For Daring Attack on Nazi Objectives

London, July 21 (CP Cable)—The Victoria Cross was conferred today on Acting Wing Cmdr. Hugh Idwal Edwards, D.F.C., an Australian serving with the Royal Air Force bomber command.

The citation said Edwards, although handicapped by physical disability as a result of a flying accident, "repeatedly displayed gallantry of the highest order in pressing home bombing attacks from very low heights against strongly defended objectives."

Only July 4 he led an important attack on Bremen, one of the most heavily defended towns in Germany. The attack had to be made in daylight and there were no clouds to afford concealment during the approach to the German coast. Several enemy ships were sighted and Edwards knew his aircraft would be reported and that the defences would be in a state of readiness.

"Undaunted by this misfortune, he brought his formation 50 miles overland to the target, flying at a height of little more than 50 feet, passing over high tension cables and carrying away telegraph wire, and finally passed through formidable balloon barrage," the citation continued.

"On reaching Bremen he was met with a hail of fire, all his aircraft being hit and four of them being destroyed. Nevertheless he made a most successful attack and then with the greatest skill and coolness withdrew the surviving aircraft without further loss.

"Throughout the execution of this operation, which he had planned personally with full knowledge of the risks entailed, Edwards displayed the highest possible standard of gallantry and determination."

Edwards, 28, joined the Royal Australian Air Force in 1936 and a little later transferred to the R.A.F. as a pilot officer. He was promoted to Flying Officer in 1938, to Flight Lieutenant last year, then to squadron leader, and this year to Acting Wing Commander. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross this month as a result of a sweep which he led against enemy shipping off The Netherlands coast.

Britain is Winning Propaganda Battle Against Germans

V-Drive Series of Experiments to Test Peoples of Occupied Countries to Accept London Leadership

WAIT PATIENTLY

London, July 21—(CP)—A British Broadcasting Corporation executive asserted today the V-for-Victory campaign to raise an underground army against Gedmany was the "first pitched propaganda battle of the war" and Britain apparently is winning it.

The BBC executive, European news editor N. F. Newsome, said the V drive was one of a series of experiments to test the readiness of peoples of occupied countries to accept leadership from experiments from London.

"There will be other thinks to worry the Germans," added.

Mr. Newsome said there would be other leadership experiments "until one day we feel able to give the word to the underground army in Europe to go over the top for us in the final offensive."

A "V" army of millions is mobilizing throughout German-conquered nations in a whistling, tapping, sign-painting campaign aimed now at Nazi nerves.

Newsome said the best indications of how the victory-V was catching on came from the Germans themselves in a "feeble counter-attack" by attempting to embrace the V as a symbol for the old German word Viktoria."

The British authorities, he added are turning this against the Nazi propagandists by broadcasting word that, since the German Government approves of the chalking up of V-signs, nobody need hesitate about joining the campaign.

Germans Broadcast

(The German radio broadcast today a 500-word account of how V-signs had appeared throughout occupied territories attributing this to "the tremendous Viktoria campaign."

("The German motto," it said, "Viktoria for Europe has taken Holland, Belgium, Norway, the Protectorate (Czecho - Slovakia), the Government General (Poland) and France by storm."

(In the various territories, it cited the use of V on official cars, tairns, street cars, banners, pamphlets.

The proper German word for victory is not "Viktoria," but "Sieg."

VAUDEVILLE STAR DIES IN NEW YORK

Lew Fields, 74, Succumbs to Pneumonia — Partner of Joe Weber

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 21—(AP)—Lew Fields, who with his boyhood chum, Joe Weber, travelled the North American vaudeville circuits as a comedian for more than 60 years, died today of pneumonia.

Fields, who was 74, became ill Thursday, sank rapidly and was placed under an oxygen tent today in a futile attempt to save his life. His widow, Rose, children and his comedian partner, Weber, were at the bedside.

"It's like losing my right arm," said Weber. "He's been my whole life. We've grown up together. He was everything to me."

Fields was born Lewis Maurice Fields. He and Weber began their famous comedy routine in New York in 1876 when they were little boys. Fields was only nine.

Their first appearances together were in juvenile Dutch sketches at small variety theatres. In 1885, they formed their own company.

Gay Spot on Broadway

In 1896, they became proprietors of the famous Weber and Fields Music Hall in New York which, for years, was one of the gay spots of Broadway.

Their specialty was satires on various Broadway hits.

In 1904, Weber and Fields broke up their partnership. Eight years later, however, they were back together again on Broadway.

Some of the biggest hits during the late '20s included "Hit the Deck," "A Connecticut Yankee," "Present Arms' and "Hello Daddy."

Their last appearance together in makeup was in the motion picture 'Life of Lillian Russell' a year ago.

One of their favorite stunts was to stand on their heads while reparteeing.

Fields was born Jan. 1, 1867. His son, Lew Fields, Jr., is a scenarist and has written several plays. A daughter, Dorothy, wrote the lyrics for a number of songs and in 1936 she won the Academy Award for the best lyrics, for "The Way You Look Tonight."

CARRIED 50 FEET AFTER BEING HIT

Stepping in front of a speeding motor car at Milltown on Saturday afternoon, 22-year-old Clifford Hill of Shannonville, narrowly escaped death when the car carried Hill some 50 feet before he fell off, as the vehicle's speed was retarded. Hill was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where he was found to be suffering from multiple head and facial lacerations, but following medical treatment was released and returned to his home.

The motor car was driven by Harvey Jarrett of Sudbury and he assured Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch that Hill had stepped directly into the path of his motor car at Milltown, giving the driver no opportunity to avoid hitting the pedestrian. The force of the impact lifted Hill's body from the roadway and carried him 50 feet down the highway.

Approximately seventy-five people are at present engaged in harvesting the crop, and this number is expected to be augmented when the season reaches its peak. JUVENILES STEAL TRENTON TRUCK

Ditched Near Western Limits of Belleville but Youths Captured

Stealing a truck in Trenton and later attempting to break and enter a service station on the town's eastern limits, six teen-aged Belleville boys gave police of the district a hectic highway chase early Monday morning during which they ditched the stolen truck at the western limits of Belleville.

Following a chase in the neighborhood of the City Filtration plant, Constables Wright and Thomson finally apprehended one of the lads running along the C.P.R. right-of-way west of Belleville. Later the other five lad's names were obtained and the matter turned over to the Trenton police.

The first intimation that trouble was brewing came when the sextette attempted to break and enter Moore's service station east of Trenton to obtain gasoline to put in the truck the boys had stolen in Trenton. Mr. Moore heard the disturbance, but before he could arise and catch the would-be-robbers, they drove away. Trenton police notified Belleville and Provincial Police authorities to be on the look-out for the stolen truck. On arriving at the city limits here, however, the lads ditched the truck and ran southerly towards the bay upon seeing Constables Wright and Thomson, who had hastened to the city limits to halt the truck thieves. In ditching the truck the lads also were instrumental in forcing a west bound motor car into the ditch, but no damage resulted from this incident.

The lads will be arraigned in Trenton Juvenile Court later in the week.

NAZIS HEAPED INDIGNITY ON CZECH CLERGY

Exiled Government in Official Book Claims German Hatred Shown Catholics and Protestants Alike.

BY HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 21 — (CP) — German overlords of Bohemia and Moravia, once part of the independent Czechoslovakia, vented on Catholics and Protestants alike their hatred, according to evidence presented in the official publication "Two Years of German Oppression in Czechoslovakia".

The Nazis herded priests into concentration camps, confiscated convent property, censored songs and sermons, banned pilgrimages to shrines and closed theological faculties "so that there might in future be no young generation of Czech priests".

Soon after the German invasion in March, 1939 "hundreds of priests" were questioned and tortured but the ill-treatment "was nothing in comparison with the veritable wave of persecution which began after the declaration of war. The Gestapo arrested 487 Catholic priests in Bohemia and Moravia Sept. 1, 1939 and transported them to prison.

Among those arrested were high ecclesiastical dignitaries, including Mgr. Stasek at Prague, who was kept in prison until mid-February, 1940 when he was transferred to the notorious German concentration camp at Dachau "where although a sick man he was employed in road-building work".

Vicar-General Marinu, who died January 9, 1940 "from the consequences of his imprisonment" told the authors that priests arrested at Olomuc, seat of the bishopric of Moravia, were taken to a disused metal factory and each morning German storm troopers, crying insults, made them run around the courtyard half an hour.

Did Manual Labor

From different sources the book's authors learned that priests taken to concentration camps were not allowed to wear their religious habit or say prayers and had to undertake manual labor.

The book said that the Nazis suspected the Protestant as well as Catholic faith was one of the moral forces which would enable Czechoslovakia to resist German oppression but the Germans "hated" the Protestants because they reminded the Czechs of the victories over the Germans in the Hussite time, the first great religious reform in Europe.

The case was cited of an unidentified Protestant clergyman who criticized the Germans in private conversation, was denounced and arrested by the Gestapo. A few days later his wife received his clothes "and was told he had a stroke at the trial".

Position of the Czechoslovak Church was described as the most difficult of all Protestant churches because of its name and democratic constitution. For a year negotiations went on for a change of name but in the end the Germans by a decree of April 9, 1940, simply changed the name to Czechomoravian, the Volksdeutsche Zeitung reported.

Conciliation Board Finds Wage Rate Fair, Reasonable

Ottawa, July 21—(CP)—Prevailing wage rates at Hayes Steel Products Ltd., Merritton, Ont., are "fair and reasonable" said a Board of Conciliation in a majority report submitted to Labor Minister McLarty and made public yesterday.

The Board said wage rates at the plant exceed the highest level reached between Jan. 1, 1926, and Dec. 16, 1940, and that earnings of piece workers and the hourly rates of day workers in the various occupation groups "compare favorably" with those at McKinnon Industries Ltd., of St. Catharines, Ont., a company engaged in turning out similar products.

The majority report said individual grievances have arisen in the Hayes organization which ought to have been adjusted by grievance procedure provided in the agreement between the company and its employees. It recommended that "these grievances, which have to do mainly with individual rates that are out of proper alignment within the company's wage structure, be at once referred to such grievance procedure."

Looking Back on Canada

with FRED WILLIAMS

On This Date

Sixty years ago today (July 21, 1881) the Dominion Government and officials of the Indian department were relieved at the news that Sitting Bull and his band had at last left Canada and returned to the United States. For over four years these Sioux from Montana had been a problem. They had come to Canada as to a "city of refuge" March 6, 1877, after the battle of Big Horn in which General Custer and a large force of cavalry were ambushed and killed in what is known to history as the "Custer massacre." The Indians came peacefully seeking the shelter of the British flag which all Indians of the plains revered. They behaved well. After long negotiations between Ottawa and Washington, they went back to Montana, surrendered to the United States and were put back on their reservation. The incident was of importance to Canada since it proved the wisdom of having a force like the North West Mounted to keep the peace. Sitting Bull left in our annals thanks for his treatment by the Canadian governments, first under the Liberal David Laird and finally under Tory John A. Macdonald. And when in 1884 Louis Riel and Gabriel Dumont tried to induce the Sioux of Montana to "come over and help your brothers in Saskatchewan," Sitting Bull put his foot down and would have no "foreign enlistments" by his braves, young or old. Thus he repaid his debt to Canada.

C.J. "Chuck" Kearns Drowns in Rice Lake

Peterborough, July 21—(Special)—Charles J. (Chuck) Kearns, 28, one of this city's best known athletes was drowned Sunday afternoon in Rice Lake when he fell into the water from a launch. He was a member of a party of about twenty Peterborough sportsmen who hired a launch for a picnic on the lake, and was sitting on a chair on the top deck when he unthinkingly leaned back. He lost his balance and, with the chair, toppled into the water.

Efforts to rescue him failed, although Rowman Chute, who dove in after him, managed to grab and hold his arm for a short time, but was forced to let go before other would-be rescuers arrived. His body had not been recovered up to a late hour last nigt.

Kearns, who came to this city from Toronto, about six years ago, played senior rugby and baseball for Peterborough and was also a clever softball player. In Toronto he played baseball in the Western City league and rugby with Argonaut juniors.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Mary McCallum of this city, and his parents in Toronto.

"Chuck" Kearns is well known in Belleville, where he played centre field for the Petes in the C.O.B.L. and also softball with a Peterborough squad.

INFLICT SERIOUS CASUALTIES

Cairo, July 21 (AP)—The British and Imperial forces at Tobruk made three simultaneous raids on the Axis forces yesterday, inflicting serious casualties, a Middle East general headquarters communique said today.

The raids were so successful, the official announcement said, that "for nearly three hours the enemy put down an extensive artillery barrage."

Traffic Accidents Cause Two Deaths

Toronto, July 21—(CP) — Two persons died early today as a result of traffic accidents in Toronto during the heavy rain storm last night. Five were injured.

Ninety-three-year-old Miss Mary Burns died in hospital. She was confused by the heavy traffic while crossing the street, police said and came into collision with an eastbound street car.

Albert Rouse, 60, of the Red Cross Soldiers' Hostel, was hit by a car and died in hospital. Police said he was crossing the street during a torrential downpour, when struck by an automobile which did not stop. Rouse suffered a fractured skull.

A New York state man has invented a jig for holding small automobile parts in any desired position for the convenience of repair men.

WHAT WE GET FOR OUR TAXES

Every so often we hear complaints from city residents about the taxes they have to pay but we think that most of the complainers lose sight of the fact of the many benefits they obtain.

We will assume that a modest tax bill of $75 has to be paid. This would be on an assessment of approximately $2,000. In return for this is received fire protection by a competent fire department which is on duty twenty-four hours of the day, police protection without which we would be at the mercy of the criminal element of the city. He has the benefit of a sewage disposal system plus a garbage collection twice a week which are no small things in themselves. There are paved streets which are cleared of snow in the winter, also cement sidewalks in every section of the city which more of our citizens could use more often with resulting benefits to their health. There are several city parks, though few of our citizens make use of them regularly. There is a splendid library filled with thousands of books to suit everyone's taste in reading. One of the greatest benefits is the public and secondary school systems whereby children can obtain an education that prepares them for entrance to university or, barring that, to take their place in the world with far greater chances of making a success of life than if they had not had that primary preparation.

While water is not supplied free with our taxes, yet the cost of an almost unlimited supply of water supplied by a system furnished by taxes, is very little in comparison with the advantages of having a constant supply on hand at all times.

When it is seen that none but the very wealthy could provide ALL of the services as mentioned above, it will be realized that the average citizen has not so much to grumble about when he receives his tax bill. He is getting good returns for his money.

A BAD EXAMPLE

Quite frequently we see parents literally dragging small children across Front St. Not always at the intersection, but any place they wish to cross. Many of them display a complete disregard of danger to themselves and the children with the result that motorists often have to apply brakes desperately in an effort to avoid a fatality. The same happens at Bridge and Front intersection when pedestrians cross against the red light.

If children are to be taught any respect for safety on the streets then their parents should be the ones to set the good example. If fathers and mothers would but stop a moment to consider their actions may be laying the groundwork for the death of little ones, we believe they would obey traffic regulations. Children will often follow the example set by their parents and, when unattended, will also display the same contempt for traffic signals and regulations as do their parents. It is the responsibility of the parents to teach their children the safe and the proper manner to cross streets. They may be spared bitter regret if they do.

MISS THOMPSON GOES TO EUROPE

The departure of Miss Dorothy Thompson for Europe where she intends writing of conditions in Britain, and, if possible, to visit Berne, Switzerland, and Moscow, shows that this great woman is taking great risks so that she might give to the world her interpretation of events.

When she visits Switzerland which is covered with Nazi agents she is taking more than ordinary risks for there are few more persons so well hated by the Nazi powers as this great woman. Probably more than any other person she has been responsible for a big change in sentiment among Americans. She has brought home to them in no uncertain language the dark future the United States would face if Britain were overwhelmed. Without her vibrant leadership the awakening across the line would have been delayed many months.

Her articles will continue to be featured in this paper three times a week and we look forward, with keen anticipation, her columns from the war zone.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

(Contributed by F.F.)

"I'm a red! I don't care who knows it," declared Smith, bringing his closed fist down on the table of a local restaurant with a crash that startled his companions, Jones and Brown, almost as much as the words he had just uttered.

"Communist, eh?" said Brown accusingly.

"And what of it? You're just a self-satisfied blankety-blank Imperialist. And I'm asking you. How many flags are to be seen in Belleville today? I've only noticed one and it isn't in such good shape. You flag-wavers live in sticky sentiment. Sure, I'm a red!"

Turning to Jones the speaker continued with his retort: "And you! You're just a chump for party politics. So don't sit there looking wide-eyed at me. I tell you this is the people's war. If you don't believe me, look at Collier's. Read their article, Workingman's War by Frank Gervasi. If you still aren't convinced get a copy of Liberty and read their editorial by Joseph Lister Rutledge. There's a chunk of writing.

"What does Rutledge say?" interrupted Jones.

"He says that while men retain a capacity for moral indigestion no craft can delude them for long. And that the day surely comes when these men will make their will prevail," replied Smith. "And I tell you the men he refers to are the people—you and you and me," he added with shining eyes and impassioned voice.

"Our democratic way of life is undoubtedly threatened by Hitler. But it would be equally threatened by Communism too," interjected Jones.

"Besides, you're not a red. You're just an awakened Imperialist," smiled Brown.

"Well, anyway, I'm a rebel. And I'm telling both of you that our individual freedom is jeopardized not only from without, but also from a minority group within who even at this minute are inclined to live under the dangerous illusion that the great mass of democratic peoples is fighting this war for them and their self-given right of exploiting both the winners and the losers when it is all over. There is a remote possibility that this minority group may not run true to form but it will not be because of conscience trouble," Smith expostulated.

"No. It will be because somewhere in the midst of the pain and sacrifice, the blood and sweat of this great hour a child is being born. A child that hitherto has only been conceived as an unattainable political ideal. I would call the child Freedom, and its father shall be Democracy. And if you want to go into details, its mother is England," said Brown.

"Yes, and that child will live, because it has a spiritual quality that no instruments of war can destroy. It is an inner fire in the hearts of free men everywhere," whispered Jones in a voice that was touched by an unexpected reverence.

"And Winston Churchill is a great leader because he reflects that fire. He has the faculty of putting into words what the people feel in their hearts. And his words become actions and these actions shall one day confront totalitarian leaders as realities that will meet and defeat anything they can produce, because of that little extra edge we have, that spiritual inner fire that goes on burning even after men have fallen in the field of battle," declared Jones.

"But it seems to me somehow that it would be a good thing if Hitler bombed Canada," said Brown.

"Canada?" inquired Smith.

"Yes, Canada. Frankly, I don't believe the people of this country are fully aware just how vital the outcome of this war is to each one of us. We're much too complacent about the whole thing. Our general attitude is to give a small amount to the various war services and buy a few war savings stamps and let it go at that. The idea of a personal issue hasn't been driven home yet," replied Brown.

"We're none too satisfied with the wages they're paying at our factory, but do you know I just realized that when the boss asked in a polite note to work if possible on Friday to rush through some orders for some very essential war materials only six of our men worked. And Hitler doesn't stop for holidays. Say, I'm going to ask some of the boys if perhaps we hadn't better pull together and not let our concern over a wage scale cost the lives of some of our brothers overseas," said Jones.

Belleville Lions invaded Massassaga Park yesterday afternoon and the cubs sure did have a whale of a time. Russ Wotten and Ray Zufelt as fielders let nothing to be desired. Doc O'Callaghan's marvellous running one-handed catch was the feature of the game and the way the Doc. reached up to the sky and drew the pill down was a sight to behold. The ball players unanimously voted that Ernie Finkle and Doc Truaisch are the two worst umpires in any league, but that did not bother Ernie and Doc any as they successfully defied the lightning bolts of cub indignation levelled at them and calmly gave their decisions, good, bad and indifferent or as Steve License said, ritten, rotten and not otherwise. Dinner was served at the hotel and the bunch of hungry lions sure voted it a fine spread. The outing was so successful that a committee was formed to arrange for another outing in the near future.

Mr. Lindbergh's Honor

New York, July 21.—I did not hear Mr. Ickes's Bastille Day address. But I read in the press from which anyone could infer the accusation that Mr. Lindbergh was an agent of a foreign Government. Mr. Ickes certainly implied that Mr. Lindbergh was a Nazi asset in the United States. And Mr. Lindbergh is a Nazi asset. The Nazis regard him as an asset. No one has ever suggested that he is a Nazi agent in the technical sense of that term. If Mr. Ickes thought he were, he would presumably advise the Government to proceed against him under the law, which compels agents for foreign governments to register as such, and were that the case the Government would certainly do its own investigation in its own way and at its own time. Mr. Lindbergh is fighting a case before one has been made.

Mr. Ickes's analysis of Lindbergh's attitude was based on Mr. Lindbergh's own speeches.

And it is perfectly true that Mr. Lindbergh is handing out the Nazi party line in this country. That can be proved by comparing Mr. Lindbergh's speeches with the German short-wave broadcasting or with the official German propaganda.

But whether Mr. Lindbergh is cueing the Nazis or the Nazis are cueing Mr. Lindbergh isn't sure. Mr. Lindbergh has a right to advocate his reasoning. It is an unpopular line of reasoning and one which many people consider dangerous to the best interests of the United States. But Mr. Lindbergh and associates pride themselves on being unpopular! They cannot have it both ways. And therefore they must expect to be vigorously attacked and their line of reasoning compared with that of the Nazis, picked to pieces, and exposed.

Participating in public life and taking a highly controversial view on issues of life and death for the nation are not like flying the Atlantic solo. Mr. Lindbergh having had, until his emergence as a public political figure, nothing but adulation, applause and sympathy, seems to think those his birthright. Instead of answering point for point the attacks against him; instead of explaining his position with complete clarity, he draws himself to his full height, assumes an expression of wounded honor and again makes the headlines all over the place by asking the President to take care of him.

If the President were to probe all the attacks that are made on private United States citizens by their opponents in the controversy about the war, there would be no time for anything else.

Everyone who supports the President's foreign policy is branded by the America First Committee as a British agent. But no one of them has asked for a congressional investigation to defend his honor.

The President might probe the charges which the America First Committee has been making against his own Cabinet members, Mr. Ickes or Mr. Morgenthau. Or how about the President probing the attacks which Mr. Lindbergh and associates have made upon the incompetency and the motives of the President himself!

Mr. Lindbergh is wholly to blame for the position in which he is. Furthermore, had anyone other than he taken the line has taken, he would have been subject to more virulent attacks much earlier. Mr. Lindbergh emerged into politics as a sacrosanct individual. He was a popular idol, a national hero. Even if people thought he was wrong, they had an inhibition against saying so.

From the time that he flew the Atlantic, Mr. Lindbergh has not led a normal life in relation to the public. He has been able to pursue his own way, exactly as he pleased.

To Mr. Lindbergh vigorous and heated opposition is abnormal, and the President ought to do something about it. It ought to be stopped.

The leading figures among the isolationists, particularly Mr. Lindbergh, Senator Wheeler and Norman Thomas, have all assumed the role of noble martyrs. They are being "smeared." They are not understood. Meanwhile, they themselves heap the most virulent abuse and vilification upon those who are absolutely convinced that a Hitler victory in Europe will be the worst catastrophe America has ever suffered.

These men denounce "paid columnists," the clear implication being that they are bribed columnists. We who are thus denounced are paid columnists in exactly the sense that Senator Wheeler is a paid senator.

Those who cannot endure vigorous attacks on their opinions should retire from public controversy.

Meanwhile, Mr. Lindbergh has been, and still is, advocating a complete reorientation of American foreign policy in the midst of the worst world crisis in our history. The reorientation would not only mean the immediate collapse of the Government of Great Britain, but it would mean chaos inside the United States.

That Mr. Lindbergh, whose political experience is limited, may not realize this, is a matter of indifference to his critics, who are not interested in him personally, but wholly impersonally.

Use of Gastroscope to See Lining of Stomach Not Like an Operation

As medical students we studied the diseases of the stomach and tried to find out the differences in the symptoms of cancer of the stomach, and inflammation of the lining of the stomach—gastritis. This was done by studying kind of pain present, when the pain occurred in regard to food eaten, effect of food on pain, effect of alkaline preparations on pain, what the "test meal" looked like when removed from stomach and the presence, the amount, or the abscence of hydrochloric acid. These "differences" made a favorite question for medical school and state examination boards.

Then came the Xrays and much of the previous study became unnecessary as the outline of the stomach walls, any depressions or outgrowth on its walls became visible.

Today it is possible to actually see about four-fifths of the inside of the stomach. Test meals and Xrays are still used, but by means of the gastroscope many former difficulties in getting the correct idea of stomach walls have been overcome.

As "stomach trouble" is so common it might prevent any fear of the instrument if we knew how it is used regularly in hospitals.

Dr. John Tilden Howard, Johns Hopkins Hospital, in Medical Clinics of North America, states that the patient is first examined as to his symptoms, Xrays (fluroscope) used to show passage is clear, and quieting drug given. Artificial teeth are removed and back of throat sprayed with an anaesthetic a couple of times. Between the sprayings the physicians talk to the patient about other matters than the examination so as to lessen the patient's fears. "For the same reason, an operating room is not used and as a rule the physicians do not wear a gown, mask or gloves". This means that the use of the gastroscope does not look like an operation.

The gastroscope is passed gently down, a little air is inserted to partially blow up the stomach so walls can be seen. The physician looks down the tube and the lining of the stomach is clearly seen—ulcers, growths, foreign bodies, inflammation of the lining of the stomach.

SUMMER COTTAGE DUTIES

Again I ask for strength and grace
My summer cottage tasks to face;

To open windows when it's warm
And run to close them 'gainst the storm.

To go for ice and clean the fish
And gratify each fondest wish;

For guests provide the bathing suits
The rods and reels and wading boots;

The ivy poison antidote,
The arms and back to row the boat.

Day clerk and night clerk, I shall see
Rest comes to every one but me.

As butler on the guests I'll wait,
Nor smile to see them clean the plate.

As bus boy I shall carry out
Wet bathing suits they leave about.

Since "Always room for just one more!"
I'll often sleep upon the floor

And be (how Nellie loves to boast!)
To one and all the perfect host.

You'd Be Surprised!

PARACHUTES

The U. S. War Department classifies a parachute soldier as an infantryman transported to the scene of action by means of aircraft.

An infantryman trained to ride and jump from aircraft does not become a true aviator any more than an infantryman transported on a naval vessel becomes a seaman.

The word "parachute" is from two French words, "para," that which shields or protects from, and "chute," a fall.

Essentially a parachute is a device to protect one from a fall from a height.

In fact, the first parachute in the modern sense of the term was devised in 1783 by a Frenchman named Sebastian Lenormand to rescue persons trapped by fire on the roofs of high buildings.

The first successful parachute descent from a great height was made in 1797 by another Frenchman named Jacques Garnerin, who dropped 3,000 feet from a balloon.

Not until 1940, long after both the Germans and Russians had used parachute troops in actual combat, did the United States army form its first parachute battalion.

A year later Congress voted a bonus to all officers and enlisted men serving in the American battalions of parachute troops.

The U. S. Forest Service uses parachute jumpers as fire control crews for inaccessible areas in mountainous forest districts.

For many years a noted Russian doctor named Poll has used a parachute to reach patients in remote parts of the Soviet Union.

For nearly 150 years after its invention the parachute in connection with balloons and aircraft was used only for exhibiting purposes, for practice or for escape from a disabled aircraft.

In 1922 three men at Dayton Ohio, formed the Caterpillar Club, an imaginary organization which fliers are said to join when they save their lives by jumping from disabled aircraft with parachutes.

The Caterpillar Club consisted of no more than a roster of the names of those who had saved their lives by this means.

Silk and rubber are the essential materials entering into the construction of a good parachute.

The federal government is now experimenting with nylon and other synthetic fibres to take the place of silk parachute construction.

Mountain View Station, RCAF, Officially Opened and Gunners, Officers Receive Certificates

Air Commodore G. E. Brookes Officiates at Impressive, Yet Simple, Ceremony

CIVILIANS INVITED

On the wind-swept plateau that is the Mountain View Station of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the famous double blue ensign of the air service broke out in the breeze for the first time on Saturday afternoon.

Wtih the simple words, "I declare this station officially open," Air Commodore G. E. Brookes, officer commanding No. 1 Training Command, R.C.A.F. pulled the halyard that sent the famous colors whipping in the near gale-like wind that swept the station during the opening ceremonies.

In the shadow of the hangars, with trim training planes drawn up "on the line," colorful atmosphere to a colorful ceremony, a group of clear-eyed, eager young Canadians received their "air-gunners" wings from the officer commanding the district. Later a group of commissioned officers received certificates emblematic of graduation from the armament officers' course.

The presentation was coincidental with the formal opening of the station, and the graduation of the two classes of No. 13 Armament Officers' Course and 6 Bombing and Gunnery School No. 10 course was the first to take place in the new air base.

Marched to Table

Pride gleaming in their eyes, straight as the proverbial ramrod, Canada's latest contribution to the air service through the modium of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, marched to the presentation table in the parade square of the station and received not only the coveted air-gunner's wing, but their sergeant's chevrons. Air Commodore Brookes, who pinned the wing on the breast of the young gunners, shook hands with each one and congratulated the fledgeling sergeants as they received the decoration.

Conspicuous among the flying and pilot officers who received their certificates of graduation from the armament course was a commander in the Royal Norwegian Navy. His name must be withheld for obvious reasons.

Cross Section of Canada

The classes represented a cross-section of Canada's fighting young manhood. From the wind-lashed coasts of the Maritimes, and the summery shore-lines of British Columbia, the sun-drenched prairies and even as far as proud Boston, they came, pride of achievement glowing in their young eyes and a flame of enthusiasm that brooked no good for any enemy fighter or bomber who comes within the sights of their guns. Later when they marched past the saluting base, there was no mistaking the pride that was clearly evident in the swinging arms, the tempo of their marching feet, and the gleam of determination and eagerness in clear young eyes that turned smartly to the right as they swung past the base where the officer taking the salute stood with Group Captain F. G. Wait, officer commanding the station, and his staff.

Colorful Yet Simple

The presentation and opening ceremonies were as colorful as they were simple. Fifteen hundred airmen standing stiffly at attention, were drawn up in the traditional British square. In the background the lively martial rhythms of the Royal Canadian Air Force Band of the Trenton Station added a musical setting.

Thousands of civilian spectators in which were included military, civil, municipal and political dignitaries witnessed the ceremonies from roped-off enclosures. The colorful dresses of the lady guests and the imposing khaki of military visitors added a further touch of color to the scene. Overhead an occasional plane roared out a congratulatory crescendo of racing engines.

In a brief address Air Commodore Brookes congratulated the airmen on the completion of their courses. "It has been a long tedious grind," he said, "and I compliment you on the fine showing you have made"

Addressing the spectators, the Air Commodore stated that wonderful progress had been made during the past five or six weeks in the construction of the station. "Had the opening occurred then," he said, "you would not have enjoyed it half so much"

Paid Tribute to Contractors

He paid special tribute to the engineers and contractors under whose supervision all construction has been completed. "All have cooperated 100 per cent." he said, "in the construction of buildings and preparation of the grounds." Work had been completed months ahead of time, he added.

The Air Commodore made public acknowledgment of the fine work done by Commanding Officer Group Captain Wait and his staff, as well as the men under his command. "The station is comprised of two units, the Armament School, which is the backbone of the Force, and the Bombing and Gunnery School. Both are doing a magnificent work in preparing our airmen under the Commonwealth Training Plan."

"I am particularly pleased to declare this station officially open to take its place in the training plan," he concluded.

A dedicatory prayer was offered by Flight Lieut. the Rev. Gordon Porter, chaplain of the station.

Hosts to Guests

Following the ceremonies, with the graduating classes in the van, the station personnel marched past the saluting base to the accompaniment of applause and cheers by the assembled spectators.

Immediately afterwards, the officer commanding, his staff and the personnel of the station were hosts to their guests. The officers' mess, the sergeant mess and hangars set aside for the airmen and their visitors, were scenes of social amenities where refreshments were served.

One of the most popular places was a large hangar where the Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force under the direction of Corporal Hancock, regaled hundreds of civilian visitors and their airmen host with sprightly melodies while tea, lemonade, sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served. During this period many people took advantage of the invitation of the staff to visit hangars, workshops, training areas and other places of interest.

Officers of Station

The opening ceremonies were of more than passing interest to the popular commanding officer of the station, Group Captain F. G. Wait. Member of a famous air force family, he has two brothers with the service, Group Captain G. C. Wait, officer commanding the Jarvis Air Station and Flying Officer P. H. Wait. Coincidentally Group Captain G. C. Wait, Jarvis Station C.O., had a presentation ceremony at his command on Saturday. Further coincidence was the promotion of the Station Adjutant Flight Lieutenant A. I. Jarvis, to the rank of Squadron Leader. Officers of the station are: Staff Officers, Headquarters—GC. F. G. Wait, Commanding Officer; SL. W. Sutherland, Administrative Officer; SL. A. I. Jarvis, Station Adjutant; FL. E. C. L. Dawson, Equipment Officer; FL. I. MacLachlan, Medical Officer; FL. G. W. Porter, Station Chaplain; FO. R. G. Christy, Discipline; FO. R. H. French, Aerdrome Control Officer; FL. H. W. Sutherland, Accountant Officer; FO. D. Ward, Aeronautical Engineer; Capt. A. C. 1920—THEN AND NOW—1941

Barely two decades stand between these two airplanes. One was a sensation of 1920. The other is the American aircraft industry's newest, most spectacular contribution to the nation's defence. Anti-Conscription Stand Reaffirmed By Premier Godbout

Riviere Du Loup, Que., July 21 (CP)—Addressing a political rally here, Premier Godbout challenged "the rest of the country" to better Quebec's showing of voluntary enlistments for active service, and reaffirmed his anti-conscription stand.

"Let the rest of the country do as Quebec in voluntary enlistment and we will win the war," Mr. Godbout said. He addressed the rally yesterday after attending the blessing of a new Canada Peat Company plant at nearby St. Antonin and the opening of an arts and trades exhibition here.

"In any sacrifice, was Quebec behind?" he asked. 'We were ahead as far as the Victory Loan was concerned, and we are ahead in voluntary enlistments. We will be the equals of any province in giving our country the last sacrifice required to win the war.

"The other provinces should take into account that our loyalty has a particular value, because we are giving a 100-per-cent effort always with suspicion against us."

The Premier said that neither his government nor the Dominion Government believed Canadians should be conscripted for overseas service.

Voluntary Aid Urged

"We are anti-conscriptionist at Ottawa and at Quebec. I was an anti-conscriptionist in 1939. I am an anti-conscriptionist in 1941. When I say that the last effort, the last sacrifice, should be made by Canadians to win the war, I put in the front line voluntary enlistment."

Other speakers at the rally included Jean Francois Poulio, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Temiscouata, and Leon Casgrain, minister without portfolio in the Provincial Cabinet, who backed up Mr. Godbout on the conscription issue.

Mr. Casgrain said the Premier had repeatedly opposed Conscription for overseas service but he had early declared himself in favor of mobilization for the country's defence.

Hon. Oscar Drouin, Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs, Trade and Commerce, Alphonse Beaulieu, Liberal member of the Legislative Assembly for Temiscouata, and Maurice Viel, director of youth organizations in Riviere Du Loup, also spoke.

A RAID-DAY WITH THE R.A.F.

In the operations room, TOP, of a bomber station, men of England's Royal Air Force study maps before taking off on a daring daylight raid into enemy territory and on enemy shipping. Takeoff time is here, CENTRE, and a member of a bomber's crew shakes hands with a groundcrew member. It's "Good luck" and "Cheerio." Success, BOTTOM, is the lot of a Blenheim, which is seen making off after pressing home the attack on a 2,500-ton enemy ship off the Norwegian coast. The vessel, low in the water, burns fiercely. The tempo of British raids on Axis shipping and on Germany and German-occupied territory has increased sharply since Germany decided to tangle with the U.S.S.R.

Nazis Lose Rather Than Gain in War

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 21. — (AP) — Whatever Hitler's hopes of 'decisive' victories in Russia as the fourth week of the Nazi-Soviet battle is ended, it is now clear that so far he has lost rather than gained ground against Britain because of his anti-Red 'crusade'.

London military spokesmen say now that an attempted Nazi invasion of Britain this year is "almost" impossible, the "almost" added only for caution's sake

Britain's greatest dread has been removed, for many months if not finally. It is apparent that there is today more official concern in London over a possible Nazi peace move in the wake of a possible great German victory in Russia than over Hitler's ability to threaten Britain again with invasion. This is reflected in the insistent reiteration by British war leaders, from Prime Minister Churchill down, that there will be no peace on any terms with Hitler.

Italy Again Vulnerable

Elsewhere on the Axis-British battle front, east or west, the effect of Hitler's Russian venture is no less obvious. In the Atlantic his sea attack is waning instead of gaining. In the Mediterranean British defense lines have been tremendously reinforced by French surrender in Syria lacking any hope of effective German help.

It seems more than possible that Britain is busy mapping plans for a new blow at her Axis foes in the East to match the steadily rising tempo of the British air attack on Germany and German-occupied lands in the West. German preoccupation with Russia has rendered Hitler's Axis partner, Mussolini, again vulnerable. The air attack on communication lines of the Axis army in Libya is expanding to include Axis bases in Greece, on Crete and in Italy itself.

With Syria firmly in British-Free French hands and with Ethiopia and Italian East Africa swept clear of important Fascist resistance, there seems no good reason why Britain might not definitely take the offensive. Land operations to sweep Libya of Axis forces are a possibility.

Sallies From Tobruk

Mr. Churchill disclosed weeks ago that there were 500,000 or more British and Allied troops guarding the Nile delta and Suez Canal. It goes without saying that additional forces have been gathered in the Middle East since then to supplement that army. It is also well known that there is an almost uninterrupted flow of American-made planes, tanks and other war-making gear to Egypt.

The reason of high heat and sandstorms in North Africa is passing. There are almost daily intimations of British minor sallies from besieged Tobruk in the Salum region to suggest coming British efforts to wipe out the danger to Egypt from the west.

Further evidence of British consolidation in Africa is to be seen in a Vichy announcement that the French have begun parleys with British authorities concerning removal of women and children from French Somaliland in East Africa. That makes it apparent the Vichy Government has given up hope of holding the colony..

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With decisive battles for possession of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev likely in the next few weeks, Stalin is carefully tightening his authority over both the army and the home front. Discarding his former policy of staying in the background, the Soviet chieftain in ever greater measure is showing himself to the people as the real leader in the fight against the German invaders.

For years the only title Stalin held was Secretary General of the Communist Party. He was seldom seen and his public utterances were few. Then as signs of Russo-German tension accumulated in the early summer he assumed the office of Prime Minister or chairman of the Council of Commissars as it is in the Soviet system. The outbreak of hostilities found him broadcasting to the Soviet people a speech which was notable for its realistic approach to the problems of defending the country. He became chairman of the newly-formed National Defence Council.

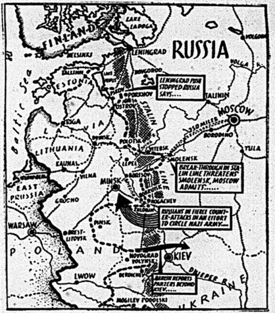
Now, in a week-end administrative shuffle, Stalin has assumed the post of Defence Commissar, replacing Marshal Timoshenko who is at the front in command of Soviet forces in the central sector before Moscow. Stalin thus takes over direct administrative control of the armed forces in addition to his previous responsibility for higher military policy.

Twenty-four hours after the defence changeover, the Kremlin announced consolidation of home front control. The commissariats of internal affairs and state security are to be combined under the direction of Stalin's close associate, Lorenti Beria, who has come rapidly to the fore in Soviet councils in recent years. He is party chief in Leningrad, Russia's second city.

Under this new set-up Beria will be responsible to Stalin for counteraction against spies and Fifth Columnists and for preventing disorganization of life behind the lines. This is an especially important post in view of Stalin's burned-earth policy. As it involves preparing the public for the timely sacrifice of their crops, homes and other possessions before the enemy gets too close.

Nothing has been heard of the re-introduction of the system of political commissars in the army since the announcement was made last Tuesday. A week-end announcement, however, said the system would be extended also to the navy. In view of Stalin's increasing control over all phases of the war, it may be a fair view to regard it as indicating Stalin hopes through the commissars to keep close watch on army morale while the regular commanders devote themselves to strictly military duties.

STATE OF WAR ON THE EAST FRONT



Here is how the situation stands in the Battle of Russia, according to latest reports. Russian spokesmen admit a German advance to Smolensk after a break-through in the Stalin line at that point. However Red army forces in that area are making a desperate attempt to cut off and encircle the German force that made the break. In the north, Moscow insists that the drive on Leningrad has been stopped, but Berlin says it continues. To the south, Moscow and Berlin again differ. Berlin says German panzer units have penetrated beyond Kiev, while the Russians insist they are holding the invader in the Novograd Volynsk area.

Now at the McCarthy Theatre, James Stewart and Margaret Sullavan in the romantic comedy-drama "The Shop Around The Corner," Frank Morgan heads the supporting featured cast. "Roar of the Press," co-starring Jean Parker and Wallace Ford is the excellent second feature presentation.

Jap Foreign Minister

Vice-minister of the navy in the last cabinet, Admiral Teijiro Toyoda is foreign minister in the new and highly militaristic cabinet formed by Prince Fumimaro Konoye, who continues as premier, Yosuke Matsuoka, who, as foreign minister, signed Japan into the Rome-Berlin Axis and later hooked up with Russia in a non-aggression pact, is out.

Mutual Listing of Shortcomings Almost Breaks Up a Marriage

When Doris and Alec were married, a year ago this past June, they decided on a scheme which they imagined would insure perfect bliss.

On their wedding tour each bought a nice little leather-covered book bound in brilliant red. Doris presented Alec with a book; Alec gave Doris hers. This was the scheme: anything that Alec did which Doris didn't like, she was to put in the little red book; the same went for Alec. If Doris did the smallest thing that grated hubby, down in the little red book it would go. But Alec couldn't imagine a line that would ever sully those white pages.

At the end of three months they were to swap books, and each was to see what faults, if, any, the other had. First entry in Doris' book read:

"I never know whether Alec is making fun of me or not. I don't mind it when we're alone, but it's terribly trying, especially before my family, old friends, and J.C.C. whom I turned down for A. Alec makes jokes about my cooking, my hats, my devotion to Scotty, my dog, though he pretended to like Scotty as much as I do, before we were married.

"After the first month, Alec stopped going to church with me. He plays golf instead.

"A. came to the table one warm evening without his coat. J.C.C. and his new girl were there. A. told J. to remove his coat, but J. thanked him and declined.

"I hate the way Alec gets sunk in a newspaper or a book. I might yell 'Burglars' but he wouldn't hear.

"I don't like the way Alec eats soup—it sort of hisses.

"A. buys too much fishing tackle and bait. Thinks I'm extravagant because I bought four new hand-bags last month. But they were all bargains.

Alec's Score

"Before we were married, thought it would be delightful to read to Doris, but she never reads books and only the society columns in newspapers.

"Now that we're married, wish she would stop wearing doll hats. They look so silly.

"We used to have a cocktail together before dinner when we were engaged; now she insists on two. Hope the habit won't grow.

"Doris keeps house beautifully. Only thing I object to is an occasional sticky knife and fork. Wish she'd scald silver as mother did.

"Wish Doris would stop using near-black maroon fingernail polish. Looks as if she were dying or dead.

"Doris has that long-legged jackass J.C.C. here too often for meals. Even if he is engaged. He looks at Doris."

The foregoing are a few extracts from the peeve books. After Doris saw Alec's, she wept. Next morning she packed her bag and went home to visit mother.

After a week Alec couldn't get near the sink to draw a glass of water, owing to the piles of unwashed dishes. He continued his book.

"Forgot to send my shirts to laundry, have no clean ones. Must buy some. Forgot to order ice, refrigerator awful. Terribly lonesome here. If Doris doesn't get over her nonsense and come back, will move. Golf score rotten, due to worry."

Doris and Alec met by chance, flew into each other's arms, kissed, made up—and burned the peeve books.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Note of Regret

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband and I have just received an invitation to a church ceremony and to the wedding reception of a young lady who works in an office of a company with whom my husband does a great deal of business. I have met this very charming and well-mannered bride-to-be on several occasions, and found her very delightful. Neither my husband nor I have met the prospective bridegroom.

We cannot attend the ceremony and reception. But would it be proper for me to write this young lady a note of good wishes? I would very much like to do this, if you think it would be in good taste.

Kate.

Since the invitation to the reception is, I judge, a formal engraved one, you should first write a formal regret. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. William Forbes regret that they are unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson's kind invitation for Tuesday, the fifteenth of July

In other words, the personal note to the bride elect does not take the place of your formal regret.

I am most enthusiastic about your writing a note of good wishes. This would be a charmingly friendly bow for you to make to her, and will, of course, make her very happy.

Birthday-Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am planning to announce my engagement at a birthday party I am giving soon. I want the engagement announcement to be a surprise. What do you think would be the nicest way of announcing it?

Emily.

To my taste the nicest way of announcing an engagement at a party is to have the fiancee and the fiance stand with the girl's mother and father to greet the arriving guess. As the guests enter the living-room, the girl's mother and father, who are the hosts and who are the ones who make the announcement of the engagement, greet them, and the mother says something like this: "Here's Emily—and her fiance, Tom Hill." That thrilling word "fiance" is the announcement!

Of course there are all kinds of trick ways of proclaiming the announcement, to the assembled guests, but they aren't in such good taste as the gracious procedure outlined above.

"Junior Bridesmaid"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

What is a junior bridesmaid? Where does she walk in the bridal procession, relative to the maid of honor and bridesmaids? Where does she stand at the altar of a Protestant church

Isabelle

A junior bridesmaid is a bridal attendant who is from twelve to sixteen years old; that is, older than a flower girl and not of bridesmaid age.

If there are, for example, four bridesmaids and two junior bridesmaids, the junior bridesmaids may walk together, after the bridesmaids and before the maid of honor. If there is to be only one junior bridesmaid and no flower girl, and she is, for example, a young sister of the bride, she may walk after the maid of honor and just before the bride and her father.

At the front of the church, she stands with the bridesmaids, in front of the ushers.

This is the gleesome threesome that stars in the new comedy hit, "Affectionately Yours," now at the Capitol Theatre. They are Merle Oberon (remember "That Uncertain Feeling?"), Dennis Morgan (Kitty Foyle's boy friend) and Rita Hayworth (Oh! You Strawberry Blonde!) Frankie Darro in "On The Spot" is on the same bill.

Let Make-Up Suit the Apparel

Betty Grable likes to wear cool looking colors for summer. ....

By HELEN FOLLETT

GAY COLORS are running wild this season and that's fun. You may have to change the makeup plan, but that's exciting too. There are lovely shades of green that lend themselves kindly to brunette, blonde and redhead and, strange to say, they are as good for the skinnies as they are for the plumpies, having little influence on poundage.

Red is a joyous color, a bit warm maybe for mid-season, but it does things to one's soul, especially if one has a mood on. You have to cut out the rouge when you wear it, and soft pedal on the lipstick.

Careful Wearing Red

Red lights up the complexion in a grand and satisfactory manner. The cardinal tone has many soft variations this season. You'll have no trouble finding a flattering tint if you are out stalking material for new duds.

The color subject is interesting, few women give it as much thought as they should. Colors affect the emotions. Put on a drab gown and drab you will look—feel, too, it is likely. Certain shades of grey are cold and depressing. Yellow is like sunshine. Pale green is the coolest color one can find. Certain shades of blue are exhilarating.

It won't do to be a stand-patter. The true blonde can wear certain colors, but when the hair darkens she must make a new plan. What brings out the delicacy of golden hair may not be so good or locks that have tarnished. If the girl with a sallow skin takes a beige, browns and greys she is swamped as far as the beauty race is concerned.

Consider first the complexion when choosing colors. Next the figure, since they make for slenderization or breadth.

Black is smart, but it should not be worn by the faded beauty unless there are touches of brilliant color added for decorative purposes.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Affectionately Yours"

Laughter and romance are the happy combination used in "Affectionately Yours," the new comedy which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre with Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan and Rita Hayworth heading the large and able cast.

With Dennis (Kitty Foyle's boy friend) Morgan in the middle of a triangle completed by the Misses Oberon and Hayworth, the story gets off to an hilarious start. It seems that Dennis, having a wonderful time as a playboy foreign correspondent in Lisbon, Portugal, gets word from New York that his wife, Merle Oberon in the picture, has divorced him and is going to remarry. In spite of his own philandering he is horrified at his wife's "unfaithfulness" and immediately boards a clipper for America, hotly pursued by his girl colleague, played by Rita Hayworth. Then follows the amusing recital of his efforts to win back his wife, with Rita equally intent on trying to win him. The three-cornered chase resolves itself into one riotous situation after another, climaxing in one of the most amusing "waiting at the church" scenes ever filmed, with veteran waiter-at-the-church Ralph Bellamy as the bridegroom who gets the stand-up.

Rita Hayworth, the "Strawberry Blonde" who set masculine hearts beating a little faster in her recent picture with Cagney, does it again in "Affectionately Yours." Others in the cast whose performances have received raves from previewers, are Ralph Bellamy, as Morgan's unfortunate rival suitor for Miss Oberon's hand, George Tobias as a Turkish candid camera fiend, James Gleason as a scheming editor, and Hattie McDaniel as Miss Oberon's all-wise maid.

Lloyd Bacon, whose comedy talents were well demonstrated with "A Slight Case of Murder," has directed "Affectionately Yours," with emphasis on the romantic comedy situations, deftly paced for laughs. Edward Kaufman wrote the screen play from the story by Fanya Foss and Aleen Leslie.

"On The Spot"

The companion feature with "Affectionately Yours" is "On the Spot" starring Frankie Darro and now at the Capitol theatre.

"On the Spot" is the exciting story of a young soda jerker in a small town drugstore who becomes involved in several murder mysteries. When a wounded racketeer starts to tell the youngster and his colored porter pal where $300,000 in loot is hidden and then suddenly falls dead, thrilling events begin to swirl around their luckless shoulders.

Overnight the town changes from a sleepy hamlet into a teeming metropolis full of big-town reporters, racketeers and police authorities hot on the story. And overnight Frankie the soda jerker, splashes into national prominence.

Seen in the cast are Mantan Moreland, John St. Polis, Robert Warwick, Mary Kornman, Maxine Leslie and Lillian Elliott.

The same program includes a colored cartoon, "Ghost Wanted."

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Shop Around the Corner"

Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart and the famed "Ernst Lubitsch touch" contribute equal shares to one of the most delightful entertainments ever filmed, "The Shop Around the Corner," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

That Lubitsch is the master of comedy in all its various phases, whether of satire as he so ably demonstrated with his direction of Greta Garbo in "Ninotchkia," or of human, gentle humor in the everyday lives of everyday people has been proven for all to see in "The Shop Around the Corner."

It is a pleasure to see Miss Sullavan back on the screen again and this most charming and talented of actresses is perfectly teamed with James Stewart who makes the most of another fine acting opportunity to compare with his great performance in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." They are clerks in a little leather goods and novelty shop, both seeking romance. They look for it outside of their own small world, quarreling constantly and then discover that they are quarreling because they are in love.

Sharing the plaudits with the stars is a flawless cast. Frank Morgan never has appeared to better advantage than in the role of the shop owner. Joseph Schildkraut is thoroughly dislikeable as the rascally clerk who has an affair with the wife of his kindly boss. Felix Bressart, who provided so many laughs in the role of the lanky Russian commissar in "Ninotchka," is the timid clerk, afraid of the boss, the butcher and the doctor. Also effective in supporting roles are Sarah Haden, William Tracy (as the office boy), Inez Courtney, Sarah Edwards, Edwin Maxwell, Charles Halton and Charles Smith.

"The Shop Around the Corner" is a pleasant departure from the usual film epic. It is as real as life, flavored with honest truth. As the likeable employer and his interesting employees move in and out of the picture, they give it life, warmth, suspense, comedy and romance, which makes for entertainment at its best. "The Shop Around the Corner" cannot be too highly recommended; it's the kind of picture for you and you and you.

Pleasant added entertainment is presented in an excellent companion feature entitled "The Roar of the Press," co-starring lovely Jean Parker and Wallace Ford. Latest McCarthy-Fox News Events is also shown at each performance. The "glasbake" ovenware piece is the large oval baker.

Medicine in the News

A DOCTOR LOOKS AT WAR NEUROSES — II

(Ed. Note—This is the second of two articles).

British authorities say that this war has so far produced no new diseases and that the number of physical and psychological casualties from warfare has been far smaller than was anticipated. The British Medical Journal asserts that the two disorders which have attracted most attention are ulcers of the duodenum and stomach, and war neuroses.

It is pointed out that the occurrence of frequent ulcers in the duodenum or in the stomach in civil life is not completely incapacitating. Many people go on with their work by readjusting the diet and by taking occasional periods away from work, and many of them obtain complete recovery following operation.

In the Army, however, it is not possible to carry a man who has repeated ulcers of the duodenum or stomach, and it is necessary to dismiss him from the military service unless he happens to be a man of very special experience or gifts which outweigh his disability.

There are certain instances of ulcers which occur in young men who pass suddenly from a quiet, peaceful existence to a strenuous life or who suddenly double or triple the amount of food that they eat. These young men develop what resembles the "bellyache" of the school boy who overeats. In such cases it is necessary for the doctor to determine with certainty that the symptoms are of this kind and not an ulcer. However, too much emphasis on a complete study of the stomach and intestines may in itself make a "stomach invalid."

British doctors are also seeing a great many cases of women who have rapid hearts, weakness and constant anxiety, and these cases are diagnosed as being excessive action of the thyroid gland. In many of these cases, also, the difficulty is a nervous disturbance and not primarily a physical condition.

Recently British doctors have described cases of pain under the breast related to the heart. This was found to be primarily what would be called a nervous pain rather than any physical condition of the heart. This pain is not related to exercise but usually comes on after all exertion has ceased. It is also produced or accentuated by excitement.

Dr. Paul Wood, a British authority on this subject, believes that this condition arises when the emotional fear becomes attached to the idea of exertion. He says that it is just as disastrous for a child to grow up in a neurotic home as in a tuberculous home.

The condition called Da Costa's syndrome is accompanied by breathlessness, palpitations, fatigues, sweats, nervousness, dizziness and sometimes pain in the chest on the left side, under the breast. Also associated with this condition are an anxious appearance, cold, clammy hands; instability of the pulse, inability to hold the breath, excessive sweating and weakness. Such people are not likely to make good soldiers or to be able to occupy important positions even in civil life. Frequently however, proper attention may prevent the appearance of a condition of this type.

AT THE BELLE

"Million Dollar Baby"

"Million Dollar Baby", a sparkling romantic comedy starring Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, Ronald Reagan and May Robson is the feature attraction at the Belle theatre tonight only.

An interesting newsreel and a color fun cartoon precede the feature attraction. Two complete shows will be presented.

"Virginia" in Color

Screen lovers of Belleville and vicinity will be pleased to hear of the return engagement at the Belle theatre of one of the year's biggest hits.

Alternating smart comedy and gripping drama, Paramount presents an unusually entertaining story of life in the modern South, when its brilliant technicolor production "Virginia" opens next at the Belle theatre.

Given an excellent script, the picture's stars, ever-beautiful Madeleine Carroll and personable Fred MacMurray, make the most of it. Both turn in performances that can rank with the best each has done. This is the third time these engaging romancers have been teamed together, and it is a glowing tribute to their artistry.

"Virginia" introduces for the first time Stirling Hayden, a newcomer to the screen. Tall and blonde, Hayden is a strikingly handsome young man with a definite flair for acting. Although it is said that this is the first acting he has done, Hayden's excellent performance in the picture completely belies that fact. Before being discovered by Paramount, he earned a great reputation as an accomplished yachtsman.

A brilliant supporting cast is headed by Helen Broderick, Marie Wilson, adorable little Carolyn Lee, Tom Rutherford, Paul Hurst, Leigh Whipper, Louise Beavers and Darby Jones.

"The Get-Away" Thrilling

The fight of G-men against racketeers preying on national defence industries provides a basis for thrills galore in "The Get-Away," Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's excitement-packed picture is the added thrill feature attraction.

It deals with the adventure of a young Federal man who enters a penitentiary as a convict to gain the confidence of a gang leader, helps him in a sensational escape, finally locates the headquarters of his gang, which are raided and when the gangster escapes, trails and corners him in a crowded city. Methods of the gang are shown in detail in dramatic sequences. The romance is between the Federal man and the gang leader's sister, who does not know her brother's true activities.

Robert Sterling plays the most forceful role in his career as the G-man Jeff Crane, and Dan Dailey, Jr., gives a dynamic characterization as Sonny Black, the gang leader. Donna Reed, new glamour "discovery" is beautiful and a convincing actress as the gangster's sister, and comedy honors are carried off by Charles Winniger, playing an inebriated, banjo-playing physician who secretly tends injured gangsters.

The latest new of the day will be exhibited on the same program.

London, July 21—(AP)—The Admiralty reported today the entire crew of 175 officers and men of the auxiliary vessel Lady Somers, had been saved.

Loss of the 8,194-ton vessel was announced July 17. At that time the Admiralty said 138 survivors had been picked up by Spanish ships for transfer to a neutral port.

The Lady Somers in peacetime was a 8,194-ton luxury liner owned by the Canadian National Steamship Lines. Her home port was Montreal and she cruised in the British West Indies service.

Roosevelt Declares the U. S. In Infinitely Greater Danger Today Than One Year Ago

Asks Congress for Extension of One-Year Period of Active Service in Army of Selectees, National Guardsmen and Reservists

NATIONAL EMERGENCY

Washington, July 21 (AP)—Declaring that the United States was in "infintely greater" danger than a year ago, President Roosevelt asked Congress today to authorize extension of the one-year period of active service in the army of selectees, National Guardsmen and reservists.

Unless the extension is granted, Mr. Roosevelt said, the country will be taking a grave national risk and disintegration of the army will be under way within two months.

Responsibility for maintaining the efficiency of that army, the President said in a message to Congress, rests solely with the legislators.

Mr. Roosevelt dramatized his request by trying an innovation. He transcribed the message on records so that his words might be heard later by radio listeners.

Conditions Change

He emphasized that conditions had changed since a 12-month limitation was placed a year ago on the service of selectees, Guardsmen and Reservists.

"Today it is imperative that I should report to the Congress what the Congress undoubtedly knows, that the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago," he said.

"It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness. Small as it is in comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration."

Warns of Grave Risk

The President asserted, it would be taking a grave risk unless Congress were to make possible the maintenance of the present, full, effective strength of the army during the coming year and give training to as many additional Americans as possible.

He added that it would be a "tragic error" to eliminate about two-thirds of the trained soldiers and three-fourths of officer personnel.

The steps which the President took to under score the administration's desire for extended service was considered to some extent an acknowledgement of a strong opposition existent in Congress. Compromises have been advanced.

But Mr. Roosevelt said he was not making Congress for specific language in a specific bill. He said he hoped the legislators "will acknowledge this national emergency either for a specific period or until revocation by the Congress or the President."

The objective, he declared, is the all-important issue. The President said he was confident men in the ranks realized better than the public the "disastrous effect" which would result from permitting the present army to melt away and set back the training and expansion program at least six months.

Noting that last year's selective service legislation definitely provided that the one year training program could be extended by Congressional action if a national danger later existed, the President added:

"I do not believe that the danger to American safety is less than it was one year ago when, so far as the army was concerned, the United States was in a woefully weak position. I do not believe that the danger to our national safety is only about the same as it was a year ago.

"I do believe—I know—that the danger today is infinitely greater. I do believe—I know—that in all truth we are in the midst of a national emergency."

In addition to recommending continued service, the President said he thought Congress also should remove restrictions on the number of selectees inducted each year. The limit now is 900,000.

Urges Jobs Be Kept Open

He also urged Congress to provide that employers be asked to continue keeping open jobs for men who have been held in the army.

He promised to direct the return to civil life of those whose retention on active duty would "impose undue hardship" and that guardsmen and selectees who had become 28 would be transferred from active service to a reserve component of the army as rapidly as possible.

In his message, the President emphasized that the national interest of the United States and other American republic was "definitely imperiled" by the war sweeping through Europe.

But occasionally individuals, he said, basing their opinions on unsupported evidence or no evidence at all, may with "honest intent" assert that this country need fear no attack on its own territory or on other western hemisphere nations.

Mr. Roosevelt called attention, then, to the sequence of German conquest or moves from Austria to the Russian campaign.

Hitler's Plan of Attracting Victims

"Every move up and down and across and into Asia, and into Africa," he declared, "has been conducted according to a time schedule utilizing in every case an overwhelming superiority not only in material but in trained men as well.

"Each campaign has been based on a preliminary assurance of safety or non-aggression to the intended victim. Each campaign has been based on disarming fear and gaining time until the German Government was fully ready to throw treaties and pacts to the wnids and simultaneously to launch an attack in overwhelming force.

"Each elimination of a victim has brought the issue of Nazi domination closer to this hemisphere, while month by month their intrigues of propaganda and conspiracy have sought to weaken every link in the communtiy of interest that should bind the Americas into a great western family."

Declaring that he thought no branch of the Government was willing to let America risk the fate which has destroyed independence of other nations, Mr. Roosevelt said, "We Americans can not afford to speculate with the security of America.

He cited also "a definite responsibility" for the United States to aid every other western hemisphere against attack from without and asserted that in his judgment it ould be an act of "bad faith" toward our neighbors to weaken the army at this particular time.

FREEMAN CUP RACE ON

Rochester, N.Y., July 21 (AP)—Aided by near-perfect sailing weather, 35 yachts from a dozen clubs on the Canadian and American shores of Lake Ontario set out today from Summerville on the annual Freeman Cup long distance race.

The course was to take the boats to Youngstown via Cobourg, a distance of 101 nautical miles. There were five Canadian boats among the entries.

Canadian High Commissioner In Australia to Return Home To Take Up Special War Work

Sydney, Australia, July 21.—(CP Cable)—Charles J. Burchell, Canadian High Commissioner in Australia, announced today he is returning to Ottawa immediately to take up special war work.

He said he was unable to disclose the nature of his new appointment, but indicated it was war work for which he was considered to have special qualifications.

A successor to Mr. Burchell, Canada's First High Commissioner to Australia, is expected to be named at an early date.

Mr. Burchell said he is leaving Australia with deepest regret and with great affection for Australia and Australians. He regarded the exchange of High Commissioners between Australia and Canada as an admirable move and said Australiah-Canada co-operation in the Commonwealth Air Training plan had showed what the Dominions could do to help Britain.

Observers here regarded as significant the circumstance that the Canadian High Commissioner is leaving for Canada at the same time as an Australian official is leaving for Washington to discuss Australian-American trade relations. It is understood these discussions will involve the Empire preference under the Ottawa agreement.

The belief here is that Washington is seeking most-favored-nation treatment for American export to Australia with the Commonwealth hoping to find a market in the United States for many products which in wartime cannot be shipped to the United Kingdom.

The ministry of information said that some 27 ships were bombed and crippled. The bombers flew so low that one touched a chimney, the announcement said. Parts of the plane that made the photograph here can be seen in the photo.

BOOKS MAY HAVE YELLOWISH HUE

Restricted Chlorine Use in U.S. to Mean Shortage of Book and Writing Paper—Newsprint Unaffected

Washington, July 21 (AP)—A shortage in the United States of book, writing and some other types of paper was forecast today by officials of the office of Production Management who said also that readers may find before many months that their magazines and books have a yellowish hue.

Curtailment of supplies of chlorine, used as a bleaching agent, will result in less "brightening" in some kinds of paper, they explained.

Newspapers are little affected because not much chlorine is used in newsprint.

The paper shortage, likewise, will not affect newspapers, defence officials said, because Canadian newsprint production has not equalled capacity and is being increased.

The shortage in other types of pulp, they said, is due largely to greatly increased demand.

Consumption during 1940 reached a peak of 16,300,000 tons and forecasts for 1941 place demand at 18,500,000 tons. In addition, imports from Norway have been cut off.

The O.P.M. is in the process of organizing a defence advisory committee on paper and pulp. The basic producers have nominated an advisory committee, printers and publishers will select one on July 29, paper converters will name one Tuesday. From the three advisory groups, defence officials will select the industrial committee.

3 Persons Escape As Freight Train Hits Automobile

Ingersoll, Ont., July 21.—(CP)—John Haskett, West Zorra Township farmer, had an exceptionally narrow escape from death yesterday with his wife and her sister when their car was struck by a train. The three were travelling south on the Second Concession Road, which crosses the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway.

"I heard nothing and saw nothing," Haskett said "When I got on the track, a freight train hit the car, whirled it around and tossed it to the north".

Haskett escaped with a slight cut on his arm. His wife and sister-in-law were uninjured. The car was demolished. The train was stopped and the crew came back.

Montreal, July 21 (CP)—Two spans of a highway bridge across the tail race of the Beauharnois Canal, about 60 miles southwest of here, collapsed early today and automobile traffic was being diverted to a road over the nearby Beauharnois dam.

Beauharnois Power Corporation officials here said the bridge broke down after the collapse of a cement pier supporting it. None was injured. The bridge was approximately 400 feet long.

Canadians First to Operate Powerful 'Churchill' Tanks

By ROSS MUNRO
(Can. Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, July 21—(CP Cable)—The Canadian Army Tank Brigade is receiving an initial allotment of Britain's powerful new infantry tanks called "Churchills." It is the first fighting formation to operate them.

Described as "probably the most formidable fighting instrument possessed by any army in the world, the first of these tanks are being used by a Central Ontario Regiment.

It was revealed that the King drove a Churchill during a visit to a supply factory some weeks ago. After a short ride as a passenger in the turret, His Majesty crawled into the driver's seat and drove the tank over a test field.

A number of "Churchills" trundled to the Canadian camp soon after the brigade arrived in England a few weeks ago and other types of tanks also arrived in a steady flow.

Commander Inspects

Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Commander of the Canadian Corps, inspected the huge armored vehicles with Brig. F. F. Worthington, Tank Corps Commander, ten days ago.

Victor Sifton, Master General of Ordnance, Canadian Department of National Defence, who returned to London for a series of conferences after visiting the Canadian 2nd Division yesterday, will inspect the tanks on Wednesday when he visits the brigade.

The colonel of the Central Ontario Regiment, who comes from Windsor, Ont., and his second-in-command, Maj. J. S. Gow, also of Windsor, were among the first officers to drive Churchills.

Ace Tank Crew in First Tank

The brigade's ace tank crew, Sgt. Ed. French, Sgt. "Spike" Mosson and Sgt. Don McIver, all of Toronto and Sgt. William Imeson of Oshawa, Ont., were assigned to the first tank. They trained for four months during the winter with British armored formations and know tanks thoroughly.

"When the Nazis see us coming with these steel babies they're sure going to get a shock," said French. "Look at the armor plating. It's a pretty swell overcoat to have protecting us when we ride to battle."

Mosson, walking alongside the turret, explained, "She's like a battleship. Come up on deck and take a look around."

These land fortresses pound around the camp, making the area shake. The Central Ontario Regiment will have a whole fleet of them in a few weeks.

Two hundred Canadian tankmen who visited the Midlands last week saw the Churchills being mass-produced and a number of troopers rode in them on the proving grounds.

U. S. Legislators Survey Waters Of St. Lawrence

Canadian Party Meets U.S. Party Named to Decide on Recommendation of Site of Dam at Sheek Island

Cornwall, Ont., July 21 (CP) — Members of the United States House of Representatives Rivers and Harbors Committee stood today on a promontory of Sheek Island, and surveyed the tumbling waters where Canada and United States may build a $250,000,000 dam to harness an estimated two million horsepower of electrical energy in Long Sault Rapids.

A group of Canadian government officials, who had motored down from Ottawa, met and accompanied the American visitors into whose hands had been placed the task of deciding whether they should recommend that Congress ratify the Great Lake - St. Lwrence Basin agreement signed at Ottawa last March 19.

Former Judge J. J. Mansfield (Dem., Texas), 82 year old chairman of the House Committee, recalling his old days on the Bench, remarked to reporters that he would not hazard a guess as to ratification of the agreement until all the evidence is in."

Judge Mansfield accepted the task of steering the ratification bill through the committee with the understanding that he would be free to vote against it if he so desi[illegible]

All parties were represented in [illegible] nearly 50 Americans.

The Canadian party headed by Guy Lindsay, Transport Department, who is chairman of the Canadian Temporary Committee which last year made a joint engineering report with a similar United States Technical Committee recommending the project, were here as hosts.

After the party had met at the rendesvous on Sheek Island they proceeded to a promontory in Aults Park which commands a complete view of the turbulent Long Sault Rapids and the site of a semi-circular dam running from Barnhart Island to the mainland, both in United States territory

A mill race of two or three miles runs down the Canadian side several miles to the foot of Barnhart Island where a huge power dam would be erected under the proposal with power houses at each end, one on the United States side and one on the Canadian.

Others in the Canadian party included John E. Read, legal advisor to the Department of External Affairs, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, first Secretary of the same Department, C. P. Edwards, Deputy Minister of Transport, a number of technical and diplomatic officials, Lionel Chevrier, Liberal Member of Parliament for Stormont, George Fulford, Liberal Member for Leeds, and Mayors of River Towns.

The two parties later toured the Beauharnois Power development on the south side of the River, and then attended a dinner given by the Canadian government at the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club at Dorval on Montreal Island.

This War Must Be Fought to Finish Or Another Faced in 10 - 20 Years

"No power between here and hell can defeat the British Empire and the United States, but if we do not have faith in God and fight this war to a finish, then we must prepare for another war within the next ten or twenty years," the Rev. T. Porter Bennett, Ashland, Nebraska, and a native of Hastings County told the Belleville Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon.

Ten years ago, the speaker had spent a year in Europe. In Italy he had sought a conference with Mussolini, "but Hitler had already been there" he said. "Somebody was asleep. In ten short years we are facing the greatest calamity in the history of the world."

"Where in the name of God have we been during the past ten years?" he asked. "I repeat, somebody was asleep. As a great American said, 'War is hell', but remember this, as lond as you have a Rotary Club—as long as churches are open—as long as you have fraternal organizations, no dictator can exist, and no power on earth can usurp your rights and liberties as citizens."

"If you as individuals are not bigger than your church, your lodge or your club, then God help you."

If the British Empire went down tomorrow, Mr. Bennett declared, the United States would go down with her. "Have no fear about the U.S.A. and this war,' he added, "It is a democracy composed of representatives of the nations of the earth, for the first American is not born yet. As long as this principle is inculcated in man, as long as freedom is at stake, we must realize the brotherhood of man it at stake, too."

Shall Whip Germany

"We shall whip Germany to a frazzle in this war," he asserted. "But I am afraid that after we have whipped her we shall have no love for her. Whenever a nation is built on hate we shall see the downfall of that nation."

"I tell you," Mr. Bennett said, "that it is our duty to love mankind and we cannot do this without a faith in God—a faith that is a personal relationship with power that is greater than all. God expects manhood to live in love and realize that there is a brotherhood of mankind."

He had no fear but God will win in this war, the speaker asserted, "I have no fear that the U.S.A. with President Roosevelt and his people will go to the very limit to see that mankind has the freedom of speech, conscience and religion and the rights of citizens of the great democracies.

"This is no time to hang crepe on the door of any nation that is trying to do the thing worth while. I further know that Canada will stand behind 100 per cent behind my state and my country."

"I am glad to appeal to your better selves to do the things worth while. Have faith in God and thus go over the top, into the trenches and down the valley to fight for God, for King and for country. God save the great democracies, the British Empire and the United States and God help us to get back the faith in God," Mr. Bennett concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Past-District Governor J. O. Herity while club appreciation was expressed by Rotarian the Rev. Dr. James Semple. President W. J. Morrison was in the chair.

Italian Has Choice And Takes U. S.

San Diego, Calif., July 21—(AP)—James A. Vinci had his choice of being a captain in the Italian army or a private in the United States marines—and he gladly took the latter.

While visiting his mother in Italy in 1939, Vinci said, he was inducted into the Italian army. Because of his high school education and the lack of educated men available, he was commissioned a second lieutenant.

He served in the Italian air corps for eight months while United States consular officials were trying to establish his United States citizenship. At the end of eight months he was offered a transfer to Africa and a captaincy. His return to the United States had been arranged by then and he refused.

He returned to the United States enlisted in the Marine Corps and is a private at the San Diego base.

Trade Relations To Be Placed On New Footing

Canberra, July 21 (AP)—United States and Australia trade relations will be place don a new footing shortly under a reciprocal agreement associated with the Lease-Lend Act.

Authoritative sources said the commonwealth will facilitate the entry of an important range of American products and also will propose means of obtaining access to American markets of certain Australian primary products.

Officials, headed by E. McCarthy, assistant secretary of the Customs Department, will leave shortly for the United States to discuss details of the agreement.

Germany Plans New Aggression, Welles Declares

Acting Secretary of State Says United States Has Information of New Steps Planned by Nazis Against Independent Powers of Europe

Washington, July 21. — (AP) — Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said today the United States had information that Germany was planning new steps of aggression against remaining independent countries in Europe.

He made the statement at a press conference but did not go into details. His comment aroused speculation, however, on the possibility that he meant Spain and Portugal might be due for attacks.

At the same time Welles said the United States had promised full support to Bolivia in the event that an international incident arose from an alleged attempted Nazi Coup in that country and from the ordered expulsion of the German Minister there.

U. S. Assures Bolivia of Support

U.S. Assures Bolivia of Support

ivia of support he had pointed out that under existing inter-American agreements, the German Minister in Bolivia would be persona non grata in the United States.

Welles also referred to a sharp attack on the United States by General Franco of Spain last week in which Franco asserted American offers of economic help to Spain always involved attempts to force that country to obey the will of other nations.

Welles said it was entirely untrue that supplies of food and medicines sent to Spain by the American Red Cross were contingent upon any policy by the Spanish Government except that the Spanish people should remain at peace.

Answering Franco further on the consequences of a Nazi victory for other American Reublics, Welles declared the whole prosperity of American nations had been founded on the fact that the Atlantic and other seas were controlled by friendly powers.

If this control was passed to unfriendly powers, the Acting Secretary said the independence of the American Republics would be gravely endangered.

Welles praised President Eduardo Santos of Colombia for an address in which he declared that his country was obligated to assure that the Panama Canal "may never be attacked or damaged from our territory."

Welles welcomed this assurance as a statement of defence co-operation, and said President Santos was regarded here as one of the outstanding leaders and statesmen in the Western Hemisphere.

Cardinals, Favored by Long Home Stand, Dodger Hurling Disasters Have Real Chance

End Up Eastern Tour With Twin Win Over Braves to Further Cut Dodgers' Lead

YANKS STILL WIN

By GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The St. Louis Cardinals are on their way back West today to open a long home stand against the eastern clubs, and there is a good chance they will take complete charge of the National League race before they are again routed out of Sportsman's Park.

They left that impression behind them as they completed a smashing tour of the seaboard with a double defeat of the Boston Braves yesterday by scores of 4-2 and 7-3. That made it 7 victories in their last 9 games.

Brooklyn, by doing no better than breaking even against Pittsburgh yesterday, saw its lead sliced to a game and a half, with a long road trip ahead. The Dodgers have played only .500 ball in their last 10 games at home, and their pitching staff is showing alarming signs of falling apart.

Higbe Won't Go West

Whit Wyatt, the team's ace, lost his third straight start when the Pirates beat him 5-1 in the second game. Fred Fitzsimmons, reliable veteran, was struck on the arm by a batted ball and forced to retire early in the first tilt, which Curt Davis went on to win 5-1. Kirby Higbe, another of the Dodgers' "big three," is in the hospital with a bad appendix and will not accompany the club west.

The Cincinnati Reds, who haven't yet lost hope of winning their third straight flag, climbed within two percentage points of third place by thumping the Phillies twice, 7-1 and 3-2. Paul Derringer broke a five-game losing streak in the first, in which he left 12 Phils stranded. The New York Giants won the first from Chicago 7-5, Hubbel scoring his ninth victory, but the Cubs came back to take the second, 7-4, behind Verne Olsen.

Yanks Increase Lead

In the most spectacular game of a heavy day, the Yankees exploded for six runs in the 17th inning to win a 12-6 decision over Detroit at Briggs Stadium. Deadlocked 6-6 at the end of nine frames, they battled four hours and five minutes before the blow-off finally came.

The hard-won victory increased the Yanks' lead to seven full games over the Cleveland Indians, who divided a brace with Washington. The Senators beat them 8-4 in the first behind Steve Sundra, but a rash of errors in the late innings by the Washington infield enabled the Indians to take the second, 5-1.

The St. Louis Browns swept their second doubleheader in two days over Boston's diving Red Sox, 6-3 and 10-0.

Veteran Lyons Wins Another

Veteran Ted Lyons pitched Chicago's White Sox to a 2-1 win in their first bout with the Philadelphia Athletics, but the A's came back to win the second 4-1 in 13 innings. Benny McCoy' deep fly drove across the winning run.

In Saturday's National League games Boston took St. Louis 10-6 and the rest of the schedule was rained out.

In the American League, New York took both games in a double header with Detroit 9-3 and 6-2. Philadelphia divided a twin bill with Chicago, losing the first 4-2 and winning the second 3-1. St. Louis downed Boston 9-3 and 4-3 in home games and Cleveland won its single home game against Washington 9-8.

SIGN TO HELP IN FILMING LIFE OF LATE LOU GEHRIG

Lou Gehrig's baseball career is to be filmed, although story, setting, plot, etc., have not yet been written. The great baseball star's widow is pictured here signing a contract with movie impressario Samuel Goldwyn, in New York. At left is Christy Walsh, manager of Gehrig during his playing career. Plans call for Mrs. Gehrig to work with writers, putting at their disposal the scrapbooks and biographical material of the diamond star.

At the RIGHT is Samuel D. Riddle's War Relic, three-year-old son of the immortal Man-o'-War, crossing under the wire to beat out William Woodward's Foxbrough in the $50,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs. War Relic, jockeyed by Ted Atkinson, surprised not only the 25,000 spectators, but his owner by his remarkable drive from behind to clip a fifth of a second off the track record.

Winnipeg Oarsman Single Sculling Champ Of United States

Minneapolis, July 21 (CP). — Thirty-year-old Theo Dubois of the Winnipeg Rowing Club, who Saturday succeeded Joe Burk of Philadelphia as United States amateur singles sculling champion, will also try for the Canadian crown won a year ago by Burk who now is a professional.

Dubois, a rowing veteran of 16 years and winner of both the U.S. and Canadian doubles championships in 1939 when Albert Riley of Winnipeg was his partner, will now go to St. Catharines, Ont., to participate in the Canadian Henley.

After his triumph Saturday before 20,000 fans Dubois said the win made him just about the happiest sculler in the world.

The 195-pound Dubois, however, was forced to call on all the power in his six-foot-four frame to pull away from Joe Angyal of Brooklyn, in the last 50 yards of the 1¼-mile course.

The Winnipegger had too much power and reserve for the plucky Brooklyn rower and won with a length and a quarter to spare. His time was eight minutes, 35 1-5 seconds.

Observers said Dubois' time was fast as the competitors, contrary to regatta custom, rowed upstream so spectators would have a better chance of seeing the finish on the winding Mississippi course.

The Winnipeg star said he had spent $1,200 on rowing in the last three years, including travelling expenses. One shell, purchased at Fort William and used at one time by Bobby Pearce, former Olympic champion, cost $400, he said.

The Undine Barge Club of Philadelphia compiled 97 points in the 69th annual regatta for grand aggregate honors, beating the Penn Athletic Club, also of Philadelphia, by a win in the senior lightweight eight-oared event. The Winnipeg club placed eleventh with 10 points.

HULL B AND B IN FIRST PLACE

Kingston Combines Win and Lose Over the Weekend

Hull B and B are firmly in first place in the Interprovincial Baseball League standing today, and the credit goes to an effective pitching staff rather than to hitting.

Anyway, that's the picture given by the official statistics, Wally Driscoll, B and B star hurler, is the league's top man in that line with five wins and only one loss. Dominic (Lerty) Barbaro, his teammate, is second with four wins and two loses. B and B's only other pitcher, Leo Duguay, has won his only start of the season.

On the batting side it's different. B and B players don't figure in the first three spots. At the latest official tabulation Leo Giroux, Hull Volants' right fielder, was leading the league with an average of .511. Henry Groulx of Ottawa Royal Canadiens was second at .476 and Sullivan of Kingston Ponies with an average of .474 was third.

Gerry Colombe of Royal Canadiens was the leading home run hitter with four to his credit. Gordie Pranschke of the same team and Kingston's Sullivan each had hit three round-trippers.

On Sunday B and B strengthened their hold on first-place in the game standings with a 5-4 victory over Kingston Ponies. The Hull players came from behind with a four-run rally in the last inning of the seven-inning game.

Kingston won from Hull Volants in Kingston Saturday with a 23-hit attack, helped no little by 10 Volants errors.

Volants gained an even break on their week's play, however, by nosing out Buckingham 2-1 Sunday. Their winning run in the last inning was disputed by Buckingham but Empire Alex Wood of Ottawa ruled out the protest.

Royal Canadiens had both their scheduled starts rained out. Wednesday they were to play Buckingham and Saturday Smith's Falls Railroaders.

MILLAR TROPHY TO SAM KERR

Scores 3 and 1 Victory Over Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener

Toronto, July 21.— ((CP)—Sam Kerr, Toronto Glen Mawr professional who had appeared in four previous Millar Golf Trophy competitions but never got past the qualifying round, today was proud bearer of the 1941 award. He left no doubt as to his superiority among Eastern Canada professionals.

His final 3 and 1 victory over Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener, Ont., the giant-killer who eliminated Jack Littler of Ottawa and defending champion Bobby Gray of Toronto, was watched by 600 persons, one of the largest Millar Trophy final crowds in history.

Tucker, Rockaway Club pro, four down at the 14th hole, fought a brilliant uphill battle from that point on and won the 15th and 16th holes to cut the laed in half. He ran into tough luck on the 17th when his 275-yard drive bounced into a creek. After Kerr made sure of a par for Tucker concered the hole and match when he narrowly missed a 20-foot putt.

The outstanding shot of the match was made by Kerr on the seventh hole when he sank a 50-foot putt after it looked as if Tucker would win the hole easily.

It was the second time in three years Tucker gained the finals. He was defeated by Lex Robson for the title in 1939.

TORONTO LEAFS WIN ONE GAME OVER WEEKEND

Defeated Twice on Saturday by Montreal and Beat Newark Bears on Sunday

ROYALS MOVE UP

One of the secrets of Newark Bears' success in the International League race is their consistence at picking up points in doubleheaders in a league where doubleheaders figure heavily in the schedule.

So far Bears have played 19 bargain bills, and their record for those 38 games is 26 won and only 12 lost.

Yesterday, in a set of memorable pitchers' battles, they split one with the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs. Even so they gained ground, since the second-place Buffalo Bisons were taking it on the chin twice from Jersey City.

Newark was set back in the opener, 1-0, as Porter Vaughan turned in a four-hitter for the Leafs to a five-hit effort by Allen Gettel for Newark. In the nightcap Newark came right back on a two-hitter by George Washburn and timely hitting by Tommy Holmes to win, 2-1, in eight innings.

Buffalo first was beaten, 3-2, by the Little Giants, when Hal White weakened after blanking the Jerseys for eight heats.

Jerseys came from behind again to win the second game, 7-6, as they got all nine of their hits for all their runs in the last three innings.

Montreal Royals took full advantage of the two Buffalo defeats by sweeping a twin bill with the Baltimore, 10,-2 and 3-1, to edge within half a game of second place. Alex Kampouris was the hitting hero, driving in four runs with two men on in the afterpiece.

Best two-game pitching of the day was offered by Syracuse Chiefs with Tom Sunkel beating the Rochester Redwings 1-0, on a two-hitter in the first game and Les Hinckle hurling a five-hit, 2-0 shutout in the second.

Montreal won both its Saturday games at Toronto 8-1 and 7-0. Baltimore's game at Jersey City was rained out and no others were scheduled.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by

GEO. E. WATKIN.

There were lots of activities in our club and outside points last week.

Four rinks of ladies went to Kingston on Tuesday and two of them entered the outer rings of the charmed circle. Mrs. Row, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Lent, with Mrs. Scott, Skip won two games high and Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Robson, Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Watkin, Skip, won one high. The other teams were Mrs. Flack, Mrs. Legault, Mrs. Neate and Mrs. O'Conner, Skip and Mrs. Pascoe, Mrs. Argue, Mrs. Wonnacott and Mrs. Ward, Skip.

On Wednesday Abe was up to his old tricks and at Brighton won top honours: the team, Doug Row, Davie Davison, Cliff Argue and Abe, Skip.

I do not often watch the ladies; that is, when they are bowling, but playing on the next green to me on Thursday, Mrs. Neate and Mrs. Robson were playing Mrs. Legault and Mrs. O'Conner. It was one of the best bowled games I have seen on the greens this summer; the leading of Mrs Neate was perfect, in fact the whole four played a wonderful game.

Tonight is Jitney Night. Be on hand early or Phone 393.

Tuesday night club games, Skips Phone your leads.

On Friday two rinks of ladies went to Cobourg, Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Row, Mrs. Cross and Mrs. Watkin, Skip and Mrs. Flack, Mrs. Neate, Mrs. Wonnacott and Mrs. O'Conner, Skip. These girls are all "Masons"—just not talking.

We have a note at the bank that needs a little attention. I would suggest that we have a local tournament on Wednesday, July 30th. The ladies supply the eats and the men dip down as far as possible and the proceeds paid on the note. We should raise fifty dollars. Let me know what you think of this and we will act.

On Wednesday of this week Campbellford stages a mixed rink tournament. We should give them good support. Make up your teams.

Congratulations to Charlie and his crew. We expect you to win the Provincial title.

I was asking Percy Geen how he and George Pauley were doing in the club games. Percy said: "All right only George is not used to my playing yet."

On Tuesday night we had a couple from the West Toronto club, Tom and Mel, Irvine Helkey and I had a wonderful game with them. I forgot to ask the score.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

One game down the Corbys A.C. drive back at the Reliance tonight with their backs to the wall. Johnnie Bawden will doubtless get the Corby pitching assignment when the Bawden-Barriage-led nine will try to even matters with the "planetmakers." There seems to be keen rivalry between these two squads, a factor that is appreciated by the fans to create that added spicy interest, that has been lacking thus far in city softball circles this season. Most everything occurred in Friday night's game, except a direct outbreak of fisticuffs and even this was threatened as the team jockey swung into action with verbal blasts that had the fans agog. The game up the Reliance can rest Archie Major for the third game, or even use him in a relief role in the event his teammates manage to cling closely to the snarling Corby nine, who have their backs to the wall tonight. If Bawden is right Corbys should even matters, but then it's the uncertainty of the game that makes it popular.

Do you remember when Gene Tunney capped his one-year reign as world heavyweight boxing champion with an 11-round knockout over Tom Heeney of Australia 13 years ago tonight? Tunney who pocketed more than $2,000,000 in championship fights with Jack Dempsey, retired undefeated a month later.

Pete Reiser's consecutive hitting streak ended at 18 games, but he still is the best $100 ball player in the major leagues. That's all the sensational youngster cost the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the best part of it is that he promises to get even better as he goes along. The only thing he hasn't done for the Dodgers this year is take tickets, and for all he knows he might be a wow at that. He never tried.

It is unlikely district hockey fans will ever see the heralded Kingston front line of Mel Williamson, Rick Hepburn and Bobby Neilson together again. At any rate Kingston Bill Walshe laments the fact this high-scoring trio has been scattered asunder in the following remarks. Bill says: "The high scoring line of Mel Williamson at centre, with Bob Neilson on the right rail and Rick Hepburn on the left boards, that played the major part in Kingston winning the O.H.A. senior B championship last winter, is probably gone forever with Neilson planning to follow Hepburn into the navy. Neilson had been working in Kingston since he graduated from Queen's and had planned to play hockey here next winter but he left a few days ago for his home in Stratford where he hopes to enlist as a sailor. Mel Williamson is still in Kingston and will probably play hockey here next season but he will miss his two line mates, no matter how good the newcomers to local hockey may be. The combination of Williamson to Neilson, with Hepburn doing most of the defensive work, was one of the best attacking divisions in senior hockey last season. They worked together in harmony, never worrying about who was to get the credit for scores as long as the team was benefiting by their play. Bob Neilson was on Canadiens' reserve list when he played junior hockey in Stratford but he ignored pro offers to get a college education. Kingston hockey fans will wish both the popular wingers safe sailings and hope they return some day to Kingston hockey."

Sometimes it takes them a little extra time, but the New York Yankees seem to be like Old Man River these days . . . they keep rollin' right along. In the longest game played in the major leagues this season, the Yankees downed the Tigers in Detroit 12 to 6, scoring six runs in the top half of the 17th inning to take the win. It gave the league leadership a clean sweep of their series with the Tigers and boosted their lead to seven games over the stumbling Indians, who split with the Washington Senators. In the 17-inning Detroit-New York affair each club used three hurlers in the 17-innings played, Johnny Murphy getting the credit for the win. Over in the National League the Cardinals downed the Braves twice while the Dodgers were splitting with the Pirates and now we find the Dodgers only enjoying a game and a half advantage over the Red Birds.

SPORT SPICE — It was with profound regret we learned of the untimely death of Charlie Kearns, veteran Peterboro' ball and grid star. . . . "Chuck", as he was familiarly known lost his balance and fell from a boat into Rice Lake and was drowned over the week-end. . . . Possessed of a fiery nature, Chuck always played any game for the game's sake and was always trying to win. Charlie was a fighter on the off the field and had the respect of all who really knew him. . . . The Kingston Ponies returned to winning ways with a one-sided 24 to 6 win over the Hull Volants Saturday. . . . Hockey Coach Wally Elmer was in Belleville over the week-end and says Kingston is anxious to play senior "A" hockey this winter. . . . Sammy Kerr blazed through to win the Millar Golf trophy, beating Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener 3 and 1. . . . See Charlie Gehringer is back at the Tigers' keystone sack position; Dutch Meyer, his supposed successor, booting two double-play balls on Saturday. . . . Ho hum!

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, July 22
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

GREAT activity, perhaps of an unforeseen nature, is read from the dominant astral influences. There is likely to be much stirring about, with travel, correspondence, new agreements and interests, and all out of the ordinary, novel or unexpected. However, there is danger of jeopardizing lucrative and ambitious prospects by rash, impulsive and precipitate conduct as well as through carelessness in signing papers, contracts or in making verbal agreements. Loss may also threaten, as well as quarrels and disputes. Youth may prosper and find enjoyment.

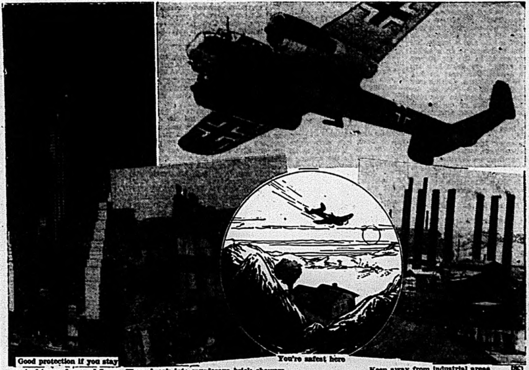
Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and eventful year, with matters taking a surprising turn. Change, travel, new, even bold and uncommon ideas and techniques, may prove lucrative and give much personal gratification. But such glowing promises may be defeated by rash or reckless acts, impetuous or aggressive moves, quarrels, arguments or violent emotions. Safe-guard papers, writings and be cautious with speech, as well. A time for youthful expression and pleasures.

A child born on this day should have many talents, with ideas and ambitions of an original, exceptional or surprising nature. It may have an eventful career but probably beset by strike, impetuosity and tumultuous adventures.

CREEPING MOUNTAIN THREATENS VILLAGE

This miner's family, living at St. Charles, Va., attempted to continue life in a normal fashion despite the fact that a huge creeping "glacier" of rock, coal and slate is slowly moving in on them. Twelve miners' cabins have already been destroyed and 70 more are threatened. This picture taken near the Bonny Blue mines shows the damage already caused by this slow moving avalanche.

BOMBING RAIDS NOT DEADLY IF YOU KNOW YOUR DWELLINGS



Good protection if you stay out of top and ground floors

These break into murderous brick showers

You're safest here

Keep away from industrial areas

City people living in modern steel and concrete apartment houses have little chance of being injured during bombing raids if they keep out of the top and ground floors, say the British society of Actuaries now making a study of bombed areas in London. The most dangerous place to be during a raid is in old brick and stone buildings that are not steel reinforced. An explosion may convert these dwellings into a murderous shower of fragments. Since enemy bombers concentrate on areas where munition factories, mines and industrial plants are located, the society advises dwellers in these vicinities to pack up and get out quickly. The safest place to live in war times is out in the country, preferably in a house with a green roof (serves as camouflage) and situated on the opposite side of a hill from which the bombers usually fly. CHAPTER 3

No Chaperon

Clara was in the swing on the porch when Marilyn skipped up the flower-grown path and took the steps two at a time. Any mail now, the Clarco check would arrive. At the door she stopped.

"Clara," she said, sincerity a tremulo in her young voice. "I'm sorry about the misunderstanding last evening. I'm happy you won, honestly I am. Just think what it means! Not only for you, but for Mums. She's never had anything like it — not in her whole life. She'll come back from New York years younger, years and years. It's you who is doing this for her ——"

Clara sat straight and belligerent in the swing. "Who told you I'm taking Ma with me on my trip?" she asked, sharply.

"But you won — it entitles you to all expenses for yourself and a chaperon—"

"A chaperon or one hundred dollars in cash!" Clara's smile was triumphant. "Ma isn't making the trip. I'm taking the hundred — in cash."

Life in the Marsh home these days was far from tranquil. Marilyn stormed, pleased, in a valiant attempt to persuade her mother she must go with Clara to New York. She even tried to frighten Mums into taking the trip by rehearsing for her, secretly, some of the dangers of the city for beautiful and unattached young women. Mums was frightened, but there was nothing she could do. Clara needed the extra money for clothes for expensive cosmetics that would accent and protect her beauty. Half of the hundred dollars was gone already, and Clara had only a few fine feathers to show for her extravagance.

In desperation, Marilyn offered to finance their mother's trip herself from the Clarco award, though she knew Clara would be stopping in expensive hotels and enjoying costly pleasures.

"The roof of the house can go on leaking," she told her father, whose ineffectuality never hurt her more than in this crisis. "The paint can go on peeling. I'll go on working full time at the Bon Ton instead of half time and do my studying at night school. I'll try to hold out five hundred for Bill. I planned to put it in the savings bank, or in bonds, something safe, and leave it there until Bill was ready for college. I know how your whole life has been centered on getting Bill to college, ever since he was born. I want it too, desperately. I hoped we might manage it when I won the thousand — a year or two of college anyhow, maybe the whole of it if Bill could help earn his way But Mums, I know she counts on being with Clara, seeing her success. It's the breath of life to her. Clara must have discouraged Mums must have let her understand she'd be a burden. Dad, see if you can't persuade mums that the thing to do is to go with Clara to New York."

"I'll try, daughter," Mr. Marsh said, in his hopeless way. "Your mother don't think so well of my opinion these late years since Clara's grown up and needs so much we can't give her. They get mad every time I pick up a book. They say I should spend that time working and maybe earning an extra dollar or two. Maybe they're right."

"You've tried your best, Dad, I know." Marilyn blinked back the tears. Poor Dad. Life certainly had been a continuous frustration for him. Quite by nature, as a bookish boy on the threshold of manhood, he had been pushed into the maelstrom of earners who must labor not only for their own existence but for the existence, or better, of a wife and a family. His ambition had been to be a geologist, to travel to the far corners of the earth, to delve into the earth's secrets. For years he had clung to his ambition, pouring over his studies, without direction, far into the night. Ambition was read now, but the love of the student for his books, his quest after knowledge, remained.

"It's been a mighty poor best," he said.

"Nonsense." Marilyn forced herself to brightness. "We've had grand times together, we Marshes. We're going to keep right on having them too. That's why I want you to speak to Mums. She needs a change She needs to get away from the dishes and the dresses — from the doing for all of us. You'll try, Dad?"

"Yes daughter, I'll try." Marilyn thought, Dad isn't young any more He isn't even middle-aged. He's old, an old man. Her heart ached for him, for that which was dead within him.

Twilight was spreading a lavender blanket over Millville. The edges of the blanket turned purple. Soon it would be dark velvet. On the Marsh veranda Marilyn pondered on the present, peered into the future, answered occasional questions popped at her by young Bill.

"Hey, Sis, wake up, will ya?" Bill brought her back from a column of figures she was adding mentally. "I asked you twice, did you see ol' Clar step out after supper?"

"No, Bill, I didn't notice. I was in my room."

"Boy, was she dolled up! You could smell her a mile, with all that junk she squirts on her. Bet she went lookin' for the theater fellow. Say whyn't she let him come lookin' for her? Men don't like girls taggin' after 'em."

Marilyn said laughingly, "Oh, so men don't like girls tagging after them? Since when have you become an expert on the affairs of men? You've had experience?"

"Aw quit kiddin'," Bill souffed his toes. "She's nuts about that ol' theater jellyfish."

"Bill, don't be like that. You don't know the man. Why do you call him a jellyfish?"

"Well, he must be a jellyfish or he wouldn't fall for that da-de-dah stuff o' Clar puts out. She makes me sick, coonin' 'round and making faces at herself in the looking glass. Hey, look, somebody's coming up the walk. It's a man. You expecting a boy friend?"

"No, Bill. Probably a friend of Dad's."

The man came into the lane of light that shone out through the front door — the man who had been in the Silver Grill with Clara! Marilyn drew back into the shadows.

"Hello, young fellow," the visitor greeted Bill who was standing agape on the top step. "Are you Bill Marsh?"

"Sure." Bill was being important, none too friendly.

"Good guess. Then you'd be the brother of Miss Clara Marsh. Does she happen to be at home this evening?"

"No, she's out. Went out right after supper."

"You wouldn't know, by chance, where I might find her?"

"You're right, I don't know. Clar wouldn't tell me the time o' day."

"No? That's not very sporting of her. The time of the day can be pretty important to a fellow. Sorry I missed your sister. We had an appointment. Must have been a mix-up. I understood I was to call for her here."

Bill melted under the ingratiating manner of the visitor.

"Maybe you'd better come up on the porch and wait," he offered. "My other sister Marilyn is here' Maybe you could talk with her till Clara turns up. Hey, Marilyn — — Sis — here's a man to see Clara."

Marilyn groaned inwardly.

"Oh — yes — yes, Bill. I must have been asleep. Some one for Clara?"

"That's it." To the visitor. "What did you say your name is please?"

"Martino. Al Martino. At your service."

Marilyn emerged from the shadows. The light from the hall touched her hair to a shining halo.

Bill announced solemnly, "Sis, this is Mister Martino. And this is my sister, Marilyn."

"Am I intruding?" Al Martino hesitated on the steps.

"Oh no — no indeed." (Marilyn thought; Bill needs strangling.) "I'll try to locate Clara. I'll try the phone."

"Please don't." The words hinted of a plea. "She's sure to be back presently. Meantime, if you don't mind a bit of a chat — you know I've been hoping I'd meet you. In fact, I made up my mind day before yesterday, when I saw you lunching in the Silver Grill, that I would not leave Millville until I did meet you."

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating supper being steak under onions, and pop said, This steak may of been an important part of an intelligent and sensitive steer, but I'm afraid he was no longer in the first flush of youth when the butcher finely tracked him down.

Now Willyum if you mean that this tenderloin is tough you're deluding yourself, but I'm not going to argue with you on this or any other subject, ma said. P. Willis Hinkle had a wonderful article in the paper to day. It was all about the hopeless futility of arguing even though you know you are right. According to P. Willis Hinkle, arguing doesn't change the other person's viewpoint once in a thousand times, but on the contrary it does stir up your own duckless glands to a harmful degree and promotes wrinkles and digestive disturbances, and I think he's quite right and from now on I intend to let the other person do the arguing while I maintain a smooth face and a serene frame of mind, she said, and pop said, P. Willis Hinkle hasn't got the sense he was born with and I doubt he ever had.

Willyum Potts, how can you make such a slighting remark about a man who has millions of readers and does oceans of untold good? ma said. I wouldn't miss his collum for all the scandles and murders in the paper, and I'm only one of countless myriads, and I don't see how you can bring yourself to say such an ignorant thing, she said, and pop said, Well, it's only one man's opinion but I think he's a prize dimwit.

Now, Willyum, I'm not going to allow such talk about a really noble character, ma said. Who are you to say such things and who are you to even think such things? ma said, and pop started to laugh like anything, saying, Why my deer, I really believe you're arguing, and about P. Willis Hinkle the high priest of serenity, of all people.

Proving he had made her argue on purpose.

Ma was opening her mail at breakfist, saying, Here's a notice from Dr. Climber. It concerns Benny, it seems he hasn't examined Benny's teeth for 6 months, and it seems every 6 months is the proverbial time if you expect to keep good sound teeth, so supposing you run around there this morning, Benny while it's on your mind, she said.

It's not on my mind, ma, G. wizzickers I dont want to go to see any dentist just for the sake of having him see me, I said, and pop said, That's not the idea. Dr. Climber's a busy man and proberly wouldn't care if he never saw you again, with all his other intrists in life. It's your teeth he wants to see, not you. Your teeth are among the most important things in your mouth, and Dr. Climber spent several years in an uncomfortable dental school just to be able to take good care of them, so the least you can do is to cooperate by giving a few minutes of your comparatively idle time, he said.

There's a little postscript added to the notice, ma said. It says, "It's also almost time for Mr. Potts to drop in," she said, and pop said, I'm glad to know it. If he had said it was quite time, I'd go at once, but he merely says it's almost time, so I'll bear it in mind, he said.

The result being I had to go by myself, and while I was waiting in the waiting room I tried to look at High-school Humor Magazine, only nothing seemed funny on account of Dr. Climber being on my mind at the same time, and my turn came and Dr. Climber told me my teeth were as sound as a bell. Making me feel more like appriciating High-school Humor, and I was going to look at it again on my way out, only I changed my mind on account of not wanting to give Dr. Climber a chance to take another look to see if he had skipped anything.

Mongrel Cared for In Dog Hospital At Sailors' Expense

Halifax, July 21 (CP)—Bingo, a big, friendly mongrel dog, lies in a veterinary hospital here today at the expense of the seadogs who man one of His Majesty's warships.

They found him wandering one night in a British town under bombardment and promptly adopted him.

Ten, weeks ago, they brought him into Halifax and a car struck him down. Bingo was taken to hospital and encased in splints and a cast.

His spine was crushed and his chances for recovery seemed slim. But, they say at the hospital now, Bingo may pull through because "he's got a heart like the boys in the navy."

Hot Weather Reduces Prairie Wheat Crop

Ottawa, July 21 (CP) — Hot weather last week reduced the Prairie wheat crop at the rate of ten million bushels a day, Trade Minister MacKinnon said on his return from the west today after a visit to his home at Edmonton and other Prairie points.

"It does seem, however, that a smaller crop is in prospect in comparison with last year, and that the western farmers' income will be lower as a esult," Mr. MacKinnon said.

Having examined temporary storage accommodation for more than 50,000,000 bushels being constructed at the lakehead, and consulted with the Wheat Board at Winnipeg, Mr. MacKinnon anticipated there will be no trouble in taking all the 1940 wheat to be marketed into storage if deliveries are made by the farmers.

"In some districts we have found the farmers are slow to market their 1940 grain, although the storage payments on this crop, which now total six cents a bushel, will cease on July 31, the end of the crop year," Mr. MacKinnon said. "For the 1941 crop the payment will be 70 cents a bushel and the quantity to be accepted from the farmers has been set at 230,000,000 bushels."

Wins 50-Mile Race In 10 Hrs. 17 Mins. To Church Service

19-Year-Old Mail Clerk and Others Race to Prove U.S. Youth Not Soft

Kansas City, July 21 (AP) — Bill Breidenthal, 19 year old mail clerk for the telephone company, was panting slightly when he attended Christian Endeavour on Sunday night.

He finished a 50-mile road race in a dead run in order to attend the service. His time was ten hours and 17 minutes.

Breidenthal was the only one of five contestants who finished the stunt race, designed to prove that American youth has not gone soft as charged by the late Brig.-Gen. E. L. Gruber.

The second place winner, Ted Morton, covered 44 miles before he gave out.

Thousands of spectators saw the race, held over a six mile course through Swope Park.

While other contestants showed up with elaborate entourages, the winner had only a 9 cent bottle of rubbing alcohol, sugar cubes, salt tablets, two amateur boxer friends —and his girl friend, Miss Frances Glesy.

The runners received no prizes.

SENATE APPROVAL SEEN FOR BILL

U.S. Measure Would Permit Government Seizure of Property for National Defence

Washington, July 21 (AP)—United States Administration leaders seeking prompt Senate approval of a Bill which would permit government seizure of property needed for National Defence predicted its passage today or tomorrow despite Republican objections and criticisms of Chairman Robert Reynolds (Dem. N.C.), of the Senate Military Committee.

The committee approved the Bill last week by a vote announced as unanimous, but yesterday Reynolds disclosed he had declined to sign the committee report because he feared the Bill was so broad as to permit even the seizure of newspapers and radio stations.

And a Republican leader of the Senate said members of his party, wary of the legislation's provisions, would want to know whether it would permit the government to take a man's shotgun, sack of flour or automobile.

Senators Alben Barkley (Dem. Ky.), the majority leader, and Tom Connally, (Dem.-Tex.), asserted however that the Bill would pass.

The Bill would authorize the President to take over for Defence purposes up to June 30, 1943, any "military or naval equipment supplies or munition, or components thereof, or machinery tools, or materials necessary for the manufacture of such equipment, supplies or munitions".

Property would be taken over only after the President had decided it was immediately needed and could not be obtained in any other way. Before seizure, the President would have to offer "fair and reasonable terms" of purchase, and "fair and just compensation" would have to be paid when property was taken.

Owners could recover it, when it was no longer needed for defence, if they paid the government a fair price.

'GENERAL' WORK IN SCHOOL UPHELD

Dr. G. F. Rogers Suggests Abolition of Homework 'Never Much Good for Children of 16 or Under'

Kingston, Ont., July 21 (CP) — Courses in some university departments are too much concerned with "honor" and not enough with "general" work to serve best the preparation of students to teach in Ontario Secondary Schools, Dr. G. F. Rogers, Deputy Minister of Education for Ontario, told students attending Queen's University Summer School last night.

"I hasten to say, however," added Dr. Rogers, "that there has been an improvement in this respect in recent years."

Dr. Rogers said that the teacher of today is under a handicap in that he has to undo the work of rival educators such as "the comic strips, and the motion pictures."

Dr. Rogers said that teachers are handicapped in their work because "many influences of today have broken up home life as we oldsters knew it 50 years ago."

As a suggestion for a means of circumventing the change in home life Dr. Rogers said, "let us abolish homework. It never was much good for children of 16 years of age and under. Let us have the work of the elementary school and that of at least two grades of high school work done between 9 and 4. We teachers could do it if we didn't talk so much."

The education minister also said that it was possible for teachers to develop in their pupils an acquired interest which might eventually become a more potent factor in his education than any natural interest.

He warned teachers to be careful how they introduced student government into their schools because of the risk in giving youngsters who have not developed a definite personality too much responsibility.

U-BOAT AFTER COLLISION

Moscow, July 21.— (AP)—The Moscow radio reported today that a German submarine in the Black Sea had sunk with all hands after collision with a Bulgarian minesweeper off the Bulgarian Port of Varna.

New Japanese Cabinet Confers With Army, Navy

Tokyo, July 21.—(AP)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye and his newly-organized cabinet conferred at the Palace today with the army and navy High Command on co-ordination between the armed services and the government.

The army and navy have taken an active part in the government reorganization, and Domei, Japanese News Agency, said the purpose of the 90-minute conference was "to establish fuller liaison and to attain unity between the government and the High Command of the National Services".

According to Domei, Konoye will outline Japanese diplomatic aims at a conference with Japanese diplomatic aims at a conference with Japanese newspapermen tomorrow and inform them then that policy decided on July second, will not be changed. What this policy is has not been divulged.

SCHOOLBOY DENIES MURDER CHARGE

Suspect Questioned in Second Attack Slaying at Salem, Mass.

Salem, Mass., July 21—(AP)— A 15-year-old schoolboy pleaded not guilty today on a charge of murdering Constance Shipp, 15, while police questioned a suspect in a second attack slaying, that of 19-year-old Frances Cochran.

Raymond F. Woodward of Reading, Mass., burst into tears when he was held without bail.

Police searching Salem woodlands in the Cochran case found a young man asleep in a parked car, near where her body was found, and took him into custody.

Police found the Shipp girl's body in the parsonage of Reading Baptist church, during the absence of the pastor and his family on vacation.

An anonymous telephone tip led police to search woods near the Salem-Swamp Scott Line yesterday, where they found the ravished body of the Cochran girl.

The Shipp girl disappeared last Tuesday while on a shopping trip.

SEES 'PROGRESSION TOWARD FAMINE'

New York, July 21 (AP)—A word picture of starvation, distress and destruction in German-occupied Greece was drawn today by Lincoln MacVeagh, United States minister to that country who said "there is nothing to stop the progress toward famine."

MacVeagh returned with his wife and daughter on the American Export liner Exeter which brought 215 passengers, of whom 68 were American citizens. He made his exit from Athens via Berlin and Lisbon and said that in the German capital the people were apathetic about the war and alarmed over increased British bombing.

He said the German armies stripped Greece of food. Greece's communications and transportation systems were completely disrupted, he said, and Piraeus, harbor for the port of Athens, is ruined.

MacVeagh said countless Greek heroes who fought the Italians in Albania are begging on the streets of Athens.

Greece's fishing fleet, he said, was destroyed and the country is cut off from other normal food sources—Central Europe and Russia.

Despite their plight, MacVeagh said, the Greeks steadfastly hope for a British victory and at night when British bombers fly over, they go out on their house-tops to cheer the airmen.

4 New Defence Vice Commissars To Assist Stalin

Moscow, July 21—(AP) — Four new vice commissars of defence were named today to assist Joseph Stalin, who now has the multiple responsibility of Premier, Secretary General of the Communist Party, Chief of State Committee of Defence and Commissar of Defence.

The new Vice Commissars are E. A. Shedenkko, Army Commissar of the First Rank; I. N. Fedorenko, a lieutenant general and tank specialist; P. R. Jigarev, Air Force Lieutenant General; A. V. Krulev, Lieutenant General for Supplies.

Previously there were eight vice commissars, including Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, now commander on the vital central sector of the eastern front and defence commissar before Stalin took over the office last week.

GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCES

Brockville, Ont., July 21 —(CP)—Joseph T. Morella, Toronto youth, and a juvenile from here who were arrested last week at Ogdensburg for attempted illegal entry into the United States in a stolen rowboat, appeared today on vagrancy charges and were given suspended sentences of six months on condition they return immediately to their homes in Toronto.

BRITAIN IS WINNING

"Colonel Britton," the man behind the BBC mike which dinned the victory mobilization broadcast in 17 European languages throughout Sunday, appealed for more V's in sound and sign across the continent and declared:—

"We in Britain are with you. Now we wait quietly and patiently until the time comes."

He said he would broadcast again Friday.

The Daily Herald threw some light on the identity of "Colonel Britton" by reporting that he is an actual British army colonel whose name is Britton—"although it may not be spelled quite that way."

Twenty-four hours after he started his Sunday morning mobilization broadcasts by thumping the Morse code V, three dots and a dash, on a big drum he declared the Nazis bewildered and the V army swelling "beyond all expectations."

British accounts of response from the continent said the campaign had stimulated the hopes—if not actual resistance—of the German-conquered peoples.

Acts of sabotage were reported from Czecho-Slovakia, where V-symbols by the thousands were said to have been scrawled on walls and fences.

Laughed Off Efforts

Similar reports told of 6,000 V-case prosecutions by German authorities in Paris, and of Nazi-baiting throughout occupied France, Belgium and the Netherlands by V-signs daubed on German official cars, on buildings, in front of hotels and in the streets; drummed in Morse code, tapped on doors and whistled in the darkness.

Britons laughed off German efforts to take over the campaign by hanging out V-signs of their own for "Viktoria."

The real German word for victory is "sieg," the British said.

The British, themselves, are having a field day with the V's—chalking them by thousands in public places from the doors of East-End slums to the Trafalgar-Square lions. Bakers sold V-shaped rolls. Women turned hat feathers into V's. Searchlights and locomotive whistles flashed and tooted Morse V's.

A report from Johannesburg said the V-campaign had swept the Union of South Africa, where the V-shaped finger salute seemed on the way to supersede the familiar "thumbs up."

BOLIVIANS HELD

Wendler Provided Channel

Another government source charged Wendler "provided the channel of communications between a Bolivian military man now in Germany and young army officers here who favor a totalitarian form of government."

Wendler intends to ask the government to show him the documents charging his alleged part in any Nazi plot, a German legation spokesman said. Meanwhile the minister is awaiting instructions from Berlin regarding his withdrawal. He is expected to quit Bolivia within a week.

The "Nationalist Revolutionary Movement" was described by administration leaders as a small party banded together with the aid of German residents of La Paz. A majority of the Germans, it was declared, worked with the Reich's diplomatic agents and financed activities by taxing the German colony.

Newsmen Taken Into Custody

Armando Arce, publisher of the newspaper La Calle, which has supported Estenssoro, was arrested, as was his assistant, Augusto Cespedes. Carlos Montenegro, publisher of a Cochabamba weekly, also was taken into custody.

Both Arce and Montenegro were named as followers of the late Gen. German Busch, pro-Nazi Bolivian dictator who committed suicide in August, 1939.

The sparkplug in the anti-Nazi editorial campaign here leading up to the government's strong action was the newspaper La Razon, owned by Carlos Victor Aramyo, rich tin operator and former diplomat.

Bogota, Colombia, July 21—(AP) —President Eduardo Santos coupled an attack on Nazism last night with reassurances to the United States that Colombia intends to see that the nearby Panama Canal "may never be attacked or damaged from our territory."

The canal "constitutes for Colombia an essential communications route, the interruption of which would cost us enormous damage," he told a joint session of Congress.

He recommended congressional approval of the Havana accord which provides machinery for the American republics to act in an emergency to prevent other foreign powers from gaining a toe-hold in the American colonies and declared: "The philosophy of Nazism is simply equivalent to the destruction of our nationality."

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 21—(AP)—A government order was in effect today suspending the pro-Nazi newspaper Libertad (Liberty) for ten days for an article attacking the Congress.

FIERCE

The Germans claimed their success in forcing the Dniester crossing opened the way for a drive in to the Ukraine from the south and imperilled the Russian Black Sea port of Odessa. The Dniester is the northern boundary of the province of Bessarabia which Russia obtained from Rumania by ultimatum a year ago.

Of the northern end of the vast line the High Command said: "On the Finnish front additional successes have been achieved."

Claim Estonia Crossed

A military writer named Von Stackelberg who is said to be close to the High Command said German forces seeking to fight their way to Leningrad "apparently already have crossed Estonia." If they had they would be about 75 miles from the city.

The Germans admitted that the Russian strategy of "scorched earth," an age-old form of guerilla warfare, was being carried out and reported that in one place tank crews threw incendiary bombs into thatched roofs of houses, setting whole villages afire before they left.

(The Russian confirmed none of these German claims, but said on the other hand that the Germans had been checked on all three major fronts in heavy fighting. They added their forces had recaptured the strategically important city of "S" which they did not name. There was speculation among military observers that the city might be Smolensk on the Moscow front which the German High Command claimed Friday to have taken.)

William Wood Killed When Crushed by Truck Wheel

Believed to have been run over by a truck he had been riding on, 21-year-old William Wood, second concession of Sidney Township farm youth, was instantly killed on a side road immediately north of Highway No. 2, eight miles west of Belleville early Sunday. Young Wood had been riding on the side of the truck, driven by Ernest Cole, a neighbour friend and directing Cole's operation as the lights of the vehicle had failed. An inquest was ordered by Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, and following identification the body was released for burial, the proceedings being adjourned until tonight. It was learned that Wood's chest had been badly crushed, causing hemorrhage of the lung.

Stood on Running Board

According to Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson, Wood was returning home from a dance when the accident occurred about one mile north of what is commonly known as Riley's Corner, off Highway No. 2. The truck is owned by Wood's parents, who were visiting in Niagara Falls at the time. Two other boys, James McCullough and Henry Hubbs were riding in the cab along with Cole, while Wood was standing on the running board acting as a look-out and directing the course of the truck as the lights of the vehicle had failed to function. Cole told police the vehicle suddenly left the road and when he brought it to a stop Wood was found lying in the road behind the truck. It is believed he fell off and the rear wheels passed over him, crushing his chest. The driver had a beginner's permit, which had expired, Constable Patterson revealed.

Born in Sidney

The late William Wood was born in Sidney Township, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Wood, well-known district residents and had lived there all of his lifetime. Besides his parents, six sisters, Mrs. Donald Matthews, of Belleville, Mrs. Walter Denyes, Sidney Township, Mrs. Clarence Jones of Niagara Falls and Misses Doris, Norma and Vivian all survive as well as one brother, Floyd Wood of this city. William Wood was a member of Centenary United Church.

The coroner's jury sitting upon the preliminary inquest before Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson was composed of Messrs. F. Potter, Chas. Cochrane, Chas. Bawden, James Perault and Frank Atchinson.

INDUSTRIAL LILLE

Defence Works Raided

During the night, coastal observers said the R.A.F. had attacked the so-called invasion coastline heavily. They believe the main night coastal assault was concentrated on new Nazi defence works near Cap Gris Nez and to the west of Boulogne.

A furious German anti-aircraft barrage could be seen flaring the sky.

In the night coastal assault the R.A.F. shot down one German fighter aircraft and lost none itself.

German night activity over the British Isles meanwhile was on a small scale but some damage and a small number of casualties were announced in bombed communities in northeast Scotland and eastern

Score Hits on Tanker

The sweep against Rotterdam and the Rhineland followed offensive operations in which British bombers swooping to mast height were reported to have scored two direct hits on a 7,000-ton German tanker.

This success, the Air Ministry said brought to nearly 260,000 tons the German vessels sunk or damaged in eight days of the R.A.F.'s protracted offensive.

Even before Sunday's attack 242,000 tons of Nazi shipping were estimated to have been sunk or seriously damaged in the previous week. Two Saturday attacks alone resulted in eight German ships being hit and sunk or damaged.

Tanker Run Ashore

A German tanker of 7,000 tons was hit in Sunday attacks by two bombs and reconnaisance planes which followed the raid reported she had been run ashore and was down at the stern with a long trail of oil pouring from her.

The tanker bore the brunt of R.A.F. activity Sunday, partly because a Saturday night foray against the German city of Hanover was handicapped by bad weather, even though it left large fires in the Hanover industrial section which were visible for some miles.

Sunday strollers on the south coast saw or heard three waves of R.A.F. craft roar across the Channel, the second and third waves departing as the preceding assailants returned.

Last week was regarded by authorities as the most successful seven days of the war against German shipping.

MOSCOW

Moscow Piled with Sandbags

The capital, roughly 230 miles from the Nazi's deepest-driven salient into Russia, has been piled with sandbags and coated with camouflage paint. Curfews clear the streets at night. Air-raid instruction posters are plastered on walls. Several alarms, although no actual bombings have been reported, have sent residents into shelters and incendiary bomb squads to roof-top posts.

(A Moscow radio report heard last night in London said the order of last week returning political commissars to the Red Army had been extended to place them also with units of the Russian fleet.)

Wrest Town in Counter Attack

The army newspaper Red Star said a Russian counter-attack had wrested from the Germans a town, identified only as "S," while the government newspaper Izvestia reported a 14-hour defense of another town in which it said 70 German tanks supported by dive bombers and motorized troops were repulsed.

The Soviet Information Bureau, without specifying the scene of the action, said the Russians wrecked 300 trucks, wiped out two battalions of German artillery and taken prisoners and military supplies and equipment.

In one account of operations behind the German front, the Information Bureau said Russians seized an air base the Germans were preparing in Northern White Russia, lay in waiting and captured two flights of German planes and their crews as they landed.

PRIME MINISTER

Headed For Singapore

Mr. Cooper—51-year-old Conservative who resigned as Prime Minister Chamberlain's First Lord of the Admiralty because he disapproved of his appeasement policy—was believed headed for Singapore, potential trouble spot if Japan should attempt an oft-predicted southward thrust.

Unlike Capt. Lyttleton who is a special Minister of State, Mr. Cooper will not be a member of the inner war cabinet. He remains a member of the government, however, by virtue of his appointment as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in place of Lord Hankey.

Other government changes saw Lord Hankey appointed Paymaster-General and 38-year-old R. A. Butler elevated from parliamentary undersecretary for Foreign Affairs to president of the Board of Education.

Ramsbotham Made Peer.

Mr. Butler replaces Herwald Ramsbotham who was appointed chairman of the Unemployment Assistance Board to succeed Lord Rushcliffe, now retired. Mr. Ramsbotham was made a Baron which gives him the title "Lord".

Initial press comment on the changes, which also included switches in several undersecretaryships, was characterized chiefly by criticism of Mr. Churchill's failure to heed oft-repeated demands for appointment of a minister of production.

Some well-informed sources, however, said Mr. Churchill was considering such an appointment and ministry at the forthcoming parliamentary debate on production.

Most observers believed the choice in that event would lie between Lord Beaverbrook, now minister of supply, and Ernest Bevin, minister of labor.

Assignment Justified.

In general, the press reaction was that Mr. Cooper's assignment to the Orient was justified.

The Daily Mail pointed out that "if there are any serious developments in that region the duties may become even more important than those in the Middle East". The same paper, however, called for "drastic departmental reorganizations" of the government, with appointment of ministers of production and civil defence and "a new start based on scientific planning".

The Daily Herald said Mr. Churchill's non-appointment of production minister was "deeply disappointing".

Political circles regarded the chances merely as a tightening of governmental machinery and reflection of Mr. Churchill's desire to get younger men into responsible positions.

Two Rape-Slayings Under Investigation

Salem, Mass., July 21 (AP) — The rape-slayings of two 'teen-aged girls held attention today in twin investigations.

An anonymously telephoned tip was gruesomely fruitful for the second time in two days when police found the ravished body of Frances M. Cochran, 19, of Lynn, Mass., yesterday in a roadside thicket here.

The brown-haired employee of a leather factory, missing since Thursday night, had been strangled to death, Medical Examiner Ignatius Zielinski said.

Soon afterward, District Attorney Robert F. Bradford announced at neighboring Reading that a 15-year-old boy was held there in the killing of Constance Shipp, also 15, whose mutilated body police discovered Saturday—also after a telephone hint—in a Reading parsonage near her home.

The dark eyed high school junior disappeared four days earlier. The parsonage was closed, the Baptist minister and his family being away on vacation.

A high school class ring and a topaz ring, still on the finger, helped Lynn Police Sergeant J. Henry Wall identify Miss Cochran's severely battered body. The forehead was gashed. A broken tree branch had been thrust into her mouth, apparently as a gag.

VIOLENT DEATHS DURING WEEKEND NUMBER TWELVE

Three Lose Lives by Drowning and Five by Motor Cars

ONE PINNED IN CAR

(By The Canadian Press.)

Week-end traffic fatalities accounted for eight of the 12 violent deaths reported in Ontario during the week-end.

Five motor deaths occurred yesterday, the last Sunday motorists may buy gasoline for duration of the war. Highways branching out on the west, west and north from Toronto were reported by Provincial traffic officers crowded with cars despite appeals to conserve gas as a wartime measure.

Orders issued last week by oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle restricting hours of sale become effective today.

Three persons lost their lives by drowning and Richard Pugh, 73, of Aurora, 25 miles north of Toronto, was killed when struck by a Canadian National Railways train as he was leading a cow across the tracks. Pugh was a deaf mute.

Abraham Sacher, 47, Toronto, died in hospital there Sunday three hours after being struck by an automobile.

Other Sunday motor fatalities were: William Woods, 22, Sidney Township, when the truck in which he was riding plunged into a ditch five miles west of Belleville. Mrs. Dorothy Doyle, Brownsburg, Que., when the car in which she was riding crashed into a parked car near Hawkesbury. Richard Lune, 69, Toronto, when his car overturned in a ditch near Miner's Bay and Andrew Watson, 6, when he stepped into the path of a machine driven by Bernard Grimm, 54, Preston Ont., on the highway near his home at Tobermory.

Albert Rouse, 60, Toronto, died Saturday from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile Friday night and Miss Mary Burns 93, Toronto, also died in hospital from injuries suffered when struck by a car Friday night. Both accidents occurred during a heavy rainstorm.

Donald Cox, 18, was killed when he was pinned in the cab of a heavy oil truck after it crashed into a tree and overturned near South Yarmouth, East of St. Thomas, on Saturday. His father, Cecil E. Cox, was seriously injured in the crash.

Walter F. N. Windeyer, 69, well-known Toronto sportsman and business man drowned Saturday night two miles northeast of the mouth of the Niagara River when he slipped from the "Iolanthe" into heavy seas. Robert Buchanan,, Toronto, fell from a boat Saturday in Shadow Lake near Lindsay and drowned.

The third drowning occurred in Rice Lake when Charles J. Kearns, 28, Peterborough sportsman, toppled into the water from a motor launch. He was sitting in a chair on the top deck, when he lost his balance.

Speaks to Canadians

E. E. Soubry, Director of the Oil Trade Board, which controls all oil activities within the British sphere, is to be guest of honour at a dinner to be given by the Honourable C. D. Howe at Ottawa on Wednesday, July 23. Mr. Soubry has been negotiating at Washington and Ottawa in behalf of Britain's oil need, and his remarks on Wednesday may give further impetus to the present campaign for the reduction of gasoline and oil throughout Canada. Mr. Soubry's talk will be picked up by network on Canadian radio stations.

Roundabout Report Says Italy May Try For Separate Peace

London, July 21 (CP)—The Moscow radio, heard here last night broadcast a roundabout report that Italy is sounding out the possibilities of a separate peace with Britain, and another report on alleged serious discord in the German high command.

In the first instance, Moscow said informed circles at Istanbul had reported that a high official of the Italian armistice commission in Syria had asked United States circles to sound out the possibilities of a separate peace.

The radio added it was not clear whether this official, "who acted on orders of Mussolini, had spoken to the Americans with sufficient authority."

Of the German high command, the radio said that several generals had been dismissed for opposing the Russian campaign and that Generals List, Stulpnagel and Palkenhorst were being "closely watched" by the Gestapo.

It said that Goering was deprived of the air command immediately after Hitler signed the war declaration June 21 and that, according to persistent rumors, a number of senior officers had committed suicide.

None of these reports were confirmed. The Russians did not mention them in their official communiques.

Landon Supports President's Policy

Topeka, Kas., July 21 (AP) — Alf M. Landon, asserting "the President has the country out on a limb now and we have got to strengthen the tree at the base," announced reluctant support yesterday of proposals to keep United States selectees and National Guardsmen under arms beyond a year.

"I am compelled by circumstances, brought about partly by the President's policies, to take the position that it is unsafe to release from service those men who have had some physical training and some fundamentals of military coordination," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee said in a broadcast.

"Today, as a nation, we are wide open. Under the protective words and bellicose policies and acts of the President and his cabinet, we have gone too far not to be armed to the teeth.

"Furthermore, if there is no stopping of Mr. Roosevelt's war policies, he will throw the finest untrained and unequipped army in the world into a shooting war."

Large Nazi Losses May Postpone Invasion Attempt

London, July 21 (CP).—The Russian campaign has cost the German army so many men and so much material, and has drawn such a big proportion of it to the Eastern Front, that Hitler probably already has decided to defer any attempt to invade Britain until next year, a reliable foreign source declared Saturday night.

It is highly improbable, he said, that the Germans now would be able to organize an invasion of England before winter. Reports from Continental agents indicate, he said that Germany had moved the best of her troops to the Eastern Front and that the mere problem of reassembling them into invasion armies in the west would take a minimum of six weeks under even the most favorable conditions.

He added:

"But favorable conditions do not exist because of two factors: One, the heavy losses in men and material inflicted by the Russians, and two, damage to communications and bases in Western Germany and along the German-occupied French 'invasion coast' inflicted by the R.A.F."

As a result Hitler probably will rely on a renewed heavy aerial offensive beginning at the end of August, this source said. This prediction recalled the warning of Prime Minister Churchill July 14, that British cities this fall and winter probably would "have to go through the same ordeal as last year only rather worse."

This informant said his reports indicated the Germans now have about 500,000 troops in France, 250,000 more spread from Norway through Denmark and the Low Countries and approximately 80,000 in Africa.

The remainder of the Nazi Army, reputed to number 2,500,000 soldiers, including the best shock and Panzer forces, are either fighting the Russian front or moving into position as reserves and reinforcements.

"Without considering the heavy losess making necessary a reformation of units," said the source, "the mere mechanics of turning such a spearhead as the Russian offensive and directing it against Britain would be a tremendous project requiring weeks of planning and weeks of execution.

"The best information now indicates that the German objective is the destruction of the Red army and occupation of Western Russia on a line from Leningrad to Astrakhan by September."

Astrakhan is at the mouth of the Volga River on the Caspian Sea, and such a line would run through Moscow and behind virtually all European Russia, including most of its industries, agriculture and raw materials.

Britons are watching with some impatience for signals of a British move to relieve German pressure against Russia. Press speculation on the feasibility of landing an expedition to create a real two-front war for Germany has tapered off, but there are signs of a growing restiveness over a lack of material support to Russia beyond the raiding of the R.A.F.

The London Times, commenting on the cordial reception given to the British-Russian alliance, said: "More indeed than enthusiasm is required to make it effective."

May Require Lifeboats To Carry Wireless And More Food, Water

London, July 21 (CP)—The government soon will require all lifeboats to carry wireless sets which automatically send distress signals as part of their equipment, a BBC announcer said today. Lifeboats also will have to be equipped with larger water tanks, more varied and nutritious foods and oils for massaging sun blisters and sores, the announcer said.

He made the announcement after an unnamed naval officer broadcast an account of near starvation and death from thirst during 23 days in an open lifeboat in the South Atlantic.

The officer said he climbed into the boat with 17 other Europeans and 64 East Indians after his liner had been sunk by a German raider. When the boat finally reached the Brazilian coast five Europeans and 25 Indians had died.

The boat carried about a tablespoonful of water for each person each day, he said, and each was allowed one biscuit a day.

Pope Pius XII Needs a Rest

Vatican City, July 21—(AP)—Pope Pius XII was described unofficially today to be suffering from nervous exhaustion and his associates were sad to have prevailed upon him to spend the hot days of next month in a rustic house in the Vatican gardens.

There is nothing alarming in the Pontiff's condition, it was stated, but he has refused to leave the Vatican during the war and has had two years of heavy work without a real rest.

To enable him to spend more time in the fresh air, the house usually occupied by his director of gardens, Augusto Issopi, has been prepared for his daytime use. The Pontiff intends to receive visitors in the Papal Palace, however, it was said.

BRITAIN NEGOTIATES $425,000,000 LOAN IN U. S.

BIG EVENTS DEVELOPING IN FAR EAST FORECAST

To Pay for Supplies Taken in U.S. Prior To Lease-Lend Bill

Great Britain Will Not Have to Sell U. S. Securities, Investments at Forced Sale

PAID MILLION MONTHLY

Washington, July 22— (AP)—The Federal Loan Agency announced today a $425,000,000 loan to Great Britain against an estimated $500,000,00 worth of collateral, to help Britain pay for war supplies ordered in the United States prior to enactment of the lend-lease program.

The loan was authorized by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with the approval of President Roosevelt and at the request of Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, the Agency said in a statement.

The deal was arranged, the statement explained, "for the purpose of providing the British with dollar exchange without having to sell their securities and investments at forced sale".

Funds to the total of $425,000,000 will be paid out to the British at the rate of approximately $100,000,000 a month, under terms of the deal, and the loan, bearing interest at 3 per ecnt annually will mature in fifteen years. It may then be extended for five years provided two-thirds of the principal has been repaid.

Interest and dividends from the collateral securities to be pledged to the R.F.C. however, plus earnings assigned to it from United States branches of 41 British Insurance companies, was described in the statement as adequate to amortize the entire loan by the end of the maturity period.

Nazis in Turkey Are Beginning To Talk 'Peace'

New York, July 22 — (CP)— Winston Burdett, Ankara correspondent for Columbia Broadcasting System, said last night in a broadcast that Germans in Turkey are beginning to talk "peace."

He said, in part:

"The real war, say the Germans now, is not in the west but in the east and they add that Berlin will always be ready to offer reasonable terms for peace.

"According to reliable reports from Germany, this peace campaign is merely the reverse side of Berlin's present agitation over the costliness and prospective dangers of her war on Russia.

"As a first step, the Germans are seeking to convince European neutrals that their salvation lies in the anti-Bolshevik crusade.

"Presumably their next step will be to try to convince Britain of the same thing. . . . Official British quarters here express plain amazement that the Germans still seriously hope that a peace can be sought in any way."

Japanese Place More Restrictions On Travel in China

Shanghai, July 22—(AP)—Further restrictions on travel through North China and Manchoukuo were reported today by foreign sources here who said all daytime train service between Peiping and Korea had been stopped.

Rialroads and ship lines also reportedly refused tickets to Japan to foreigners and Japanese civilians, on orders from Tokyo.

Meanwhile, however, Japanese shipping offices in Shanghai have resumed ticket sales for vessels leaving for Kobe, Japan, after Friday, following a 10-day ban.

Some observers said this indicated that if the Japanese have been carrying out troop or ship movements in the Kobe vicinity they are nearly completed.

British-Russian Pact Angered Berlin For Delaying "Peace Opportunities"

Ankara, Turkey, July 21 (Delayed) —(AP)—Informed sources reported today that German Ambassador Franz Von Papen had let it be known that Berlin was angered by the Russian-British pact because it had "delayed peace opportunities."

Von Papen was reported to have told a Turkish official "disgustedly" that Britain "should have known that Germany was ready to propose peace on terms of a gentlemanly agreement as soon as Russia was crushed."

These sources also reported that the ambassador expressed concern over delayed German progress against Russia although he was not alarmed. One diplomat, discussing the report about Von Papen, remarked:—

"It sounds like him. There is scarcely an ambassador or minister of neutral country in Ankara who has not been collared by Von Papen and told it was that country's God-given mission to intercede for a peace between Germany and England. He's obsessed with the idea."

It was noticeable that certain sections of the Turkish press were becoming preoccupied with reports of Russian success in delaying the German advance. Two weeks ago most papers were very caustic about Russian arms.

The real import of the delay forced on the Germans was seen in an authenticated report that the Russians were rapidly reaping a rich grain harvest in the Caucasus with no signs of labor shortage.

U.S. OFFERS TO BUY VITAL MATERIALS TO HELP RUSSIA

Problem is to Get Materials From Russia to United States

NO AMOUNT STATED

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Jesse H. Jones, United States Federal Loan Administrator, said today he had offered to buy any strategic materials which Russia might want to sell to the United States to help pay for purchases of war supplies here.

Jones told a press conference that he made the offer to Constantine Oumansky, Russian Ambassador, about a week ago, but did not know when a deal was likely.

The only difficulty, he explained, was the problem of getting the materials—particularly manganese and chromium—from western Russia to the far east port of Vladivostok and then getting ships to carry the materials to the United States.

Jones said no amount was mentioned, but added that it was fair to assume the United States would buy "all the strategic materials Rissia wants to sell and is able to deliver."

Russians Have Good Supply of Gold

The purchases, he added, would not necessarily be balanced by an equivalent amount of war materials purchases here.

"The Russians," Jones said, "have a good supply of cash—gold. They haven't asked for a loan."

The State of Commerce departments have undertaken a survey of raw materials which may be imported from Russia to aid U.S. defence, stimulate trade and help Russia pay for war supplies ordered here.

Russian products which defence agencies would like to have imported in increasing quantities, it was learned today, include strategic metals and minerals, drugs, and other basic materials.

Since Soviet Russia has been credited in authorative quarters with having from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 in cash available in this country, the plan to increase purchases from Russia was generally accepted here as further evidence that goods Russia obtains here will be primarily on a cash basis rather than on some lend-lease arrangement.

Typhoon Added To General Rains

Tokyo, July 22. (AP)—A typhoon hit the Japanese city of Shizuoka today and its wind-driven deluge was added to a week of general rains which flooded thousand of homes, inundated crops and hampered rail service.

Troops helped inhabitants to withdraw from Tsuchiura, a town of 40,000 about 40 miles northeast of Tokyo, because of the rising waters of Lake Kasumigaura.

Shizuoka is 150 miles southwest of Tokyo. Weather observers said that they expected the typhoon to pass into the sea of Japan and that the capital was cut of its centre.

Pre-typhoon rainfall, however, flooded 12,000 homes in Tokyo alone.

No Military Objectives Hit and 17 Nazi Raiders Downed in Moscow Raid

Moscow, July 22.—(AP)—German bombers struck in force for the first time at the capital of Russia last night and today, showering high explosive and incendiary bombs over the city and its outskirts for 5 1-2 hours.

The government said two hundred participated in the raid, and, although fires were started and civilians killed, the attack should be considered a failure, for no military objective whatsoever was hit and seventeen of the bombers, nearly ten per cent of the striking force were shot down by Red Air fleet night fighters and ground gunners.

(Berlin claimed the raid was one of the strongest ever made by the German Air force, comparable only to those which have been made on London, and that twenty big fires and twelve heavy explosions were observed in the Kremlin district.)

Stubborn Fighting Reported

From the front, the Soviet command reported stubborn fighting continuing into the second month of the conflict, with the lines still running through the Pskov, Polotsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Novograd Volynski areas—the same sectors before Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev which the Russians have been defending for several days.

(Authoritative sources in London said Russian forces in Bessarabia and at Odessa were endangered by a southward German thrust developing from the Kiev area down the east bank of the Dniester.)

Last All Night

The air raid on Moscow lasted from soon after dusk until nearly dawn, but found Moscow blacked out and camouflaged.

(A Russian broadcast heard in New York said "the usual atmosphere reigned in Moscow today" after the raid, with trains, trams and buses carrying their usual number of workers, collective farmers arriving in the city to sell their meat and vegetables, and everything proceeding in an "ordered, calm state.")

Berlin, July 22—(AP)—German air raiders struck at Moscow overnight in an attack described as retaliatory, while Hitler's ground forces claimed to have "torn the Soviet frontier defence into disconnected groups."

This first aerial thrust of the war against the Soviet capital, the German High Command said, was "in retaliation for Bolshevist air raids on open capitals of the Allies, Bucharest (Aumrnia) and Helsinki (Finland)."

Bomb hits in the Kremlin district, the heart of Moscow; fires east of the Kremlin and flames that spread throughout the region of the Muskva River bend, the site of power plants and Communist Party administrations, were claimed in Berlin.

"Buildings of High Soviet executive and administrative importance as well as supply industries of the city, were destroyed or badly damaged," the High Command asserted.

Claimed Thrust Heavy

Nazi spokesmen claimed the thrust was "one of the heaviest carried out by the German Air Force," comparable only to the most severe attacks on England. The High Command described Moscow as "the Bolshevist traffic and armament centre."

The start of the second month of the German drive to the east along the vast battle zone from the Arctic to the Black Sea was declared in the High Command communique to disclose a crumbling of the Soviet leadership.

"Despite stout local resistance and stubbornly conducted counter-attacks," it claimed, "uniform leadership of the enemy no longer is apparent."

German operations against individual groups were declared to "continue steadily."

The Germans claimed capture of Joseph Stalin's eldest son, 33-year-old Lieut. Jacob Stalin, son of the

Shake-up of German Generals In Russian Campaign Reported

Hitler Said to Have Relegated Keitel and Von Brauchitsch to Background Because of Poor Progress and to Have Summoned General Rommel from Libya to Collaborate With List in War Against Russia

New York, July 22 —(CP)— The New York Times said today it had received private advices last night from an unnamed European capital that Gen. Erwin Rommel, German Commander of African Forces, had been recalled from Libya to collaborate with Gen. Field Marshal List in mapping the German campaign in Russia.

According to these reports, attributed to a neutral source, Gen. Keitel, Chief of the Supreme Command of the German army, and Gen. Field Marshal Von Brauchitsch, Commander in Chief of the German armies, have been relegated to the background because of poor progress made by the Germans in the first month of the Russian campaign.

The Times report followed a Moscow radio broadcast Sunday night which said several German generals, including List, were "surrounded by Himmler agents who were to supervise the activities of these generals." The broadcast added that a number of generals had been relieved of their com- officers of the Germany army have mands and a "number of high committed suicide."

EXPERT ON RUSSIAN AFFAIRS DIES

London, July 22—(CP Cable)—Alfred Raper, 52, British expert on Finnish and Russian affairs, is feared to have been killed when a ship on which he was travelling was torpedoed on the Atlantic, the Press Association said today. He was returning to Britain from the United States. During the First Great War he was an aviation adviser to the Russians and in 1918 undertook a special mission to Finland.

SAYS FINLAND LEFT IN NO DOUBT

London, July 22—(CP) — Lord Snell, Deputy Leader of the House of Lords, told the Peers today that the British Government had "left the Finnish Government in no doubt" that Britain's friendly relations with Helsinki "might at any time be reversed in the light of events."

"The British Government," he said, "had of course ceased to issue navicerts for goods and no facilities were being given for ships proceeding to that country."

3,300 British and American Planes Built Monthly to 2,500 by Germany Is Estimate by American Machinist

New York, July 22 —(AP)— The authoritative magazine, American Machinist, estimated today Great Britain and the United States were producing 32 per cent more airplanes a month than Germany and that Russia was running close to the German production mark.

"World production of planes, according to best available estimates," said the magazine, "is around 8,000 planes a month, divided thus:—

"Germany, 2,500; Russia, 2,000; Britain, 1,800; United States, 1,500; Japan, 300; Italy, none except parts; and small amounts in British Dominions and non-German Europe."

GERMAN MILITARY CAMP IN DENMARK HEAVILY BOMBED

Other Planes Hit Railroad and Pier on the Danish Coast

CONTINUOUS RAIDS

London, July 22 (CP)—Strong Royal Air Force units roared across the Channel this afternoon in continuation of widespread raids of last night and this morning on German-held territory.

Objectives in Western Germany, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium and Northern France were attacked overnight.

This afternoon's raid seemed concentrated on the coast between Calais and Boulogne, where anti-aircraft guns blazed into action from the French cliffs, dimly outlined through the haze. The rumble of explosions rattled doors and windows on the English coast, where watchers could see the bursting of anti-aircraft shells.

From the earlier raids one British bomber failed to return, the Air Ministry said.

Only a few Germans flew against Britain last night and they concentrated on coastal areas, causing few casualties.

During the night the R.A.F. centred its heavy attacks on industrial targets and communications at Frankfurt and Mannheim while smaller forces of the bomber command attacked docks at Cherbourg and Ostend, it was said.

Fighters went on offensive patrols over Northern France and attacked Nazi airdromes in that territory.

Military Camp Bombed

Early this morning a German military camp and other unidentified objectives on the west coast of Denmark were bombed by the coastal command, it was reported.

Elaborating on the Denmark raid, the Air Ministry News Service said the German camp was enveloped in smoke and flames."

The camp made "a peach of a target in the rays of the rising sun," the Service quoted one pilot as saying. "I let go a stick of bombs and saw them burst. Debris shot up all over the place."

Other planes hit a railroad and a pier on the Danish coast, the Service added.

Only a Preliminary

It was predicted that latest bombings of the German-held continent were only preliminary to an offensive that would make previous attacks appear mild.

Some sources said the R.A.F. offensive already had destroyed about one-third of the existing German coastal shipping and had seriously affected rail traffic. Coal famine in parts of German-held territories was forecasted for the winter.

Victoria League Club Favorite Spot For Canadian Troops to Reopen Soon

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, July 22—(CP)—Destroyed by Nazi bombs last spring, the Victoria League Club here will reopen in a few weeks to become again a favorite spot for Canadian troops on London leave.

This club catered to overseas troops from the time it was organized in December, 1939, until raiders wrecked it, and the guests were predominantly Canadian. Casualties in the bombing included 10 Canadians killed and 46 wounded.

A British organization operated entirely by voluntary subscriptions from South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom, this club—known officially as "The King George and Queen Elizabeth Victoria League Club"—will again provide its 24-hour service for soldiers below commissioned rank.

Shifts of voluntary workers are responsible for the service and among these workers is Mrs. Ronald Cumming, the former Mary Hendrie of Hamilton, whose brother Maj. W. B. Hendrie, is second-in-command of a Central Ontario regiment of the 1st Canadian Division. Mrs. Cumming has lived in England for a number of years.

"We feel the club was such a spectacular success that it is being started again in a new building to help Canadian and other overseas troops," said Miss Marjorie Leaf, secretary of the Victoria League.

"We try to please the Canadians with food they like and pancakes and baked beans are specialties. A number of Canadians from Canadian military headquarters in London have rooms here all the time—our only steady boarders."

Japan Reported To Have Ordered Reservists Out

Japanese Press Charges British, Chinese and French Preparing to Invade Indo-China

MUCH COMMENT

Tokyo, July 22—(AP)—The Japanese press, which often reflects official opinion, charged today that Chinese, British and Free French were prepared to invade French French Indo-China and carried an unusually heavy mass of other dispatches concerning that territory which is listed in Tokyo's "Greater East Asia" program.

Not in weeks has there been so much copy in the newspapers concerning French Indo-China, in which Japan won three air bases last Fall, and her neighbors at the southeast tip of the continent. Datelines were Hong Kong, Hanoi and Saigon.

The German wireless carried a Tokyo dispatch stating a Government spokesman had no "confirmation" so far of "reports from Saigon, according to which British troops had invaded Southern Indo-China or are preparing an invasion."

Would Take Measures

"Measures would be taken immediately if such a violation of Indo-Chinese territory should occur since the pact between France, French Indo-China and Japan is aimed at preventing such an eventuality," the Berlin radio quoted.

(It said Tokyo papers particularly stressed "rumors regarding a secret military agreement between Great Britain and the De Gaulle group with the Chungking Government." Efforts by British and United States diplomats to form a united front with Moscow and Chungking against Japan also were charged.

(A British radio broadcast heard in New York said reports of large scale mobilization throughout Japan and requisitioning of horses and lorries indicate "big developments are imminent."

Raid on Moscow A Failure Says AP Staff Writer

By HENRY CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, July 22 (AP) — The German air force tried last night to burn out Moscow as it burned out parts of London, but it failed.

From sunset to dawn I watched a squad of Russian home guards toss incendiary bombs off the roofs and put out fires.

The raid over, life surged back through the city in the early morning as though it were noon, when thousands take their midday stroll.

The sirens whined just as the setting sun cast a glow in the sky. Then an ominous voice came over the loudspeakers warning everyone to go to their shelters.

I went to the ground floor apartment of my building which is headquarters of the house committee.

An 18-year-old boy who had been watching the roof soon came into the room with his bare head soaking wet, and his red shirt open at the throat, rubbing his fireproof gloves.

He said that an incendiary bomb had landed on the roof, but that he threw it into the courtyard. We were skeptical of his story at first, but found evidence in the burned out metal tube about a foot long. Another watcher replaced him on the roof.

Small bombs were dropped all along the street, which is in a quiet residential quarter far from central and industrial quarters. But only one house was burned. The occupants dragged out their belongings into the courtyard.

Watchers Work in Relays

As the raid continued through the night, watchers on the roofs replaced one another in relays. The constantly changing group of nine to 21 persons kept filing in and out of the first floor apartment. The automatic telephone continued to function throughout the raid, and the workers kept in constant touch with other nearby headquarters.

At the start of the raid even the luminous dial on my wrist watch caused a flutter among the nervous watchers until it was blacked out under my sleeve. But by the end of the alarm a light was turned on in the windowless room, and everyone was excitedly telling of his experiences.

The drone of planes faded gradually as dawn spread in the sky.

Daylight showed that what had seemed in darkness to have been a withering attack had been, in fact, a comparatively harmless raid.

STOLEN AUTOMOBILE LATER FOUND WRECKED

Stolen at Picton last night, an automobile owned by Samuel Hollingsworth of that town, was completely wrecked when it was found lying in the ditch along the High Shore Road near the Mountain View Airport shortly after eleven o'clock Monday night.

The occupants of the vehicle are believed to have been injured, but were not to be found when the police arrived at the scene a few minutes later. The motor car was stolen at Picton shortly before 11.00 p.m. last night and found wrecked along Highway No. 14 a few minutes later. The car rolled over three times into a flat-rock ditch and was damaged almost beyond body repair.

"There is no doubt the occupants were injured in such a crack-up," stated Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch as he collaborated with County Constable James Lovelace in the investigation of the theft and wreck.

SIDESWIPE CAUSES DAMAGE TO CAR

Losing control of his motor car after it had sideswiped a large transport near Marysville early today, an automobile driven by Wil- through a highway fence, ploughed liam Jones, of Picton, crashed and came to a halt against the through a farmer's potato patch barn on the farm of Robt. McFarlane, near Marysville. Damage amounting to over $300 resulted, while Wm. Jones, the driver and Albert Jones, a relative, escaped without serious injury, Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch reported after investigating the accident shortly after three o'clock this morning.

The motor car was proceeding westerly and clipped the rear semi-trailer of a large transport driven by L. Mills of Toronto. The lighter car then went out of control and after hurtling the ditch crashed through a fence and the garden.

LEFTY GOYER HOOKS 4-POUND TROUT

Freddie "Lefty" Goyer, former Belleville and Guelph star baseball pitcher, had some rather good angling luck near his home at Guelph last week. While fishing in the River Speed at Hi-Pot-Lo Park near Guelph, Freddie Goyer was successful in landing a trout weighing a few ounces over the four-pound mark.

Using small minnows as live bait while fishing for base, Mr. Goyer cast his line into the Speed River when the hefty trout struck. The fish measured nineteen-and-a-half inches in length, according to a newspaper clipping received from Guelph. Freddie also snared a goodly sized bass.

BANDED PIGEON MAKES SELF AT HOME

A feathered stranger in the form of a banded pigeon has arrived at the barn of Wilfred Clare at Corbyville. The bird has a yellow band on a leg, with the inscription "No.17." Making itself at home, the pigeon feeds with the Clare poultry and at present is staying in the barn.

CAR IS STOLEN FROM USED CAR LOT

Whether it had anything in common with the first night of early closing of gasoline service stations, effective as a government war measure as of seven o'clock last evening for its induction, a motor car was reported stolen from off a used car lot operated in conjunction with the Hastings Motors gasoline service station. As the service station was darkened and closed at 7.00 p.m. last evening the theft of the car was not discovered until opening time today.

Company officials reported to police that a 1932 Reo coupe, with red wheels and bearing Ontario licence plates number 5 N 378 was missing from the lot.

Decries Importance Of 'V' Campaign

London, July 22—(CP)—Hannen Swaffer, writing in the Daily Herald today, said the "V for Victory" campaign is "baby business" and asserted "V also stands for vacillation."

"Abroad the V sign may have effects on public morale," he said. "It is ridiculous, though, to assume that it will scare the enemy or reduce to impotence his power in men and machines.

"At home the V sign is just a baby business.... What we really want is a minister of production, a plan run by a mind. The rest is just the bunk."

Garnet Dafoe Dies Of Heart Seizure

Stricken suddenly by what is believed to be a heart seizure, Garnet C. Dafoe, 39, taxi-cab owner with an office at 144 Front Street, died at his home at 14 Burton St., early today. Failing to respond to her call, Mrs. Dafoe entered her husband's bedroom and discovered him in a stricken condition. Medical help was summoned but Dafoe died a few minutes later.

According to Mr. Croft Smith, in whose place of business the taxi office was located, Dafoe was in good health last night. He complained of a slight pain in his stomach but it was not deemed serious.

Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson was notified and after investigation of the circumstances decided no inquest would be held.

The late Mr. Dafoe was born 39 years ago in Thurlow Township being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dafoe; his mother died some years ago. For the past twenty-five years he resided in this city and was engaged in the taxi business for eleven years. He was accommodating and reliable and enjoyed a good share of business. In religion he was a member of the Tabernacle United Church and well esteemed by many friends to whom his sudden death has brought much regret.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Blanche Sopha; three daughters, May, Pearl and Norma all at home; his father, Mr. Harry Dafoe and his step-mother; one sister, Mrs. Charles Roper, Lindsay; one half-brother, Private Carman L. Dafoe, in the Army Service Corps at Newmarket, Ont.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, until late this Tuesday evening, then at his residence, 14 Burton Street. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

POLICE BLOTTER

Following the apprehension of six teen-aged Belleville boys wanted in Trenton for the theft of a truck, and also for attempting to break and enter Moore's service station immediately east of that town, Belleville police today apprehended a seventh lad, whose age was given as 15 years. This lad, along with the sextette of others apprehended, will be turned into the hands of Trenton police where charges are to be preferred. One of the lads was apprehended after the boys had crashed the stolen truck west of Belleville early Monday morning, the apprehension of the other six coming later.

Potatoe Plants Destroyed

Josh Canning, Yeomans Street, complained to police that mischievous children were destroying his potato plants. Mr. Canning's garden is situated directly across Yeomans Street from his home, but the destruction of the potato vines takes place after darkness has set in. Police promised to take a hand in the matter.

Car Stolen in Picton

Chief Biddle of Picton reported the theft of a 1935 model Oldsmobile from that town late Monday night. The vehicle was equipped with Ontario licence plates number S-7078. Later Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch revealed the stolen vehicle had been wrecked and abondoned on Highway No. 14 near Mountain View.

RAF Plane and Nazi Bomber Collide Killing Both Crews

London, July 22—(CP)—A German bomber and a Royal Air Force plane collided over Britain during the night and the crews of both planes were killed, an Air Ministry communique today said.

The text:

"An enemy bomber collided with an R.A.F. aircraft over home counties during last night. Both aircraft were destroyed and the crews killed.

Another R.A.F. aircraft crashed in the city of Lincoln. Occupants of the aircraft and one civilian were killed."

Service Stations Closed Promptly Monday Night

Locks clicked on the doors of city garages and service stations at sharp seven o'clock Monday night.

In keeping with the recent governmental edict prohibiting the sale of gasoline between the hours of seven p.m. and seven a.m. on weekdays and all day Sundays, these places of gasoline business were quieter than the proverbial graveyard a few minutes after the City Hall Big Ben had tolled the hour of seven.

A lot of motorists, however, were not caught napping. The majority of service stations report increased business during the mid-afternoon hours, with one garage owner stating that he had record Monday sales.

On the other hand, indication that several car owners are responding to the government's appeal for voluntary reduction of gasoline consumption, is seen in the statement of a city bus driver that he has several new passengers all of them car owner, who are making their journeys to work in buses.

Taxi owners, however, are viewing the restriction of sales with more or less concern. 'It will mean that we shall have to cut down on needless driving and take short cuts whenever possible," one said. "Week-end trips also constitute a problem, as car tanks will hold about enough gasoline to make a trip to Toronto and back. Long distance journeys will be out of the question."

Fire Chief William Lynch, commenting on the situation today, issued a warning to the driving public that all gasoline carried in vehicles must be contained in government-approved cans. Transportation in other containers will make the carrier liable to a heavy fine. While no instructions have been received by the City Fire Department as to availability of gasoline should an emergency arise at night or on Sundays, it is felt that an extra supply will be made possible to take care of anything which may arise during the hours of restricted sales.

Open Verdict Returned by Coroner's Jury

An open verdict attaching blame to no individual was returned by a coroner's jury looking into the death of 21-year-old William Wood, of Sidney Township, who was instantly killed, when he fell off a truck upon which he was standing early Sunday morning. The verdict stated that Wood came to his death from injuries received when thrown from a truck driven by E. Cole, when the lights of the vehicle went out and the truck went into the ditch. Cole is a friend and neighbour of Wood's.

James McCullough one of the passengers in the truck stated that Wood was standing on the running board of the truck directing its progress as the lights had gone out. This evidence was corroborated by others present.

"We were returning from a dance about 1 o'clock Sunday morning" he said. "The lights of the truck went out as we were travelling along the sideroad. Wood said to pull over, which Mr. Cole did. Suddenly the truck went into the ditch and bounced over a culvert."

"Wood fell off the truck but I don't know exactly where he fell," said McCullough. "The other boys went back and picked him up and we continued to his home."

The driver of the truck stated that when the lights went out he pulled the truck to the left as Wood told him. "When I thought it was going into the ditch I tried to stop it but the brakes wouldn't hold," he stated.

The driver told the jury that he had had a beginner's permit in March but it had expired. Constable R. S. Patterson, who investigated the accident, stated that the brakes on the truck were defective and that the lights would go out if jarred.

The inquest was held at the Court House before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson last evening, Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson conducting the investigation that led to the final open verdict. The jury was composed of Messrs. F. Potter, Chas. Cochrane, Charles Bawden, James Perault and Frank Atchison.

Property Seizure Bill Approved By U. S. Senate

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, July 22 (AP) — Obviously delighted at the Senate's approval of a far-reaching property seizure bill after only one day's debate, United States administration lieutenants strove today to speed up action on legislation urged by President Roosevelt to extend the military service period of selectees, national guardsmen and army reserves.

After a tumultous session the property seizure measure was approved on a voice vote late yesterday just as it came from the Senate military committee.

Still to be considered by the House of Representatives where the military affairs committee arranged to take it up today, the bill would permit the President to take over in the interest of National Defence both military and naval articles and the machinery, tools and materials for their manufacture.

But no property could be seized until the President had exhausted other means of obtaining it, and owners would have to be paid fair compensation.

President Roosevelt in a message yesterday urged that a national emergency be recognized and military personnel continued in service instead of serving the one year now required.

Senate leaders indicated, however, that instead of a general emergency resolution they would favor a simple resolution stating that the national interest was imperilled and specifically permitting extension of the service period.

In the House side, soon after the President's message was received, Chairman Andrew May (Dem-Ky.) of the military committee introduced one resolution providing for retaining the men in service and another to remove the present selective service act provision—opposed by Mr. Roosevelt—limiting to 900,000 the number of selectees who may be inducted in any one year.

Trenton and District

Trenton, July 22. — Charged under taxi owners' bylaw, Walter F. Kemp, of Sidney Township, was found guilty by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd for violation of the bylaw.

Charles A. Payne, lawyer for the accused, informed the Court that the case would be appealed and Magistrate Lloyd deferred setting the fine until the case had been stated. A. E. Smith, lawyer for the Town of Trenton, conducted the prosecution.

It was alleged that Kemp was operating a taxi business in the Town of Trenton, without having the proper licence. Mr. Payne argued that Kemp was not guilty due to the fact that the bylaw was invalid.

Magistrate Lloyd in passing judgment maintained that the bylaw although illegal in part was not illegal in the remainder.

Eleven motorists paid the usual one dollar fine for violating the parking bylaw.

Elmer Chapman pleaded guilty to a charge of issuing a forged cheque to the amount of $45.00. Magistrate Lloyd deferred passing sentence in order that Chapman might have a chance to make restitution.

Chapman admitted having his car repaired at a local garage and giving a cheque allegedly signed by his mother, Mrs. Isabel Chapman of Colborne.

Regiment Returns

Bronzed by the hot July sun, officers and men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment arrived home on Saturday. The battalion had been in training at the Connaught Ranges fifteen miles northwest of Ottawa.

Radiating health, the soldiers marched from the station to the Armouries where they were dismissed. Today they are back on their civil jobs.

Approximately sixty of the members of headquarters company have enlisted for active service, during the camp. These men were transferred to Kingston where they will be posted to various units.

Veterans' Guard

A number of veterans from town and district have recently enlisted in the Veterans' Guard and are now in training at Ottawa. These veterans will take a refresher training course before taking over duties at various interment camps and other guard duties throughout the Dominion.

Among those already enlisted and reporting at Ottawa Headquarters are Messrs. Miller, Woodacre, Phillips, Trumble, Huycke, Zufelt, Gonyea Burns, Beatty and Wigmore.

Durwood Tyler was arrested by the London police over the week-end for the Trenton police, on a charge of theft of $26.00 from his employer George Jordon, taxi proprietor. It is alleged that Tyler who was driving a taxi for Jordon absconded with the money.

New Liquid Coal Method Patented

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

State College, Pa., July 22—(AP)—A new method of making liquid coal by which coal is dissolved more completely than ever before was reported today at Pennsylvania State College.

The new fluid, when 40 per cent. of it is mixed with oil, makes a hotter fire than either coal or oil alone.

The process was discovered by Dr. Walter M. Fuchs, professor of Fuel Technology. A United States patent has been assigned by him to the Pennsylvania Research Corporation, an affiliate of the college.

The liquid coal-oil fuel promises to increase the cruising range of ships. Although heat from coal generally is cheaper than from oil, it is possible to carry more of the liquid fuel on shipboard because it permits better use of bunker space. The coal-oil mixture can be stored under a water seal, thus reducing fire risks, and in event of fire, extinguishing by water is possible.

To make the liquid, bituminous coal is treated with acids. These extract what chemists sometimes call the coal substance, which is a complex mixture of hundreds of chemicals. The extraction gets rid of mineral matter and ash. In final form the coal substance is dissolved in furfural, an inexpensive chemical available from agricultural wastes such at oat hulls, corn cobs and bran.

La Guardia Will Run for 3rd Term

New York, July 22.—(AP)—Mayor La Guardia announced last night he would run for a third term as chief city executive, but said his decision was 'contrary to my preference'.

In a broadcast he declared he had been formally requested to become a candidate by many organizations including the City Fusion Party, but that he had not been offered the Republican nomination.

The Mayor said his candidacy was against his own wishes, but he had decided to run because of repeated expressions of approval of his administration and appeals "to continue the present non-partisan, non-political government for our city".

He said he had found the dual role of being New York's Mayor as well as national director of civilian defense taxing, but that it was not beyond "human endurance".

The issue, he declared, was clear-cut between "scientified, efficient, honest city government, non-political and non-partisan and political, machine-controlled government".

Progress of Battle Of Atlantic Said "Most Satisfactory"

London, July 22 (CP)—An authoritative British source said today the progress of the battle of the Atlantic was 'most satisfactory' at present for Britain.

"Taking all factors into consideration", he added, "it is not wishful thinking to regard the future with sober confidence provided everyone in the country does his part".

The R.A.F.'s attacks on German military objectives probably hampered large ship-building operations by requiring the diversion of labor and material to repair damage, he said, and added:—

"There is a probability that the U-boat building program was affected".

R. A. F. Enjoys Favorite Game In Florida

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 22 (AP)—Royal Air Force cadets in training at nearby Lakeland and Arcadia have discovered to their pleasant surprise that their national sport—Cricket—is firmly established at this gulf coast vacation resort.

In fact, it is so well established that a team of British cadets from Lakeland went down to a 44-101 defeat in the first match with the local club.

Now the Britons, using equipment loaned by the club here, are practising hard in the hopes of turning the tables in a series of matches that has been arranged.

Cricket became a part of St. Petersburg's recreational program in 1936 when a group of Britons living here organized a team to play officers and men of H.M.S. Orion, then on a good will visit.

Balls, bats, wickets and uniforms were rushed here from Toronto and large galleries watched the contests with the men from the Orion, a ship which since had distinguished itself in battle in the Mediterranean. J. Rudd, an Australian with a notable record as a combat flier during the First Great War, was the St. Petersburg team's first captain. Oscar Turville, an Englishmen who has played considerable cricket in Philadelphia is present captain of the team.

Motorist Asked To Sign Pledge To Cut Down 'Gas' Use 50 P.C.

Toronto, July 22—(CP)—Millions of Canadian motorists will be asked within the next fortnight to pledge themselves to a 50 per cent. reduction in gasoline consumption.

The Deputy Oil Controller, J. L. Stewart, said today that pledge forms are being distributed to service stations in all provinces and that every purchaser of gasoline will be asked to sign one. The pledge on the card is "I pledge myself to go 50-50 with our fighting forces by reducing my gasoline consumption by 50 per cent."

After a motorist has signed the form he will be given a sticker with the inscription "50-50 car pledge to save gasoline."

War Correspondents Perform Heroic Deeds In Middle East

London, July 22—(CP)—War correspondents in the Middle East have established a good reputation with the services and any tendency to regard them as "chocolate soldiers" was dispelled by heroic deeds they performed, reports World's Press News, British newspaper weekly.

There was the deed of Ronald Monson in Iraq who swam 500 yards under heavy fire to rescue a wounded soldier left behind during a withdrawal.

In Libya, Alexander Clifford, London Daily Mail, and Alan Moorehead, London Daily Express, rescued a wounded officer under heavy fire and carried him back to a First Aid post.

Even more outstanding, World's Press News said, was the action of another correspondent in performing a deed of heroism under circumstances that cannot be mentioned until after the war.

Nazi Claims About Red Army Don't Hold True

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 22—(AP)—Berlin reports of a "big battle" raging in Russia "east of the Stalin line" tend of themselves to refute repeated Nazi assertions that the Red Army's resistance is fast crumbling.

Just where the action was taking place was not indicated by the Berlin spokesman. Unless it is in the critical centre, however, and represents either a widening at the base of the Smolensk salient, or a new Nazi pincer thrust eastward of that salient, it probably does not greatly change the situation which has been almost static in the centre since the German penetration to he Smolensk region.

Moscow claims that the Smolensk drive has been halted, even thrown back from the city, and that it is "contained" by Red armies massed along both notrh and south faces of the salient.

A Berlin report of renewed German pressure at Mogilev, south of the salient, in which an entire Russian division was destroyed, more or less bears out that Russian claim.

The Smolensk salient, so far as it could be defined from meagre Russian and German reports, has appeared all along too narrow to be of itself a grave menace to Red armies in the centre. Obviously the original German effort was to envelop Smolensk, not to make a frontal attack.

Pincers Hit Snag

It was reached along the road and railroad from Vitebsk, which lies to the northwest. If the Germans have succeeded in either turning the Dnieper River line from Smolensk or crossing it there has been no word of it from Berlin or elsewhere.

The southern jaw of the original Nazi pincer movement to bite off Smolensk ran into a definite snag at Mogilev. It has been halted there facing the Dnieper River defenses for days. Presumably the Moscow-reported Russian counter-attack across the Dnieper disrupted the Nazi plans.

There has been no recent word from Moscow of progress or retirement of that Russian counter-attack toward Bobruisk. If the Nazis have crossed the river at Mogilev, however, in an effort to join the forces in the Smolensk region or to turn the Dnieper line, it is obvious that the greatest success of the second phase of the German campaign may be impending.

Collapse of the Dniepet front at Mogilev probably would means the fall of the whole river line from Smolensk westward to Orsha and thence southward to Rogachev or Zhlobin or beyond. That is the central bastion of the Stalin line. Its failure to hold would open new rail and road routes eastward for the Nazis to Roslavl, south or to Bryansk, still further south and east.

Far From Crumbling

Presumably it is to the effort being made at Mogilev that the Berlin spokesman referred. A German penetration there in depth or to command the roads running north ad south just east of the Dnieper could play havoc with Russian defense of the whole central bastion of the line.

Unquestionably it would force a general retreat on a wide front to escape entrapment of whole armies, not merely divisions. Nor is it clear that the Red counter-attack south of Mogilev reported to have speared its way to Bobruisk, may not be in deadly peril of encirclement if it has not already fallen back again east of the Dnieper.

In reporting annihilation of the Red division at Mogilev, however, the Berlin spokesman admitted that Russian army resistance was for from crumbling. He described that shattered division as made up of units of four or five other. Red divisions previously cut to pieces in the first phase of the gigantic battle.

Reorganizing a division of the wreckage of several units and keeping it in the front lines and fighting would require both effective Russian staff work and good morale among the troops. To that extent the Berlin report is enemy testimony to Russian fighting spirit despite the Red army's heavy losses and many defeats.

THOMAS M. WILSON SENT TO INDIA

President Approves Appointment and Holder Will Have Rank of Minister

Washington, July 21 —(AP)— Thomas M. Wilson of Tennessee was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be commissioner to India with the rank of minister.

Wilson, a veteran foreign service officer, becomes the first United States diplomatic representative in India.

India also will send a diplomatic representative to the United States, Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai, a member of the executive council of the governor-general. He has been designated agent general for India.

Wilson, 60, and a native of Memphis, is now consul general at Calcutta, India. He was consul at Bombay from 1922 to 19[illegible]. He entered the foreign service in 1919, serving at various posts in China and at Sydney, Australia.

The United States already has direct diplomatic relations with Canada, Australia and South Africa and it is expected diplomatic representatives will be exchanged soon with New Zealand.

Whale Run Over By Large Ship But Unhurt

Montreal, July 22.—(CP)—Four probationary sub-lieutenants of the Royal Canadian Navy vouch for this story of a whale that disdained to move aside for a Canada Steamship Lines cruise ship and was run over in the St. Lawrence River below Quebec.

The four sub-lieutenants told their story last night at the end of a cruise of the S. S. Richelieu on which they were stationed for training. It happened last Tuesday, they said.

The whale was sighted ahead of the ship as its slipped down-river below Quebec. When it didn't move as the vessel approached, the ship was swung hard to port. The whale followed suit, and was struck amidships by the prow of the vessel.

Force of the blow sent the whale down under the ship, and passengers could hear it thumping along the keel of the ship as the Richelieu passed over it. At last sight, the whale was blowing, apparently unhurt, behind the ship.

Looking Back on Canada

with FRED WILLIAMS

On This Date

On this date 147 years ago Alexander Mackenzie, the great explorer of the Northwest Co. recorded that he had reached the shore of the Pacific Ocean, the first white man to do so after making the overland journey; others had come round the Horn, but this adventurous Scot was the pioneer of overland travel. On the face of a rock on Bentinck Arm he painted this inscription;

"Alexander Mackenzie from Canada by land, the twenty-second of July, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three. Lat. 52° 20' 48" N."

This rock has been preserved as an historical monument, but is an error, for he first touched salt water on the 20th. In his diary Mackenzie told of having first sighted the sea on the 20th, of how he had trouble with his Indians, who feared the tribes of the coast; of how one of his Indians left, but returned laden down with a porcupine; of how observations were delayed by a fog; of how he had found the ruins of a village, with a temple in its centre; of how the natives came in hostile mood, but palavered for a while and then left, carrying off some trifles with them. The next day, the 22nd, Mackenzie wrote:

"Two canoes arrived from the same quarter as the rest, with several men and our young Indian along with them. They brought a few very small sea otter skins, out of season, with some pieces of raw seals flesh. The former were of no value, but hunger compelled some of my people to take the latter at an extravagant price. Mr. MacKay (one of his assistants) lighted a bit of touchwood with a burning glass in the cover of his tobacco box, which so surprised the natives that they exchanged the best otter skins for it. The young man was now very anxious to persuade our people to depart, as the natives were as numerous as mosquitoes and of very malignant character; but as I was determined not to leave this place, except I was absolutely compelled to it, till I had ascertained its situation, the solicitations were not repeated. While I was taking a meridian, two canoes of a larger size and well manned appeared from the main southwest channel. They seemed to be the forerunners of others who were coming to co-operate with the people of the village, and our young Indian renewed his entreaties for our departure. In relating our danger his agitation was so great that he foamed at the mouth. Though I was not altogether free from misapprehensions on the occasion, it was necessary for me to disguise them, as my people were panic-struck and some of them asked me if it was my deterination to remain there to be sacrificed. My reply was that I would not stir until I had accomplished my object, but at the same time to humor their fears I consented that they should put everything into the canoe ready to depart."

He took his observations, painted the rock as before stated and proceeded three miles down the coast to a small point "where we could not be attacked except from our front.'

Mackenzie returned to Montreal, calling at Niagara en route and paying his respects to Governor Simcoe, and began the writing of his adventures. He afterwards represented Huntingdon in the assembly of Lower Canada, was knighted in 1802, returned to Scotland in 1808 and lived there until 1820.

THIS PROVINCE WELL SERVED

This country is witnessing today what is a proof of the rapid changes which have come upon Canada in the past few years since the advent of the automobile. Tourists, Canadian and American, have utilized the motor car and the fine highways and taking advantage of farseeing publicity are today to be found everywhere from the main highway to the hinterlands.

Ontario has the charm which appeals not only to the native but also to the tourist guest. She has her fine cities, towns, villages, hamlets and countryside and natural retreats which are the joy of everyone who has been fortunate enough to have visited them. This province, too, has antiquity enough in the midst of its progress to prove appealing to any visitor. In the northern parts she has preserved many of the evidences of the earlier civilization such as the lumbering industry which is an everlasting source of interest. Right in the midst of these areas which owed their first development to lumbering are to be found the most attractive resorts for holidaying today. They are served well by the network of highways along which traffic can move swiftly and safely as a trip through the north country indicates.

The governments of Ontario have done wisely in stressing good roads which not only serve the pleasure of holidayers but open up the country to trade, make every place more accessible and allow this province to hold its place as one of the great dairy provinces as well as a great industrial province.

Those who have not used the highways and more particularly those highways which serve the communities off the main lines and which have now been put on new main lines through the construction of the northern highways, have missed an experience of rare educational value for it is the necessity of knowledge that they should know their own country and province. Ontario in this regard has done well.

At this season the hinterlands of this country are making their appeal particularly to the people of the United States. Americans have been coming in greatly increased numbers this year and in northern centres reports are that accommodation is crowded. The tourists are there in large numbers and camps are filled up. The work of publicizing the attractions of the Dominion and Provinces has been successful.

AN AVIATION CENTRE

What aviation means in modern warfare is coming more and more to be realized by the people of the Belleville district. For a number of years they have been more or less familiar with the Trenton Air Station. Since the beginning of the war there has been greatly increased development at this airport.

A few days ago announcement was made of the future use for the duration of the war of the buildings of the Ontario School for the Deaf for one of the initial training schools under the Commonwealth Air Training Scheme. This property is to be in readiness about the first of next month for its very important work of training the air students. Then it was only last Saturday that the great Mountain View air station of the Royal Canadian Air Force was officially opened and a graduation ceremony was held.

People of the Bay of Quinte area are able to gather some notion of the immense work which is being done across Canada in connection with the training of young men for the vast air armada with which Britain is to smother the Hun menace. Those who are old enough remember the time of the first World War when at Deseronto there were two training camps, Camps Rathbun and Mohawk, and realize the immense strides which have taken place in military aviation since those days.

The plane has taken a permanent place in the life of today and will occupy an increasingly important place in the future. Today it plays its part in war as a factor the importance of which cannot be over estimated. It serves as every other factor in the national life must serve in this emergency.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS..

BY

In these days of increased production, taxes, bonuses, discussions anent the agricultural situation in Canada and organization movements designed to better the lot of the Canadian farmer, a peep into the situation in New Zealand, as written by H. B. Cowan, might reveal how much better off we are here than are the agriculturists and other residents of the sister Dominion.

Mr. Cowan, who is making a survey of economic conditions, methods of taxation, and agriculture in the sister Dominions of the Commonwealth, writes regarding New Zealand, "Farmers here are in a far more serious situation than are our Canadian farmers, yet I have to hear the first kick from them."

In brief here are some of the highlights of the situation in that Dominion:—Home markets are of little importance compared to exports......British credits are established and payment comes back in imports, but shortage of shipping has cut down these to a small figure......Cold storage plants are crammed to the roofs......Butter is not wanted......There is no extra storage for the immense surpluses that are being built up......Any attempt on the part of the government to pay for surplus production would be of little benefit, for with imports cut off, money has limited buying power.

Gas Price High

Gasoline, it is called benzine or petrol, costs 60 cents the gallon. It is severely rationed......A commercial traveller is allowed 30 gallons a month for business purposes and 4 gallons monthly for personal use.

Extensive military manoeuvres were being held in the north of the North Island. Thousands of soldiers were taking part. Immense quantities of gasoline were being used. Some one at the meeting mentioned the fact. The unanimous verdict of the meeting was that such manoeuvres were absolutely necessary if the men were to be saved from making costly mistakes later on the battle line, and, therefore, they should be allowed all the gasoline they might require.

Farm Trucks Commandeered

The government is commandeering farm trucks in an almost ruthless manner with few going to military purposes...... Farmers who have ridden to meetings have had their trucks taken while they were in attendance.

"The case of two farmers was mentioned at the meeting I attended," writes Mr. Cowan. "They were neighbors. One had one truck and the other two. The farmer with one truck had it taken by the authorities, while the farmer with two had not either taken. The meeting decided that this was poor management, and registered their decision accordingly. But, there was no suggestion of protest over the taking of trucks for military purposes. If their soldier sons and brothers needed them, then they should have them. The war must be won."

"That incident is typical of the attitude of the people over here. In open paper I counted more than four columns of men fighting in Greece who were casualties in the war. Several thousands are unaccounted for. Many are known to have been taken prisoners by the Germans. Imagine the anxiety of the people over here who are waiting to hear if their missing loved ones are among them."

Splendid Spirit

"There was a man and his wife staying at this hotel. I was talking with them frequently. Not until quite a while after I first met them did the man mention to me that his wife—not a word about himself—was worrying over their son who was in Egypt and whom they had not heard from for months. Another son was about ready to go, apparently their last. During the campaign in Greece and Crete, with many thousands from New Zealand in the thick of it, very little was being said about it here. You would mention something to someone about it. Most times about all the comment you would get would be "Yes, it looks a bit thick," or "They seem to be getting it pretty hard." But never think that they were missing anything.

"New Zealand is in the war to win. They are not counting the cost. They do not say much about it. not nearly as much as we do. A well known writer has stated that New Zealand is the most loyal of all the Dominions. It is easy for me to believe it."

When the pistol's at the back
And the sword is near to thrust,
Men submit to the attack
And obey because they must;
But their hearts will not rejoice
And their minds will not agree.
When they gain the strength for choice,
Might by right will beaten be.

When the knife is at the side
And the lash is near to sting,
Frightened people must abide
Under many a monstrous thing;
But though suffering be long
And the future dark to see,
Not forever by the wrong
Will what's right confounded be.

All the ruin wrought by force,
All the evil gained by might,
Will eventually run its course
And give way unto the right.
For though men submission give Unto power because they must,
Still the love of right will live.
That they'll never blow to dust!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Nervousness Can Raise the Blood Pressure

We know that when we get excited the heart beats faster, may pound itself against the chest wall and we may become almost breathless. Similarly, it has been found that the blood pressure rises during excitement or fear and may remain high for some time after the cause of our excitement or fear has disappeared.

However, what many of us do not know is that it may not take excitement of fear to send up our blood pressure. Just simple nervousness or even slight emotional disturbances can send up our blood pressure many points, as can also that bad habit of keeping ourselves tense most of the time.

Can this keeping of the mind and body tense, thus sending up the blood pressure, cause damage to the blood-vessels which may result in high blood pressure with the dangers of heart stroke or head stroke (apoplexy)?

Dr. Edgar A. Hines, Mayo Clinic tells of his study of 1,522 patients in an attempt to determine whether the increase in blood pressure in a normal individual during nervous stress would show that this means that the individual will develop permanent high blood pressure sooner than one who is not nervous or tensed at time of examination.

Patients were put into two groups, those that returned to clinic for re-examination after ten years and those after twenty years. For both groups the first reading or examination showed blood pressure to be somewhat higher but within normal limits, and others all within normal limits.

What did this second examination after ten and twenty years show? It was found that in those who were nervous or tense whose blood pressure nevertheless was normal at first reading had a higher blood pressure than normal for their age, ten and twenty years after.

"However, patients whose blood pressure is not raised as a result of nervous stress are unlikely to develop high blood pressure later".

The lesson for us all is plain. None of us can be blocks of stone or wood, without any feeling whatever. About us at home, at work, everywhere, are circumstances that cause us to tense our nerves and muscles. But insofar as we can, we must try to accept as calmly as possible the varying circumstances of life if we are to keep our blood pressure within normal limits.

Escape From a Meteor

What the Luftwaffe couldn't do to London almost happened to Pittsburgh in the twilight of June 24, 1938. But nobody in the smoky city had the slightest idea of the narrow escape and only now are the astronomers fully aware of it. A 500-ton meteor passed over Pittsburgh that evening, approaching the earth at an angle of 31 degrees and a speed of 1,000 feet a second (about the speed of sound waves).

The big projectile entered the earth's atmosphere at a speed of 45,000 feet a second. Air friction raised its temperature to 2,000 degrees Centigrade, many times hotter than any furnace in the Pittsburgh district. Fortunately, friction burned most of the meteor up before it struck the earth.

The intricate mathematical calculations made since on the basis of the records and observations made at the time indicate that if the meteor had come down straight, at a 90-degree angle, it would have hit Pittsburgh with the explosive energy of 10,000 tons of TNT. It would require from 2,000 to 5,000 bombers to drop that much on a city.

All of which means nothing much, since there is hardly an authentic case of a man killed by a meteor, but the record of the earth's rocks indicates that such bombings have occurred, and probably not much more infrequently than volcanic explosions of the first magnitude.

Arthur Balfour once spoke of man's story as a "discreditable episode in the history of a minor planet" but it has also been a thriller, from the escape standpoint. Maybe we will escape ourselves, eventually. — Chicago Daily News.

The Ups and Downs Of Tubbing

By IVOR BROWN
In the Manchester Guardian

It has recently been discovered by numbers of people who were accustomed to regard a bath a day as an essential part of civilized existence that such is not the case. They have been living in town houses under war conditions or in crowded country premises where the opportunities for a daily dip were denied. And they have learned that their ancestors were not necessarily dirty because they did not practise regular and total immersion.

Furthermore they have realized that a hot soak can be more enjoyable if it be the exception to the day's routine instead of part of it.

Man seems never to have made up his mind about the pleasures of cleanliness. The small boy who dodges soap behind his ears and has a distinct impression that a neck is more comfortable when unscrubbed represents the taste of many centuries; the modern citizen, luxuriating in the sense of refreshment and purification given by a good long lie in a good hot bath, represents a less frequent point of view.

The Greeks and Romans held that view strongly, and in our own time opinion has swung powerfully back to the classical ideal and put the plumber at the head of our domestic benefactors. But between the Saxons and the twentieth century the amount of time and trouble and space given to self-cleansing was never large; the matter did not greatly occupy men's minds.

Commen is often made on the enormous scope of Shakespeare's vocabulary, but reference to a Shakespeare concordance will reveal the illuminating fact that it does not include the word "soap". Yet soap was known to his period, and is mentioned in the works of his colleague and contemporary, Webster.

Silence, of course, does not imply non-existence. Sir Walter Scott, describing the Jacobean dandies in "The Fortunes of Nigel," gives full account of the courtly fashions, but he never tells us how his hero and the sparks of the town kept themselves clean of body as well as gay in caparison. James I must have perspired freely in those padded "anti-assassination" suits of his; it would have been interesting to read of his way with soap and sponge.

Dickens does not tell us much about the soap-and-water background of Victorian foppery. But that does not prove that Lord Glenvarloch was afflicted with body odor, or that a Mayfair hanger-on like Mr. Twemlow deserved to be well tubbed on a Saturday night. Because there was no rivalry of bathrooms between Veneering and Podsnap we need not conclude that both those pillars of Victorian commerce needed to be taken, scraped and sponged.

Cleanliness is a tyrannical quality, and its fanatics fiercely resent any opposite opinion or practice. In the Middle Ages, when standards of ablution seem to have been generally low, the abstainers from the washpot managed to take some moral unction to themselves (instead of soap) and proclaimed that washing in hot water particularly when that involved lying in it, was a form of sinful self-indulgence. But that retort to the self-righteousness of the soap-and-water school has not been confidently maintained. In recent years the less cleanly people, instead of proclaiming their own austerity and high moral rejection of hedonistic goings-on, have modestly preferred to keep quiet. Who would now describe soap and sponge as Satan's toys and put a steaming scrub among the deadly sins?

It is, no doubt, the convenience of modern plumbing which has so much restored cleanliness to the favor it held in Roman times. The Romans themselves were first-rate sanitary engineers and could use aqueducts and pipes efficiently. Their successors, the Saxons, seem to have destroyed with particular zest the baths constructed by the Romans, and then for more than a thousand years nobody bothered much about the business of domestic plumbing.

Water had to be carried everywhere; since it is heavy stuff, the tendency was to carry as little as might be. Hence the natural temptation to call immersion a satanic habit and a phase of the deadly sin of luxury.

Now that water is once more easily movable in most places the moralist changes sides to suit his convenience and rages at the squalor of those who do not continually run to the basin and the bath.

Our friendliness towards the tub is much conditioned by the weather. To us it seems that one touch of Summer should make the whole world wash.

But it is by no means true that people living in the heat bathe more than those more artically situated. Probably the cleanest of all peoples are the Scandinavian nations, yet their share in the sun is very much less than that of the Balkan folk, who are now rarely notable for their water cult.

If indeed there were universal bliss to be found in a good soak after sweltering sport or labor, one would expect the Mediterranean people to be the keenest of Europe's water addicts. But it is the Baltic that breeds the most aquatic tribes and stimulates belief that constancy is as precious in hot water as in any walk of life.

So we must regard the allure of the tub as one of mankind's mysteries. There have been ages that have turned on the cleansing tap and ages that saw no need for all this stripping and scrubbing. Both have yielded their share of greatness and goodness.

Most modern citizens have washed more than St. Francis or William Shakespeare, but they could hardly claim all the virtues and the virtuosity of these. Perhaps they are healthier and more comfortable than their unsponged ancestors. But even that is not certain. The ordinary English yokel has never done much tubbing, but he stoutly persists in his vigor and salubrity, and is not aware of missing a great pleasure.

CHOCOLATE AND COCOA

Chocolate is of such great importance to national defence that the federal government is making an inventory of the cacao bean supply available to America.

This nutritious product makes an ideal emergency food for soldiers, sailors and aviators who require a condensed and stimulating ration.

Chocolate is a preparation made from the large seeds or "beans" of Theobroma cacao, a small evergreen tree native to tropical America.

The cacao bean played an important part in the political economy of Mexico before the Spanish conquest.

Among the Aztecs only the upper classes were permitted to drink a beverage made from cacao beans and called a name that is the root of our word chocolate.

The Aztec used cacao beans for money and all tribute was paid in cacao beans, a value of about one cent having been arbitrarily set upon each bean by the Aztec rulers.

In 1657 a London shop began to sell chocolate at fifteen shillings a pound.

The Aztec drink became fashionable in England and several chocolate shops developed into famous clubs for political discussions in competition with the coffee clubs.

Chocolate for beverage purposes was first manufactured in the United States near Dorchester, Massachusetts, in 1765.

It was not until 1876 that a Swiss named M. D. Peter perfected a process of making chocolate for eating by combining the cacao nib, fat, condensed milk and sugar.

Now chocolate not only figures in about half of all American candy but is widely used as an ingredient of custards, puddings, pastry, cakes, ice creams, sauces, mousses, frappes and many other good things to eat.

The cacao tree has naturalized in many tropical regions and the Gold Coast of Africa in recent years has supplied the United States with more cacao beans than has Latin America, its original home.

Cocoa (the word is merely an English corruption of "cacao" as a beverage is made from original chocolate from which part of the fat, called cocoa butter, has been extracted.

Chocolate as a drink is richer and somewhat harder to prepare than cocoa.

Often no distinction is made between these two beverages and in many eating places a customer gets the same drink whether he orders cocoa or chocolate.

B. of L. F. & E. Veteran Members Given Long-Service Pins At Complimentary Dinner

Delightful Function Held at Bay of Quinte Country Club

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Years of faithful allegiance to the "brotherhood" was given singular recognition at the Bay of Quinte Country Club last night, when officials and members of Challenge Lodge No. 66 Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen paid tribute to several veteran members with the presentation of long-service pins, at a complimentary dinner-dance attended by over one hundred guests.

Headed by the dean of the brotherhood seventy-three-years-old J. Williamson, now of Toronto, who received his pin commemorating fifty years of membership in the lodge, seven veterans received twenty-five year pins emblematic of a quarter-century of service to the order.

These included Messrs. F. Garlepy, F. Morbey, J. Cockrane, L. Wood, E. Burley and S. Robinson. Mr. A. G. Cooper, assistant master mechanic of this division, was unable to be present through force of circumstances, but Mrs. Cooper received the pin in his absence. Wives of the guest veterans were presented with handsome bouquets by Mrs. O. W. Duff, wife of the General Superintendent of the Belleville Division of the Canadian National Railways.

Made Special Trip

Presentation ceremonies were conducted by Mr. T. Mattingly, General Chairman of the B. of L.F. and E., Sarnia, who made a special trip from Montreal for the occasion. Mr. Mattingly pinned the decorations on the breasts of the veterans on the orchestra dais in the dining hall of the club while admiring fellow brotherhood members and guests tendered vocal and other acclaim.

A pin emblematic of forty years membership in the brotherhood, awarded to the late Mr. Bonisteel, was given to Mr. Mattingly, who stated he would present the pin to the superintendent of the Western Division, who in turn would present it to the Bonisteel family.

The dinner-dance and ensuing program was under the able direction of Arthur Cole, who was assisted by William J. Colling. Mr. Cole in a brief address welcomed the brotherhood and its guests shortly after the dinner got under way. Adding to the general enjoyment was that famous musical pair, Messrs. Leo Riggs and S. R. (Sandy) Burrows, who led the community singing that interspersed the repast.

The lovely voice of winsome Mary Alice Rogers, who is rapidly climbing the vocal ladder of fame, was heard in two numbers, "Temple Bells" and "I dunno." Miss Rogers, whose renditions of her numbers had the tuneful piano accompaniment of Miss Leona Riggs, received a fine ovation at the conclusion of her performance. Both artists were presented with beautiful floral bouquets.

In a hilariously funny comedy skit, "Mrs. Plumpton Goes to the Movies." James Lazenby, practically brought down the house with his impersonation of his character. His allusion to members of the brotherhood evoked roars of laughter, and he concluded his act with a more or less male contralto rendition of "Bonny Mary of Argyle."

C.N.R. Breaks Records

In a brief address General Superintendent O. W Duff, told the Brotherhood and their guests that "never in its history has the Canadian National Railway been so busy as it is at present. During the past few weeks it has broken all records."

"In one day," he said, "5,285 cars passed through the division. This has meant lots of engines, men and work. The railway is calling upon its men to make superhuman efforts. In one day 585 tons of coal were consumed in the Belleville yards alone, and 90 engines were watered. We could have watered more had we had the water. I do not know what would have happened had our motive power not been the acme of perfection."

Mr. Mattingly

Congratulating Mr. Williams on his fifty years of meritorious service to the brotherhood, Mr. Mattingly stated that 'he paved the way for one of the greatest labor organizations in North America, through which has passed 67 millions odd dollars for widows, orphans and charities.'

The organization now has 23 millions, he said, six millions of which are invested with the Dominion of Canada.

Part of the pension laws had been set aside, he asserted, to the extent, where mechanics will be retained in the service after they reach the age of 65 to keep the railroad operating in war conditions.

This was done in a resolution passed by the Board of Directors to the president of the road. All mechanics will be asked to return to work in an all-out effort to win the war. It is not compulsory, but all will be asked to return. Their pension will not be paid at the time but will be increased commensurate with the time put in.

While he believed, he said, that Unemployment Insurance was one of the most advanced statutes of the Dominion, he had no doubts that in the future it would be extended to other crafts, and people in the higher paid brackets. "Right now it is the poor man's law, in which every working man is asked to assist his less fortunate brothers." He predicted Health Insurance, municipal medicine and services in the near future.

He was not in a position to say anything about the "bonus" but he felt that it would be worked out to the benefit of all concerned. The matter would be probably settled in Ottawa this week, he said.

A Major Industry

Alderman Harry Rollins, representing the business men guests at the function, expressed his thanks and stated his belief that the C. N. R. was one of the major industries of Belleville. He referred to the new addition to the industry of the "frog manufacturing" plant and stated that it would bring thirty new families to Belleville which would result in benefits to all concerned. He extended personal and collective congratulations to the veteran guests of honor and appreciation to the C. N. R. in general for what it had done for the city.

The sum of ten dollars was presented by Chairman Cole to General Foreman A. H. Jones, who is in charge of the cigarette fund for C. N. R. employees now with the Dominion troops overseas. Mr. Jones explained briefly the workings of his committee and the work they had done in forwarding the smokes to the boys in England. Upwards of 73,000 cigarettes had already been sent away, he said.

Guests included, Assistant Superintendent W. Rogers, Mr. Smith, General Secretary, Railroad Y.M.C.A., New Toronto, J. Cochrane, Lindsay, R. D. Arnott, M.P.P., and Mrs. Arnott. City business representatives were present from the Bank of Montreal, Canadian Bank of Commerce, Belvidere Hotel, City Hotel, St. Charles Motor Co., Quick and Robertson, McFee's, Wray's Furniture Store, Canadian Department Stores, United Cigar Stores, Lattimer's Drug Store, Houston Lumber Co., McCarthy Theatre, Crystal Hotel, Ciceri Food Market, J. B. Boyce Garage, McIntosh Bros. and many others.

At the conclusion of the presentation ceremonies and entertainment, bridge tables were in play in the club lounge while those who sought diversion in dancing had their opportunity in the ballroom where the Belleville Commodores dispensed lively rhythms.

R. B. to Be Known Now As Viscount Bennett

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 22—(CP Cable)—Former Prime Minister Bennett of Canada will be known simply as Viscount Bennett following his elevation to the peerage in the King's birthday honors.

Letters patent issued today described him as the Right Honorable Richard Bedford, Viscount Bennett of Mickleham County, Surrey, and Calgary and Hopewell in the Dominion of Canada.

It was authoritatively explained it will not be necessary to call him Lord Bennett of Calgary or Hopewell because there is no other Lord Bennett. Such identifying titles are only used to avoid confusion if there are other peers of the same name.

The presence of Mickleham in the patent is dictated by the heraldic requirement that a peer must "anchor himself" to some place in the United Kingdom. Calgary is Lord Bennett's former home and Hopewell, N.B., his birthplace.

It was learned reliably that Lord Bennett at one time considered the title of Lord Calgary, but discarded the idea because he did not want to change his name so late in life.

The delay in announcing the title was due to the procedure involved in obtaining approval. The new peer will take his seat in the House of Lords some time this week.

Weddings

BLAKER—KEMPSTON

A pretty wedding took place at twelve-thirty yesterday in Christ Church, when Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kempston, Belleville, became the bride of Mr. Cyril Patrick Blaker, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo B. Blaker, Belleville. The Rev. G. G. Wright performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. G. Maybee. She was lovely in a floor length gown of white silk net and lace over taffeta, fashioned with a full skirt and had long sleeves ending in a point over the hand. There were tiny buttons down the back from neck to waist. Her bouquet was of pink Briarcliffe roses and fern. The white tulle, finger tip veil was held in place with small white flowers.

The maid of honour, Annabella Kempston, sister of the bride, wore a becoming floor length gown of turquoise blue sheer over taffeta with tiny pink bows on the full skirt. Her headdress was a tulle cap of the same colour. She carried a nosegay of mixed flowers. Mr. Lionel Blaker attended his brother as groomsman.

During the signing of the register Miss Dorothy Carr sang "Because". The ushers were Mr. E. J. Bubbs and Mr. Norman Brown.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received in a dress of navy crepe with redingote of same material and wore a corsage of pink sweet peas. Her picture hat was navy and white. Keep the Waist Line Normal

Virginia Dale is demonstrating a waist slimming exercise.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DINING UP the waistline is a good occupation for the lady who has thickened amidships. It will take time, and considerable energy must be expended, but inches can be deleted. Have faith, work hard, get slenderized. It is worth the effort.

The shape or contour of the waist varies. Sometimes it is a perfect circle and that's lucky, for it is the round waist that looks the smallest and neatest. If the waist is flat front and back, extends outward at the sides, it may appear larger than the tape measure records.

The Tummy Shelf

More common than it should be is the little tummy shelf. Young girls who effect the arty debutante slouch have it. It throws the prettiest frock out of form. Just a matter of poor posture. Pull up the backbone, get on your toes, lift the chest, and the abdomen will flatten.

With the middle-aged woman the protruding abdomen is the penalty paid for side-stepping daily exercise and partaking too freely of the good things of the table. Both ages had better take a few sensible acrobatic stunts, keep the waist line normal. They'll not only look better but feel better. Tight, firm muscles mean that the internal organs will remain in place. When fibers go slack, the stomach drops and digestive process are slowed up.

An exercise that is recommended for trimming down the waist line, slenderizing hips and thighs is this one:

Lie on the back in bed, hands under the buttocks. Lift the legs slowly until you are fairly standing on the back of your neck, lower them slowly. When tired, stop and rest, take half a dozen deep breaths. Then at it again. Good fun, You'll enjoy doing it.

Torso twisting brings results. Stand erect, hands out on a level with the shoulders; swing arms and body from side to side. Works like a charm.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother's Efforts to Marry off Daughter Causes Girl To Leave Home.

Did you ever hesitate over a bargain because you thought it too good to be true?

Please acquit me of cynicism if I say the bargain-counter figure of speech may be applied to your daughter, if you are too eager to see her married. Certain mothers, still in awe of Queen Victoria's crepe veil, which cast its deportment shadow over these United States for two generations, continue to subscribe to the Victorian tenets of marriage. According to the old Queen, better for a girl to marry any shambling apology for a man than not to marry at all. Few modern girls agree to this. As for example:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Last week I cut the strings that bound me to my old home where mother, father, three younger sisters and a brother made up the only close ties I held in life. I broke these not without a wrench and the shedding of many bitter tears. But I couldn't stand my mother's frantic efforts to get me married.

"Two years ago I graduated from high school and wanted to take Vocational Training and find a job. I wasn't career-mad, and in my secret heart I hoped some time I'd meet the right man, marry him, have a home and children — all the things dear to real women since the time of Eve.

"But mother had her own ideas — to get me married as soon after my graduation as possible. Not that mother's marriage to father had been the perfect Garden-of-Eden romance. But mother saw nothing for a girl outside of marriage to anything at all in trousers.

"We girls and boys who had graduated together from high school kept up our old associations. We tried to see something of each other. We exchanged parties at each other's house. We picnicked and we danced together, and some of the bunch got jobs.

"A good many of the boys went on to college. I don't think more than one or two, perhaps, in our crowd were in a position to marry. These were the sons of rich men, and they were more interested in the Country Club set than they were in us. Still there was poor mother, crying my perfections like an auctioneer.

"When she realized — as I could have told her the day after I got my diploma — that none of my fellow classmen were in a position to marry until they had secured jobs and earned decent salaries, mother set to work on older men. She brought up acquaintances of fairly well-to-do relatives — widowers with children my age, dyed-in-the-wool bachelors, divorced men paying heavy alimony. They were all one to mother. These, and what were left of the younger set, she invited to the house, telling them how economical I was, how I could make my own dresses, never spent money on a beauty parlor, how well I could cook.

"I got to be the joke of our crowd I stayed home more and more, and when I went out I was so self-conscious that I became a pitiful specimen. No one was interested in me because mother had tried too hard to get me off her hands. In my despair I answered an advertisement for 'Mother's Helper' in a big city, one hundred miles from where we live. I wanted to get away from mother's booming of me and my perfections.

I joined the 'Y' and I found a little room in a girl's club. This I had money enough to pay for, out of presents of money given me by relatives, from time to time. I don't intend to keep on with my present job, but it's better than having mother trying to dispose of me like some marked-down commodity on a bargain counter. I intend to get up my shorthand and typing and strike for a Government job in Washington, D. C.

"Unmarriageable Girl."

If this letter should meet the eye of a mother like this girl's, I hope she'll read, mark well and inwardly digest.

Fashion Flashes

WE'RE SEEING BLACK all over town this summer. A grand little dress is of black silk crepe with three-tiered skirt, each tier edged with black net. Black net vestee, collar and cuffs.

LOUNGE AWAY in a cool, comfy housecoat. Made with a slim bodice, very full skirt and high puffed sleeves is a housecoat of white seersucker printed with clusters of roses in red, yellow and pink.

TIME AND AGAIN one finds use for a wolly cardigan while vacationing. A nice jacket is in downy white Shetland yarn with little red and blue flowers embroidered on the wide cable stripes of the knitted pattern.

WANT A DRESS that will carry over into autumn? A good choice is in dark green silk jersey, collarless with low V-line, pleated bodice, wide shirred midriff section and finely pleated skirt.

A FAVORITE with gals who summer in town is the little callot made of pasted feathers in pastels or white, set off with huge up-soaring mercury wings, the whole thing swathed in fine tulle veiling.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

HOSTESS' INVITATION SHOULD BE DEFINITE, CORDIAL

"Won't you come to visit us?" is one of the happy theme songs of these vacation days.

Let's consider some of the amenities of the invitation that the knowing and thoughtful hostess writes to her guests.

First and very important, it is the mother of the family or the hostess of the home who must send the invitation to a guest to spend a week-end or longer in the house of that family. That is, we should receive a direct invitation from the hostess; an invitation from some member of the family is not enough. For instance, a girl should never go to visit at a man's home even if he is her fiance, without an invitation from his mother. If this direct invitation seems not to be forthcoming, it is simple enough for her to say, graciously, "I would love to go, Tom. If your mother will write me that she would like to have me come. I'd hesitate to go unless I am sure that it will be perfectly convenient for her to have me."

The invitation written by the hostess, which will, of course, register hospitality, should also be definite. The invitation, besides naming the date, tells the approximate hour when the guests are expected to arrive. Very often a time-table is enclosed in the letter, with the suggested train or choice of trains marked. Information is given as to when and where the guests will be met. If the guest is arriving by car, the best route is suggested.

"What kind of clothes shall I take?" This is, as we all know, one of the first problems to solve when we receive an invitation to visit. A thoughtful hostess realizes this, and gives, in her invitation, an idea of what we will be expected to do, and therefore what kind of clothes we will need. "We're going to a dance at the Country Club ... it's one of the gala dances of the season ... on Saturday evening, and some friends of ours have invited you and Tom to come with us to a dinner they are giving at their house on Friday evening. On Saturday afternoon we are giving a tea-party so that more of our friends can meet you", definitely gives us the cue to take some "dress-up" clothes.

Or, "We live a very simple, back-to-nature life here... so bring walking-clothes and walking-shoes. No evening clothes ... they aren't 'done' here", makes us pack quite different types of clothes. It's helpful for the hostess to tell us about the "sports activities" ... swimming, golf, tennis, riding, and so forth.

Some people mistakenly think that it is rude for a hostess to tell a guest the length of time for which the guest is invited. It is far from rude; it is the essence of politeness. With this definite information, both hostess and guest make plans according to the time set, and there need then be no awkwardness or misunderstanding. "I hope you can plan to come to us on Thursday, July seventeenth, and stay until July twenty-fourth. There is an excellent express train from here at four o'clock in the afternoon."

When the invitation is for a week-end (and what a variable period is a 'week-end' nowadays!) the hostess might write, "Do, if possible, plan to come on the train that leaves the city on Friday, at four-thirty, and we'll meet you at the station here. And we hope so much that you can stay until Monday morning. There is an early Monday morning train, express and very comfortable, that the men here take to get to their offices at nine o'clock."

Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart and Frank Morgan, the principle trio in Ernest Lubitsch's gay romantic comedy, "The Shop Around the Corner," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre. Wallace Ford and Jean Parker in "Power of the Press," a splendid newspaper yarn, is number two hit.

Uncouth Table Manners Spoil Good Impression

Frequent Error at Buffet Party

A moment ago other guests at the buffet party were calling her "that lovely new girl.' But what an impression she's making now—holding her plate near her face, gripping her fork like a spear!

Such poor manners have socially blacklisted many "lovely girls" with smart hostesses and their guests.

At a buffet supper, you hold your plate on your lap or only a little above it. Your fork is always held near its end—with the prongs UP.

As for using the fork, here are a few do's and don'ts that are easy to remember.

Do eat aspics, vegetable and fruit salads with a fork—no knife, of course, except for hearts of lettuce, endive and romaine salads. Do bring your forkful of food directly to your mouth. Don't hold it in mid-air while you converse, or spear bread with it, or pack food on it with a knife!

Don't let ANY eating problem embarrass you—know how to remove pits from your mouth, where to hold the water goblet, when to eat cake with your fingers!

Our 32-page booklet tells what's correct at dinners, buffet parties, teas, restaurants, clubs. Describes what silver to use for every course, how to eat unusual foods. Explains correct table setting.

Medicine in the News

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Extraordinary cases of weakness due to lowered levels of sugar in the blood have just been reported by Drs. Thomas McP. Brown and A. M. Harvey of Baltimore in a series of patients whom they call "smoke drinkers." These people, all chronically addicted to alcohol, drink denatured alcohol in the form of "smoke."

"Smoke is prepared by adding a variety of denatured alcohols, such as varnish and paint removers, anti-freeze solutions and "canned heat", to water. The milky or smoky appearance of the mixture is what gives it its name. The odor of the breath of the drinker of "smoke" is offensive and different from that of any other alcoholic breath.

The chief symptoms are those due to a deficiency of sugar in the blood and they are reflected in the nervous system as well as in the muscles. Among other symptoms is a low temperature. All of these people were naturally of a low economic level and had been on poor diets for a long period of time. Rigidity of the extremeties is a common symptom. When these people were given large amounts of sugar directly into the veins, they improved and recovered.

Observers at the University of Iowa School of Medicine report that there was an increase in the amount of cataracts of the eye following each one of the state-wide droughts. They are inclined to believe, therefore, that such factors as prolonged exposure to extreme sunlight, dust, winds and extreme changes in temperature and humidity may be responsible. Many of the men who developed cataracts had worked under conditions in which they often received blows about the face or head or were exposed to extreme heat and various gases from furnaces and acetylene torches. However, the direct connection of such exposure to the appearance of the cataract has not been definitely traced.

As men grow older, they have less ventilation in the lung. This is called vital capacity. The vital capacity of the lungs is the amount of air that can be exhaled after the deepest possible inspiration. Obviously in a disease which blocks off any portion of the lung from breathing, or which interferes with the normal movements of bones and muscles involved in breathing or which prevents the free movement of air in the bronchial tubes, will diminish the vital capacity.

This is the open season for new theories about the manner in which infantile paralysis is spread. Most of the experimental evidence now indicates that the virus enters the body by way of the bowel and may be excreted from the bowel. Contamination with this virus would seem to be essential to inducing infection. However, we do not yet know why some people are infected and others not. There is one view that high tension electricity developed in the neighborhood has something to do with lowered resistance. Another view is to the effect that the sudden passage of cold air in the midst of a hot season may be a responsible factor. None of this evidence has been established or is of any real practical value in preventing the spread of infantile paralysis.

GERMAN MINISTER READY TO LEAVE LA PAZ, BOLIVIA

Ernst Wendler's Request for Proof He Was Involved in Plot Denied

ARMS UNCOVERED

La Paz, Bolivia, July 22—(AP)—With the departure of German Minister Ernst Wendler for Antofagasta, Chile, arranged for today the Bolivian Government had only loose ends to pull together in its investigation of a purported Nazi conspiracy to overthrow President Enrique Penaranda.

Arrest of several high-ranking Bolivian military officers, a German citizen and several civilians in Cochabamba province was reported to Penaranda last night by Defence Minister Gen. Miguel Candia. The German seized was Herman Schroth, former Lloyd Aereo Boliviano manager, Gen. Candia said.

A German legation spokesman said Wendler, his request for proof that he was involved in the alleged plot denied, would go to Antofagasta without waiting for instructions from Berlin.

Foreign Minister Alberto Ostria Gutierrez told Wendler in a note that Bolivia was empowered by the 1928 Havana inter-American convention to expel any diplomat "without being obliged to express the motives for its decision."

Wendler had denied in a note to Ostria Gutierrez that he had intervened in Bolivia's internal affairs and said his only information concerning the conspiracy, which was reported during the week-end, was what he read in the newspapers. The reports, he said, must be founded either on error or international deceit.

Substantial quantities of arms and ammunition and three secret radio transmitting sets were uncovered during the week-end, the newspaper Ultima Hora repoted.

Minister Ordered Home

Berlin, July 22—(AP)—The German Government, as reprisal, demanded today that the Bolivian Charge D'Affaires in Berlin leave Germany within three days and also protested sharply to La Paz against the Bolivian action in declaring the German minister persona non grata.

(The Bolivian Government, acting to suppress asserted plans for a Nazi coup Saturday, ordered the expulsion of German minister Ernst Wendler, but set no time limit.)

The remaining legation personnel on both sides was not affected.

The protest criticized the Bolivian action as "in defiance of all the rules of international intercourse." The protest charges that no reason was given for the unusual action to the German Government by the Bolivian Government.

"Reasons given to the Press," it was said, "of course are devoid of all foundation."

Nazi spokesmen asserted the Bolivian actions were "part and parcel of President Roosevelt's move for agitatory measures against Europe."

"His insinuations regarding German intentions toward South America are so absurd that there is no necessity for a factual rebuttal," they said. "He is trying to carry the war psychosis to Latin America to find colonial vassals there who will support his anti-European policies."

VIOLENT STORM SWEPT BRITAIN

4 Deaths, Extensive Damage and Floods Result of Furious Storm on July 12

London, July 22 (CP Cable)—A violent thunderstorm which broke a month-old heat wave caused four deaths, extensive damage and widespread floods in Britain July 12. The authorities permitted this information to be disclosed today.

The fury of the storm struck London, Wales and the Home Counties, where low-lying villages were flooded, roads blocked, houses damaged and telephone lines snapped.

Two men and a girl were killed by lightning and a seven-months-old boy drowned in a basement. During the height of the storm a factory in London suburb was destroyed after being struck by lightning. Two hundred firemen were needed to fight the flames and many escaped injury from collapsing roofs.

The drains in Hyde Park overflowed.

In several districts firemen were called out to pump water from flooded basements, in one of which the body of the baby was found. Owing to the intense heat before the storm the parents had placed the boy on a camp stool in a cool corner of the cellar.

Residents of Carnarvonshire described the storm as the "worst for several years." A number of houses and cottages in Uplands districts were flooded for hours after a cloudburst sent water gushing down the mountainsides.

In the Home Counties lightning struck and damaged a pair of semi-detached houses, burst the water main at Windsor Castle, and caused cobble stones on Castle Hill to be flung into the air.

FOUR-CAR-CLUBS ARE SUGGESTED

Would Save 50,000,000 Gallons of Gasoline Annually Says Deputy Oil Controller

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—Formation of "Four Car Clubs" to save gasoline was urged today by the deputy oil controller, J. L. Stewart. He suggested that "club" members organize on a national basis and each day, in turn, one of the four would drive the other three to and from work.

In making the suggestion Mr. Stewart announced that each year Canadians use 86,000,000 gallons of gasoline driving to work. He said the potential saving under the "Four Car Club" plan is 50,000,000 gallons annually.

Passengers cars travelled 12,000,000,000 miles in Canada last year with half this mileage made by cars registered in Ontario. More than a third of the 12,000,000,000 is estimated as pleasure travel.

Nazis Propose Plan to Exchange War Prisoners

London, July 22 (CP)—Richard Law, new undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told parliament today that the German government had offered to exchange prisoners by means of ambulance planes, but that "for practical reasons" the offer was not entirely acceptable.

The Germans now have made an "alternative suggestion" which is under consideration, Mr. Law said.

The German suggestion, he said, was a counter proposal "for repatriation by hospital or other ships made by His Majesty's government last year," and provides for the exchange to take place in neutral countries. He added:

"Meanwhile, the governments of these neutral countries with whose co-operation it is hoped that the scheme may be put into effect are being approached. The negotiations with Italy are not so far advanced as no large numbers of prisoners were in question until this year."

STAFF OFFICERS MAKE VISIT

Camp Borden, Ont., July 22 (CP)—Accompanied by a United States army attache from the American legation at Ottawa, three senior staff officers of the Fourth Armored Division of the United States army today visited the Canadian Armored Division stationed at this military training centre.

The visiting officers were Col. V. W. Pritchard, Chief of Staff to Maj.-Gen. H. W. Baird; Lt.-Col. Walter Bigby, General Staff, Motor and Supply Department, and Major Bruce Clark of the Engineers.

SHOT DOWN BY RUSSIANS

A German plane is pictured still smoking after it was shot down in flames over Russian territory. The information from Moscow accompanying the picture does not state whether the plane fell victim of anti-aircraft battery or was downed by a Russian fighter plane, but to the plane and crew it makes little difference. Only the swastika sign remains visible. This photograph was radiophotoed from Moscow.

Toronto, Kingston Cancel Meets To Save Gasoline

Other Motorboat Associations Asked by Deputy Oil Controller to Co-operate

Motorboat racing will be prohibited in the Dominion if necessary to assist in Canada's effort to conserve gasoline, Deputy Oil Controller J. L. Stewart informed Mr. Lloyd Hicks, of this city in a telephone communication today. Mr. Hicks is the newly elected Vice-Chairman of Region 13 of the American Power Boat Association, which includes the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

The Canadian National Exhibition and the Kingston Lions' Club have voluntarily cancelled their motorboat racing programs for this year, and it is expected that Picton and Valleyfield, Que., which have planned extensive motorboat regattas, will fall in line.

Deputy Oil Controller Stewart stated that in the event that clubs fail to cancel their motorboat racing programs, an order will be issued prohibiting such events.

It was pointed out that racing motorboats require an inordinate amount of high quality gasoline.

Toronto, July 22—(CP) — The program of motorboat racing at the Canadian National Exhibition has been cancelled to assist in Canada's effort to conserve gasoline.

In releasing the announcement today the Deputy Oil Controller for Canada, J. L. Stewart, said that the move "is in line with what we have to do, although the races will be missed."

It was pointed out that racing motorboats require an inordinate amount of high-quality gasoline.

Ottawa Valley Milk Producers Ask Increase

Ottawa, July 22 —(CP)— Ottawa Valley milk producers last night asked an increase of 35 cents a hundredweight in the price they receive for their milk, but no action was taken.

The request was made at a meeting of committees representing dairy farmers and the dairy companies. The proposed new scale will be sent to the Ontario Milk Control Board with a request for a conference here with consumer representatives.

Present wholesale price of milk in Ottawa is $2.10 a hundredweight, and the retail price is 12 cents a quart and seven cents a pint. Any increase in price will be borne by the consumer. Since a hundredweight of milk contains about 40 quarts, the retail price increase caused by a 35-cent increase to the producer likely would raise the retail milk price about one cent a quart.

Hon. Ian MacKenzie Bids Farewell To Prime Minister

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 22—(CP Cable)—Canadian Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie bade farewell today to Prime Minister Churchill after three weeks in Britain in which he said he "accomplished everything for which I came over."

Before the minister motored to 10 Downing Street he received Viscount Bennett, who used to cross swords with him in the Canadian House of Commons and who came to wish him bon voyage.

Mr. Mackenzie, who brought the Victory Torch to Britain, came with three main topics for discussion—air raids precautions, pensions and reconstruction problems—and had several missions to perform for Cabinet colleagues.

Home Secretary Herbert Morrison and Home Security officials gave him a broad outline of Britain's Civil Defence arrangements and loaded him down with documents and posters in case Canada wishes to adopt some of the ideas.

His tour of London yesterday with Admiral Sir Edward Evans enabled him to judge the efficiency of the British arrangements.

There was no final agreement on the main pensions problem regarding Canadians serving with the British forces but Mr. Mackenzie said the discussions went "very far towards agreement on general principle."

He discussed reconstruction with Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, Sir William Beveridge, Viscount Astor and others.

Mr. Mackenzie, who saw personnel of the Canadian forces seven times, including the Forestry Corps in Scotland, said "I never saw a body of men look as fit as they are."

Kansas City Girl Granted Annulment

Kansas City, July 22 (AP)—Pretty Lenore Long Bales was granted an annulment today of her marriage to 19-year-old Lynn V. Bowman whom she accused of forcing her to make a 225-mile ride to Wichita, Kas., barefoot and in a playsuit to talk things over."

The 18-year-old University of Kansas City student testified she eloped with Bowman to Olathe, Kas., the night of June 1 after he had threatened to "tell of an episode that would be embarrassing and humiliating to my father" if she did not marry him.

J. J. Dougherty, Justice of Peace, dismissed a car theft charge against Bowman at the request of the girl's father, Walter J. Bales, Jr. Bales brought the charge the day after the youth led his bride of two weeks from her fashionable home on the southside and drove off in his father-in-laws station wagon.

Nazis Build Bogus Berlin to Fool RAF

London, July 22.— (CP)—London newspapers are giving prominence to reports, attributed to "travellers recently come from Berlin", of a bogus Berlin, built by the Germans outside their capital to lure Royal Air Force bombers from the real target.

R.A.F. officers, however, neither confirmed nor denied the existence of such an ersatz city.

A wood-and-cardboard outline of a whole community some distance from the real Berlin, was said to have been built, reproducing such landmark as Unter den Linden and the Kurfeurstendaam, famous Berlin streets.

Also faked in the camouflage covering several square miles, these reports said, are railroad lines and such stations as the Potsdamer Bahnhof.

Air experts said if such a city exists its value is limited by modern navigation instruments which direct R.A.F. bombers to the real target.

Other reports of German efforts to camouflage landmarks in the capital say that bodies of water such as the Lietensee, a small artificial lake near the radio station, have been covered with planking to prevent the R.A.F. from using the gleam of water in starlight or moonlight as a guide.

Many roads in Germany were said to have been painted black to prevent the R.A.F. from lining up targets and it was reported that the Kaiserdamm, a main thoroughfare in Berlin, has been entirely covered with green cloth hung above the road for hundreds of yards.

Although security reasons prevent giving details, it is well known that Britain also has used camouflage extensively. Any railway traveller is able to see factories disguised and other attempts to confuse the German Air Force.

What cannot be disguised in London is the Thames winding leisurely through the city with its bridges locating targets for observant airmen.

SUPPORTS FDR PLAN TO RETAIN U.S. SELECTEES

General Palmer Declares His Opinion That 'In Order to Achieve His Aim Hitler Must Conquer or Encircle U.S.'

Washington, July 22 —(AP)—Gen. John McAuley Palmer, retired, told the Senate Military Committee today it was his opinion that Hitler, in order to accomplish his aims, must "conquer or encircle the United States.".

Testifying in support of legislation to retain United States selectees, reserves and national guardsmen in army service beyond the present limit of one year, Palmer said the army would disintegrate at a critical time if this course were not followed. "In my opinion," said Palmer, a former assistant chief of staff under Gen. John J. Pershing, "our peril is greater than it ever has been in our history. All of the forces of Nazism are deployed against us. In order to achieve his aim, Hitler must conquer or encircle the United States."

Rev. A. J. Muste, representing the Fellowship of Reconciliation, opposed the legislation on the grounds that if "decent pay" were offered, sufficient army volunteers could be obtained without what he said would be the breach of an "implied promise" that selectees would not be retained more than a year.

Administration lieutenants pushing for approval of the bill were encouraged by the Senate's endorsement of a far-reaching property seizure measure after only one day's debate.

ASKED TO REDUCE SPEED

Fredericton, July 22 (CP)—Government officials today predicted a decrease in the accident toll on New Brunswick highways as a result of the new gasoline and oil sale restrictions.

Works Minister Anderson said that with drivers being educated to a speed limit of 40 miles to conserve fuel, the number of accidents should show a considerable decline this summer.

Beaverbrook Praises Speed of Production Shown by Canada

London, July 22 (CP Cable) — Praise for the speed with which Canadians "got off the mark" in war production was expressed tonight by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Supply.

In a statement, he said: "I praise the Canadian production program. It is a most splendid enterprise.

"Above all things we are bound to admire the speed with which Canadians got off the mark.

"This production is not organized on such a wide basis as the output of Britain. None the less it has advantages owing to the swift way in which Canadian manufacturers got into production in many difficult and complicated mechanisms."

J. L. Stewart, Canada's Deputy Oil Controller, Says He Has Confidence in Patriotism of Canadian Motorists

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—J. L. Stewart, Canada's deputy oil controller, said today that he is not greatly concerned over reports that Canadian motorists may try to "beat" the gasoline and oil restrictions which came into effect yesterday. "I have too much confidence in the patriotism and sportsmanship of Canadians to think they will try to beat us," he said.

Commenting on the first day of the restrictions, which prohibit sale of gasoline from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. and on Sundays, Mr. Stewart said that he did not place much concern over reports of "bootleg" gasoline dealing. He added that if this practice is followed it will be soon reported and dealt with. After-hours selling also would be closely watched.

Mr. Stewart referred to a dispatch carried by The Canadian Press from Washington quoting Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, as saying it was the "patriotic duty" of Americans to assist in that country's effort to conserve gasoline.

American Tourists Face Same Issues

He continued that American tourists are facing the same problems as Canadians. A voluntary restriction campaign is being carried out in parts of the United States where oil and gas conservation is especially necessary.

Questioned as to the possibility of the Turner Valley oil supply being used to some extent to relieve the situation elsewhere in Canada, Mr. Stewart said that the Turner Valley supply was inadequate to look after the Prairie Provinces and it was necessary to import oil from the United States to make up the difference.

Mr. Stewart again stressed the fact that use of credit cards is "definitely out" except that American tourists credit cards to supply gasoline and oil to American cars, will be honored.

National Defence Projects Started Says Halifax Paper

Halifax, July 22.—(CP)— The Halifax Chronicle in newspage stories today reported work has started on two National Defence projects in Nova Scotia—one in the Sydney area and one near Middleton.

A story from Sydney said in part:

"Presence of a large party of surveyors . . . . today lent strength to persistent reports that Cape Breton will soon have a huge new industry—a shipbuilding plant on Sydney Harbor capable of building large merchant ships and destroyers.

"According to these reports about 1,000 acres of land have been expropriated by the Federal government . . . For this new industry which would give Cape Breton its biggest industry since erection of the Sydney steel plant.

"At the latter plant plates for shipping to be produced at the new shipbuilding plant are reported now being made and indications are that the project will be rushed to completion".

The other story, from Middleton, said in part:

"Work on a large-scale project, believed to be an air training school, covering an area of about 1,?0 acres was begun this morning at Greenwood.

"At least three or four farms have been purchased by the Federal government and parts of four or five others have been bought".

LIST 36 AIRMEN DEAD OR MISSING RCAF OVERSEAS

Increasing Tempo of Allied Air Operations Against Germany Believed Indicated by R.C.A.F. Casualty Lists

DEATHS IN CANADA

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—The increasing tempo of Allied air operations against Germany and Occupied Europe during the last few weeks was reflected indirectly today in a mountaing toll of casualties reported by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

In two lists issued simultaneously by National Defence Headquarters, 36 airmen were reported dead or missing overseas and 14 deaths in Canada were noted.

Release of today's lists—the Air Force's 56th and 57th of the war—raised to 453 total dead and missing reported by the R.C.A.F. since the outbreak of the war.

Of the three branches of the service, the Air Force so far has reported greatest losses. Total dead and missing in the Canadian (Active) Army number 346 and in the Royal Canadian Navy 371.

Spokesmen at Air Force Headquarters said they believed the rising graph of casualties in the Air Service could be attributed largely to the stepped-up offensive of the Royal Air Force.

The overseas division of the 56th casualty list showed 13 airmen killed in flying accidents, one man missing, believed killed, six missing after flying battles and four missing after operational flights.

One man, previously reported missing, was reported a prisoner of war.

Accidents in Canada

In Canada, five were reported killed in flying accidents, two drowned and one man was listed as seriously injured in a flying accident.

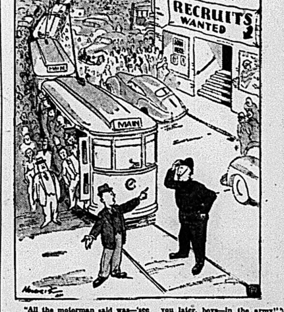
A breakdown of the 57th casualty list showed two killed in flying accidents, one missing, believed killed, six missing after flying battles, two missing after operational flights and one missing after a flying accident. These casualties were reported overseas.

In Canada, five men were reported killed in flying accidents, one in an automobile accident and one death from natural causes was reported.

Five men were designated seriously injured in automobile accidents, one dangerously ill and one seriously ill.

NAZIS SAY 'AGITATORS' SHOT

Berlin, July 22 (AP)—DNB German news agency, said today in a dispatch from Belgrade that "a large number of Communist agitators and Jews" were shot after discovery of a sabotage attempt near the Yugoslav town of Valjevo.



"All the motorman said was—'see you later, boys—in the army!'"

Only the Cleveland Indians, 7 Games Back, Have Chance To Overtake N. Y. Yankees

Teams Meet in N.Y. With Bobby Feller Hurling for Indians

DODGERS LOSE

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A week ago the big question in the American League was whether the New York Yankees would sew up the pennant in their remaining games in the west. They did.

Now the question is whether they will turn the "race" into an utter rout or let the vanquished drag along in pain a while longer.

The Bombers won 11 out of their 13 games in a triumphant swing through the western half of the circuit and have won 34 of their last 40 games in a tremendous spurt that has dwarfed the efforts of all the other clubs.

Only the Cleveland Indians, seven games back in second place, have even the remotest hope of overtaking the pacemakers and they are going to be given their last chance in a three-game series in New York today, tomorrow and Thursday.

Yanks have whipped the Tribe in nine of the 13 games they have played to date and this record is not encouraging to Cleveland fans. Their chief hope is that the Yanks will trip over a hurdle named Bob Feller and that they will have a chance to pounce on the New Yorkers, while they are down.

Beaten Yanks Three Times

Feller was to go to the mound today in quest of his 20th victory. Being the pitcher he is, the odds always are in his favor and he may get it. He has beaten the Yanks three times and lost once to them this year.

The scenery shifts in both leagues this week, with the National League action moving into the west.

The Brooklyn Dodgers stayed behind yesterday to clean up some unfinished business in the only game of the day in either loop. But instead of improving their position at the top of the senior circuit the Dodgers dropped an 8-3 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates and headed away from home last night with just a one game margin over St. Louis.

The Pirates pasted four Brooklyn pitchers for 11 hits, including a pair of two-run homers by Elbie Fletcher and Vince DiMaggio. While this was going on Lefty Ken Heintzelman held the Dodgers nicely in check on 10 hits.

The Dodgers will open their tour at Cincinnati and won't reach St. Louis for another "crucial" series with the Cardinals until next week.

Bobby Riggs Believes He Will Win Tennis Title

Sea Bright, N. J., July 22—(AP)—In the expert opinion of Bobby Riggs, the player who wins the Men's Singles Championship in the 54th annual Sea Bright tennis tournament will go on to win the national title at Forest Hills—and the little Chicagoan aims to do just that.

Somewhat of a forgotten man in the big league tennis since he lost the United States crown last September, Riggs is bent on regaining the headlines and already is teaming along nicely in his come-back. He's feeling so well, in fact, that he's aiming at winning the Sea Bright title a fourth time, which never has been done before.

"All of the stars are here, and they're all trying hard," said Bobby after his impressive first-round win yesterday. "There'll be no punches pulled and the fellow who comes out on top should get the necessary lift to carry him through the nationals."

As for himself, he feels stronger than ever before, chiefly because of added weight. "I hit about 140 now and don't get tired the way I used to," he explained.

When Riggs defeated Frank Kovacs in last year's dramatic five-set final, he became the second player to retire the Sea Bright challenge bowl, duplicating the feat of little Bill Johnston.

Bobby figures Kovacs again will be the toughest man in the field and ranks Frankie Parker and National Champ Don McNeil right behind the clowning Californian.

RAY ROBINSON WINS DECISION OVER ANGOTT

Colored Lightweight Looking for Lew Jenkins and Shot at Title

AN EASY WINNER

Philadelphia, July 22 — (AP) — They were calling Ray Robinson the lightweight division's "clean-up hitter" today as plans were started to match Harlem's skinny skyrocket with Chicago's Davey Day in the next step on his parade to the title.

The dusky dynamiter from New York punched out a clean-cut decision over one-half of the world lightweight championship in Sammy Angott before a crowd of 14,500 fans in a non-title tussle at Shibe Park last night, and immediately the fans dubbed him "the next Champ."

He can't get the other half of the crown for a while yet. That is held by Lew Jenkins, the Texas thumper who is sanctioned as boss by the New York Commission and who has a date to meet Angott in New York's Madison Square Garden Oct. 3 to clear up the lightweight follies, which were started when the N.B.A. took Lou Ambers' title away a couple of years ago.

So, to keep busy in the meantime, Robinson went looking around for possible targets and Herman Taylor, who promoted last night's show and most of those in which the Harlem Hammer has been built up to a championship contender, suggested Durable Day.

Angott fought one of his best fights last night, yet Round House Ray floored him twice and held a clean-cut edge at the finish. The 20-year-old Negro won seven of the ten rounds.

The Angott affair marked Robinson's 21st start in one year's professional fighting. He has won them all, 17 by knockouts.

FRED HUTCHINSON WINS 11 IN ROW, 19TH OF SEASON

Montreal Royals in Another Drive to Top International Loop

LEAFS IDLE

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals, who have been as low as fourth and as high as first in International League standings, appear to be off on another upward beat.

Brooklyn Dodger farmhands have won five straight games and in each case their starting pitcher has gone the route.

In fact Ed Head, in winning his 13th victory last night as Montreal topped Baltimore 7-4, turned in the poorest pitching performance, rated on number of hits allowed, of any of the five. He was nicked for 10 safeties, but was fortunate in that his mates' collection of 13 included Jack Graham's 22nd home run and five doubles.

Unlucky for Montreal, the second-place Buffalo Bisons also decided to make last night's game a winning one as they whipped the Jersey City Little Giants 5-3. That left Buffalo half a game in front of Montreal, compared to the 3 1-2 game margin bisons enjoyed before Montreal began its streak.

The Buffalo victory was pretty much all Freddy Hutchinson, who gave up six hits in winning his 11th in a row and 19th of the year.

In the night's other game Rochester Redwings continued in their slump, dropping a 2-1 decision to Syracuse Chiefs that was their sixth consecutive loss and gave them a record of one run scored in 25 innings.

The league-leading Newark Bears and Toronto Maple Leafs had a day off.

BRAVES' STAR AGAIN HURTS ANKLE

Chet Ross, Braves' left fielder, is shown being carried off the field on the arms of his teammates after injuring his ankle in the ninth inning of the first game of a doubleheader, when he slid into second base trying to beat a force-out. Ross injured the same left ankle he sprained early in the spring training and it is feared that this latest mishap will keep him out for the remainder of the season.

HEAVYWEIGHTS TO STAGE SHOW

Red Burman and Melio Bettina to Meet in Main Bout

New York, July 22 (AP)—Ebbets Field, home of Brooklyn Dodgers and therefore usually a noisy place, will be so again tonight, the promoters hope, when former football Coach Chick Meehan and boxing-wise Jimmy Bronson stage their second point promotion.

They have labelled this the "carnival of heavyweights," and to make it live up to its label have roped in six of assorted sizes and reputations.

Top billing to the 10-rounder between Clarence (Red) Burman of Baltimore and Mello Bettina of Beacon, N.Y. Last February Burman was a heavyweight title contender against Joe Louis. Last March he was touring the south in a series of one-night stands with Jimmy Braddock. This marks his return to the big time.

Bettina, who outgrew the light-heavyweight division he once ruled, has fought 23 times as a heavyweight and hasn't lost yet, having knocked out 18 of his rivals. He'll weigh about 186 to Burman's 192.

The two other 10's send Solly Krieger, Brooklyn veteran who once held the N.B.A. middleweight title, against Lee Savold of Des Moines, Ia., and Pat Comiskey of Paterson (N.J.) against Henry Cooper, another Brooklynite. Comiskey, a youngster who was rushed along too fast, is trying to come back from his one-round K.O. by Max Baer last September.

KISER'S HOMER DECIDING FACTOR IN CORBYS' WIN

Semi-Final Playoff Series Between Corbys and Reliance All Even at One Game Each

PLAY FRIDAY

"Ki" Kiser's ninth inning home run with two on the runways was the deciding factor when the Corby's A. C. evened the City Softball League semi-finals at Coleman Flats last night by downing the Reliance 9 to 7, Reliance having won the first decision in a best-in-five series that continues Friday.

Reliance moved into a commanding lead with a three-run splurge in the second and were never headed until Kiser's hard drive down the left field line went for a round-tripper and two scored ahead of him. For seven innings Ray Smith hurled strong ball and was given fine support by his team mates as Reliance garnered seven runs in the first four frames. However, Smith tired and Corby's pounced on his deliveries for five solid base blows in the ninth to score five and win, after scoring two in the eighth to make the count 7-4 going into the fatal ninth.

Bawden Touched For Ten

Johnnie Bawden ascended the hilltop for Corby's and was touched freely for ten hits and seven runs in the first four frames, but after the fourth Bawden tightened and allowed only one hit, La Bonne's ninth inning single, after the fourth. In the sixth, seventh and eight Bawden retired the Reliance in order and only four batters faced him in the ninth, as he retired 12 of the last 13 Reliance batters in order.

A walk, Henn's double and Tuttle's single gave Corby's two in the eighth, and trailing by three, Jim Barriage beat out a hit to open the ninth. Ronsky walked and Hamilton singled off Smith's chest with a hard drive, scoring Barriage. Then Kiser's big bat boomed and the show was over as Cy Barriage followed with a single and Bawden doubled to end Smith's sojourn on the Reliance hilltop. Archie Major was rushed in to fill the breach and stopped the slugging Corby's by retiring the next three batters, but the damage had been done as Bawden mowed 'em down in the ninth. Goyer, Smith and Wilkins all hit to give Reliance three in the second, while Grey, La Bonne and Goyer all hit doubles to count two more in the third. An error and singles by Pryke, La Bonne, who paced the hitters of the night, and Wilkins' second single gave Reliance the final runs in the fourth, Bawden pitching one-hit ball from that point.

Grey in left and Wilkins in right provided the fielding sensations for Reliance, as J. Barriage and Kiser made fine catches for Corby's. Henn and Whalen had three hits each for the winners, but it was Kiser's round-tripper that usurped the limelight.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

Coach Wally Elmer, who guided the destinies of the Kingston Combines to a senior "B" hockey championship last winter, was in Belleville last Saturday. Actually Wally told us he was merely stopping over to break the trip from Toronto.

"How's your baseball team getting along?" we asked Mister Elmer.

"Oh, pretty fair, but brother we're going to have a hockey team next winter that will curl your hair," boasted Mr. Elmer.

"You'll need it," we promptly replied, trying to indicate a note of superiority regarding the status of Belleville's hockey squad for 1942.

It seems Coach Elmer was in Toronto making official calls on Billie Hewitt, Secretary of the O.H.A. last week suggesting our district group be included in the Senior "A" O.H.A. groupings in the provincial hockey wars next season.

Mr. Hewitt would not give me a definite answer regarding this subject, simply because Belleville and Peterborough do not have artificial ice arenas, which are demanded of all communities sponsoring Senior "A" clubs. However, if Peterborough and Belleville could guarantee the O.H.A. there would be artificial ice plants in those cities before the 1943 season rolls around, no doubt the provincial hockey heads would consider granting senior "A" concessions in this district immediately. Remember last winter our club was idle for over two weeks after winning our senior "B" group and that isn't desired by any club, especially when they're hot from a group play-off. We don't want any more of this idling around in the future," continued Wally as he stated Kingston expected a star hockey player in from Ottawa one of these fine days.

We would like to add here and now, that it is highly possible Oshawa may join the local group in a senior puck set-up next winter.

There seems little, if any, chance of there being artificial ice facilities in either the Belleville or Peterborough rinks next season, although it would appear like a good sound investment to build a new artificial ice arena in Peterborough right now. Ken Soden, secretary of the Reliance club, says his team would not be adverse to playing senior "A" along with Peterborough, Kingston and Oshawa next season.

"Peterborough and Belleville could play their first four games on the road. That is to say journey twice to Kingston and twice to Oshawa during December and then when the natural ice facilities were available here and in Peterborough we could double up and catch up with those games played on the artificial rinks earlier in the season," suggested Secretary Soden when referring to the future hockey program of the district.

However, the only drawback here might be when play-off time rolls around. Then the O.H.A. would demand all games be played on artificial ice, and rightfully so.

Not so long ago Secretary Soden was in communication with Frank Selke, publicity manager of the Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens, regarding the recommendation of a coach. "I think I know just the man to handle your club," promised Mr. Selke, and yesterday no less a personage than M. J. "Mike" Rodden, veteran coach and former N.H.L. referee, called Mr. Soden to say Mr. Selke had acquainted him with Mr. Soden's request for a coach of the Belleville senior hockey team. Elated over the chance to produce such a proven coach, Secretary Soden immediately informed Mr. Rodden to take the next train to Belleville, where terms will be discussed regarding the veteran "silver-thatched" Mike Rodden remaining in Belleville to coach the Reliance hockey team, of which we will have more to say followng that conversation in the near future.

For eight innings Andy Grey camped on the left field foul line and caught fly balls against Corbys that actually hurt the Corby cause, but for a split second Grey chose to move from the spot, where he had enjoyed so much success all evening. The rest is rather history. "Ki" Kiser stepped to the plate, with two aboard, and hit a hard line drive within an inch of where Grey had patrolled all evening. It went for a home run and gave Corbys a 9 to 7 win over Reliance in a game, that saw the Bawden-Barriage nine well beaten for eight innings. We are not trying to blame Grey for the loss as Andy ran all over the ball yard making sensational catches the blame for the loss, if any, is attached directly into the hands of the Reliance management for not replacing pitcher Ray Smith in the eighth, when he showed signs of tiring and allowed two earned runs.

Over in the Corby camp two distinct stories can be related. First their strong eighth and ninth inning comeback to score a total of seven runs and secondly the strong pitching of Johnnie Bawden, after Reliance had scored seven runs in the first four innings. Actually after the fourth Reliance counted exactly one hit—LaBonne's ninth inning single, as Bawden retired 13 of the last 14 batters to face him, which is no mean mound chore. The Reliance hit exactly two of Bawden's pitches out of the infield in the last five innings, Grey flew to centre and Pryke to left. All even at one game each the clubs will rest until Friday when Archie Major will have to take over the Reliance pitching chore, although Smith might be a starter again. Skipper Bawden has Conn Harris with "brother Johnnie" in reserve and much depends upon the result of this third in a five-game series.

SPORT SPICE—Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies got in some practice versus the Druggist gals from the Trenton League last night, winning 13 to 2. . . . Incidentally the Big-Z team are slated to go to Peterboro' for a war charity game in the near future. . . . The Pirates whittled the Dodgers' lead to one game by winning 8-3 yesterday and it seems as though the Dodgers top-flight pitchers are having their own time winning these days. . . . The reason the Cardinals are favoured to win the National League along Broadway is the fact the Red Birds are the league's leading team at batting with a team average of .282, while Brooklyn is second with .275. . . . In fielding St. Louis is second to Cincinnati with a fielding average of .976, while the Dodgers are third in this department. . . . Red Deer, Ala., joined the Alberta Senior Hockey League yesterday, taking the Edmonton franchise. . . . Where did you get that hat?

Bees Enliven Firemen's Work

Goderich, Ont., July 22—(CP)—While firemen battled flames which finally destroyed 800 pounds of honey and several hives on George Leach's property here yesterday, the bees went after the firemen.

The firemen fought the flames with chemicals while boys fought off the bees with sticks and twigs.

A number of bees penetrated the twig barrage and scored direct hits on firemen, boys and spectators.

It's really love—as Madeleine Carroll embraces Fred MacMurray in Paramount's technicolor comedy romance, "Virginia," at the Belle until Wednesday. "The Get Away," is the added feature.

For Wednesday, July 23
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A MODERATLY successful day is read from the lunar as well as mutual aspects of the ruling planets. There should be a marked tendency toward stability and security through hard work, sound plans and objectives, in which large corporations, fraternities, political or other organizations may be found cooperative. Approach these with finesse and strategy rather than abruptness and force. The institutions, imagination and inner subtleties may prove safe and dependable.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of interesting developments which should culminate in much stability of the fortunes, position and personal prestige. This largely because of merit, industry, and sound ambitions coming to the attention of large organizations, of a political, industrial, diplomatic or even cultural nature. Seek such cooperation and recognition, using subtlety, tact, persuasion and personal magnetism rather than force or direct approach.

A child born on this day should have stability of character, sound mentality and purpose, as well as keen insight and inner vision, fitting it for a secure and worthy career. It may accumulate property or enjoy inheritance.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

Chapter 4
Changes

The surprise visit on the veranda was the start of Al Martino's pursuit of Marilyn Marsh. There was nothing subtle about his methods. Frankly he was infatuated. He made no attempt to conceal his infatuation. He bombarded her with invitations, with thoughtful and well-chosen gifts of candy, flowers, books — the conventional presents of a proper young man. He prolonged his stay in Millville long past the necessity of business.

"Please," she begged him, when the atmosphere in the Marsh home became almost unendurable. "I'm not interested in you, Al, I like you well enough, but there are — circumstances I can't explain. Be a lamb, will you, and let's just nod as we pass by?"

"I don't like lambs." Al was stubborn. "They bleat."

"But if I tell you you're making a lot of trouble for me, for all of us? I must ask you not to try to see me again and not to send me another gift. I'd have to return it, and I hate hurting people."

"You ask me to whistle myself off, but it won't do any good because the answer is that I'm not letting the heartbeat of my life pass on with a nod. I'm not such a bad fellow when you get to know me, H. B., for short. There are times when I actually make sense. I have a nice disposition. I'm kind to my mother and to little children, I never kicked a dog, a bright future is predicted for me by my employer, and I think you're a sweet stick of stripped candy with a ribbon bow on it. Now will you take off your cellophane and let me drive you to the River Inn this evening for a plate of chowder?"

Marilyn shook her head. It was hard to be severe with such a persistent, such a jovial young man. "No," she said. "Thank you. I shall be busy this evening—every evening."

"The River Inn. noted for its cuisine and the exclusiveness of its patrons. All the young bloods hereabouts drive their Juliets to the River Inn for a plate of chowder. Do you feel yourself weakening?"

"No. I'm stronger. Al, you must believe me. You don't understand—

"Come, come, H. B. 'Tain't polite to tell folks they're stupid. I understand you're on a spot, but there's no reason why you should anchor on it. I've promised myself I'd keep clear of — what is none of my business — but when things get too thick — what concerns you is my business. No River Inn?"

"No River Inn."

"Then I'll have to think up some more intriguing place to invite you tomorrow."

The dark young man who had played so significant a part in the lives of the Marshes, appearing out of the nowhere and thrusting them into the limelight, gave promise of becoming difficult. Marilyn's rebuffs merely fired the ardor of his pursuit.

Bill Marsh was hard at work on his third piece of French toast, a specialty of the Marsh breakfast table, when he suspended action in midair.

"Hey," he said. "lookit who's here! Gee whillikens, the world must be coming to an end!"

The three Marshes at table followed Bill's astonished eyes. Clara was gliding across the room—gliding is the word — her eyes opened wide, her lips puckered into the pouting smile she cultivated. Clara down for breakfast? The occasion was one for the family wonderment. Clara hastened to explain.

"I have the most marv'lous news," she said. sipping the orange juice her mother handed her, with studied daintiness. "I'm leaving for New York in three days — that's from today. Al got a wire last night. He had to leave right away — I think he caught the midnight train. He's going to meet me at the station in New York. There's to be flowers and a welcoming committee and all the papers will take my pictures."

"Whadda they want to do that for?" Bill asked, through a mouthful of toast.

"To print, naturally." Clara dropped three lumps of sugar into her coffee. "There'll be pages and pages of them. Eat your toast, little boy, you'll be late for school."

"Gee, there must be a lot o' dopes in New York." Bill forked his fourth piece of toast.

Marilyn's eyes sought her father's. He pushed back his chair, rose from the table. The dry cough, a sort of clearing of a constricted throat, was more eloquent than words. Marilyn knew. He had failed with Mums. Mums was not going to New York with Clara.

"They're arranging for a delegation to see me off on the train here in Millville," Clara went on. "They're getting the fife and drum corps from the Legion. I'm to ride in a special car, decorated with flags and flowers. The mayor is going to make a speech. I'll wear my new powder blue suit, the one with the cunning jacket and the cream lace blouse. I can't decide which hat — the crushed raspberry is the most becoming. If I could find crushed raspberry gloves and purse — Mother! Look at that boy! He's eaten a whole glass of your good apple jelly!"

"Jelly's good for growing boys." Mrs. Marsh sat down to her coffee. It had grown cold while she waited on the others.

"Here, Mums. let me warm it up." Marilyn said. pouring the cold coffee into her own cup and refilling her mother's from the steaming porcelain pot.

"Thanks, Baby. As you were saying, Clara, the new powder blue suit would be lovely on you—finish your milk. William, and get on to school, that's a good boy."

Bill took a handful of sugar lumps from the bowl and thrust them into his pocket. "Geewhillikens," he grumbled, "can't a guy in this house ever grow up?"

A messenger waited to hand Marilyn a note when she arrived at the Bon Ton. The watchman was opening the store doors. Employees were straggling through the side entrance. They looked at her curiously. Messengers were major events in Millville. She waited until she had reached the cloakroom to read the message.

"H. B. — You get your wish. I'm on my way. But don't burn the Roman candles. I'll be back in a flash with a dash. Maybe when this beauty parade is over you'll have softening of the heart and treat me more like a pal than a burglar. Until then — Al."

Sally Meacham breezed in, threw her hat at a hook.

"Good morning, slaves," she called, addressing the room at large. "Look at Lynn. Looks like she's swallowed the cat — I mean the canary. What're you reading, honey lamb, a mash note?"

"Al Martino has been called back to New York. He left last night. The note says farewell."

"He'd certainly feel flattered if he could see the pleasure his farewell gives you What about Queen Clara? Don't tell me she's given up the idea of knocking the metropolis into a coma?"

"She's leaving days after tomorrow." Marilyn tore the note into tiny bits, slowly. "She's going alone Sally. I have a strange feeling — Clara — alone in the city, a place she's never been, people she's never seen — things she's never done — I don't like it."

The day Clara left for New York, Marilyn's check for a thousand dollars, the Clarco award, was delivered to her.

Scarcely had the reverberations of the Queen of Beauty's gaudy departure died down when workmen appeared on the roof of the gray house. There was a rain of broken shingles and the pounding of hammers. After five o'clock in the evening and until dark the figure of Mr. Marsh could be seen silhouetted against the peeling gray walls, scraping, scraping.

"If you're bound the house should be painted," he had told Marilyn, "better let me try it. I used to be right handy with the brush—done a lot of painting in my time."

"But a whole house, Dad, do you think you could manage it?"

"I don't see why not if I took my time. The painter down the street will lend me a ladder. I could work in my off time and I'll do a good job too. What do you say, daughter "

Marilyn thought, Dad's awake. He wants to paint the house. He's looking forward to it, like Bill does to a football game. Maybe that is what he needs — to have a part in what's going on here at home, an acting part, not just a seat on the sidelines.

"I say you're a dear to offer," Marilyn said. "It's a big undertaking. We would save quite a lot of money; all we need to buy is the paint. Dad, how about changing the color? Something brighter, more cheerful? I thought of ivory, just off white but with more life than white. Do you think ivory would become the Marsh mansion?"

Mrs. Marsh, who had been listening to the exchange said, "It would be pretty, but such a light color wouldn't hold up very well. It shows the wear and the grime. A nice brown wears well."

"Brown?" Marilyn appeared to ponder. Actually she knew on the instant she was not going to change from a gray house to a brown house. The change must be complete, a transition with a lift to it. "No, let's not choose a somber color. Our luck seems to have changed for the better, so let's be gay about it. I'm for the ivory and for the shutters a color as near the one they are now as we can find, a blue-green. It's a lovely color. Are there any more votes for ivory?"

"You hit the nail right on the head, daughter." Mr. Marsh nodded appreciatively. "I've seen the house painted that way a million times — in my imagination."

"Houses can't be painted with imagination," said Mrs. Marsh. "They have to be painted with paint." The ghost of Clara still lingered.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was fixing a rip in the back of my pants, me taking them off so she could do it easier, and she said, My first operation will be to empty these pockits of all this truck before it falls out. Will you tell me why you walk around loaded down with all this useless conglomeration for land sakes? she said.

Well jimminy, ma, what's useless about it? I said, and she said, I've taken out about 6 rediculous handfulls so far and I haven't come to a single useful thing yet, does that answer your question?

No mam, I mean G rcozlem, ma, dont lose any of that, I can tell you a good use for every one of those things, I said. How about those rubber bands, you cant say rubber bands aren't useful, I said, and ma said, Half of them are broken, is there anything useful about a broken rubber band?

Sure, rubber's getting higher, you can read about it in the paper every day, and rubber bands are rubber, aren't they? I said, and ma said, Now how about all these rusty awful looking keys, do they fit anything?

Sure they do, I said, and ma said, What do they fit? and I said, I dont know exactly what, but holy smokes, ma, nobody would make keys that didn't fit something, would they? I said.

Being a good answer, and ma said, What about these old pieces of cardboard?

They're useful to make notes on, in case I get any ideas, I said, and ma said, Well I must admit you've got enough pencil stumps here for the purpose, half of them with no points, I suppose they're useful too?

Sure they are, ma, they're useful to remind me to try to swap somebody something for a penknife, I said. You can ask me anything about anything elts in that pile you want, I said, and ma said, I've asked you enough, such a boy.

Meaning me and proving I had won the argument.

Good Demand Raises Egg Prices

Toronto, July 22.—Return of good demand for light receipts on the Toronto open produce market yesterday strengthened egg prices to country shipper, and quotations on eggs in this Province now are approximately 10 cents a dozen higher than a year ago. Butter gained a fraction under light offerings.

According to the Dominion Department of Agriculture the recent upswing in egg prices is attributed to the export movement and a better purchasing power at home. During the present year, the department states, about 510,000 cases will be shipped overseas, serving to remove a very large volume of eggs which would have had a depressing influence on the domestic situation.

While there is no export taking place at the present time, no eggs can be moved from storage without a permit, a regulation adopted by the Government to ensure sufficient volume of eggs for shipment next fall. This means that in many areas where normally storage eggs might have been drawn at this time, the entire demand is centering on fresh eggs.

Egg production continues to decline and quality is showing the effects of warmer weather. Yesterday's small receipts here cleared without difficulty, and in the graded section of trading the two top grades improved ½ cent a dozen and grade C advanced 1 to 2 cents a dozen.

Buyers circulating the butter market found offerings light. Early business in the Ontario first-grade product was transacted at 35½ cents a pound, but in the afternoon sellers raised prices to 35¾ cents, at which level the market closed.

JAPAN REPORTED

Admit Report

(In Shanghai, a Japanese army spokesman admitted that Japanese reservists living in the occupied areas of China had been called, but said this was merely for training. Further restrictions on travel throughout North China and Manchoukuo, which borders Siberia, also were reported.

(An authorized British source asserted in London that continuing reports of probable Japanese demands on French Indo-China were disturbing, "particularly after cabinet changes." He cited the removal from the cabinet of Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who "assured the British government last month that reports of Japanese territorial demands in Indo-China were false."

(Oriental observers recalled Japanese reports of a British-Chinese military agreement, denied in both Chungking and London, preceded Japan's 1940 military and economic penetration of French Indo-China.)

Domei, Japanese News Agency, asserted in a report datelined Hongkong that Chinese forces in Yunnan and Kwangsi provinces, Free French units of General Charles de Gaulle and British native troops in Malaya were prepared to go into the French colony.

(An invasion from Malaya would require either land passage through Thailand, Indo-China's western neighbor, or a long voyage across the Gulf of Siam from the Malay peninsula.

(Neutral military observers in Shanghai, where the same report was issued, said they felt there might be a similarity between the report and Nazi accusations of British intentions before the invasions of Scandinavia and the Lowlands.)

Koh Ishii, spokesman for the Japanese cabinet board of information, told a foreign press conference he could neither confirm nor deny the accuracy of the Domei report.

Explains Foreign Policy

Ishii announced that Japan's new foreign minister, Vice-Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, had explained his country's foreign policy yesterday at a conference with representatives of other Axis powers. Toyoda told Eugen Ott, German ambassador, that Japan would uphold the spirit and aim of the tri-partite pact, but made no mention of the Japanese neutrality agreement with Soviet Russia, Ishii said.

Tokyo newspapers were full of reports from Thailand and Indo-China. The press has been carrying on editorial campaigns directed against Thailand, Indo-China and The Netherland East Indies.

Reports Disturbing

London, July 22 (CP)—Continuing reports of probable Japanese demands on French Indo-China were described as disturbing by an authorized British source today, 'particularly after cabinet changes' in Tokyo.

"It is worth noting that Yosuke Matsuoka, who assured the British ambassador last month (while Matsuoka was Japanese foreign minister) that reports of Japanese territorial demands in Indo-China were false, no longer is a member of the government," he said.

Newsman Goes on R. A. F. Flight Over Libya in Glen Martin Bomber

By GODFREY H. P. ANDERSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the R.A.F. in the Egyptian Desert, July 19 (Delayed) — United States-built planes are being used for a series of vitally important reconnaissance flights by the Royal Air Force deep into neighboring Libya.

Acting as the eyes of all three services—navy, army and air force —the observers in these machines are keeping a constant check on any movements by the Germans and Italians and bring home the photographs that guide the R.A.F. in its increasing bombardment offensive.

I was the first war correspondent permitted to fly in one of the Glenn Martin Maryland bombers which are doing this desert scouting.

Today, seated at the observer's post in the glass nose of the plane, I saw the vast panorama of the Western Desert unfold thousands of feet below.

Down there men sweated and toiled, perfecting defences in the blistering heat. In the cramped cabin of the bomber it was surprisingly cool. There even have been cases of frostbite among plane crews flying high above the scorched African sands.

Trucks were crawling sluggishly over sandy tracks. Amid the rocks and stunted camel thorn they looked like lazy beetles. A steep escarpment which was a formidable barrier to tanks and infantry looked like no more than a bump on the ground. Only our tiny, racing shadow on the desert told our speed.

As the American engines pulled us ever higher the features of the landscape became blurred. But the young sergeant observer at my side could read it like a relief map. On an airfield he recognized smudges as groups of aircraft, and he said which were bombers and which were fighters.

A touch on a button—and an electrically operated camera exposed a strip of film which later would confirm what his keen eyes already had noted.

Twice the pilot pointed the bomber's nose—with the sergeant and me in it — sharply at the ground. The desert tilted and rushed toward us in our stomach-wrenching dive. Then the machine guns cracked above the sound of the propellers and sand spurted up where the bullets dug in.

The pilot and gunner were just showing me what ground strafing was like from the dishing-out end.

Sweeping back over the sea we glimpsed naked British soldiers bathing in the shimmering Mediterranean. Some looked up and waved to the big Glenn Martin. Then back to the airfield where the big bombers were fueling and loading their bomb racks for a real raid.

The airmen ran out to meet us as the plane daintily touched the earth. One grabed the roll of precious film and rushed it off to be developed for intelligence officers. Another called to the pilot: "How's she doing, Sir?" Engines okay." The armorer shouted: "Guns all right, Jock?" The tow-headed 21-year-old gunner answered "Beautiful".

They say on the field that the sergeant gunner takes one of the dismountable guns to bed with him at night to keep it clean of the sand that blows in on the night winds.

Over in the commanding officer's tent the pilot and observer already were making their reports.

"That motor transport turned out to be only bushes but we saw . . ."

The C.O. marked each item with a blue pencil on the transparent covering of his map. Tomorrow, after the bombers have done their work, some of the markings may be erased. Then the plane we rode, or another, will go back to photograph the damage.

Campbellford Girl Attacked by Dog

Campbellford, July 22.—(CP)— Betty Buchanan, 15-year-old Campbellford High School student, was severely bitten about the face, head and hands when attacked by a large dog while visiting on a nearby farm.

With a companion, Joan Haig, the girl was playing with the dog on the lawn when he suddenly turned upon her and made a ferocious attack. Brought to the scene by the girl's screams, Mrs. Harry Grills subdued the enraged animal. The other girl was not injured.

A recent fight between the dog and a porcupine is suspected to have something to do with the dog's behaviour, for it always has been friendly. It is believed Betty in petting the dog unconsciously pierced his flesh with a quill that had remained hidden in the dog's hair.

Authorities have ordered the dog, owned by Willis Stephens, tied up pending investigation.

CROSS ARRIVES IN BRITAIN

Two Subs Bagged On One Convoy

Hamilton, Ont., July 22—(CP)— AB. Alex Gains of Hamilton, home on leave after months spent on the sea lanes, told today of more than 30 convoys in which he had taken part, convoys in all of which the call to "action stations" had been sounded.

"Yet in 30 convoys in a row," he said, "not one ship was lost—and sometimes we had huge numbers of ships to guard."

In the second to last trip two submarines were bagged, in each case by corvettes.

"One was blown right out of the water by depth charges," Gains related, "and 40 of the German crew captured. There were 40 all told and they were crowded onto a corvette that carried but few men more. This submarine was then towed by the corvette but it sank before we could get it back to England. The other sub was destroyed."

LARGE FIRES AT NAPLES

Cairo, July 22.—(AP)— Large fires were lighted by relays of heavy bombers which attacked the harbor and railway sidings at Naples Sunday night, a Royal Air Force Middle East communique said today.

The fires were accompanied by explosions, the communique said.

On the same night dock installations at Bengasi in Libya were attacked, and fires and explosions set off on the moles, the communique added.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Continued caution in Washington over Russia's chances of bogging down the German army is reflected in yesterday's statement by Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, that Germany is planning new aggressions against the remaining neutral countries of Europe.

So long as the gigantic struggle in the East continues there is little chance of the Germans undertaking military operations in other directions. The Welles warning would seem to indicate that Washington believes the Russo-German conflict will be finished before winter settles over the Russian plains.

The statement fits in well with the general attitude in Washington where enthusiasm over the Red Army's fight has found few echoes. How far this opinion is shared in Britain is not known, since Prime Minister Churchill and other leaders have been careful not to make definite predictions on the outcome.

While Mr. Welles mentioned no countries by name in his warning, Washington observers indicated he meant Spain and Portugal, and there was renewed speculation of United States interest in preventing German penetration of the Azores and the Cape Verde Islands, belonging to Portugal, and the Canary Islands, belonging to Spain.

President Roosevelt has said the Nazi shadow over any of these Atlantic outposts would be regarded as a threat to the security of the Americas, and a move to forestall it, on the pattern of Iceland, would be a likely development should Germany march into the Iberian Peninsula.

Whatever the opinion may be on the eventual outcome of the Russo-German war, both Britain and the United States are speeding their efforts to get aid to the Russians. Word from Washington today is that the Soviet authorities are expected to put a fleet of freighters into service in the Pacific shortly to carry supplies most needed by Soviet war industries. Machinery of all kinds seem to be the principal requirement.

News from the front indicates there has been little change over the past few days, with the main German effort being devoted to widening the salient thrust in the Smolensk direction, 230 miles southwest of Moscow. The city of Smolensk remains in Russian hands, despite German claims to the contrary, according to Soviet advices and the best information available in London.

A new development today was the bombing of Moscow for the first time. The Germans claim the raid was on a scale comparable to the severest attacks on London, but its effects were minimized by the Soviet authorities, who said the raiders were met by Russian night fighters and anti-aircraft fire.

British air raids precautions officials, experienced in last winter's attacks on Britain, have been in Moscow for a month now advising the Soviet authorities on A. R. P. organization. If their advice is well heeded, Russian cities may well be able to avoid some of the initial shortcomings in the British system which were corrected on the basis of experience.

WAR SPOTLIGHTS CANADIAN METALS NICKEL, ALUMINUM

Aluminum Drive Will Start Next Week, While Efforts Being Made to Curtail Use of Nickel

DEMAND IS GREAT

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—The increasing demands of Canadian war industry brought two strategic metals into new prominence today.

Metal Controller G. C. Bateman announced last night that efforts are being made to curtail non-essential consumption of nickel, almost simultaneously with announcement by National War Services officials that plans are being formulated to hold a Canada-wide drive for aluminum.

Both metals are of vital importance to the war effort. Although Canada is the world's greatest nickel producer, Munitions Minister Howe said Sunday night there was "tending to be a shortage of nickel in Canada and the United States."

In Toronto Saturday, Mr. Howe said arrangements had been completed with the International Nickel Company of Canada for increased production involving about $25,000,000 expenditure in the next three year. He said he hoped this expansion would meet requirements.

Declaring that the demand for nickel exceeded the supply, Mr. Bateman disclosed that effective June 15 Canadian manufacturers and distributors were limited to 60 per cent of the nickel they used in 1940 for non-essential nickel plating.

Launch Drive Next Week

The aluminum drive is expected to be launched next week. Aluminum pots and pans, together with unprocessed supplies of the commodity, will be sought.

War Services officials said donations of the metal should be made to the Canadian Red Cross Society which would benefit from funds obtained by their sale to war industries.

As an indication of aluminum's importance, one war services official said it required 28,000 pounds of the metal for a bomber, 4,000 for a fighter and 952,000 for a battleship.

This official emphasized that old utensils—"pots and pans with holes in them, discarded parts of washing machines and refrigerators and broken golf clubs"—were sought in preference to new and useful equipment, which would have to be replaced by other supplies.

An order issued by Mr. Bateman has assured no aluminum may be sold other than to companies holding war contracts from his department.

Announcement of the proposed campaign came on the heels of the United States Government's decision to collect 20,000,000 pounds of aluminum ware from U. S. kitchens through door-to-door calls by 1,000,000 volunteer workers.

Soviet Premier by his first wife. The Germans claimed he was taken prisoner July 16 near Ljosno.

Claim 73 Tanks Destroyed

D.N.B., The German News Agency declared stubborn attempts of the Russians to repel German troops east of Smolensk collapsed yesterday under heavy German fire. Many prisoners were said to have been taken. It was claimed that 73 tanks were restroyed in the Vitebsk area and 98 in the Torbov area.

To the south, D.N.B. claimed, Russian facilities for reinforcement were paralyzed by raids on rail lines connecting Zhmerinka, Odessa and Kiev.

The high command's report that executive buildings in Moscow had been bombed was considered particularly significant in view of German contentions that previous attacks on enemy capitals were directed at purely military objectives. In the case of Moscow there was open admission that public edifices were among the first targets, in keeping with the expressed Nazi determination to "destroy Bolshevism to its roots."

Nova Scotia Coal Mining Labor Nearing Showdown

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Glace Bay, N.S., July 22—(CP)— A showdown in the affairs of Nova Scotia coal mining labor was imminent today.

A virtual ultimatum from the international office of the United Mine Workers of America was to be answered by three locals in Cape Breton. And representatives of these and seven other locals of district 26, whose representatives at an "outlaw" convention have been demanding removal of the district executive, were to meet to determine a final stand.

The international office had told Nos. 4, 11 and 12 locals in Glace Bay and New Waterford to make known by Friday whether they were to string along with the district executives or not. Their attitude was expected to be made known Wednesday at a resumed meeting of the unofficial convention.

International President John L. Lewis had told the three locals that the district executive had recommended their charters be revoked. He asked them to "conform to the law and our contractual obligations" and asked an answer by Friday.

Officials of U.M.W. district headquarters here said that Lewis' message, though it was couched in gentle terms, meant that unless the U.M.W. President got an answer by Friday, one way or another, the three locals would have their charters revoked.

NO MILITARY

One incendiary bomb fell on the roof of The Associated Press combination office and apartment, but a youth on guard threw it into the courtyard where it burned out.

Many buildings were hit, but they all appeared to be private dwellings. The Kremlin and other public centres were untouched.

Steeled for Attack

Muscovites, drilled by six previous alarms which had brought no bombing, were said by the Russians to have been steeled for the attack and to have acted calmly

The defence crews were declared to have similarly acquitted themselves with credit.

Members of the Soviet government, staying in the capital, sat out the raid with the civilians.

The alarm came just at sunset (shortly after ten p.m in the northern latitude at this time of year), the sirens sounding a full ten minutes. This alarm, much longer than previous alerts, gave Muscovites the warning that a real raid was coming.

Then ten minutes later loud speakers warned the people to go to their air raid shelters. They filed quietly to subway stations and cellars.

After the attack the streets were crowded by throngs as great as those normally seen at mid-day.

Night fighters of the Red Air fleet and a thundering barrage of anti-aircraft fire from batteries ringing the capital were said to have downed 17 of the raiders and kept all but a few from getting over the city.

A communique issued shortly after the attack, which started at 10:10 p.m. (3:10 p.m., E.D.T.) asserted "the attempt should be considered a failure".

Two earlier attempts to raid Leningrad, Russia's second-largest city, also were reported broken up.

11 Nazi Planes Downed

The Russians said in these raids, Sunday and Monday, the German Air Force failed even to penetrate to the Leningrad district and that eleven German planes were downed in the first attempt and eight in the second, against a loss of four Russian aircraft.

Altogether, the Russians placed Germany's aircraft losses yesterday at thirty-two planes against eight Russian planes lost.

The Red Army declared that throughout last night fighting continued in the familiar sectors— Pskov, Polotsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Novograd Volynski—barring the way to Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev.

Elsewhere "no major operations took place", a war bulletin declared today.

Claim New Attacks

Russian planes were credited with new attacks on Nazi motorized and mechanized forces along the fighting front and behind the German lines.

The communique followed closely the pattern of the one issued late last night on fighting yesterday.

Throughout fierce fighting yesterday the Red Army reported still holding out doggedly on battlefields contested without letup for four days.

Authorized by Recent Act

The Loan Agency's statement said this new financial assistance to war-harried Britain was authorized under a law enacted last month which specified the R.F.C. could make loans to a foreign government to enable that government to get maximum dollar exchange value for its property in this country.

When the lend-lease program was enacted the British already had piled up huge orders for munitions here. It was said at the time they had funds, securities and other property available to meet those obligations but required lend-lease assistance in supplying future needs.

To turn the Securities into dollars, however, meant marketing them in the United States. In discussing the loan now authorized, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said recently that conditions on American markets had presented difficulties in this regard and a loan at this time was desirable to assure Britain of obtaining maximum value.

Plenty of Collateral

Whether one loan will be adequate to meet all British needs was not stated. Morgenthau said Britain's obligations to United States manufacturers at the first of the year amounted to between $1,300,000,000 and $1,400,000,000 but he could not estimate how much this had been reduced in the six months since then.

The loan agency statement said the collateral for the loan fell into three categories:—

Securities of sixty-one United States corporations listed on the New York Exchange. These were said to have a total present market price value of $205,000,000.

Unlisted securities of forty-six United States corporations. The estimated value of these securities was put at $115,000,000.

No Change In Control

The capital stock of 41 British-owned United States insurance companies estimated to have a total net worth of more than $180,000,000.

"There will be no change in the control or management of these direct investments, including the insurance companies," the statement said. "Their financial position and stability will continue unaffected."

In addition to this collateral security, the loan agency said, "There will be assigned to the R.F.C. the earnings of the United States branches of 41 British insurance companies not incorporated in this country." These branches were described as having net American assets, above reserves to meet policy obligations in this country, of approximately $200,000,000 in cash and United States government securities.

The total income from the collateral and the earnings of the insurance companies, it was said, have averaged $36,000,000 annually for the past five years. "On the basis of the past five years," the statement said, "the available income would amortize the loan in approximately 15 years."

Picton and District

Picton, July 22 — Victory Loan subscriptions in Prince Edward County totalled $851,300, according to an official report just released by Douglas Bellinger, Toronto, who was county organizer during the recent campaign. The quota was $550,000 and Prince Edward obtained 158 per cent and stood eleventh out of 65 counties and cities, a fine showing especially when it is remembered that the drought adversely affected sales among farmers.

Mr. Bellinger has written each salesman expressing appreciation of the whole-hearted effort and cooperation of everyone.

The final standing of teams was as follows: Picton, Div. A, 485 applications totalling $382,700; Hillier and Wellington, Div. B, 217 applications totalling $106,650; Hallowell and Bloomfield, Div. AT THE BELLE

"Virginia"

Once in a long time a picture comes along so completely satisfying that one feels like getting up and cheering. Such a picture is at the Belle Theatre tonight and Wednesday. We're referring to Paramount's "Virginia" done in technicolor now playing a return engagement at the Belle Theatre by popular demand of an appreciative public and it is not to be facetious that this writer calls it one of the brightest feathers in the cap of the current motion picture season.

Presenting Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray as a starring team for the third time, Paramount has brought them to us in an original story of modern Virginia. It tells of a woman who chooses a life of reality on her plantation, with its genuineness and homespun realities and unselfish consideration for other people's needs, rather than the life of meaningless gaiety she would lead married to a rich, handsome Northerner. The film is alive with powerful drama, and yet in proper places, it is touched with bright comedy.

Miss Carroll as Charlotte Dantenay, the Virginia-born girl who has lived most of her life in the north, returning home unaware of the obligations to her southern heritage, and MacMurray as Stonewall Elliott, who awakes in her the slumbering love for the south, are both splendid in their roles. As Norman Williams, the rich, gay northerner, Sterling Hayden, tall and handsome screen newcomer, who forms the third point in the romantic triangle, turns in an extremely impressive performance.

Unusually fine performances are also given by the rest of the brilliant cast, Helen Broderick, adorable Carolyn Lee, Marie Wilson, Tom Rutherford, Paul Hurst and Louise Beavers.

Chalk "Virginia" up as one of the best pictures of the new year!

"The Get-Away" Thrilling

"The Get-Away," announced as the added feature attraction is Metro-Goldwyn - Meyer's dramatic picturization of a G-man's adventures trailing a gang preying on national defense industries. The action moves swiftly from a dramatic tracking down of a number one racketeer in a crowded dance hall.

Principals in the thrill-packed story are Robert Sterling, who plays his most important role to date as Jeff Crane, G-man; Dan Dailey, Jr., who plays the role of the gang leader, Sonny Black and a new screen find, Donna Reed, who is romantically teamed with Sterling.

Miss Reed adds the touch of romance to the fast-moving story and Charles Winninger, Broadway star and the famous "Captain Henry" of radio, adds the comedy. The Belle News of the Day will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Affectionately Yours"

"Affectionately Yours", starring Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan and Rita Hayworth is now at the Capitol theatre. A rollicking romantic comedy, it was directed by Lloyd Bacon, from a screen play by Edward Kaufman based on the story by Fanya Foss and Aleen Leslie.

Making the most of a highly unusual triangle situation, "Affectionately Yours" romps merrily along, telling the story of a playboy foreign correspondent who comes home to stop his divorced wife, whom he still loves, from marrying another man. Close at his heels in hot pursuit is his erstwhile girl friend, a resourceful young career girl determined to keep him from getting his wife back. Add to this the machinations of his editor, who wants to keep his best foreign correspondent unencumbered by family ties, the irate confusion of the wife's suitor, and the well-meaning interference by the Turkish news photographer who plays bodyguard to the correspondent.

Dennis Morgan, whose grand work in "Kitty Foyle" won him highest critical praise, as well as armies of feminine fans, is cast as the correspondent. Lovely Merle Oberon is the wife whom he so understandably pursues, and Rita Hayworth, who will long be remembered as the "Strawberry Blonde," is mighty persuasive as the pursuing girl. That master of frustration, Ralph Bellamy, plays the wife's suitor, James Gleason is the editor and the many lingual George Tobias is cast as the Turkish candid camera fiend. Other prominent members of the cast include Hattie McDaniel, Butterfly McQueen, Jerome Cowan and many others.

"On The Spot"

Picture fans who crave entertainment in the form of a romantic drama, interwoven with the excitement and thrills of a mystery, will find their wishes fulfilled in the Monogram feature, "On the Spot", now at the Capitol.

This top-notch production provides plenty of comedy and thrills for all as Frankie Darro once again gets in hot water. The feature kept the audience in a continual state of laughter throughout the showing.

Frankie is seen as a soda jerker in Modvale's only drugstore and proves the vortex around which two murders and an attempted killing swing the sleepy town into national prominence. A wounded racketeer falls dead in Frankie's arms just as he is about to reveal where he has hidden $300,000 in loot.

Pals of the gangster come to town hoping to get the information from Frankie and his pal Jefferson, a colored porter. Newspaper reporters play up the story and overnight Frankie becomes the subject of national discussion.

Frankie Darro, one of the screen's most popular young actors is starring in "On The Spot," now at the Capitol Theatre. Dennis Morgan, Merle Oberon and Rita Hayworth in "Affectionately Yours," are on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Shop Around the Corner"

Ernst Lubitsch, director extraordinary among Hollywood's film colony, scores his finest triumph with that famed 'Lubitsch touch' Shop Around the Corner" co-starring James Stewart and Margaret Sullavan, now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

For a thoroughly delightful "movie" for the entire family "The Shop Around the Corner" cannot be too highly recommended.

In the colorful setting of a little street in Budapest and a little leather goods and novelty shop, Lubitsch tells the interrelated stories of the store owner and his clerks as they go about their everyday tasks, revealing with both gentle humor and pathos their romances, tragedies and the laughter in their lives. He has done it in the gay comedy-drama "The which means entertainment in every foot of film.

It was a happy choice that again teamed Miss Sullavan and James Stewart as two clerks in the store. Both are seeking romance, but get off on the wrong foot and only realize that they are in love after constant quarrels.

Lubitsch never before has been so interested in a picture. He personally purchased the story, adapted from a play by Nikolaus Laszlo, and supervised its preparation from the beginning. The supporting cast is outstanding. It includes Frank Morgan, better than ever as the kindly store owner. Joseph Schildkraut is the perfect villain as the dandy, trouble-maker and scheming clerk, who woos the wife of his boss and pays dearly for his perfidy. Another highlight comedy performance is given by Felix Bressart as the timid clerk ,and Sarah Haden, William Tracy, Inez Courtney, Sarah Edwards, Edwin Maxwell, Charles Halton and Charles Smith are capable in other supporting roles.

"Power of the Press"

A second feature and one of the most impressing and interesting dramas of the year "The Power of the Press" featuring Jean Parker and Wallace Ford, is excellent added screen entertainment now at the McCarthy. Latest Fox News is also shown at each performance. The "glasbake" overware piece given out is the large oval baker, one of the major pieces in the beautiful set.

Raids so Intense Nazi Fighters Run State RAF Pilots

Number of German Airdromes in Northern France, Dunkirk, Rotterdam, Ostend Strafed

NO RAF PLANES LOST

London, July 23—(CP)—Royal Air Force bombers, too high to be seen but with a roar indicating they were in mighty force, swarmed out over the channel today in another daylight air offensive.

The French and possibly the Belgian and Netherlands coasts apparently were the targets of these attacks following a second straight night in which, the Air Ministry announced, the German industrial cities of Frankfurt and Mannheim were hit.

A few minutes after the day raiders crossed in glinting sunlight, the deep-voiced rumble of anti-aircraft guns and the crash of bombs echoed back to the British coast.

The night raids far up the Rhine Valley were delivered despite severe thunderstorms, the air communique said.

It was the second straight night these cities had been attacked. Other forces of British bombers struck at docks at Dunkerque, Rotterdam and Ostend, the Air Ministry announced.

All planes from these operations returned safely.

During the night German raiders confined their activity to the east and northeast coastal areas of Great Britain, injuring a few persons and causing superficial damage. (The Germans said Hull was one of the places attacked.)

British fighters on a night offensive patrol strafed a number of German airdromes in northern France. This night fighter activity was added to increasingly effective work by fighter patrols in daylight, which over northern France have become so formidable that large German fighter formations frequently avoid them.

British fighters escorting bombers in a raid yesterday met two large flights of Messerschmitts, which veered away and refused to give battle.

"It was all very beautiful, with the Seine 10,000 feet below", said one fighter pilot . . . "We had an empty sky, but we don't like empty sky".

Four Messerschmitts were shot down by two Polish squadrons of the R.A.F. who came across them while escorting bombers in a raid on the shipbuilding yards at Le Trait, situated on the Seine West of Rouen. Bombs were seen to explode on sheds and slipways, and the targets were left hidden in smoke.

R.C.A.F. Flier From Edmonton Dies in Crash

Mountain View, Ont., July 23 — (Special)—A Royal Canadian Air Force pilot, Sergeant D. J. Young, of Edmonton, Alberta, died in the flaming ruins of a Harvard Trainer plane, when it crashed in flames on the farm of James R. Anderson, near Mountain View a few minutes after eleven o'clock Tuesday night.

The dead flyer, member of the personnel of the Trenton station, was engaged in night flying when the accident occurred. According to reports from the scene of the tragedy, the plane burst into flames while in the air, crashing to the ground, where it was destroyed. Royal Canadian Air Force officials, at the Trenton station, however, stated today that details of the cause of the accident are vague.

First intimation that the plane had crashed came when thirteen-year-old Evan Bovay, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bovay, residing near the Anderson farm, heard the roar of the plane and a second later a terrific crash. The boy who was lying on his bed dashed to the window and saw the glow of the burning plane in the Anderson field. He notified his parents and they, with two lady guests, raced to the scene of the accident.

"The plane was a mass of flames, when we arrived," Mrs. Bovay said. "The heat was terrific and we could not get very close to the plane. A few minutes later air force fire trucks and ambulances arrived on the scene."

The body of the dead flyer was taken to the Trenton base and later released to the Martin Funeral Home in Belleville from which point it will be expressed to relatives in the west.

Later information revealed that Sergt. Young suffered severe skull fractures besides other injuries. The body was severely burned.

C.P.R. PASSENGER TRAINS COLLIDE NEAR SCHREIBER

One Engineer Dies of Injuries and 4 Other Trainmen Injured

NO PASSENGERS HURT

Schreiber, Ont., July 23—(CP)—Railway workmen today cleared wreckage and allowed traffic to proceed on the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line a few hours after two trans-continental passenger trains collided head-on yesterday at Tripoli, 118 miles east of here, causing the death of one engineer and injury to four other railwaymen, all of Chapleau, Ont.

The trains, one en route to Vancouver, and the other heading for Toronto and Montreal, met a short distance from a siding and the force of the impact derailed the eastbound locomotive, two empty baggage cars and two express cars.

Engineer Percy Buncombe, about 56, died a short time after he was pulled from the wreckage of his eastbound locomotive while his mate, Fireman John Reid, was injured, apparently not seriously.

Engineer Jack Corston was found in critical condition while Fireman George Weedon, with Corston aboard the westbound flier, was also injured.

Railway officials said the westbound flier would likely arrive in Winnipeg around 2 p.m. (C.S.T.) today, five hours late due to the accident.

Before the train could leave Tripoli wrecking crews had to remove one locomotive that had broken into two pieces and the other which turned over on its side and lay across the rails. One baggage car also straddled the rails.

Engines Twisted Mass

The special work train from Schreiber, the divisional point, carried railway officials and two doctors, one from Schreiber and another from White River. Two doctors from Chapleau were reported to have gone to the scene by plane.

Engineer Buncombe is survived by his widow, a daughter, both of Chapleau, and a son, now with the Canadian Army overseas.

Fireman Weedon, a veteran of the First Great War, said pieces of metal which flew through the air as the big locomotives crashed "were thicker than the shrapnel in France."

The steel framework of the engines was torn and twisted into wreckage as if made of tin. The boiler of the westbound engine was wrenched from its chassis and turned completely around, ending up on top of its tender. The engine of the east-bound train was hurled to the top of an embankment on the south side of the track.

Wooden refrigerator cars spotted between the engines and baggage cars on both trains were telescoped, thus buffering the impact. This fact, together with the prompt action of both engineers in applying emergency brakes, was a possible explanation of why none of the passenger cars was derailed.

Berlin Press Devotes Front Page Attacks on Roosevelt and Sons

Berlin, July 23—(AP) — Attacks on President Roosevelt pushed the German war off the front pages of the entire Berlin morning Press today.

Although the German Air Force in the past 24 hours twice raided Moscow, editors gave the whole of their front pages to a rejuvenated anti-Roosvelt campaign.

The President was charged with intriguing against Germany in Bolivia. D.N.B., the German news and propaganda agency, claimed he was trying to bring Bolivia into the status of "colonial dependence" on the United States.

Also under attack was his message to Congress, and the Press branded as lie his remarks concerning German threats to the United States.

Without exception, morning newspapers also published on their front pages a picture of President Roosevelt with his sons James, Franklin and Elliott, at a Masonic Lodge session.

According to Nazi tenets, being a Mason is almost a cardinal sin and the picture is supposed to be particularly damning evidence, as The Voelkischer Beobachter said in a two-line banner headline, that "Roosevelt is the Main Tool of Jewish World Freemasonry."

In the re-born campaign other papers devoted their entire first pages to sharp criticisms of the President's person and politics.

The mouthpiece of the Foreign Office, The Diplomatisch—Politische Korrespondenz, observed that "The words and deeds of Roosevelt do not concern themselves with 'defence and safety;' he is conducting a war of conquest and revenge against the equality of civilization in Europe hand in hand with Bolshevism and using all the resources of the American continents."

Nazi Assault on Moscow Pictured As a Fizzle By Soviet Communique

Moscow, July 23 (AP)—A second successive night of Nazi aerial attacks on Moscow left scores killed and injured, but the Russians declared today the raids were another setback for the Germans and indicated that German ground forces had made no progress from their new wedges inside the Finnish and Ukrainian frontiers.

The Red Army's mid-day bulletin reported stubborn battles thru' the night, but it mentioned fighting in the same zones as yesterday and said nothing significant had occurred elsewhere.

These fronts included not only the Porkhov and Smolensk areas, where German and Russian armies previously had been embattled, but also the Petrozavodsk region, inside the Soviet Union from Finland north of Leningrad, and Zhitomir, 50 miles closer to Kiev than Novograd Volynski, where the Red Army's resistance to the Nazi Ukrainian thrust had been centred.

Petrozavodsk and Zhitomir appeared for the first time in an early morning communique on yesterday's war developments and were repeated in the later bulletin, indicating that fighting at these new points still was indecisive.

Berlin, July 23 (AP)—The German high command claimed today that Russian forces fighting off German encirclement have suffered "extraordinary sanguinary losses" everywhere and claimed gains specifically on the Ukraine and Finnish fronts.

Again giving more than a bare progress report, but still without mention of specific battlefields, the communique from Hitler's headquarters pictured the Russians as falling back along the whole front under relentless pounding.

"In the Ukraine," it said, "German, Rumanian, Hungarian and Slovak troops are continuing their pursuit untiringly.

"On other parts of the eastern front, enveloping and annihilation of small and big Soviet groups continue. In the course of attempts to break the ring and help enclosed troops, the enemy everywhere suffered extraordinarily sanguinary losses.

"On the Finnish front, operations are proceeding according to plan and ground is being gained."

The communique claimed the air raid on Moscow last night, the second on successive nights, was made before the fires of the first were brought under control.

British Intensify Attacks On Axis Libyan Strongholds

By GODFREY H. P. ANDERSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the R.A.F. in the Western Desert, Egypt, July 22—(Delayed)—(AP)—The British Middle East Command, taking advantage of the German Air Force's preoccupation in the war with Russia, is ordering ever heavier attacks on Bengasi and other strategic Axis-held targets in Libya.

Night after night, long-range Royal Air Force bombers are plying a distance equal to that from London to Milan, Italy, carrying tons of big bombs to drop on the Mediterranean port which now has suffered more raids than even the railway yards of Hamm, Germany.

Back Door of Bengasi Closed

With the back door of Bengasi kept firmly closed by the R.A.F., the Italians are forced to bring forward the war materials for their armies and air force on the Libyan front over a line of communications nearly 1,000 miles long from Tripoli to Sirte, which is the only usable port between Tripoli and Bengasi.

Tobruk, 80 miles from the Egyptian frontier, remains firmly in British hands.

As there is no railway, every bomb dropped on Tobruk or Alexandria by Axis fliers must be brought across hundreds of miles of difficult desert road by chain motor transport which in turn makes the heaviest demand on fuel supplies and drivers' rations also brought from Tripoli.

Morale Suffering

British authorities say that documents recently captured show that the morale of the air squadrons remaining in Libya is suffering under the constant strain of such difficult conditions. Letters which have fallen into British hands, it is said, accuse Italian generals of expecting too much from the German Air Force and emphasize the difficulties of operating from desert bases without adequate oil supplies and repair facilities.

Use Instantaneous Bombs

The British use instantaneous action bombs which, instead of shattering buildings and blowing great craters, spread small splinters over an area upwards of 500 yards, peppering grounded aircraft with fragments of steel.

"These splinters lodging in vital parts of engines and fuselage put the machines out of order temporarily," an R.A.F. staff officer said, "and because there are no big repair depots in Libya, the Axis fliers have to wait weeks until spare parts can be brought from Italy.

"By the time the parts arrive, if the ship bringing them is not sunk by a British submarine, the plane's engine is so filled with wind-blown desert sand through long exposure that it is due for a major overhaul."

SPEED SHIPMENT OF CANADA BACON TO GREAT BRITAIN

Canadians Will Be Eating Less Pork Products For Two Months

HOGS UP $1 CWT.

Ottawa, July 23 (CP)—Canadians will be eating less pork products, for the next two months at least, because of a three-way government move to speed the shipment of Dominion bacon to the United Kingdom.

Behind the new steps is a request of the British Ministry of Food that if possible, the present Canada-United Kingdom contract for 425,000,000 pounds of bacon, hams and other cuts be completed by about Sept. 15 instead of Oct. 31 as originally scheduled.

In an effort to ensure the reaching of this objective, Agriculture Minister Gardiner made these announcements last night:-

1. The amount of pork products, including ham and bacon, that may be distributed for Canadian consumption by exporting packers is to be reduced by 25 per cent.

2. Live hogs, dressed hogs and other edible pork products, excepting lard, may not be exported to points other than the United Kingdom and British possessions. This restriction came into effect today.

3. The price paid by the Bacon Board to packers for Wiltshire bacon for shipment to the United Kingdom will be further advanced $1 a hundredweight, effective from the opening of livestock markets today.

This raises the price for grade A, No. 1 sizeable Wiltshire bacon for shipment to the United Kingdom will be further advanced $1 a hundredweight, effective from the opening of livestock markets today.

This raises the price for grade A, No. 1 sizeable Wiltshires to $19.60 a hundredweight, compared with a price of $16.10 under the original 1940-41 contract with Britain.

The reduction in the amount of pork products available for sale in Canada was the second time such action has been taken under the War Measures Act.

Pair Remanded Without Plea

Brockville, Ont., July 23—(CP)—Bernard Ward and Edward Raines, each 17, residents of Toronto, were remanded to jail a week without plea when they appeared here today charged with theft of a car.

The alleged offence occurred yesterday when the stolen car was found at Kingston.

Police said that Raines, in Canadian Active Army uniform, had stolen a car at Niagara Falls, Ont., last Friday and motored to Toronto where he picked up Ward.

They drove to Cardinal, 20 miles east of Brockville, and abandoned the vehicle there, according to police, and hitch-hiked to Brockville yesterday where they allegedly stole a car belonging to Fred Hewitt, Athens. It was found in their possession at Kingston.

Navy Secretary Looks for Trouble In Far East Soon

Radio and Cable Censorship in Japan Basis for Statement

AMBASSADOR TO CALL

Washington, July 23 (AP) — Navy Secretary Frank Knox today said there is "no question" but that recent developments in the Far East, including the Japanese government's establishment of radio and cable censorship on information from that country, meant new military movements in the Far East.

Knox told his press conference: "I look for movement out there—and very soon."

He declined, however, to discuss the possible direction of such a move, saying that "no one can tell at this point whether it will go north or south."

The navy department yesterday informed President Roosevelt that the Japanese had established censorship and at his press conference President Roosevelt said he considered it significant, but referred questioners to the State Department when asked if he expected it to be the prelude to an aggressive action in the Orient.

To Receive Ambassador

Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, arranged to receive the Japanese ambassador today amid increasing signs that the United States was preparing new notice to Japan on the threat of military moves in the Far East.

The navy secretary was asked whether the United States fleet was in position to do "whatever is necessary to carry out our policy in the Far East."

Smiling, Knox said "yes," and declined to elaborate.

It was not disclosed whether Welles or the ambassador requested a meeting but all indications were that the envoy would be told plainly that American-Japanese relations would suffer a further strain from any military move into French Indo-China or elsewhere.

An Infrequent Caller

The Japanese ambassador, Kichisa Buro Nomura, is an infrequent caller at the State Department and his visit today was linked with widespread reports of Japanese preparations for some military stroke.

Welles was expected to ask Admiral Nomura to clarify Japanese intentions, making it clear at the same time that the United States was vitally interested in maintenance of peace in the Pacific.

Some Far -Eastern experts expressed the view that underlying Japan's reported new demands on Indo-China was a Tokyo determination to place Japanese forces in easy striking distance of the rich Netherlands East Indies and Britain's strategic Singapore naval base.

Shortage of Metal Indicated in Reich Nazi Raiders Strip Captured Craft

London, July 23 —(CP)— An authoritative British source reported today German raiders were stripping vessels they captured in a way that indicated the Reich is suffering a shortage of metal.

"In one case," this source said, "apart from provisions and ordinary stores, engine packing brass particularly was sought out and taken over to the raider.

"In another case......before a captured ship was sunk she was stripped of all brass work and fittings. The Germans removed all cooking utensils and brass deck fittings and even went to the length of removing all brass casings on portholes frames."

VISCOUNTBENNETT TAKES SEAT IN HOUSE OF LORDS

Former Canadian Prime Minster Sponsored by Viscount Greenwood

35 PEERS PRESENT

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 23.—(CP Cable)—In a ceremony steeped in history and pageantry Viscount Bennett was installed as a member of the House of Lords today.

Wearing the scarlet robes of a Viscount with ermine collar and gold trimmings, the former Canadian Prime Minister was introduced by Viscount Greenwood, only other Canadian-born Viscount in the peerage. He was the new peer's chief sponsor.

About 35 peers, including the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor-General of Canada, were in the House to greet the new Member, who was elevated to a viscountcy in the King's Birthday Honors List.

Alice Miller, for many years Lord Bennett's secretary, watched the ceremony from the Visitors' Gallery while Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps, and Mrs. McNaughton waited in an ante-chamber to greet Lord Greenwood and followed by

Soon after Viscount Simon, Lord Chancellor, took his seat on the Woolsack to mark the opening of the sitting, the ceremony began.

Lord Bennett was preceded by Lord Greenwood and followtd by Viscount Hailsham, former Lord Chancellor who is a close personal friend.

Bends Knee to Present Letter

On approaching the Woolsack Lord Bennett on bended knee presented his letters patent to Lord Simon, who had doffed his wig for the more formal black tricorne. Lord Simon handed them to a white-wigged clerk, who conducted Lord Bennett to the table of the House.

The letters patent were read in full and gave "all Lords spiritual and temporal, and other subjects whatsoever to whom these presents shall come—greeting".

Then it informed them of the elevation of the King's "right trusty and well beloved councillor to the degree, style, dignity and honor of Viscount" and conferring the same upon his heirs and successors.

A new march from the versatile composing pen of Mr. Reg. Hinchey had its debut in Petrolea, recently at the convention of the Canadian Bandmasters Association. The march was played by a massed band of 150 musicians and was heard by a crowd of ten thousand people. Lieut. Fred Jobson, bandmaster of the Belleville Municipal Band, sang the words of the trio (chorus) of the march which has been dedicated to the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The march will be submitted to Royal Canadian Air Force officials in the near future and there is a possibility that it may be accepted as the official marching song of the air service.

CLOTHING OF GIRLS STOLEN WHILE SWIMMING

"Hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water," would have been good advice for two Campbellford young ladies who went bathing in the Trent Canal near Campbellford the other evening and returned to their automobile to find their clothing stolen.

At first the girls were of the opinion that some boys had played a prank on them, but later they realized all-too-true the fact they had to ride home in their wet bathing suits.

Chief Constable George Hardy, of Campbellford, has been investigating other reports of bathers' pockets being rifled while they were swimming.

Power Boat Races To Be Run off As Per Schedule

Summer regattas scheduled to be held in Picton, on August 4th.; Kingston on July 30th., and Valleyfield, Quebec, on July 26th., which were reported cancelled yesterday in an effort to conserve gasoline for the Dominion's war effort, will be run off according to former plans, Vice-Chairman Lloyd Hicks, Region 13, American Power Boat Association, announced today.

Reconsideration of the decision to cancel the regattas was made by Deputy Oil Controller J. L. Stewart and due to the fact that arrangements covering a wide field had been completed, and that all proceeds of the regattas will go to the Red Cross and other war service organizations, permission to operate the water-sport functions was granted to organizations scheduling their regattas before Aug. 5th., Mr. Hicks was informed by the deputy controller last night via telephone.

However, it was intimated that all events scheduled for dates after August fifth will have to conform to the Oil Control Board's cancellation edict.

Vice-Chairman Hicks, in anticipation of his part in the various regattas, launched his new speedster "Miss Rugene" this afternoon. The "Miss Rugene", a classic 222 cubic inch motored craft, will attempt to wrest the world's championship from the present holder, in mile trials over a straightaway course.

Blitzbits

By DOUGLAS AMARON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, July 23 (CP)—Cadet David Hay braved a school of sharks to dive into the sea and rescue the radio officer of his merchantman sunk by an enemy raider. Hay awarded the Albert Medal for gallantry lost the back of his shirt to one shark but otherwise was unscathed.

The George Cross, highest civilian gallantry award, was won by Norman Tuna, Birkenhead railway shunter, who extinguished incendiary bombs burning in an open railway wagon containing a number of 250-pound bombs.

When Lord Derby inspected a Canadian naval unit at Liverpool he was introduced to "Blitz" a small black dog rescued during an air raid and now the unit's mascot. "Blitz", said a Canadian naval officer, "is strictly a proletarian pup. He has made pals with every man in the unit but will have nothing to do with the officers."

Ernest Brown, Minister of Health, answering a question in the House of Commons about billeting, disclosed there are 500,000 unaccompanied children living in other people's houses and their maintenance costs the government £10,000,000 ($44,500,000) annually.

Fewer Cars Seen On Highways Here

Since the introduction of the Federal Government gasoline restriction laws and the subsequent appeal from governmental authorities to the motorists of Canada to assist in refraining from the excessive use of gasoline, motorists in the Belleville area are co-operating to the fullest measure, according to observations taken by district officers of the Ontario Motorcycle Patrol.

"Traffic in the Belleville area has slowed down to a noticeable degree during the past two days. There are not nearly as many Ontario-licensed motor cars passing along the highways this week as were seen in previous weeks this summer," stated Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch following a survey.

Tuesday night saw the second time gasoline pumps in Belleville were promptly closed at seven o'clock in the evening. Motorists who find it essential to drive at night already become accustomed to filling their cars prior to the close of the gasoline pumps, one service station attendant observed.

"There hasn't been any decrease in the number of American tourists on the road," said Patrolman Hatch, "but I have observed that motorists in general are lowering their speed. However, the real test in the matter of gasoline consumption will come on the next week-end, when the gas stations are to be closed from seven o'clock Saturday night until seven o'clock Monday morning. We will be able to give more accurate statistics of the situation after observing the traffic next Sunday," predicted Motorcycle Patrolman Hatch to The Ontario Intelligencer today.

FOUR CHORUS GIRLS WILLED $1,000,000

Wm. Guggenheim, Copper Millionaire, Leaves Entire Estate to the Girls

WIFE, SON CUT OFF

New York, July 23 (AP)—The Daily News said last night that four show-girls are to inherit the entire estate of William Guggenheim, copper millionaire who turned to song writing at 71, under the terms of his will soon to be filed in Probate Court.

The will of the former philanthropist, who died June 27, left nothing to Mrs. Guggenheim or to his son, William, The News reported.

The widow's attorney, Abraham L. Beinstock, said that under New York law Mrs. Guggenheim could claim one-third of the estate, regardless of the will. He said he did not know what action Mrs. Guggenheim would take.

The News said the girls, identified as Mildred Borst, Mary Alice Rice, and Florence Sullivan, all of New York City, and Lilyan Andrus of Hollywood, are to "share and share alike" in the estate, valued at more than $1,000,000.

By terms of the will the executors could sell Guggenheim's Riverside Drive mansion or anything else in the estate. The executors were named as Simon Guggenheim, a brother, and Harold A. Content, attorney.

The provision concerning the widow, Mrs. Aimee Steinberger Guggenheim, whom he married in 1904, and the son, included the statement that "I have made ample provision for them during my lifetime."

A member of the wealthy family whose fortunes began in copper mining developed by the late Meyer Guggenheim, William Guggenheim retired from active interest in mining in 1901. He gave much of his time to philanthropy and was a prolific writer of letters-to-the-editor.

His songs included "You're a Glamour Girl," written in 1940.

Greenville, Tex., July 23 —(AP)— Henry Courtney, wounded in the right leg during the last war, had it amputated in 1929 and replaced with an aluminum one. Yesterday he came to aluminum collection headquarters with his all-metal leg. "I gave Uncle Sam one leg and was glad to do what I could in the World War," Courtney said. "I am glad to do now what I can in the program of preparedness."

Earl of Athlone, Premier Hepburn Address Pressmen

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—Members of the South Carolina Press Association wound up a one-day visit to Toronto today and headed for home.

Arriving here Tuesday, they held the annual installation of officers and heard addresses from Canada's Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, and Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario.

The Governor-General assured members that the free peoples of the world will "utterly destroy" the enemy, laying the foundation for a "great new world of peace and happiness and the joy of young life."

Speaking at a banquet, he declared that "we shall cling steadfastly to the tattered shreds of our civilization—and in the end we shall win. Never has our determination been stronger, never has our will to victory been stronger."

Premier Hepburn said that to combat the evil forces threatening democracy it was necessary to build "a machine as horrible as that which carried Hitler victorious across Europe." He added it was the duty of the press to teach people to think for themselves.

Samuel Latimer, managing editor of The Columbia State and newly-elected president of the association, recalled the visit of the Marquess of Lorne to South Carolina at the time he was Governor-General and invited the Earl of Athlone to visit South Carolina. "We would like so much if you could honor us with a visit," he said.

The S.C.P.A. first vice-president, A. M. L. Wiggins of Hartsville, said the members came to Canada "to discover the spirit of Canada in the world crisis and we find it is the same spirit as we possess ourselves . . . we of the United States are discovering that the war against Hitler is a war to the finish.

"It therefore becomes our war whether we want it or not," he declared.

Concluding, Mr. Wiggins proposed a toast "to free men everywhere."

NOTE OF COURAGE FOUND IN BOMB

London, July 23—(CP)—Moscow radio, heard in London, told how only two of six German bombs exploded when dropped on a Russian frontier town. In one of the four which failed to explode was a piece of paper on which were the words, in a woman's handwriting: "We help you as much as we can."

WERE JUST CURIOUS

New Castle, Ind., July 23 —(AP) —Farmer Ray Morgan, investigating a noise in his field toward midnight, called out, "What are you doing there?" "Just measuring your wheat," said the intruder—and got into an automobile and drove off. Morgan sent the licence number to police and they looked up the man. He said he and friends had got so curious about the height of unusually tall wheat on Morgan's farm that they'd finally taken a yardstick and flashlight and gone out to check it."

AIR RAID IN ZONE OF SUEZ CANAL

Lipson Store Adds More Floor Space To Take Care of Increased Business

One of the outstanding members of a popular district chain, the Belleville branch of the Lipson Stores announced a substantial expansion of its Front Street shop space today.

The shop will be enlarged to include the store owned by the firm but until recently occupied by Mr. Laurie Lewis.

"It has been the generous response of the buying and shopping public aftermath of our desire to give the residents of this city and district the best in merchandise, that has necessitated the expansion," Mr. T. E. (Ted) Schwab, manager of the local branch of the Lipson Stores said today in commenting upon the enlargement.

"This necessity," he added, "is concrete proof of what a courteous and obliging staff, plus the kind of merchandise the buying public needs and appreciates, will do for the man or firm in business."

Since locating in Belleville the Lipson Store here has catered to an ever-growing clientele. Its patrons are numbered among, not only the city and immediate district, but in the far-flung sections of the county. The results of close contact and co-operation with its buying public has resulted in a confidence and uptrend in business that reflects credit not only on the immediate staff but the management and its efforts to establish a business bond between the firm and its patrons.

Enlargement operations will start immediately, Mr. Schwab announced. Completion is forecast for the near future when this popular Front Street store will be in an even better position to cater to the needs of its patrons.

FIGHTER SQUADRON MOVES CLOSER TO "SKY FRONT"

R.C.A.F. Squadron Led by Vaughan Corbett of Montreal

TAKES PART IN RAID

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

R.A.F. Station Somewhere in England, July 23—(CP)—The Royal Canadian Air Force Fighter Squadron led by the veteran Vaughn Corbett of Montreal has moved closer to the new "sky front" over Nazi - occupied Northern France and already has taken a nick out of the German air machine.

The squadron has taken part in one of Britain's smashing offensive sweeps on the other side of the English Channel.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Corbett, who was shot down over London during the Battle of Britain last fall while he was with one of the Canadian fighter squadrons, said the "boys are keen to get into action, either as bomber escorts or in fighter sweeps over France."

"We went over on one sweep, but the Germans were afraid to come up and see us that day, and there was no excitement."

Since the squadron moved to this corner of the country the airmen have been engaged on patrol flights over the Channel, protecting convoys from enemy air attack or ready to intercept German fighters attempting to fly inland over the English coast.

Two Nazi Planes Damaged

It was during two of these patrols that two German aircraft were damaged by members of the squadron. Towards the end of June Sgt. Pilot Graham Robertson of Toronto, son of Dr. D. E. Robertson of Moose River mine disaster fame, damaged a Junkers 88 which made off towards France. Earlier, Flying Officer Bob Morrow of Vancouver was credited officially with damaging a German machine during a convoy patrol.

The shoe, though, almost was on the other foot for Corbett when he came back from another flight.

A Nazi airman swooped down on him as he was about to land at the airport, peppering him with cannon shells.

"I didn't see anything during the flight," Corbett said. "But this fellow nearly shot me down. He fired at me as I landed but the shells missed me altogether, and a piece of shrapnel hit a British officer standing in the flare path."

Some of the airmen are newcomers to Britain and the squadron and, in the words of PO. B. R. Walker, 23, of London, Ont., "haven't got into any mischief yet."

"But we're hopeful," interjected PO. Jimmy Thompson of Listowel, Ont.

NO NEW BRIDGE RULES

Philadelphia, July 23 —(AP)— No new rules for contract bridge will be issued this year. The reason is the war. The John C. Winston Company, publishers of the official bridge laws, announced proposed changes had been dropped because British committees which help formulate the rules had withdrawn until the war ends. The company added that the American committees may publish its own edition of revised laws next year.

AXIS DIPLOMATS REACH LISBON

Lisbon, July 23—(CP)—The United States naval transport West Point steamed into Lisbon Harbor at 8:10 a.m. today with her load of German and Italian diplomats and agents expelled from the United States for subversive activities.

Despite the early hour scores of people were on hand to watch the big ship nose her way up the Tagus River toward a berth near the American Export Line ships.

The West Point, formerly the America, left New York eight days ago with 500 passengers for her first trans-Atlantic trip. She will pick up American consular officials who have left Germany and Italy, on the return voyage.

Germans and Italians lined the ship's rail as a United States naval crew prepared the transport to be moved into berth.

"United States naval attaches for Portugal and Spain came out by pilot boat and boarded the West Point outside the harbor.

As the West Point moved into the harbor, four special trains bringing United States diplomats from Germany, Italy and occupied territories were crossing Spain toward the Portuguese frontier.

More Help Urged To Harvest Crops

Toronto, July 23—(CP)—Hon. N. O. Hipel, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario and Chairman of the Inter-Departmental Committee of the Labor Department, suggested today that more help be made available to farmers by releasing men with farm experience one day a week from their jobs in non - essential war production plants.

"There are many industries particularly in smaller towns and communities, which have among their workers many men who have had experience on the farm and are physically capable of doing a good day's work in the harvest field," said a committee report.

If the men are released the work could be organized so that a proportion would be available every day to provide steady help, the report said.

Agricultural officials have reported that with harvesting just beginning farmers in the districts surrounding Toronto are faced with an acute labor problem.

POLICE BLOTTER

Hit-and-run drivers have been so frequent in Belleville and vicinity of late that police authorities, both city and Provincial, are setting up rigid patrols in an effort to bring this despicable type of law violation to a halt.

The latest report of a hit-and-run driver was registered at the police station by Mr. J. M. Beausegor, 151 Pinnacle Street, who complained his car had been damaged after being struck in front of his home sometime last night. The rear fender, bumper and tail light were found damaged when Mr. Beausegor went to use his motor car this morning. Unfortunately the sound of the impact was not heard by the householders, however.

Gene Hitchon, proprietor of the Hitchon radio store on Victoria Ave., reported the theft of an $18.00 portable radio stolen from his place of business sometime yesterday. This is the third portable radio reported stolen in Belleville during the past month, the previous two having been recovered by city police.

D.N.B. Correspondent Explains Plan Used To Distribute Nazi News

Washington, July 22—(AP)—Kurt Sell, Washington correspondent of D.N.B., German News and Propaganda Agency, told the Federal District Court today that he conceived the plan for distribution by German consulates of Transocean News dispatches to United States German-language newspapers at $1 a month.

Testifying at the trial, of the Transocean News Agency on charges of failing to register with the State Department as the agent of a foreign principal and of Sell said he made the suggestion in 1933 to Hans Luther, first Washington ambassador of the Hitler Government.

Sell said Luther had been taking the service personally to keep up with events in Berlin and was sending copies of the dispatches to the Consulates.

"He asked me if it wouldn't be all right for the consulates to distribute the service to German language newspapers who were unable to pay any large sum of money," Sell continued.

"I told him that I didn't think so because the material was copyrighted but I suggested that some arrangement be worked out with the service whereby the papers would pay the nominal sum of $1 a month—just something like the $1-a-year men here."

Officers of German-American papers have testified that they obtained service for $1 monthly from the Transocean. The fee, they said, was paid to the nearest consulate.

Sell said the Transocean dispatches were received for the Embassy on a short-wave radio in his own home in Arlington, Va., because reception was not good in the city.

NAZI OCCUPATION OF CZECH STATE SAW JEWS SUFFER

Anti - Semitic Campaign Pressed Ruthlessly; Grew in Intensity on Outbreak of War

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 23 (CP)—Jews in the Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia have suffered like their race in every country that came under the Nazi heel. The official publication "Two Years of German Oppression in Czechoslovakia" says they "were one of the first and most prosecuted victims of the German regime in the Protectorate."

Within an hour of the German entry in Prague March 15, 1939, all Jews were driven from newspaper offices, theatres and film studios. Jewish bank accounts were blocked and the usual roders made against Jews entering certain public parks. They were "arrested by thousands" and sent to concentration camps.

The anti-Semitic wave continued even with greater force after the outbreak of war and there was a parallel move in the apparently-independent Slovakia, once part of the Czechoslovak republic. The book said the economic background of Slovakia provided certain reason for anti-Semitism "but today the Slovak people are turning away in disgust from the brutalities committed by the regime against the Jews."

Rich Jewish business men, lawyers and doctors were chiefly affected by the early arrests in the Protectorate "for the arrests were carried out by the Gestapo which normally took this opportunity of plundering the home of the man arrested." The book listed bankers, lawyers and rabbis beaten to death in concentration camps.

This Nazi "sadistic hate for the Jews" had a definite economic and political aim too. "They wished to seize possession of the Jewish property in the Protectorate to use it for the purpose of Germanizing Czech territory in Bohemia nad Moravia."

Nuremberg Design

This was accomplished by German decrees on the Nuremberg model declaring companies Jewish if only one director belonged to that race. The Nazi protector then had the right to instal an Aryan administrator. Jewish concerns were forbidden by decree to carry on business and such concerns could be liquidated, thus falling into German hands.

Other decrees banned Jews from public offices and prevented them engaging in such professions as law, medicine and engineering for the non-Jewish population.

Forced Jewish emigration was another step in the Nazi Aryanization program and before the outbreak of war about 10,000 Jews departed. Even the outbreak of hostilities failed to hold up the expatriation and the Nazis sent a number to Lublin in Poland after they triumphed in that campaign.

Those remaining in the Protectorate were overwhelmed by a new wave of prohibitions. These included denying them ration cards for textile products, thus exposing them to cold weather, and refusing the coal ration.

The book said the Czech public "decisively condemns these brutalities" and the Czech customers "ostentatiously visit Jewish shops insofar as they are still open.

Moscow Now Added To Capitals Bombed

(By the Canadian Press)

Moscow is the tenth European capital bombed during a war which has spared few the destruction of air raids.

Most bombed and damaged is London, of course. Warsaw, the first capital to feel the impact of the German air arm, suffered widespread destruction. Brussels, Amsterdam, Paris, Belgrade, Helsinki, Berlin and Bucharest have been attacked and Nazi bombs have fallen even in neutral Dublin.

Rome and Athens have had no air attacks, although Piraeus, Athens' port only six miles away, was devastated during the German conquest of Greece.

The Hague, (Netherlands seat of government; Amsterdam is its capital), Copenhagen and Oslo have escaped bombing. German planes have appeared over Copenhagen and Oslo but dropped only leaflets.

Another European capital, Madrid, still bears the marks of air attacks of the Spanish civil war in 1936-37.

Helped Husband In Long Career

Mrs. Margaret Watt Shared in Development of Radiolocation

London (CP)—Wife of the man who developed radiolocation, Mrs. R. A. Watson Watt wants to join the Women's Auxiliary Air Force so that she can put into practice some of the things she learned from her husband.

A slim, middle-aged woman with greying hair and smiling eyes, Mrs. Margaret Watt has worked at her husband's side for 24 years, livving in little huts at Royal Air Force stations, travelling across Africa in search of thunderstorms, and now sharing with him satisfaction at the success of Britain's secret device which warns of the approaching of enemy aircraft.

When radio was in its infancy, Mrs. Watt was her husband's chief technical assistant. They lived in a lonely wooden hut on a common near an R.A.F. research station.

The hut next door was their laboratory and Mrs. Watt mixed housekeeping with duties as observer and recorder of thunderstorms.

Later she travelled with Mr. Watt on scientific expeditions to Egypt and the Arctic circle. They studied atmospheric conditions in a trek up the Nile, had their tent stolen by Bedouins, and at Khartoum "collected" some of the finest thunderstorms they had ever seen.

"The technique we worked out together in those years has since been extended over the whole field of radio research," Mr. Watt said. "In that sense it was the forerunner of the experiments which led to radiolocation."

Mrs. Watt isn't likely to get into the W.A.A.F.'s, but she thinks it would be "really thrilling" to be working the radiolocator on active service and envies the girls who have been given that chance.

Campaign Develops Against Quisling

Norwegians Protest Actions of Nazi-Inspired Government

London (CP)—The growing unrest of all sections of the Norwegian people has been voiced by 43 of the most prominent national organizations in Norway in a joint letter to the German Commissar, Terboven, the Norwegian Telegraph Agency says.

The letter is signed by leaders of organizations representing university professors, judges, clergymen, teachers, doctors, business men, civil servants, municipal employees, trade unionists, and all classes of professional, technical, administrative and industrial workers.

Stating that public indignation has increased to a marked degree in recent weeks, the letter details a whole series of incidents resulting from the "illegal and terroristic activities" of Quisling's Nasjonal Samling party and his Storm Troopers.

Particular protest is made against the brutalities committed by the Hird (Quisling's black guard) in schools and colleges and at public meetings as well as the kidnapping of Dr. Gjessing, director of the Dikemark Mental Hospital near Oslo.

The signatories point out that the decrees issued by the Quisling are contrary to both Norwegian commissars of justice and police and International law.

The doctrine of "private retaliation" officially endorsed by the Quisling public prosecutor exposes Norwegian citizens to brutal assaults without possibility of legal redress, the letter says.

Civil servants and municipal employees, according to the letter, have been threatened with dismissal if they do not join the Nasjonal Samling, and vacant positions are filled by Nasjonal Samling members without any regard to their technical qualifications.

Special attention is called to a letter from the Ministry of the Interior to the administrative office in Bergen demanding that all municipal employees in Bergen shall state in writing their views on Vidkun Quisling, the Nasjonal Samling and co-operation with the German occupation authorities.

(The agency says in this connection that out of 4,000 public employees in the Bergen district only 12 have, "under pressure," joined the Nasjonal Samling).

The letter concludes that the "overwhelming majority of Norwegians must regard these activities of the Nasjonal Samling as an attempt to force them to compromise with their consciences and abandon the path of duty."

CHATTERTON W.I.

The July meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Gerald Frederick. There were eight members and four visitors present. The president opened the meeting with community singing followed by the Institute Ode and the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll call was answered with "New uses of Canadian Products."

After the business was taken care of the program continued with a piano solo by Lugo Prest. Mrs. B. Finkle gave current events in the form of a quiz which was very interesting. Everyone then joined in community singing, followed by an open discussion on "How we can economize during the war." An interesting paper "Winston Churchill's Life" was then given by Dorothy Reid.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction and the hostess served a dainty lunch

Idol of Troops Longs for Quiet Of Own Fireside

Gracie Fields Wants to Build a Home and Adopt Children; Returns to U.S. in Autumn

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York (AP)—Gracie Fields' real ambition is a long way from the music halls where she got her singing fame.

What she really wants to do, she says, is to retire, build a house and make a home. Fireplaces, hand embroidered napkins, geraniums on the window sill and all that.

Miss Fields, who has completed a long war benefit tour in Canada and the United States, is England's most famous and highest paid music hall star. In the pre-war 30's she is said to have got more money for singing than most kings do for kinging—more than $1,000,000 a year.

Now she wants to change footlights for lamplight in a house built for her and her husband, Monty Banks, Hollywood actor and director.

She has returned to England to help fight the war with song. Under the auspices of Britain's Entertainment National Service Association, she will entertain munitions workers in factories.

Her entertainment is designed to take the place of movie theatres which were bombed and give the factory workers a little fun without interrupting their work for too long. Miss Fields doesn't expect to take a troupe with her. She will just stand alone on a truck or a chair, while somebody thumps a portable piano, and give—in that throaty voice which has made them laugh and weep from Canada to Africa.

Like Smart Frocks

She'll wear some smart American frocks which she has just bought. She says, to her surprise, she finds her audiences seem to notice the dresses she wears and comment on them.

After her factory singing she expects to return to the United States in August for a fall war benefit tour.

The blond star, wearing a simple little black and white print frock, without a single jewel, poured me a cup of coffee in her Park Avenue apartment recently, curled up on a little chintz sofa and told about her coming trip home.

"I'm doing my best for my country, while the war's on,' she said with a grave face. "It won't be my first war work. When the war broke out, I went to France and sang for British and French troops around Brest and Lille. Then just before Dunkerque, I went back home and for the last year I've been singing for war benefits in Canada and the United States.

"But I hope it will soon be over, for I want to stop this running around. I'm a bit tired. My husband says he's married to a railway ticket. Homes are my hobby —and I'm always living in somebody else's. I want to make a home and do the cooking for my husband and me."

Miss Fields went on: "Then I want to adopt a couple of children. I love children and they will make it a real home."

(Some years ago the star established the Gracie Fields Orphanage in Peacehaven, Sussex, England, and not long ago provided five thousand pounds for the building and equipment of a new wing. She also owns a house near by).

A New Angle On Human Triangle

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—Paul Martin, 33-year-old shipbuilding employee, testified in court here that he married his wife's sister last March and lived in the same house with both women until his arrest on a bigamy charge yesterday.

Hermance Dupuis, sister of Mrs. Rita Martin, also was charged with bigamy and with Martin was remanded until July 29 for sentence.

Morality Officer Albert Codlin told the court he had obtained the marriage certificate issued to Martin and Hermance showing he had been married to her in the same church where his first marriage occurred and by the same minister. He said that Martin used another name in this ceremony.

Mrs. Martin, 23, testified that she came here from Moncton in 1938 and was married in November of that year, living continuously with her husband. She said that her sister had lived in a room in their house and that she had known her husband was married to her sister since last winter. Her sister came to live with them in November 1940. Mrs. Martin has two children.

"All I have to say it was just foolishness on my part," said Martin. "My wife's sister came to live with us, and I told my wife I did not want her with us, but she insisted that she stay. The only reason I married her was to stop her from stepping out too much and to have some kind of a home on earth so she would be a good mother to her child."

Hostel Movement Grows in Canada

Provides Inexpensive Lodgings for Young Lovers of Nature

Toronto (CP)—The appeal of the great outdoors continues to attract Canada's youth and this year the number of hikers is greater than ever. Parallelling the outdoor movement, the Canadian Youth Hostel Association has grown rapidly since its introduction to Canada in 1934.

In Canada youth hostels are located in seven provinces and each year new hostels are being added. The organization enjoys the endorsement of such men and associations as Sir Robert Falconer, Dr. H. J. Cody, the Canadian Women's Club of Calgary, Col. W. Bovey and Dr. A. S. Lamb of McGill University.

Youth hostelling provides inexpensive lodging for people, not necessarily young in years but young in spirit, who like to hike, cycle, ski, canoe or who are interested in nature lore.

To join the organization costs only $2 a year for those over 21 and $1 if under that age. A wholesome meal at a hostel costs 25 cents and a night's lodging 25 cents, provided you bring your own bed sleeping sheet. Sheets, however, may be rented at a very small sum. No hostel in the world charges higher prices. Hostellers are advised to travel light and each is equipped with a light knapsack to carry all needs for hostel requirements.

Hostel Rules

Hostellers primarily "travel under their own steam"—by foot, bicycle, canoe, skis or horseback. There are no restrictions, no age limits and no requirements other than the ability to be able to rough it a bit.

Each hostel is in charge of a "house mother" and "house father." Hostellers help with the preparation of meals, wash their own dishes and keep their quarters tidy. One of the rules of hostelling is to leave a hostel cleaner than it was found.

Hostelling, as someone has aptly put it, is "the romance of travelling inexpensively, the thrill of undergoing Spartan routines, of physical hardships, or at least the absence of luxury, the lure of movement, the contact with new scenes, forming of new friendships, contacting fresh points of view and developing acquaintance with the world, rather than with an isolated spot. . ."

Hostelling originated in Germany, where the first hostel was opened in a castle in Altena. A castle was an auspicious beginning for the hostel movement; since that time every conceivable type of building has been used by hostellers: barns, humble cottages, boy scout camps, school rooms, forest rangers' cabins, Indian tepees, ranch homes, and even an abandoned schooner.

Paish Confident Russians Will Win

Montreal, July 23 (CP)— Sir George Paish, British economist, said in an interview here that he saw no world menace of Communism in the event of a Russian victory over Germany.

"Communism has been abandoned by the Russians because it will not work," he said on his arrival here to address a public meeting tonight. "Russia now is a co-operative state. Large wages are paid to those who are worth them. Small wages go to those who are not worthy of bigger. I am told that on the co-operative farms the workers all share in the profits at the end of the year."

Sir George said he believed Russia can defeat Germany.

"Russia has a strong army," he said. "It has a very strong air fleet—as strong if not stronger than that of Germany. It has excellent navies in the Baltic and Black Seas. The morale of the Russians is excellent.

"I believe that there is a good chance that they will hold the Germans. And what I do expect is that if winter comes the Germans will be beaten. That the Russians can do if they get assistance from the British Empire and the United States."

MORAL OBLIGATION OF INDIVIDUAL

Decision to issue pledge cards to drivers of motor cars whereon they will promise to give fifty-fifty in the consumption of gasoline in order to reserve motor fuel for the Dominion should prove an inspiration to many.

It places the driver in the position in which he must recognize that really the question of saving in the consumption of gasoline and oil is an individual and a moral obligation at such a time.

Drivers, like all others, like to be placed on their honor. They will become zealous in sacrificing a pleasure drive in order that the interests of the country may be served at a time when aid to Britain and transportation are very important.

Those who do the utmost for their country will make the greatest sacrifice. They will not mind depriving themselves of pleasure for the satisfaction of the greater happiness in having gone without a certain amount of driving.

It has been warned that if the amount of gasoline saved under the present measure of restricted times of sale and the appeal to the driving public is not sufficient more stringent steps will have to be taken. So the drivers have it in their power to do their utmost to keep down consumption by making it an individual duty.

FINDING A WAY TO HELP

Workmen of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company at their own cost and on their own time built three Hawker Hurricanes which have been presented to the Committee of Wings for Britain at functions in Fort William and Montreal.

This gift was the venture of the employees throughout, they raised the necessary funds and supplied the labor and at the presentations company officials remained in the background and the front seats on the platform were reserved for the employees' committee. Employees attended the presentations.

This is an example of what many individuals are doing for the Empire and the Dominion. These workmen were able to put their own skill as craftsmen into the tools which will serve with telling effect against the enemy. They naturally must feel pride that their workmanship and the gift take a practical and effective form. They should be proud of their contribution which will be an inspiration to the fortitude and courage of the British people. It is an example to those who somehow have not been able to give much of themselves to the cause in a voluntary way. Of course everyone is feeling the burden of the war in the taxation which has been placed upon the country to maintain and build up Canada's war of defence and of offensive against the common enemy. But there is the place where the voluntary service comes in. Members of the Red Cross and other patriotic societies have found their way into such voluntary service.

Now there are individuals who have not been giving or have not been able to give in such a way their individual voluntary service. Most of these would feel more happy is they could find a way in which to help. There are the moments and quarter hours which could well be put in some way into an individual effort just as the woman does who seizes the odd moment for knitting. Those who have found a way are happier for the fact that they are devoting their energies to the national cause. But unfortunately some will find it difficult to know in what way to serve with their spare time.

If all could have that satisfaction of individual voluntary participation in the war effort as well as of general participation, it would mean a greater effort.

It should be everyone's desire to find that place in which to serve at this great moment of history when every citizen should be able to make an individual contribution as well as his or her share of the collective contribution of the nation.

PITY THE POOR FAT PEOPLE

Over in England the usually good-natured fat man is in a pitiful plight. Rationing of clothes material brought about a problem that is disheartening to say the least. More of the precious ration cards have to be parted with if corpulent Chollie wants a new pair of pants, or a topcoat. Soon one may see the lads with the elephantine limbs on parade with their roly-poly fetlocks showing beneath a pair of wallpaper shorts. 'Tis sad, indeed.

By the same token the rationing of silk imports to Canada may have a similar effect on the gals who tip the scales at two hundred pounds, and who have been wearing over-size hosiery since they became eligible for the Beef Trust. Now, it is stated, the supply of these silk hose is depleted, and nothing has been done to replace them.

The gals who are perfect fifty-sixes have as much right to wear silk hose as their streamlined sisters. True, as one English girl puts it, they could paint their legs, but what about the gals who carry so much avordupois that they cannot reach that far? 'Tis a sad problem indeed and one which manufacturers of the new synthetic hosiery might well study. It wouldn't be putting a damper on their business to turn the hose in the direction of the damsels, who through no fault of their own, have to carry surplus poundage wherever they go.

SUNK?

In the war billiards game in the eastern theatre, Hitler appears to be going in off the Red instead of sinking it. And the last reports of the Mediterranean poker game has inscrutable Turkey still holding an inside strait.

WHY WASTE LEAD?

Since Hitler's reported shake-up of his generals, some of the Nazi Wolf's high-ranking officers are said to have disappeared and committed suicide. Now, if they thought anything of the Reich, all they would have to do is expose themselves and the Red snipers would look after the details. Mebbe this bird Hess was not so foolish after all.

CRASH!

How the mighty have fallen. The bombastic braggadocio, Mussolini, who, less than two short years ago, expounded his warlike fascistic theories from one or more favorite balconies, now does his broadcasting from a closed room. And reports from Europe state that frequent broadcasts for peace are emanating from the deflated one's hangers-on. The great Gayda, whose blasting of things British and American the past year has been a feature of the war, has now drawn in his turtle neck and is asking Britain for peace. Apparently the handwriting on the wall is plain to the Jackal and his mouthpiece pup. They realize the inevitable result and like all yellow-livered curs want to get out from under before their own precious skins are punctured.

WHAT A BREAK

Wonder if and when an election occurs, the government edict of "gasless" nights will apply to the political article as well as that used in motor vehicles?

HASTE THE DAY

What with prices for everything beginning to soar in Germany and war costs mounting at a terrific rate, the Hitlerian Menace may realize his dream sooner than he anticipated, and be in the "Red" months ahead of schedule.

BACK TO THE CIRCUS

I haven't been in many years, but soon I'm going back
To watch the gilded chariots go round the sawdust track.
Time was I went each season, but with Bud and Janet grown,
I thought it hardly proper for a man to go alone.
But next time when the tents are up and bugles start to blare,
A certain little fellow and his grandpop will be there!

I haven't paid attention to the billboards much of late,
But soon for signs of acrobats and clowns I'll watch and wait.
Next summer on the highways I shall smile to see again
The picture of the lady in the roaring lions' den.
For, when posters are proclaiming: "Coming soon! Earth's Greatest Show!"
A certain little fellow and his grandpop plan to go!

I haven't been to watch them now for twenty years or more,
But the elephants, I fancy, are as mammoth as before;
And the clowns are still as funny and the acrobats today
With astounding feats of daring fairly take your breath away.
Well, when comes another circus to our city, I declare,
A certain little fellow and his grandpop will be there.

Real Canadian Courage

Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Sir—In travelling East the other day, I picked up a soldier. During the conversation the present war became the topic of our talk. He told me he had been in England for two years with the Air Force and of course, had been in active service. However, he received a very serious stomach wound and was sent to a hospital in Canada and immediately, because he will not be allowed to fly any more, enlisted in the army. He was then on his way back to return to England. He explained he had lost something worth a million dollars to him and that was most of his stomach. His wife was also killed during an air raid on England. The boy said he was going back for "revenge," but I am sure it is real Canadian courage, and it is something each and everyone of us needs in this time of trial. May God bless this lad and all the soldiers, Air Force and Navy who are fighting for world freedom.

Yours very truly,

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Your Mind a Great Factor in Preserving Your Health

It is gratifying to find so many men and women who now get a thorough examination by their physician and dentist once and twice a year. While this is great health insurance in that any condition that is not normal is detected early and can usually be corrected, nevertheless there is one important point which may not be given much consideration. I refer to the great relief in the mind of the individual to know that despite symptoms sometimes present, he has the feeling that there is no organic trouble present. This relief of mind is an important factor in keeping up the general health of the body.

Next to worry about the heart, the worry about "indigestion" might well come next, yet more than half the patients who consult their physician about chronic indigestion or some stomach disturbance have no organic trouble; their symptoms are due to not having peace of mind or relief of mind.

Dr. G. Canby Robinson in Bulletin of Johns Hopkins Hospital states that, in order to show that social disturbances — worry over symytoms, finances, domestic conditions—cause illness, 50 successive patients with digestive disorders were studied without selection, in the stomach and intestine clinic of Johns Hopkins Hospital. "Patients with digestive disturbances (indigestion) were, we knew, frequently ill because of emotional disturbances, but we were not prepared to find, as we did, that adverse social conditions were entirely or importantly related as a cause of illness in 44 of the 50 patients (88 per cent.). In 30 patients no organic disease could be discovered".

These figures tell their own story. Of 50 cases, 44 were caused or aggravated by social conditions—emotions—and 30 of the 50 cases had no real or organic condition whatever.

The thought, then, is that instead of waiting for symptoms to occur, you should visit your physician and get a complete examination. Then should some symptoms arise, you can feel assured that they are not of an organic nature but are due in the great majority of cases to nervousness or emotional disturbances such as worry or fear. It should not be too hard, therefore, to think or talk yourself out of fear of organic disease.

London (CP)—The "new" system of photographing letters from the forces in the Middle East to lessen weight of air mail is described by "Peterborough," London Daily Telegraph columnists, as "Just 70 years old."

Delving into the post office archives, he discovered that the first time the system was used was in maintaining communications between London and Paris in 1870 when the "pigeon post" made history.

Letters intended for this novel mode of transmission had to be sent to headquarters of the French post office at Tours. Here they were copied in consecutive order and by a photographic process transferred in reduced form to a diminutive piece of very thin paper such as a pigeon could carry. The photographs were enlarged on arrival and a legible impression obtained.

Alain, who was alone in the field at the time of the accident, is believed to have stepped into a ditch as he was working and cut himself about the legs. The body was found by Lucien Gilles Moisan, an adopted son.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Attack on Russia and the U. S.

New York, July 23.—While Congress is debating whether we should extend the period of service for selectees and whether we should give the government power to dispose of the army, according to necessity, anywhere in the world, a plan is unfolding that is reminiscent of Alexander rather than Napoleon. If the Nazi attack on Russia succeeds, it will prove to be directed against the United States, and will mean the inevitable involvement of the United States in the war. That is a very unpopular thing to say, but it is more important to present an accurate picture than it is to be popular.

Hitler is not fighting merely for the Ukraine. He has launched his attack on every sector of the Stalin Link because he wishes and intends to take the whole of Russia. His goal is not Moscow but Vladivostok, where, if he can still hold Europe, he will be master of the world. We shall then have to help unseat him from that mastery, instead of preventing him from getting it, and the former is more difficult than the latter.

Japan at present is too isolated to play an efficient role in the Axis war system. Entangled in China, checked by the economic and naval superiority of the United States and always threatened by an uncertain Russia, she would be of little use to Hitler in a world war against Britain and the United States, but linked to the European sector of the Axis by a Nazi-dominated Russia, and supplied with material and military help from Berlin, she would become a formidable base for Axis war in the Pacific.

That Japan has any enthusiasm for participating in such a war is doubtful. But if the Nazis get to Vladivostok—and all that involves is controlling the Trans-Siberian railroad—the Japanese will have no choice about it. For the Nazis will be in a position to blackmail and coerce Japan. A German air force at Vladivostok would be a terrible menace to Japan, which is more vulnerable to air attack than any other country. Therefore, the Japanese will probably try to get there first and Japan will have to play Hitler's game—or else. Hitler treats his allies and his enemies in exactly the same way.

In this war the German high command is following out the military philosophy of Karl E. K. Haushofer, and fulfilling the warnings of the great British geo-political scientist, Sir Halford John Mackinder. The Haushofer theory of geopolitics is that in modern warfare domination of the continents is the decisive factor, not domination of the seas, and that the power which controls the largest contiguous continental spaces will outweight, outlast, and outfight sea power, and have the advantage in air power. The policy of the German high command is to outflank the oceans.

There can be many a slip between this policy and its realization, but it would be feeble-mindedness for us to count on slips. It is much better to reckon that Hitler may succeed in defeating European Russia, grabbing the Trans-Siberian Railroad, and breaking through to the Pacific for juncture with the Japanese. Intelligence recommends that we anticipate the worst possible event, instead of hoping for the best.

Political ideology has been brushed aside in this struggle for world domination. As a matter of historical fact the United States has always distinguished between the military and geographic role of Russia and its form of government. Russia under the czars was denounced by liberal America, but Russia aided us in our Civil War, and in the war of 1812, and in the Spanish-American War, all for pure reasons of national security. When Theodore Roosevelt intervened to end the Russo-Japanese war, it was to prevent the Japanese from having a decisive victory. It was not because he liked the Russian government, but because of the Pacific Ocean.

Therefore, unless we can reckon that Hitler will be decisively defeated in Russia, something which is extremely improbable, the United States is going to go to war. A nation of one hundred and thirty million people still in possession of its senses will not allow itself to be encircled and will not allow itself to be pushed around.

The question is who is to decide when we go to war, and how we go to war. If Congress is more jealous of its prerogatives than of American security, we will go at the wrong time and under the most disadvantageous possible circumstances. In this war you have to shoot when the shooting is good in order to avoid shooting when it is bad. But we will not be able to avoid shooting unless we went to be shot and shot for history.

I repeat that this is a very unpopular thing to say. But it is high time that the American people were told the hard facts of life, without any equivocation whatsoever. This nation is of age. It has wasted 22 years in blinders, allowing the freedom and power won in 1918 with American blood to slip impotently through its fingers. It will have to pay for that mistake. But this country is still worth paying for.

How high the price will be will depend on timing and on the elements of secrecy and surprise. Secrecy and surprise are worth fleets of tanks and planes and whole divisions of men.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Nowadays The Fourth Estate means only one thing—the newspapers, particularly in respect to their great influence upon public affairs.

But the term "the fourth estate" was applied to several forces before it became exclusively the designation for newspapers.

As early as 1638 Lord Falkland made a speech in the British parliament in which he said:

"You have been a long time talking of the three estates; there is a fourth which, if not well looked to, will turn us all out of doors—the army."

In those days the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons were known as the Three Estates of the Realm.

But often "the three estates of the realm" was incorrectly applied to sovereign, lords and commons.

In his Convent Garden Journal, under date of June 13, 1752, Henry Fielding wrote:

"None of our political writers.... take notice of any more than three estates, namely, Kings, Lords and Commons....passing by in silence that very large and powerful body which form the fourth estate in the community....the Mob."

The following occurred in an unsigned article printed on January 30, 1789, in the London Gazetteer and Daily Advertiser:

"Mr. Fox's Board of Commissioners, which Mr. Pultenay and Mr. Pitt clamored against as a Fourth Estate, was to be responsible to Parliament. Mr. Pitt's Fourth Estate, of the Queen and her Council, is to have no responsibility."

Thus, the army, the mob, a special board of commissioners, and the queen and her council, all were described as a Fourth Estate before that term was first applied to newspapers by Thomas Macaulay in 1828.

In the Edinburgh Review of September, 1828, Macaulay reviewed Hallam's Constitutional History and in the course of this discussion said:

"The gallery in which the reporters sit has become a fourth estate of the realm."

That is the earliest known reference to the press as the fourth estate.

In 1839 Thomas Carlyle published his Heroes and Hero Worship, in which he declared:

"Burke said there were Three Estates in Parliament; but, in the Reporters' Gallery yonder, there sat a Fourth Estate more important far than they all."

There is no evidence, however, that Burke ever used the phrase, and it is believed that Carlyle inadvertently attributed it to him instead of Macaulay.

German Drive In Russian War Bogging Down

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 23—(AP)—Four days of what seems destined to be the greatest and bloodiest battle in history furnish only one clear clue to what is actually happening along the vast German-Russian front. That is the fact that the Nazi advance has slowed to a snail's pace.

For the fourth day in succession Hitler's headquarters could point to no new breach in the Stalin Line, no new strategic river-crossing or rail-and-road junction captured to justify its assertion that Soviet frontier defenses had been torn apart and the Red Army isolated into "disconnected groups".

In effect, the German reports confirm Moscow's statement that there has been no important strategic change in the battle areas since the Nazis pushed forward to the Smolensk region. Nor need Moscow rely on its own reports alone to substantiate its boasts that Soviet forces have engaged in bitter defensive fighting and even delivered return blows.

Snags at Smolensk

Hitler's headquarters admit that the Russians are continuing their "stout local resistance and stubbornly conducted counter-attacks". It dismisses these, however, as incapable of long delaying "operations aimed at the crushing and destruction of individual groups of Soviet armed forces".

There is an element of conflict within that German battle report which tends to confirm the impression that the Nazis have encountered serious snags at Smolensk and before Kiev. Except for the Smolensk bulge, it seems that Leningrad in the north, Moscow in the north-centre and Kiev in the south-centre sector are not in greater danger than they were a week or more ago when the second great Nazi attack was launched.

The Smolensk dent, the most serious threat to the central Russian defense system, has remained static since it was created. If it has been increased in depth eastward toward Moscow or widened at the base either northward from Vitebsk or southward along the Dnieper River, no announcement to that effect has been made by the Nazi High Command except for reported annihilation of a Soviet division at Mogilev.

Assert Dniester Crossed

London military spokesmen, although observing caution in their comments, noted that the German attack in the Kiev sector is tending southward. They described it as heading down the right or west bank of the Dnieper and possibly endangering Russian forces retiring from Bessarabia behind the Dniester. The Nazis declared that German-Rumanian troops recently pushed forward in Bessarabia. They even asserted that the Dniester was crossed at undisclosed points into the Southern Ukraine.

Just where this southward Nazi swing west of the Dnieper is developing is not clear. However, a German break-through on the Kiev front to reach the Dnieper at that city or any point south of it would be even more serious for the Russians than complete Nazi investment of Smolensk, which the Russians still claim to hold.

It may be that the Nazis have changedq their strategy to attain victory in the area. The frontal assault toward Kiev from Novograd-Volynsk may be abandoned in favor of a sweep southward between the Dnieper and Dniester that could force Russian withdrawal in haste from all the Southern Ukraine behind the Dnieper. t-btLerkso.. x(

VARGAS DIAMOND BEING SEVERED

Will Reduce the Stone to $2,000,000 Worth of Cut Gems

New York, July 23—(AP)—A veteran diamond cutter yesterday severed the fabulous Vargas diamond.

It was the first step in operations which, it was hoped, would reduce the 726.60-carat gem to $2,000,000 worth of cut stones.

The job was engineered by Adrian Graselly who was left weak from the tension after striking three precision blows with a small motor axle.

He said hours were spent grooving the stone in hopes of cleaving out a 160-carat section and the third blow split the gem along its grain, as calculated.

Four or five more cuttings may be necessary to divide the diamond into the 23 stones desired.

The Vargas gem was said to be the largest uncut diamond in existence and the fourth largest in history. Rough and blue-white, it measured 2 1-2 x 2 x 1 inch, and was heavier than the famed Junker diamond which yielded 12 stones, the largest 126 carats and valued at $1,000,000.

In 1938 Joaquim Evancia, farmer and diamond digger, found the Vargas stone in an arid bed of the Rio Santo Antonio near Coromandel, Brazil.

It was bought by a syndicate financed by the Hollandsche Unie Bank of Rio De Janeiro and sold to diamond merchant Harry Winston of New York. It was named after President Vargas of Brazil.

Hastings County Leads Province in Cheese Production

In the Dominion-wide campaign for the increase of cheese production, recent figures issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture reveal Hastings County leading the entire province in production. Central Ontario has an increase 234,628 lbs, and approximately half this increase was contributed by the factories of Hastings County, which led the province with an increase of 113,928 lbs. for the month of June over the same period in 1940.

Southern Ontario district shows an increase of 13,000 lbs. over last year and Western Ontario 48,734 lbs. Total production for the Central Ontario district for the month of June 1941 is 2,915,837 lbs. But of particular interest to milk producers and cheesemakers of this county is the provincial record in production set up by the county of Hastings. Agricultural Representative Linn Fair as well as the local cheese and dairy instructors Owen McAvoy of Madoc and George Pollard of Stirling are high in their praises of the local farmers and cheesemakers for their splendid showing. It was an emergency call, that was sent out at the first of the year and as usual Hastings County was right there with the goods, declared H. L. Fair.

Catches Large Pike

A twenty minute struggle ensued when Bill Bolte and Harold West of Stirling hooked a fifteen-pound pike in the Trent River last Sunday. The fish measured about forty inches in length and was thought to be the largest displayed this season by any angler of the district.

The race was sponsored by the Danforth Business Men's Association and competed in the same manner as the All-Canadian race at Belleville. A Toronto lad won the race, with Bastedo a close second.

The local racer was accompanied to Toronto by Cecil Baker of Stirling and C. B. Colling and Jim Fraser of the Kinsmen Club in Belleville as well as his proud father, Robert Bastedo of this village.

$23,800,000 TAX ON CIGARETTES

Albany, N.Y., July 23—(AP)—New York's two-cents-a-pack cigarette tax produced $23,800,000 of State Revenue in 1940-41, exceeding Governor Lehman's estimate by $800,000.

Picton and District

Picton, July 23—Shortly, in Picton, will be seen women wearing the uniform of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, as some of the first detachment to reach Canada from the United Kingdom are being posted for duty with No. 31 Bombing and Gunnery School. These airwomen will probably release airmen for service in overseas theatres of active operations. Many of them are highly trained and will be available for such duties as clerks (general duties, pay accounting and equipment accounting), cooks, mess orderlies, M.T. drivers, telephonists, etc. and their duties will bring them into intimate contact with the general running of the school. They come under discipline similar to that for airmen, and they will be administered by their own commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

The W.A.A.F. is this war's equivalent of last war's Women's Royal Air Force, and its officers and members have already given much distinguished service in the United Kingdom at operational, training and maintenance units as well as headquarters formations, and decorations have been awarded for outstanding achievements. Although at present their activities are confined to ground duties, they are of considerable scope and importance and have brought many intimately into association with Britain's war effort on bomber and fighter stations. Officers all enter in the ranks, from which they are commissioned after favourable report and interview by a selection board. Their ranks correspond with those of the R.A.F. as follows: Officers — Wing Officer, Wing Commander; Squadron Officer, Squadron Leader; Flight Officer, Flight Lieutenant; Section Officer, Flying Officer; Assistant Section Officer, Pilot Officer; Warrant Officer, (no equivalent), Warrant Officer; N.C.O.'s, Senior Sergeant, Flight Sergeant; Sergeant, Sergeant; Corporal, Corporal; Ranks (no equivalent), Leading Aircraftman; First Class Aircraftwoman, First Class Aircraftman; Second Class, ditto, Second Class, ditto.

Service etiquette is observed in the W.A.A.F. very similar to that obtaining in the R.A.F., and association between the different ranks during off-duty hours, is discouraged. Their members are honorary members of the R.A.F. messes corresponding to their rank, and they have a right to attend functions in such messes to which ladies are invited.

This experiment of "women in uniform" has proved to be an unqualified success in the United Kingdom, where the "WAAFS" (pronounced "WOFFS") have shown themselves to be a very smart body, with excellent esprit-de-corps and where they have had very considerable recruiting value among the manhood of the country.

FRANCO-JAP CRISIS MAY BE SETTLED SHORTLY

Vichy Quarters Say Understanding for Technical Protection of Fr. Indo-China by Japan

PRESSURE EXERTED

Vichy, France, July 23 (AP)—Some quarters close to the Government considered it likely today that France and Japan might reach an understandnig for the technical protection of French Indo-China by the Japanese.

(The Japanese Press has been conducting an editorial campaign charging that the Chinese, British and followers of Free French Leader Gen. Charles De Gaulle are preparing to invade Indo-China.

(Governor-General Admiral Jean Decoux of Indo-China is conferring with Japanese military authorities at Hanoi, the territory's capital, but the nature of their talks has not been made public.)

Foreign observers expressed the opinion that Japan has been exerting pressure here and in Indo-China to effect an understanding which would give the Japanese bases in the territory.

Allegations that Indo-China would fall like the Levant States into British and De Gaullist hands have been expressed in some quarters here.

The conversations between Vichy and Japan over Indo-China were understood to be based on the Japanese "guarantee of the integrity" of Indo-Chinese frontiers" given after Japan mediated hostilities between Thailand and Indo-China.

Les Nouveaux Temps asserted that "before penetrating into Indo-China, Britain should remember the guarantee given our colony by Tokyo."

It was recalled that a protocol attached to the peace treaty with Thailand bound Vichy to do nothing to oppose Japanese interests in the colony, directly or indirectly.

The Paris edition of Paris Soir wrote that "any decision which might be taken by the Japanese Government would not be a surprise for the French Government" and added that while Vichy must defend its empire its attitude would be different towards a signatory of the Axis Pact.

Looking Back on Canada

with FRED WILLIAMS

On This Date

For 63 years after Confederation, the House of Commons had a rule that when a member was sworn to the Cabinet he must resign his seat and run to his constituency for endorsation by his electors. It was a relic of the early days of the British Parliament when it was necessary to prevent "star chamber" appointments without the consent of the people.

As a rule, the by-election was a mere formality, the new cabinet minister being returned by acclamation. This was especially so immediately after a general election. But there were many cases between general elections when new ministers had to face contests. Most of these sustained the new minister, but there have been several cases where the nominee was defeated. Notable among these was in 1877, whn Sir Wilfrid Laurier sought re-endorsation by the electors of Drummond-Arthabaska when he was sworn as minister of inland revenue. Then he suffered the only personal defeat of his life, but what Drummond-Arthabaska lost Quebec East gained, because the great Liberal was elected in the Citadel city and retained the seat to his death.

Abolition of the re-election rule had long been advocated by members of the Commons and by newspapers, but it was not until 1931 that the reform was made. Then it came about in a peculiar fashion. In 1929 S. W. Jacobs, then Liberal M.P. for Montreal-St. Louis, introduced a bill to abolish the re-election system; but it was not proceeded with by the Liberals for some unknown reason. Then came the Liberal defeat in 1930 and the advent of Mr. R. B. Bennett to office. He at once saw the desirability of avoiding by-elections, took over the Jacobs' bill, put it through on this date 10 years ago and relieved nominees to the cabinet of having to go through the trials of a second election. It served his purpose well and has proved equally valuable to Mr. Mackenzie King. The novelty of the matter is that it was a Conservative government which abolished the old rule, even though the proposal came from so sturdy a Liberal as Sam Jacobs.

Japanese Army In North China On the Move

Peiping, July 23—(AP)—Responsible quarters in Peiping reported today a growing belief that the Japanese army in North China and Manchoukuo was in the midst of major shifts of important units.

They said they saw the latest indication of such a development in well-grounded but not officially confirmed reports from Tangshan, 150 miles east of here, that 20 troop-laden trains had passed Northwood through there in the past few days.

Where the men came from and where they were going, these reports said, was not known, but it was observed that they could be headed into Manchoukuo or for the port of Chinwangtao where they might embark for movement southward.

Cariboo Highway Filling Station Operators Protest

Boston, Bar, B.C., July 23—(CP)—Walter Harrington, spokesman for service station operators on the Cariboo Highway, said last night a protest had been sent to G. R. Cottrelle at Ottawa, Federal Oil Controller, protesting the recent order closing gasoline stations between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. Harrington said the operators are dependent on servicing of night-travelling trucks for much of their revenue.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, July 24

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE AUGURY for this day is for a memorable and progressive state of affairs, with probable change, innovations and surprising turns in the wheel of fortune contributing to its pleasure and success. Radical or novel ideas, plans or projects may thrive under the supervision or collaboration of those in power or group support or recognition. Daring and dramatic moves may prove productive, despite some trivial annoyances or some more regrettable domestic concern. Elders may cause this anxiety. Be circumspect in all personal relations.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured a year of progress and probably thrilling experiences in connection with public activities or in collaboration with high authorities, superiors or influential personages. This may involve radical change of plans and objectives, new associates and environs, but all profitably and constructively. In the private life there may be anxiety or grief and all purely intimate or personal relations should be handled with discretion.

A child born on this day should be progressive, original, creative and daring in its adventures, and should have surprising twists to its fortunes. It may suffer in its domestic or affectional life.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Boy Seeking Honorable Course in Breaking Engagement

Is there a technique in breaking an engagement?

How can one break off relations with a girl one has made love to, asked to marry, gone around with for a year or more—then suddenly ceased to love?

Is it possible to be both honest and honorable in such a case?

There are many ways of looking at this question. In the past generation, the code was simple enough. If you were engaged to a girl, you married her, whatever change of feeling you might have undergone. Otherwise, you had to reckon with her male relatives, possibly armed with shotguns.

"Breach of promise" used to be a menacing phrase, and there still is, of course, a grim legal meaning attached to it.

To what degree have things changed?

I've been thinking this matter over, since receiving the following letter from Clem T., who is, you will admit, in a tight place:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"A little over a year ago I began going with a young lady who seemed just about my ideal. We had swell times together, and decided we might as well be engaged, although I wasn't making much money at the time. I thought I was in love with her, and we expected to be married next fall.

"Then about a month ago, I met a girl with whom I have fallen head over heels in love. She drives me nearly wild and I can't think of another thing, day or night. She will see me about once a week, but she knows about my fiancee, and won't promise me a thing until I have broken my engagement to the other girl.

"But, please Miss Fairfax, how can I do this? Shall I write her a letter? Or will it be all right to simply fade out? I don't want to break her heart or anything like that; but I just couldn't live without the new love. I must have your answer, as I might as well face the facts. "Clem T."

I understand the delirium Clem is in, but he must somehow muster enough sanity to see that a girl who expects to be a bride in a few months deserves a good deal of consideration from the boy who seems only to want to dis-engage himself in the easiest way possible for him.

Merely to "fade out" in such a case, would be an outrage. It might be possible to break the news by letter, but the manliest and most straightforward course is to talk the matter over with the fiancee and ask to be released.

Perfect frankness is absolutely necessary. If she's reasonable, she will consent to breaking the engagement, however much her heart and pride may suffer. If she's not reasonable — but why borrow trouble?

At this time I can't resist pointing out that this case shows how unwise it is to become engaged unless there is real love on both sides. Promise to marry a girl you merely like, and before you know it a siren comes along, the mere sight of whom will reduce your sober plans to nothingness.

From that moment this shining creature will be the center of importance, and it will be your job to renounce the first promises in order, with all possible speed, to make new ones. By all means, this is better and fairer than to marry a girl you don't love.

Plan Scout Troop at St. John's Mission

A very happy evening was enjoyed by a number of junior boys of St. John's Mission at Oakwood Cottage Friday evening, when Miss Dorothy Osborne of Cannifton, who as camp nurse for the Girl Guides at Hillcrest, and who is a Scoutmaster brought twenty boys of her troop to the gathering. Games and guessing contests were enjoyed.

The boys of St. John's Mission are planning to start a Scout troop. Mr. Richard Chard, Stirling, is helping the boys while in the city. Much credit is due Miss Osborne who finds time to lead and instruct her group who were smart in their uniforms. A hearty vote of thanks to them was extended at the conclusion of the meeting, which ended with the Scout prayer.

And fresh apricots (60 for three) instead of stewed apricots (200 for three)? And plain asparagus on toast (75) instead of creamed asparagus (250)?

Those are the little calory mistakes that keep you thin! Go on a high-calory diet for a while. By adding a little more than 1,000 calories a day you can gain two pounds a week. And remember you won't have to "stuff," especially if you include foods with the appetite vitamin—B1.

Vacationists Warned Against Chiggers

From the camps where selective service draftees are in training and from the fields where vacationists are trying to obtain rest and relaxation come innumerable complaints that Trombicula irritans, better known as chiggers, are exceedingly busy this year. The tall grass and the weeds are full of them.

They hook themselves on to the skin. Immediately the skin becomes irritated and intolerable itching begins. Red blotches appear and blisters form on the blotches. Thereupon the person who has been bitten begins to scratch. Long, red welts appear, which sometimes become infected.

Authorities say the chiggers do not burrow into the skin but just bite the upper layers. They also inject into the skin a substance which dissolves and softens the tissues. This is the substance that causes the itching.

A chigger cannot get into the skin unless the pores are greatly dilated. If you have been attacked by chiggers, wash the skin thoroughly with soap and water and allow the lather to remain on the skin ten minutes before removing. This will help to remove the pest.

There are now available a number of skin lotions, ointments, and similar mixtures which are useful against itching. Most of them contain petroleum jelly, or other ointments mixed with small amounts of menthol, thymol, or phenol, which are active against itching. There are also dusting powders containing small amounts of salicylic acid. There are some ointments which contain anesthetic substances.

Authorities also recommend that infestation with chiggers can be prevented by putting flour of sulphur on the stockings and underclothing when going into tall grass or weeds. If there are chiggers near your house they can be kept under control by clearing away the underbrush, vines and weeds, keeping the grass cut close, and by using plenty of sulphur powder over the area where chiggers breed. Government officials, who have given lots of thought to the chigger problem, say that five or ten pounds of sulphur powder spread over an ordinary city lot will take care of all the chiggers in that area.

Soldiers used to be protected against chiggers when they wore leggings or wrapped leggings around the legs, thus closing off the bottom of the trousers. Many modern uniforms are now like ordinary civilian clothing. Short socks leave a lot of bare skin and make it easy for the chigger to take hold.

CONSIDER FIXING OF 'GAS' PRICES

More Equitable Zones Likely to be Established and Number Reduced to Four

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—Fixing a wholesale and retail gasoline prices is under consideration of the Oil Controller, G. R. Cottrelle, and when a sound basis for the plan is worked out it will be put into effect.

Making the announcement at a press conference today J. L. Stewart, the Deputy Oil Controller, said "it is the intention of the Oil Controller to fix the wholesale and retail prices which will govern the spread to the dealer, and to establish zones that will, in our opinion, be more equitable."

He added that in Ontario there are presently 10 price zones which "we hope to reduce to four."

Highway Speed Limits

Mr. Stewart said that no request has yet gone out to the provinces asking them to reduce speed limits. "I don't know," he answered when queried as to this possibility.

He said that under the War Measures Act the Federal government could effect a speed control limit in the provinces but "we have found the provinces very willing to co-operate in any measures."

Questioned as to the effect of the new restrictive regulations in the first two days Mr. Stewart said that "any reaction we have is that the people generally are responding to our request."

Unofficial reports indicated there was a general reduction in motorists' speed. There had been no reports of regulation breaches.

He said that 35-mile-an-hour is the most economical speed "but we have a feeling that it is useless to ask motorists" to conform to that limit and the 40-mile-an-hour mark was suggested as a means of conserving gasoline.

Mr. Stewart said that consideration of applications for gasoline for emergency purposes which might arise is under consideration.

New and Cheaper 'Gas' Container May Be Approved

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—A new and cheaper type of can for carrying reserve supplies of gasoline will likely be given official approval within the next few days. Attorney General Conant announced today that a committee studying the matter had reached what it believes is a solution to the problem.

Details of the plan would be available shortly, Mr. Conant said.

"I believe we have arrived at a solution which will afford the maximum protection to the public consistent with a reasonably priced and readily available container," he declared.

Mr. Conant also announced he had written to Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle respecting the proposal that maximum highway speeds should be reduced to 40 miles an hour in order to conserve gasoline. The attorney-general, however, declined to say what suggestions or representations he was making to the oil controller.

Underwriter's Issue Warning

Montreal, July 23 (CP)—Motorists in Ontario and Quebec were warned today by the Canadian Underwriters' Association against carrying spare cans of gasoline in their automobiles because of the Dominion's new gasoline restrictions.

The Canadian Underwriters' Association said a motorist carrying gasoline in tins in his car would expose himself to the following risks:

Passengers could make heavy claims against him if the gasoline exploded and injured them;

He might be guilty of criminal negligence if there were loss of life in such an accident;

He would nullify any fire insurance on his home if he kept his car in his own garage.

Main Duck Island Sold to U. S. Citizen

Picton, Ont., July 23.—(CP)—Main Duck Island, whose surrounding waters are known to marines as the "graveyard of Lake Ontario", and the scene of many shipwrecks, has been sold, the new purchaser being J. F. Dulles of Cold Springs Harbor, L.I., noted authority on international law. Details of the purchase from the Claude W. Cole estate have just been completed.

Located in Lake Ontario, 14 miles off Prince Edward County shores, Main Duck comprises about 1,000 acres and is a mile-and-ahalf long. The purchase also includes the smaller Yorkshire Island.

The Main Duck Island was owned by C. W. "King" Cole up until the time of his death in May, 1938. He has reigned as monarch of the Island for forty years and he stocked it with a herd of buffalo, later with Montana goats and deer. The buffalo gored his prize livestock and he disposed of them with a gun.

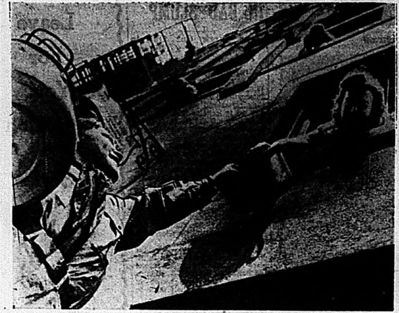
UNCLE SAM OPENS DRIVE TO COLLECT 20,000,000 POUNDS OF SCRAP ALUMINUM



A POT AND A PAN TO VANQUISH THAT MAN

Mrs. Frances Sarros does her patriotic bit by handing out an aluminum skillet that has cooked many a family dinner, and Scout Albert Velotti accepts for Uncle Sam as the collection of aluminum got under way in New York. Boy Scouts and other authorized agents began the house-to-house collection for the defence program in New York's city-wide drive. The national collection is expected to net some 20,000,000 pounds of the strategic metal.

YOUNG MAN SHOWS HIS METTLE

None is too young to serve his country. Bill Stahl, Jr., is only 20 months old, but he is giving his toy automobiles to Fire Lieutenant Edward McLaughlin, of New York. The toys contain aluminum which is needed for defence. It was Bill, Jr's contribution during the U.S. National Aluminum Week.

HOMELESS AGAIN

Inasmuch as nothing more devastating could hit them than that which they have already suffered, there might possibly be a ray of hope glowing inside these Polish Jews as they gather their belongings into a sheet and start their wanderings once more. Their Polish town had been damaged by German bombs before the Nazis captured it. It had been occupied by Soviet troops for a time and there had been surcease from persecution for one full year. These refugees may try to get back to Soviet territory.

GAS ATTACK POSSIBILITY

London, July 23.—(CP)—Home Secretary Herbert Morrison warned a luncheon audience today to "let nobody forget the possibility of a gas attack" on Britain and to expect "further and possibly heavier air attacks".

"The enemy may well have new methods and some surprises for us", he said, but Britain's defence "will have some surprises for his pilots too".

Because of a shortage of trouser buttons, men soon may have to salvage buttons from their own trousers and give them to their tailors for the new. Most of these buttons are made from "vegetable ivory" which comes from cocoa nuts and gum nuts, both of which have to be imported.

Fifteen-year-old Leonard Golder of London hung head downwards for 12 hours in the wreckage of a bombed building, but did not complain although his leg was crushed and later had to be amputated. He was awarded the Cornwell Badge, highest Boy Scout decoration for fortitude.

FINED FOR VIOLATING

Brantford Ont., July 23 (CP)—A. E. Reeder, Brantford, today was found guilty on two counts of violating the recently gazetted Cheese and Hog Subsidy Act when he appeared for judgment before Magistrate R. J. Gillen. Fines of $50 and costs of $16.75 in each case were imposed with an alternative of one month in jail on each charge.

The case was regarded as a test case. Reeder admitted buying 65 hogs from Manager Schollard of Bow Park Farm here. He took some to a packing plant the same day and some to another the next morning and claimed the producer's subsidy of $1 on each of the grade hogs and 50 cents on each of the grade B porkers.

Officials from the Livestock Department of the Ontario Department of Agriculture were interested in the case and gave evidence. They claimed Reeder was not a producer in the meaning of the Act. The court upheld the claim.

A. H. Boddy, K. C., defence counsel, argued that the Act did not define a producer and likened his client to producer of plays. In the other charge similar evidence was recounted.

72-YEAR-OLD CYCLIST INJURED

Brantford, Ont., July 23—(CP)—Beverley Lloyd-Jones, 72, cyclist, injured July 16 when he collided with a truck in front of his home, about a mile east of Burford, died today in Brantford General Hospital.

Body is Found Floating in Bay

Hamilton, July 23—(CP)—Body of William Morris McGee of Thessalon, Ont., was found floating in Hamilton harbor today. He was 35. There was a heavy bruise over one eye and Dr. J. H. Mullin, chief coroner, ordered an autopsy.

In his pocket was found a letter addressed to W. J. Ferguson, master of the steamship N. B. MacPherson of the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co. The letter, signed by T. J. Houtman, said: "This is to introduce to you and your first mate, W. M. McGee who is going aboard in the capacity of wheelsman."

In the pockets of his clothing were found letters and identification documents including a birth certificate, giving his birthplace as Algoma, and a passport which classified him as a United States citizen. He carried an authority from the American Maritime Commission to serve on the Great Lakes.

The N. B. MacPherson docked here late July 18 and cleared for Buffalo. McGee was seen around the docks on that day. He spoke to Arthur G. Tait, records keeper for the Harbor Commission, who told expected. McGee was last seen walking restlessly up and down the wharves. Mr. Tait reported that he was in very nervous and shaky condition.

Sawflies Cut West's Wheat Yield by Millions of Bushels

Entomologist Says Only Way to Defeat Pest is to Grow Crops Not Attracted by Flies

GREAT DEVASTATION

Lethbridge, Alta., July 23—(CP)—Dr. C. W. Farstad of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory here said today after a 4,000-mile inspection trip that some areas in Alberta and Saskatchewan are "so severely infested" with wheat stem sawflies "that the only way to defeat the pest seems to be to grow crops which are not attacked by sawflies."

Dr. Farstad, terming the wheat stem sawfly situation "very grave" method to do so, we must develop a system for controlling sawflies in that cultural method," continued Dr. Farstad. "If an investation is already present in a field, sawfly control must precede strip farming."

Stating that over wide areas damage of 20 to 100 per cent can be expected, Dr. Farstad said nothing can prevent loss of millions of bushels of wheat this year but that in future years the infestation can be defeated through widespread co-operation of farmers and agricultural experts. This year, however, "many fields in certain areas will be completely flattened by sawfly devastation."

The pest, now affecting wheatlands from the Alberta foot-hills to Brandon, Man., and from the international border northward into the tree belt, made its greatest advance in the last few years, after general adoption of strip farming to control soil drifting. Strip farming provides ideal conditions for increase of sawflies, entomologists found.

Under the strip farming method stubble land is left on each side of strips of land the stubble prevents soil drifting.

"We must control soil drifting, and, if strip farming is the best with approximately 25 per cent of the West's 17,000,000 acres of wheat "severely infested," urged an increase in barley, oats and flax acreage or regrassing with crested wheat grass.

Kiwanians Hear Of Convention

An excellent report of the recent Kiwanis International Convention held in Atlanta, Georgia, was given to the Belleville Kiwanis Club on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel by Elmer Cogswell, President of the Kingston Kiwanis Club and who represented that club along with Billy Mills at Georgia. The speaker was introduced by Don LaFrance and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Charlie Richardson. Phil Huddleston, in the absence of Leo Riggs, presided at the piano with Harold Carruthers leading the community singing.

Mills Marr, Chairman of the Car Committee reported that sales were quite satisfactory and announced that the new car will be taken to outlying points in the district within the next two weeks for exhibition purposes. It is also proposed that Kiwanis members will assist in the sale of tickets on the Belleville streets at least four nights a week. Mr. Cogswell told the members the spirit or goodwill and comradeship was the finest he had ever seen and although it was his first international he admitted that no member should go a long time in Kiwanis without attending one of these conventions. "Of all the speakers at the convention, Grattan O'Leary of The Ottawa Journal gave the finest," said Mr. Cogswell. He compared the war effort of Canada with that of the United States with respect to population and showed that Canada is really doing her part for democracy and the finer way of living. The address was very interesting to Kiwanians and was much appreciated.

Michael J. "Mike" Rodden Named Coach of Reliance Senior Hockey Club in This City

Accepts Position as Inspector in Plant After Conference With Mr. Ken. J. Soden

WELL RECOMMENDED

Michael J. "Mike" Rodden, veteran Toronto hockey coach, National Hockey League referee and former sports editor of the old Toronto Globe, was today named coach of the Reliance Senior Hockey Club in Belleville. Mr. Rodden, who is recognized as one of the best authorities in hockey and a proven coach, accepted a position as inspector at the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company late Tuesday following a lengthy conference with Ken. J. Soden, Secretary-Treasurer of the Reliance Hockey Club and company official. Mr. Soden informed the Ontario Intelligencer today that Mr. Rodden had accepted a position as inspector at the Reliance plant and would be engaged as coach of the Reliance Hockey Club next winter. In the meantime the supplementing of the club in the matter of playing personnel will be left wholly in the hands of Mr. Rodden, whose ability to select tried and proven players is accepted wherever ice hockey is played.

Of The Old School

The silver-thatched Mike Rodden is a product of hockey's oldest school and for many years he and the late Lou Marsh were referred to as the "Siamese Twins of Hockey," in the days when hockey referees had to be hardened officials and rule with iron hands to carry out their official duties. In the heydays of the old N.O.H.A., when the Sudbury Wolves and the Soo "Grey Hounds" were bitter puck rivals, Mike Rodden gained for himself the name of being the "most fearless referee in Canada," a name he still carries into a hockey game, whether he is coaching or refereeing. The acquisition of Mike Rodden as coach of the Reliance team in Belleville fills a long need in Belleville hockey circles, as Mr. Rodden commands the respect and attention of his players, to say nothing of their willingness to play the game under his tuition.

Former Newsman

For many years M. J. Rodden was sports editor of the now defunct Toronto Globe and was well known in football circles, as well as on the hockey rinks, having coached senior football teams, notably the old Hamilton Tigers of the Interprovincial Union, as well as many senior and championship junior teams in Toronto, when senior hockey was considered the fastest hockey in the country. Aside from directing the Toronto Canoe Club seniors and De La Salle juniors to titles, Mike Rodden also had his fling at coaching in professional hockey circles and for two years, directed the Windsor "Bulldogs" in the old International League, during which time he was successful in sending several of the youthful players under his tuition into the National Hockey League, where they benefited by his early coaching advice to subsequently become renowned major league stars.

Recommended by Leafs

Mike Rodden was recommended to the Reliance Club by Frank Selke publicity manager of the Maple Leaf Gardens and the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. Upon coming to Belleville Mr. Selke assured Coach Rodden of any assistance he might need in strengthening the Reliance squad to make it a strong senior entry in the O.H.A. for the 1941-42 season.

"You size the situation up in Belleville and whatever material you deem is necessary the Maple Leafs will endeavour to provide, if at all possible," is the statement Mr. Rodden conveyed to Secretary Soden as coming from Mr. Selke before Mike left his native Toronto to take up residence in Belleville.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, July 23.—(AP)—National open champ Craig Wood goes back to the old home town, Lake Placid, N.Y., today to team up with his brother, Scott, in an exhibition match . . . They say Craig has cleaned up about five grand since the doings at Fort Worth last month . . . . Aluminum collectors calling at Ebbets Field Monday were referred to the Umpires' dressing room by Frankie Frisch . . . Jimmy McLarnin is about to desert Hollywood and build a home at Oakland . . .. Perpetual, current favorite for the Hambletonian, did not win a race as a two-year-old trotter.

The Bad Humor Man

Judge Landis, who can't see a thing without his specs, found himself in a picklement at the American Association all-star game dinner. There he was with a plate full of fried chicken, et cet., and unable to feed himself because he had left his glasses in his room. The judge borrowed a pair from Burt Shotten, Columbus manager, and pitched in . . . . Mike Jacobs couldn't get a $10,000 offer for the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer fight films, but they have made $100,000. Conn-Louis pictures will gross around $300,000.

Odditorium

By a strange quirk of circumstance, Jake Atz, Sr., and Jake Atz, Jr., both manage ball clubs called the "Twins" . ... Jake, Jr., is at Texarkana in the cotton states loop and his pop is at Winston-Salem in the Piedmont . . . P.S.C. — Both clubs are in seventh place.

MELIO BETTINA DEFEATS BURMAN

New York, July 23—(AP) — A gate of $20,409 and the 24th victory in Melio Bettina's heavyweight career were the principal products of the second Ebbets Field boxing promotion by Chick Meehan and Jimmy Bronson.

Bettina's 10-round victory over rugged Red Burman of Baltimore featured the show which the Meehan-Bronson combine put on last night. The Beacon (N.Y.) southpaw, former light-heavyweight king, had Burman bewildered with his left-handed style.

A by-product of the program was the serving of a court attachment which held up the purse of Lee Savold, Des Moines (Ia.) heavyweight who outpointed Brooklyn's Solly Krieger. It was served on behalf of Pinkie George, the Iowan's former manager.

DEACONS SCORE 22-17 WIN OVER SWACO LASSIES

Winners Clinch Playoff Berth and Allow Zellers to Move Into First Place Though Idle

HEAVY HITTING

With the hitters dominating the play throughout, the Deacon A.C. pounded out a 22 to 17 win over the SWACO lassies at the Armouries lawn last night. In winning the Deacon gals not only cinched a league play-off berth, but moved into third place and pushed the losing SWACOS off the top rung of the league ladder, the Watt-led nine dropping into second place behind the Big-Z, who advanced while idle.

Although Deacons scored seven runs in the first two frames, the "east-enders" knotted the count in the second and continued to score in the next three frames. Deacons rallied in the last three frames to score runs, getting five in a ninth inning rally that proved sufficient to coast in as the SWACOS were halted in their final plate appearance.

Many Errors

Flossie McMurter hurled for Deacons and although touched hard at times, hurled steady in the clutches and was given splendid support by Dot Sharpe, who made several sensational running catches in left, Betty Ridley at second and Jean Corneal in the garden. Danny Stead was touched for 24 hits off the losers' mound, but her teammates booted the ball for eight fielding errors, with Ronsky and Grain kicking in with the best defensive play. Deacons introduced a new first sacker in Toots Sharpe, who materially strengthened the winners.

Dot Sharpe hit a home run for Deacons and M. Grain got a round-tripper for the losers. Every member of the Deacon squad collected at least one hit in the free hitting contest of the season. The Big-Z and SWACOS battle it out for the league leadership on Friday night.

HOW TO SWIM

NO 1—INTRODUCTION

Bare Necessity—In Hot Weather

Have you ever watched swimmers in the lake, ocean or pool, marvelling at the ease of their progress through the water?

If you have and have envied them because you could not do the same—stop right now and learn to swim yourself.

Follow the directions and suggestions in this series, practice the movements and you will be able to master the art of swimming.

So now you're going to learn to swim.

A number of strokes may be used in swimming, but each falls into one of four main classifications: the crawl, the sidestroke, the breaststroke and the backstroke. Any other strokes are variations or combinations of these.

Because the crawl is perhaps the easiest and the fastest stroke we will start with that, and in succeeding articles tell you how to perform each of the others.

Remember, however, that if you find that some other stroke appears to be easier for you, fasten your attention upon learning that stroke. Once you have mastered one stroke the others may easily be added to your natatorial ability.

Keep in mind, also, that the most important factor in learning to swim or dive is RHYTHM; rhythm of arm movements and breathing.

As we go along step by step, practice each lesson on rhythm with what you have learned in the previous article.

Whether you've ever been in the water before or not, it is essential that you become familiar with it in such a way as to lose all fear of it before you can learn to swim. Follow the suggested procedure faithfully.

STEP ONE — Upon entering the pool or lake, stay in a shallow part. Stand in water somewhat more than waist deep. Relax and, leaning forward slightly, duck your head under the surface.

STEP TWO — Next, vary your private ducking party by either drawing your legs up toward your body as a frog does or move into slightly deeper water and lean forward until your legs are not touching bottom. Use the water for a mattress. It will support you.

STEP THREE — Now that you have lost your fear of the water, go to the side of the pool and stretch yourself full length in the water, face down, with your arms extended forward and facing the side of the pool or whatever support there is in your swimming hole. A rail or wooden bar will serve.

STEP FOUR — Do Step Three again, but this time kick your legs up and down alternately, with a slow, easy motion, kicking from the hips.

FELLER BEATEN

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Sometimes in baseball a pitcher gets the "number" of a rival ball club and the one Atley Donald of the New York Yankees has on the Cleveland Indians has proved immensely important.

Donald is a 28-year-old Southern boy who never is mentioned in the same breath with the better pitchers of the American League, has won five games this year, three of them over Cleveland and twice against Bob Feller.

Yesterday he led the Yanks to a 4-3 decision that turned the pennant race into a virtual runaway, giving the Yanks their 35th victory in 41 contests and an eight-game grip on first place.

Feller, trying for his 20th victory before 45,000 fans, put up a game battle, holding the Yanks to seven hits. But six of these were bunched in the first four frames and were interspersed with walks The blows included a home run by Joe Gordon.

While the Yanks were blowing the lid off the American League competition, the leaders in the National League managed to tie themselves into another knot.

The Brooklyn Dodgers carried a 4-0 lead into the ninth inning and then lost a 5-4 decision to the Cincinnati Reds in a big rally centred around Chuck Aleno's pinch triple with the bases loaded. Bucky Walters, who had held the Dodgers to eight hits, drove in the deciding run himself with a fly to centre and achieved his 12th victory.

Cards Beat Giants

It was the fifth defeat in six games for the skidding Dodgers and when the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Giants 7-6 the National League lead reverted to a tie between Brooklyn and St. Louis.

The Cards crowded six runs into one rollicking inning, the fourth, to beat the Giants. The defeat also dropped the Giants out of third place and let in Cincinnati.

Pittsburgh beat the Phillies 4-3 in a contest in which both starting pitchers lasted only one inning and in which all the scoring was completed by the third.

The Chicago Cubs crushed the Boston Braves 13-2 with a 16-hit bombardment.

The Boston Red Sox licked the Chicago White Sox 6-2 with Heber (Dick) Newsome outpitching John Rigney for his 11th victory.

The Philadelphia Athletics easily whipped the St. Louis Browns 4-1 with Jack Knott pitching five-hit ball and the Washington Senators stopped the Detroit Tigers 5-4 on the steady, eight-hit hurling of Sid Hudson.

ROCHESTER WINGS IN BAD SLUMP

Have Work Cut Out to Hold Down a Playoff Position

(By The Associated Press)

The champion Rochester Red Wings spent the first half of the International League season battling for second place, but from now on it looks as if they'll have their work cut out for them trying to hold down fourth place, the last playoff spot.

A recent slump during which they lost eight of nine games dropped the Wings into the First Division cellar and today they are only two games ahead of the fifth-place Jersey City Giants.

They snappped their losing streak last night by taking both ends of a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs, 2-0 and 6-3, and were helped further by Buffalo's 5-4 victory over the Little Giants in the afternoon game.

The double victory left the champions six games behind third-place Montreal. The Royals nipped the Baltimore Orioles, 6-5, on Alax Kampouris' three-run homer in the ninth to keep a half game in back of Buffalo.

Buffalo defeated Jersey City, Mickey Rocco's 18th home run of the season breaking a 4-4 tie in the tenth inning.

The league-leading Newark Bears maintained their record of never having lost a doubleheader by taking the second game with the Toronto Leafs, 7-4, after losing the opener, 3-2.

The Bears got off to a fast start against Herman Besse in the nightcap, scoring four runs in the first frame. In the first game, Dick Fowler limited the Bears to four hits to outpitch Hank Borowy.

TENNIS EXPERTS PATTING BACKS

Called the Turn in Two Important Matches at Seabright, N.J.

Seabright, N.J., July 23.—(AP)—The tennis experts were building themselves up today as pretty smart fellows, and on the record you could not very well blame them.

These are the gents, you may recall, who were skeptical on two counts when the 54th annual Seabright tournament started. They had their doubts that national champion Don McNeill should be ignored completely merely because he hadn't been able to win any Clay Court tournament. They also were not inclined to wax over enthusiastic about Frankie Parker in spite of his impressive record in the same league.

The experts looked good both ways off yesterday's matches, for McNeill turned in a fine exhibition in his first turf test of the season, and Parker came close to flunking his.

While blonde Donald was brushing aside Bob Kerdasha of South Carolina with the loss of only four games, Parker had to call on all his court craft to get by Ed Amark of San Francisco, a comparative "Rookie", 7-5, 3-6, 6-2. Until the Californian tired in the final set, he had the Clay Court champion in a bad way.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

It seems Harry Ridley wasn't exactly teeing 'em off and burning up the Belleville Golf course last Wednesday when playing against Bill Hancox, the Trenton pro.

At the time earth flew in all directions as Harry tried to get out of traps, etc.

Exasperated, Harry suddenly exploded: "H——, the worms will think there's an earthquake on."

"Oh, I don't know," slyly retorted Hancox. "They tell me around here the worms are crafty. I'll bet most of them are hiding under your ball for safety."

If you don't play golf, but can't quit trying, here's your chance to show the other guys in your favorite foursome a thing or two.

Francis (Thomas Edison) Marzolf, professional at the Columbus, Ohio, Golf Club, and one of the club's members, Roy Kirk, have perfected a gadget guaranteed to make you hit 'em straight as a string, and as far (almost) as Jimmy Thomson or Sam Snead.

It's a simple thing, but Marzolf declares it forces even the worst dub to observe the cardinal principles of keeping the head down and the head and shoulders in the same plane through the swing.

"I don't see why some one hasn't thought of it before," Marzolf says. "It looks like the answer to all golf trouble between the tee and the green." The gadget really looks like something from a screwball inventor's nightmare.

It consists of a seven foot pipe rising from a heavy iron base. Horizontally from that pipe extends another, at the end of which is a leather skull-cap, attached to a roller-bearing pivot. The golfer takes his natural stance, the cap is fitted by lowering or elevating the horizontal bar, and the practice swing is on.

If you have a tendency to lift your head, the skull cap stops you. Holding the head in place also forces the shoulders to swing in the correct plane, for you can't lift or lower them too much or you lost contact with the cap.

"After a few swings the golfer, if he has any adaptability at all begins to realize what he's been doing wrong, and the gadget corrects the faults for him," Marzolf said.

So there you are, you dubs—a chance to slash your usual 100 right down to 70 or thereabouts.

It was like reading over an old C.O.B.L. Peterboro line-up when we glanced over a report of a golf game played between the Peterborough Golf and Kawartha Clubs, in which the former won by the lopsided score of 62½ to 24½. There were the names of Lorne Bateman, former Point Anne softball pitcher, Jeff Hardill, Stan Payne, Russ Kitchen, "Cack" Rodgers, all playing for the Peterboro' Golf with Al Heckman, J. Jopling, Eddie Starr, Cy Whatley, Archie Weir and Frankie Whitehouse playing for the Kawartha Club. Of all the baseball and hockey players named above, all of whom are well known in Belleville, Eddie Starr proved the day's outstanding golfer. Playing in the qualifying round Eddie Starr carded a 76 for 36 holes, having a 36 going out and a 40 on the return jaunt. Eddie is known as the Ben Hogan of the Kawartha Club.

Elsewhere in today's issue is the first of a series of articles "How To Swim" which should prove informative to those desirous of learning the fundamental strokes of swimming and perhaps assist the more experienced swimmers as well.

It was like old times reading the name of Freddie Goyer in the columns of this G. P. J. yesterday, Freddie having turned angler of note by catching a two-pound trout in the River Speed near his home in Guelph. Of course, after having learned the art of fishing in the Bay of Quinte, Fr. Goyer should have little trouble in outdoing Western Ontario anglers at their pet diversion, because when better game fishermen are produced, the Quinte district will turn the trick.

Hockey fans throughout the entire Central Ontario region, but more especially in Belleville, will welcome the news that Michael J. "Mike" Rodden, former Toronto hockey coach and sportswriter, has been employed at the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company and into whose hands the destinies of the Reliance Hockey Club have been placed by Secretary Ken Soden. The silver-thatched Mike Rodden needs no introduction to Belleville and district hockey fans, as he has been a respected referee of the game in this area for three decades. Mike Rodden was recommended by Frank Selke of the Toronto Maple Leafs, who in turn promised Michael J. material assistance in the supplementing of the Reliance club next winter. He has coached many clubs in both football and hockey having headed the Windsor Club in the old International Professional League at one time. Mike has several anecdotes he likes to tell about Belleville hockey in the old days. Welcome, me lad.

It was hitting versus pitching when the Deacon lassies surprised the SWACO gals with a well-earned 22 to 17 win at the Armories last night. The loss dropped Ken Watt's gals into second place behind Chuck Barnett's Zellers. While on the subject of softball Secretary Barney Smith informs us that Manager Mike Power, of the Vikings, has been suspended for threatening Umpire Cy Young after last Friday night's game. Power's suspension of one game went into effect as of Tuesday and remains in force until after the Vikings' next game. After all, if the game is to be played according to rules and regulations, managers and coaches should adhere to the rules as well as the players. Tonight it's Point Anne and the Esquire kids at the Flats.

AT THE BELLE

"Virginia"

Offering a wealth of entertainment rich in stirring drama, absorbing romance and bright comedy, Paramount's technicolor film of the modern South, "Virginia," closes a highly successful return engagement at the Belle Theatre tonight.

Together as a team for the third time, the picture's stars, Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray both turn in performances that should result in keeping this charmingly romantic pair together for some time to come. Stirling Hayden, a stranger to motion pictures, making his movie debut in this film, gives an entirely creditable performance. Young, handsome and dashing, this former yachtsman, who was lured from the sea by Hollywood, should go far.

Exceptionally fine performances are contributed by the brilliant cast headed by Helen Broderick, Marie Wilson and Carolyn Lee, that tiny, terrific little star of "Honeymoon in Bali"—back to steal your heart again.

Robert Sterling, Donna Reed in "The Get-Away," a gripping action-filled drama is the added feature attraction. The Belle News of the Day will also be exhibited.

"Power Dive," New Thriller

Newest movie to arrive in the list of "must sees" is "Power Dive," heart-throbbing sky drama that opens next at the Belle Theatre. Vibrant youth fights for conquest of the air while love battles their emotions in a challenging romance that makes sky-high entertainment.

For there's love in the boundless blue as well as on ground when three young aviation pioneers find themselves caught in Cupid's whirlpool. Richard Arlen, a daring test-pilot, and Don Castle, his kid brother, both fall for the titian-haired Jean Parker. But she is a woman with a purpose. Her father has invented a plane of revolutionary design known as a 'geodetic-plastic,' which she convinces the two brothers to build and test for their boss, head of a large aircraft company.

The blood - pounding scenes of screeching motors, flaming engines, death-defying flight tests and brother against brother rivalry in the air and on the ground will make your hair stand on end. But that's not all this romantic torrent of entertainment holds in store for you.

For the first time the moviegoer will have a chance to feel what it is like to zoom down in a power dive at ten miles a minute! Some of the greatest thrills in flying were so realistically filmed that you actually find yourself sitting in the observer's cockpit during the most hectic flights of the picture.

"Las Vegas Nights" Tuneful

Four tunes rapidly rising to popularity on the radio and on the dance floors of the country, are introduced in the new Paramount comedy with music, "Las Vegas Nights" as the companion feature attraction, featuring Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra and Bert Wheeler at the head of an exceptionally talented entertainment cast.

are "Dolores," "Moments Like

The songs heard in the picture This," "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" and "I Gotta Ride." "Dolores" is the work of Frank Loesser and Louis Alter and the other three song hits were written by Loesser and Burton Lane.

"China Fights Back," is the title of the new edition of the March of Time to be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Nevada City"

With the golden California of the early 1860's for its background, "Nevada City," the Republic musical western starring Roy Rogers, which opens next at the Capitol Theatre, is built around an undeclared war between the Morrison and Liddell Stage Company, and the California Central Railroad.

This war has been provoked by an unscrupulous financier who hopes to bankrupt the two companies, then take them over. He has hired a desperado, Black Bart, to make raids on both outfits and to make each one think the other is responsible.

But Jeff Connor (Roy Rogers), one of Morrison & Liddell's stage coach drivers, refuses to take part in the fight, because he suspects a third party of causing all the trouble. He and his cantankerous old pal, Gabby (George Hayes), are fired by the stage company, and go to work on their own, trying to find out who is the guilty party.

Through a mixup, the railroad company head is led to believe that Jeff and Gabby are accomplices of Black Bart, and he jails them. However, while in his cell, Jeff learns of a diabolical scheme against the railroad planned by Black Bart. He and Gabby escape from jail and engage in a blood-and-thunder battle against Black Bart's gang which is filled with thrills and spills.

Not only does Rogers put his fists to good advantage in the film but he also sings several western songs. As usual, George "Gabby" Hayes provides the comedy.

Sally Payne, who has been in several of Rogers' recent films but never as the leading lady, is seen now in the romantic lead. Little Billy Lee plays the part of her ten-year old brother.

"Father is a Prince"

Amusing and gay, yet the tender story of one kind of American home life, is Warner Bros.' "Father is a Prince," which opens at the Capitol Theatre with "Nevada City."

The father is played by the veteran screen actor, Grant Mitchell, and other talented members of the cast are Nana Bryant, John Litel and Lee Patrick. A couple of promising youngsters have the romantic leads — George Reeves, who called attention to himself in "Gone With the Wind" and lovely Jan Clayton.

"Father is a Prince" is the story of how an inconsiderate, though well-meaning, father can come near ruining his family's life. It takes a strong blow to bring a balance into this home, as is so often the case in real life.

The same program includes the latest news, the third chapter of "The Mysterious Doctor Satan."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Time Out For Rhythm"

Swing and sway are the order of the day, so far as the McCarthy theatre's forthcoming new film is concerned. "Time Out For Rhythm" is the musical title of the McCarthy theatre's week end feature attraction and it is fondly expected that the radio, movie and swing fans of Belleville and district will be on hand early—and probably see it more than once.

According to advance reports from Hollywood, "Time Out For Rhythm" possesses everything an audience could wish for—it has stars, heart-throbs, songs, dances, comedy, romance. It has color and excitement and beauty.

Rudy Vallee, Ann Miller and Rosemary Lane head the star-packed cast of the spectacular new romantic musical, with strong support being accorded them by such other well-known favorites of the radio, stage and screen as Allen Jenkins, Joan Merrill, Brenda and Cobina, the three stooges, Richard Lane, Six Hits and a Miss, Eddie Durant's Rhumba Band and Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra. There are, in addition to such entertainment - worthy celebrities, seven soft and sizzling songs penned by Sammy Cahn and Saul Chaplin. The numbers, several of which have already attracted the nation's attention, include: "Time Out For Music," "A Twiddlin' My Thumbs," "Obviously the Gentleman Prefers to Dance," "As if You Didn't Know," "The Boogie Woogie Man," "Rio De Janiero" and "Shows How Wrong a Gal Can Be."

Leroy Prinz staged the spectacular dance routines, and Sidney Salkow directed the entire production from a screen play by Edmund L. Hartmann and Bert Lawrence.

Vallee is seen in "Time Out For Rhythm" as a theatrical booking agent whose efforts to win some kind of "break" for his newest discovery, petite Ann Miller, are constantly being frustrated by Miss Lane, Rosemary, erstwhile singing star with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, is said to prove that her several years of straight motion picture acting have, if anything improved her lovely singing voice.

The three stooges appear as "Hams" desperately trying to achieve some kind of foothold in the show world, and therefore constantly in Vallee's hair. Brenda and Cobina, the man hunting comedy team of Bob Hope's radio show, are said to be even funnier than ever in their similar screen roles. Jenkins, as Vallee's piano-playing buddy, and Richard Lane, as his partner, have also won Hollywood's praise.

General consensus of advance opinion is "Take Time Out For Rhythm" you'll like it.

Prairie Law"

Another "great O'Brien" western, George O'Brien in "Prairie Law" will be presented this weekend in addition to "Time Out For Rhythm" plus a new cartoon novelty "Tom Thumb's Brother."

Hirsch Jacobs Can Take 'Crocks' And Make Them Win

New York, July 23 (AP) —Hirsch Jacobs is patching up those plugs again and sending them into the winner's circle regularly, and all that talk about his "slipping" as a conditioner of horses is now just an extra chapter in Joe Miller's joke book.

The quiet little former pigeon fancier, who turned horse trainer and led all American conditioners for seven straight years through 1939 did slip last year. He slipped all the way down to second place in the National Standings, which is like saying Ted Williams is all washed up because his batting average dropped from .400 to .395.

But now Hirsch is back again pulling those rabbits out of the hat. He is close to the 70-mark in winners he has saddled for 1941, and holds a lead of about a dozen over plain Ben Jones and the rest.

The unassuming affable 37-year-old wizard of the turf, who trains a sizable string for his wife, Isidore Beiber and several others, is top man at the current Empire city meeting, just as he was in the recent Delaware campaign. At the latter meeting, he saddled more than twice as many winners as his nearest rival.

Hirsch is famous for bringing broken-down cripples, old handicap relics and even 'studs' back to the races, ready to win first pop out. He seems to improve any horse he claims.

There was marriage, which used to race against top-notchers but went wrong. Hirsch grabbed the horse out of a claimer for $1,400. The other day the broken-down gelding ran for $5,000 for his seventh straight win. Air brigade cost Jacobs $4,000 last February, went on to take seven races including handicaps, and now runs in the best company.

KING WITNESSES PART OF MEET

Williams of Winnipeg Wins Major Awards at Track Meet

Somewhere in England, July 23. —(CP)—With the King watching some events, the 1st Canadian Division held its track and field day which saw Pte A. C. S. Williams of Winnipeg set the pace with three individual victories and one as member of a relay team.

After presenting colors to a New Brunswick regiment and a Western Canada regiment, His Majesty paid a brief visit to the sports field where every formation in the Division had representatives competing in events as part of the overseas army's athletic program to keep troops fit.

Pte. Williams won the 800-yard event and went on to take the standing broad jump and the 440-yard and to lead the team of his Western Canada infantry regiment which won the one-mile relay.

Other outstanding competitors were Pte. G. W. Grant of Winnipeg, winner of the 220-yard event and third in the Century dash, Sigmn. A. C. Simon of Ridgeway, Ont., first in the 100 yards and second in the running broad jump and the 220 yards, and C.S.M. R. S. Shaffner, of Bridgetown, N.S., captain of the winning 440-yard relay team of a Nova Scotia infantry regiment and second in the 100 yards.

Bdr. S. R. MacIntosh of Williamsburg, Ont., finished second in the shot put; Pte. C. E. Bellsmith, Listowel, was third in the three-mile run and Pte. G. Milum, Norman, Ont., was second in the mile.

Durocher Sure Dodgers Can Win

Cincinnati, July 23—(AP)—If you think Leo Durocher subscribes to the propaganda that his Dodgers can't do it, just ask Leo Durocher.

Leo is not saying they will, but he is saying that the prayers of the 2,000,000-odd denizens of that happy borough of Brooklyn are being heard and will be answered if there's anything in baseball played from the heart out.

"I'm not predicting anything," said Manager Leo, a little reserved as a result of yesterday's blowup which handed the Cincinnati Reds a 5-4 ninth-inning victory.

"I'm not predicting anything and I never do," he said, "but we're in there playing all the time and we're all right. That game was one of those things and it was just another ball game. We played a good game and we're going to keep on playing good games."

Leo was dead right. Without chiseling a bit on Chuck Aleno's heroic pinch triple that knocked in three runs to tie the score, it may be said that it will be years before he gets three more bases off the handle of his bat.

Two stars in thrilling air drama. It's "Power Dive," Paramount's romance of aviation, which opens next at the Belle Theatre. Lovely Jean Parker is hanging on to Richard Arlen for dear life—and love. "Las Vegas Nights," a breezy musical, is the co-feature.

Chapter Five
Martine's Troubles

Mrs. Marsh stood before a pier glass mirror in an upstairs bedroom. The glass had been purchased from a second-hand store for Clara who liked full-length views of herself. The frame, a fine satiny old walnut, had needed re-doing, and Clara had gilded it with gold paint from the five and dime store.

Marilyn, kneeling on the floor, was pinning up the hem of her mother's dress.

"How's that, Mums?" she asked, studying the effect in the mirror.

"It looks nice but—don't you think it's maybe a mite too short?"

"Not a minute, nor even half a mite, Mumsy. You have pretty feet and trim ankles, I've been noticing while I pinned your dress. No use hiding them."

"Baby, how you do go on," Mrs. Marsh denied, but Marilyn knew she was pleased. "I used to be very proud of my feet and my ankles when I was a girl. I wore size three, double A, and my ankles were quite shapely."

"They still are," Marilyn insisted. "Silk stockings — that nude shade they're wearing and a pair of first-rate shoes, good leather and smart cut, and you'll be a girl all over again. Now then, I've finished pinning the hem. Let me see how you look, Mums. Why, the dress is a natural—I mean it's right for you. Graceful lines and the black and white is smart. It gives you distinction."

Mrs. Marsh moved closer to the mirror. She did not believe her eyes. Could clothes make such a difference? Was that she herself looking out from the gilt frame, that well-dressed woman in black crepe with white leaves sprinkled over it and touches of soft white chiffon at the throat?

"I—I don't know what to say." She kept running her hands over the dress to make sure it was real. "This is an expensive dress, Baby. You shouldn't have done it. I've got my blue foulard—"

"The blue foulard is taking a well-earned rest," Marilyn announced. "It's worn to a thread. If you drive it any further, it is going to part company in a dozen places and drop off, maybe on Main street."

Mrs. Marsh laughed. A queer little cackle, rusty from disuse. Marilyn couldn't remember when last she had heard her mother laugh.

At supper Mrs. Marsh, in a fresh house dress, almost dropped the mashed potatoes.

"Dearie me," she said, retrieving the dish just in time to save Bill's head from a potato barrage, "I clean forgot. There's a letter from Clara. It's on the hall table. Run and fetch it, William."

"Aw, can't we wait till after supper? I'm hungry." Bill was busy with a third frankfurter.

"Go fetch it this minute. A person'd think you'd want to hear what your own sister has to say—and her away off in New York?"

Marilyn said, "I hope she wrote some news about herself. We've had two letters and a postcard and so far all we've heard is 'marvelous'. The train trip was marvelous; the reception in the station was marvelous; the people she's met are marvelous; New York is too, too marvelous. Did she say what she's doing, who she's met and seen, what her plans are?"

"No, she didn't say——only that she's so busy she could only write a few lines to let us know she was well and having a——"

Marilyn finished, "a marvelous time."

"How did you know, Baby?" This time Bill's head was endangered by a platter of baked summer squash.

"Easy, Mums. You can't go wrong on 'marvelous' with Clara."

The little group at the family table finished their supper, then went to the veranda. Their conversation was of the ordinary happenings about them: how father was progressing with the house-painting; that a neighbor across the street was canning pickles; that Bill's bicycle needed a new tire. They could not know that, rushing toward them through the night, in a mail car from the East, was another letter, a letter that would change the entire course of their lives.

In New York City, at ten o'clock in the morning, the offices of the Metropole Amusement Corporation struggled into their stride and were sputtering along at that erratic clip peculiar to theatrical enterprise.

Al Martino, field representative hurried through the outer reaches of Metropole, flung brief but colorful greetings to the right and left of him, arrived with a bang at the door of the Chief, Palmer Watson, President of the concern.

"Stop banging on the door," came a low growl from within.

Martino grinned. The Chief was in fine form. He "handled easy" when he was this way.

"What do you mean by making such a damned clatter?" the Chief wanted to know when Al came and lounged on a corner of the great chromium and plate-glass desk. "You want to get my goat? Well, you've got it. So spill!

"Now, Chief, you know I never play with wild animals. All I want is for you to take me off this Millville doll I've been pushing around town and give me a job that winds up somewhere besides the psychopathic ward."

"Who's going to a psychopathic ward?" Palmer Watson was a large red man with a frightening scowl.

"I am," Al said, disregarding the scowl, "unless you take me out of the woods and give me some decent work to do."

"Listen to the fellow! I put him in the contest department. I give him a beautiful girl, a contest winner. I tell him to show her the town, theatres, cocktail lounges, cafes, Broaway, Fifth avenue, Coney Island, the Fair, night life, daylight—I mean—day life—what makes the town tick. Now he comes asking for another job. Talks psychopathic wards, decent work. Crazy!"

"Not quite—but soon, unless you switch me quick. On the square, Chief, I'm fed up with this blonde beef-trust Clara Marsh. Let one of the other boys steer her for a while."

"For why should you ask me such a crazy question? For why? You have love trouble, maybe?

Al made a gesture of disdain.

"Y uoknow better tha nanat," ne said. "What I think of these Bouquets of Beautly—I'd rather have a nail in the foot."

"What's wrong with 'em?" thundered the Chief. "Most beautiful girls in America. Most glamorous girls in—in—"

"Six counties," Al finished. "They're dumb, that's what's the matter with 'em. I hate dumb daisies. They give me mal de mer."

"Maldee—, mal—de—"

"It's what you get when the boat rocks."

"Umm. Now this Miss—Miss—"

"Marsh. Clara Marsh. Blonde hope of the Bijou."

"This Miss Clara Marsh, she is what you call a bee-u-ty. Perfect blonde. Perfect figure—a little ripe maybe—but plenty like 'em so. Maybe she don't give out. Maybe she don't like the bright lights. Maybe she's too quiet."

Al laughed sardonically.

He said, "Chief, if she likes 'em any better, we'd have to take her out and shoot her. That's where the trouble comes in. That's why I'm yelling help, and take it from me, I'm yelling. Chief, that blonde is sure a glutton for what goes on in the big town after dark. I managed to trundle her back to her hotel at six this morning, but it was a struggle."

"So? Six, huh?" The Chief's scowl deepened. "Who pays that kind of expenses. We promised to show our winners the town, not buy it for 'em."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was in the living room waiting for Nora to ring the dinner bell for supper and he was taking golf swings with a umbrella for practice, and I was watching him and wishing I had my own house so I could take golf swings in it without anybody telling me to stop, and pop swung the umbrella too far in back of him and knocked the yellow vase off the little stand and broke it in 2 big piices and 3 little ones, pop saying, Yee gods, your mother's pet vase that I gave her away back sometime I dont remember when.

O well, pop, worse things than that could of happened, I said, and pop said, That has all the earmarks of a remark made by somebody without the slightest conception of what they're talking about. Horse blanket to blazes, if I have half the sense I was born with, I'm old enough to show it he said.

Meaning on account of swinging an umbrella in the living room at his age, and I said, Well G pop, cheer up, wait till I tell you what I heard ma tell Mrs. Hews about that yellow vase. She told her she kew it was a mongstrosity to look at but she didn't have the hart to hurt your feelings by sticking it away somewheres, I said.

Well for Peet sake, pop said, I dont know if that makes me feel better or worse, he said.

Wich just then ma came in on account of having heard the bang, saying, What was that, O Willyum Potts my precious vase that you gave me on our 10th wedding anniversary, and pop said, Dont give it a 2nd thought, I know where I can get another one so exactly like it its own mother couldn't tell the difference.

Willyum you'll do nothing of the kind, perish the thought, I mean that particular vase had associations that cant be replaced, no matter how similar, ma said. Maybe I can repair it, now forget it and come down to your dinner, she said.

Wich pop did winking me a private wink.

Soldiers May Have Cigarette Privileges Cancelled if Alleged Abuses Not Corrected

Montreal, July 23—(CP)—Soldiers in the Montreal military district were warned today in orders from district headquarters that cigaret manufacturers may have to cancel their policy of selling cigarets to soldiers at reduced rates unless alleged abuses are corrected.

The orders stated that soldiers are not allowed to sell or otherwise supply such cigarets to civilians and announced that the number of cigarets that may be sold to any soldier at one time has been limited to 50.

At present, members of Canada's armed services are able to purchase cigarets in their canteens at a rate of 25 for 25 cents.

Expect No Increase In Bacon Price

Ottawa, July 23 (CP)—No increase in the price of bacon over the counter in Canada is expected to result from the latest governmental action designed to ensure larger supplies for export to Great Britain, a spokesman for the Bacon Board said today.

The increase of $1 per hundredweight in the seaboard price paid Canadian packers for export bacon will not apply to bacon sold for domestic consumption. The public are co-operating so well with the Board's earlier appeal to reduce pork-eating that the 25 per cent reduction in the amount of pork distributed in Canada will not cause a shortage.

Figures are not available yet to show the actual reduction in pork consumption since the appeal to the public but he said the reduction was so marked that if action were not taken to lessen the amount distributed there would be a surplus on the domestic market.

Butter and Egg Prices Improve

Toronto, July 23.—Further modest improvement on the Toronto open produce market yesterday was reported for butter and egg prices.

Although buying on the butter market was rather spotty, the price trend remained firm under light offerings. Production is now showing the seasonal decline, with the output in this Province for the week ended July 12 reported by the Ontario Creamery Association at 1,129,740 pounds, against 1,275,175 pounds in the like week of 1940. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids yesterday sold at 35 3-4 cents to 36 cents a pound, the bulk of the business going through at the lower level.

The situation on the egg market was unchanged. Light receipts cleared readily with the prevailing good demand, and prices to shipper on grades A-large, medium and C improved 1-2 cent to 1 cent a dozen.

Last week's cheese exports to Great Britain of 103,928 boxes brought total shipments since the first of May to 362,945 boxes, as compared with 327,913 boxes in the same period of last year.

NAVY SECRETARY

Demand is Confirmed

London, July 23 (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China, said today it had been confirmed officially that the Japanese ambassador at Vichy has demanded the use of facilities of Southern Indo-China.

No details of the Japanese demands are yet available, the dispatch said, but it is known that Sotomatsu Kato, Japan's envoy at Vichy, has been in contact with Vice-Premier Jean Darlan.

Japan already holds air bases in Northern Indo-China and has troops garrisoned at Hanoi, the capital, and Haiphnog, chief northern port. Persistent reports have indicated that she would ask for further footholds at Saigon, chief city of the south, and perhaps Camranh Bay, naval base on the southeast coast of Indo-China.

Gov't Aware of Situation

The British Government took cognizance of the Indo-China crisis when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Parliament today that "the government are aware of persistent reports to the effect that the Japanese government intend to take action to obtain naval and air bases in Southern Indo-China."

In a written reply to a member's question, Mr. Eden continued:

"These reports are the more significant since they coincide with a Japanese press campaign of innuendo against Great Britain in respect of both Indo-China and Thailand.

"I welcome this opportunity to state that the alleged designs of Great Britain in both these countries are entirely non-existent."

Authoritative quarters said the United States and Britain are keeping each other fully informed on the far astern situation. Confidence was expressed here that any Japanese adventure in Indo-China would bring quick retaliation from the United States, possibly in forms already invoked against other Axis powers.

No "Watchful Waiting"

Qualified observers expressed belief that the people of Britain and the Dominions would welcome drastic counter action in the Far East just as in Syria and were unlikely to condone a "watchful waiting" policy by the British Government while Japan strengthened her hold on Indo-China.

This belief was supported by the federal acceptance of Prime Minister Churchill's declaration that whoever marches with Hitler is Britain's foe. The assumption here is that any new Japanese military adventure would have Germany's blessing. This was strengthened by comment in Berlin today indicating approval of Japan's determination to protect her interests in Indo-China.

London, July 23 (CP)—The United States and Britain are keeping each other "fully informed" on the Far Eastern situation, authoritative quarters said today. These sources predicted that events will develop quickly.

Japan Rushes Preparations

BY CLARKE LEE

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Shanghai, July 23.— (AP)— The predominant opinion among observers today was that Japan was rushing military preparations for action both in South Eastern Asia and in the north.

A move into French Indo-China was expected to come first, with foreign military quarters expressing the opinion it would start within a week.

They suggested it would consist of occupation of Saigon and other strategic Southern Indo-China points followed by demands for bases and economic concessions.

The Japanese probably will put pressure on Thailand for a northern air base from which to bomb Burma Road, these sources said, and attempt to dam the flow of United States war materials to Chungking.

S. J. HUNGERFORD

Canada Air Lines and that H. J. Symington, K.C., of Montreal, a director of the organization since its inception, will succeed him as T.C.A. president.

President's Statement

A statement issued by the C.N.R. Board of Directors in connection with the announcements said:—

In submitting his resignation to the Board Mr. Hungerford stated: "The responsibilities and activities of the Canadian National system are continually expanding, and the war has brought many new problems affecting the whole range of the railway's work. I feel that it is advisable that we take steps at this time designed to ensure continuity of executive judgment and action not only through the present times of stress but also in the years ahead, and this can best be done in my opinion by the appointment now of a younger officer to be chief executive of the system."

Hungerford Still Chairman of Board

"The Board accepted Mr. Hungerford's resignation with regret but were gratified that he would remain as chairman of the Board and that the Canadian National Railways would therefore continue to have the benefit of his great experience and knowledge of the affairs of the system. The Board recognized that the expanding activities of the railway resulting from the war had added greatly to Mr. Hungerford's already heavy duties, and that, freed of some of these duties, he would be enabled to devote particular attention to the railway's war work in many and growing fields. In such connection it is noted that he will continue as president of the National Railway Munitions, Limited. The Board record their appreciation of the debt of gratitude which Canada and the National system owe to Mr. Hungerford, whose outstanding constructive and operating abilities have played so important a part in the development of the system.

R. C. Vaughan's Experience for Post

"The directors of the National System are fortunate in being able to announce the appointment to the presidency of an officer having the exceptional qualifications for the post possessed by Mr. R. C. Vaughan. Mr. Vaughan's railway career extends over some 42 years. During 38 years of service with the Canadian National Railways and predecessor companies he has occupied many responsible posts and is thoroughly familiar with all phases of the activities of the organization. He has been a vice-president of the railway since 1920. In appointing Mr. Vaughan to the chief executive office the directors look forward with confidence to the continued development and success of the National System.

Mr. Vaughan, the new C.N.R. President, was born in Toronto 57 years ago and started his railway career on the ground floor—as a messenger boy with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. He was just 14 years old at that time.

Four years later, in 1902, he went to the old Grand Trunk Railway after having been promoted to the post of a stenographer with the C.P.R. In 1904, he was appointed secretary to the vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Northern. In 1910, he was appointed assistant to the vice-president and general manager and given charge of the operation of the Royal Line steamers trading from Montreal to the United Kingdom.

When the Canadian Northern was amalgamated into the Canadian National System in 1918, Mr. Vaughan was appointed assistant to the president of the C.N.R. and assistant to the president of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. In 1920, he was made vice-president in charge of purchases and stores, the position he now holds.

When the Canadian Government set up its Defence Purchasing Board in July, 1930, Mr. Vaughan was appointed chairman as a dollar-a-year man and held the post for six months until the Ministry of Supply was set up.

Mr. Vaughan was married in 1905 to Rosalie Cheadle of Toronto. They have two sons and two daughters.

New T.C.A. President

Mr. Symington, the new T.C.A. President, was born at Sarnia, Ont. in 1881. Graduating from the Osgood Hall Law School in Toronto in 1905 he was called to the Manitoba Bar in the same year. He was solicitor for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from 1906 to 1909.

Mr. Symington was made a director of the C.N.R. in 1936 and of T.C.A. in 1937. His home is in Montreal.

Mr. Hungerford's railway career covers a 55-year period dating back to 1886 when, at the age of 14, he entered the machine shop of the South Eastern Railroad, now part of the C.P.R., at Farnham, Que., as an apprentice machinist. He was born near Bedford, Que., in 1872.

In 1894, Mr. Hungerford became chargeman of the C.P.R.'s Windsor Street Station in Montreal. In 1903, he was appointed master mechanic at Calgary and later made superintendent of all Winnipeg shops.

Mr. Hungerford joined the old Canadian Northern Railway in 1910 as superintendent of rolling stock at Winnipeg. In 1914, he was given the same post in Toronto and in 1917 was made general manager of the system's eastern lines. When the C.N.R. was formed in 1918, Mr. Hungerford was appointed assistant vice-president of operating, maintenance and construction. In 1922, he was made general manager of the system.

When Sir Henry Thornton resigned as president of the C.N.R. in 1932, Mr. Hungerford was appointed acting president. In 1936, the appointment was confirmed and he was made chairman of the Board of Directors.

NAZI ASSAULT

Again last night, Russians declared, Moscow's defences beat off ruin from the skies and the Germans failed to burn out this camouflaged capital of painted spires and teeming millions.

(The German high command claimed Nazi raiders last night found fires from Monday night still uncontrolled and bombed military targets in Moscow again with incendiaries and high explosives.)

Dozens were killed and wounded. Some fires flared up. A few homes and a hospital were among the places hit. But in the main the night-long assault by 150 German bombers was pictured as a fizzle by a Soviet communique.

It said ten per cent of the raiders were shot down and only a few pierced the searchlight patterns and bursting barrages to reach the central city.

Reports from the long land front, meanwhile, declared the Nazi onrush still checked in the vital central sector of Porkhov and Smolensk, but acknowledged German-Finnish penetrations in the north and indicated Nazi thrusts into the Ukraine might have deepened.

(German accounts of the second Moscow raid claimed the bombers scored repeated hits in the Kremlin area and once more pounded the government building section east of the Kremlin and Red Square, starting 20 large fires.)

Moscow's 4,000,000 seemingly took the raid stoically, as they did the night before, filing into shelters and the protection of the city's subway system at the warning whine of sirens.

Altogether, a Moscow communique today said, 39 German planes were shot down yesterday and last night. Loss of 17 Russian planes was acknowledged.

Germans Lose 87 Planes

The day before the Germans lost 87 planes on all fronts to 14 Russian aircraft destroyed, the Russians said.

A Red Army war bulletin declared fierce fighting continued throughout last night in the Petrozavodsk, Porkhov, Smolensk and Zhitomir sectors—the same fronts where the Russian and German forces were battling yesterday.

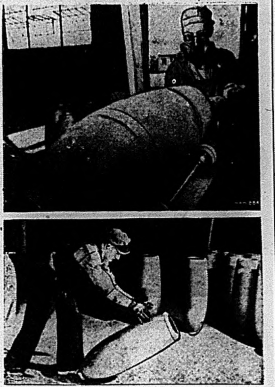
Elsewhere, the Russians reported, there were no important developments.

The war bulletin, almost word for word the same account of the fighting given out the night before covering battles yesterday, indicated the Soviet defences were holding.

The Russian mention of fighting near Petrozavodsk, 250 miles north of Leningrad on the rail line to the northern port of Murmansk, indicated the German and Finnish forces were driving hard to the east in an effort to break the rail link.

In the Ukraine, at the opposite end of the fighting front, the Russians previously have mentioned fighting centering in the area of Novograd Volynski. Zhitomir, where yesterday's fighting was reported, is at a rail juncture almost 50 miles closer to Kiev, but still 85 miles short of the Ukraine capital.

CANADA IS "PRODUCING THE GOODS"



Munitions factories in Canada are now going full blast turning out the big bombs with which the British Royal Air Force are shellacking Germany. At TOP here, a big 500-pound bomb is getting its final polishing. Workman is masked to keep the fine emery dust out of his lungs. BELOW a workman is rolling bombs to the "park" where they are stacked to await shipment. These men are expert in rolling the bombs end over end as this man is doing.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The German air force appears to have found in Moscow another target that can "take it." For the second successive night large forces of German bombers have attacked the Soviet capital and have been met by well-organized defences.

The 4,000,000 Muscovites who populate the world's fifth largest city are taking to war "like ducks to water," according to Moscow dispatches, and all the defensive paraphernalia that has become familiar in British cities over the past year appears to be available in adequate quantities.

Although the Soviet air force has not had much experience in other than army co-operation fighting, it has been able to get night fighter squadrons into the air during the Moscow attacks of the past two nights. Soviet authorities claim these fighters, together with anti-aircraft guns destroyed some 40 or about 15 percent, of the attacking force. If this is true it is a notable achievement.

According to Germany's own admission, the Kremlin and surrounding government buildings have been the prime objective of the German bombers. These buildings are undoubtedly very heavily gunned, and to score hits the Germans would have to fly fairly low. Therefore it is entirely possible that the Germans lost 10 per cent of their planes in attempting a highly localized attack of this sort.

The Soviet authorities deny that any hits were made in the Kremlin area; the Germans claim otherwise. There is no way in which foreign correspondents can make sure of the facts, since the sprawling Kremlin is a strictly forbidden area and the effects of a bomb hit in its midst might go unseen from the outside.

Foreign correspondents do agree however, that there has been no widespread damage and that fire-fighting and other services have functioned smoothly. Balloon barrages have been hoisted over the capital and air raid shelters apparently were ready for civil population when the warning sirens sounded.

It seems clear that the Soviet authorities made good use of the fifteen months of grace they were allowed after the war broke out. Extensive use apparently has been made of camouflage. The lesson Britons learned from the devastating fire raid on the city area of London last December has been noted, and every Moscow rooftop is manned by fire-watchers as soon as a raid begins.

Just how well the other large raided cities such as Leningrad, Kiev and Odessa have fared is not known. There are no foreign correspondents in those centres, and details issued by the Soviet Government have been meagre. It is unlikely that these are as well protected as Moscow.

Four Walk 142 Miles to Enlist, Officers Go Out, Enlist 16 More, Hunters of Polar Bear and Walrus

Cochrane, Ont., July 23.— (CP) —Recruiting officers here didn't take long to take the hint when four men walked into the recruiting station last week and enlisted for active service. The men had walked 42 miles from Moose River crossing to offer their services.

Off went Lieut. C. G. Countryman and Pte. G. A. Sangster to Moosonee, on the edge of James Bay. They came back with 16 more men, all born and raised in the north and fit for bigger game after a lifetime of hunting polar bear and walrus.

The 20 men left here last night for Toronto to start their army training.

SOME OF THE "RACE OF MASTERS" CAPTURED BY THE RUSSIANS

Radioed from Moscow, the caption in this picture says that these are some of the Germans captured in the recent fierce fighting on the eastern front. Judging by the faces of these Nazis something must have happened to their highly touted morale. They certainly bear no resemblance to a "race of masters" here.

BERLIN

Hits by heaviest German bombs and scattering of a large number of incendiaries, it said, wrought "further serious destruction" on the Russian capital's military establishments.

DNB, German news agency, published a delayed claim that Finnish and German troops had penetrated deep into the Russian lines east of Lake Ladoga Monday and Tuesday. The propaganda agency asserted the Red Army's political commissars had used artillery to prevent some wavering Russian troops from retiring and that the losses of the Russians, under fire from two directions, were heavy.

German press dispatches reported the destruction of 92 Russian tanks in a battle between large tank units south of Kiev yesterday.

A battle between a portion of the Russian fleet and German speedboats and an auxiliary vessel were claimed sunk by torpedoes was reported in other German dispatches.

Claims Encirclement

D.N.B. claimed "encircled remnants of several Russian divisions" were destroyed northeast of Zhitomir, 85 miles from Kiev, on July 21, with 4,000 dead left on the field and thousands taken prisoner. The agency declared a large number of men of 18 other divisions were captured in mopping up at another point on the front.

German flame throwers and specialists in bunker destruction were reported in German press dispatches to have taken a heavy toll of Russian troops in the forests about Polotsk, 140 miles to the rear of the Smolensk area.

The German press dispatches said their troops penetrated deeply the Russian positions, but encountered a "miraculous" fire from machine guns, cannon and small automatic arms so perfectly interlaced that it was impossible to advance a single step.

Admit Being Driven Back

The Germans admitted they were driven back until their own headquarters was under fire.

So cleverly concealed were the heavy Russian bunkers in the deep and tangled forests back of the Dvina, said the dispatches, that dive bombers were useless. They could not locate the Russian forts.

At night, however, squads with flame throwers advanced and burned out the forests, the Nazi claimed. Then, after a several hour barrage, the Germans, they encountered advanced over fields of ashes and charred stumps. Even then, said said the Germans, they encountered last ditch defenders who had to be scorched out of the bunkers by flame throwers.

VISCOUNTBENNETT

Letters Patent Read

After reading the letters patent the summons of the new viscount to attend Parliament also was read. "The ancient words had peculiar significance in this time of war as the new peer was "strictly enjoined that considering the difficulties of affairs and the dangers intending, waiving all excuses, you to be personally present to treat and give us counsel in affairs aforesaid".

In a firm voice Lord Bennett then took the oath of allegiance to the King, kissed a small red Bible and signed the roll of Parliament.

Lord Bennett next was conducted to the Viscounts' Bench which is in the front row furthest from that of Lord Chancellor where the Opposition sits in normal times.

SPEED SHIPMENT

Will Not Hesitate

The first, last May, limited to the weekly average of last year the amount of pork products on the Canadian market, and at that time a spokesman for the Bacon Board said: "If we find it necessary to take over all the ham and bacon in Canada to meet Britain's request (for more bacon) we will not hesitate to do it."

In announcing that Britain has asked us to have this year's contract filled by about Sept. 15, Mr. Gardiner said:—

"The increased rate of shipment necessary to comply with this request will require that every hog marketed in Canada during the next two months be available for export to the United Kingdom or for distribution on the domestic market.

"On the completion of the present agreement for 425,000,000 pounds of bacon, hams and other cuts on Sept. 15, 1941, it is anticipated that the agreement for the following 12 months will call for delivery by Canada of 600,000,000 pounds of bacon, ham and other cuts."

Mr. Gardiner said the increase in price payable to packers for export bacon is "in order to bring the value of bacon in Canada closer to parity with the present price of hogs in the United States."

It is the fourth increase since the agreement was signed last autumn. Britain financed the first, May 1, increase of $1 and Canada has financed the three subsequent 75-cent raises.

NAZIS FORCED TO BRING PLANES FROM EAST FRONT

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

U. S., BRITAIN POISED FOR COUNTER-ACTION

Heavy Daylight Raids Over France Cause Great Havoc

Frankfurt, Mannheim Principal Targets for Third Night Of R.A.F. Assaults

LIVERPOOL ATTACKED

London, July 24—(CP)—Unprecedented opposition from increasing hundreds of Messerschmitts which are rising daily to counter the Royal Air Force's incessant daylight sweeps over Northern France was cited by informed quarters today as "conclusive evidence" that Germany has been compelled to withdraw substantial air forces from the Russian front.

"They are proof the sweeps are achieving the major objective of preventing the Luftwaffe from concentrating all its power for the destruction of the Soviet Air Force," these sources asserted.

Their comments followed the declaration of an R.A.F. wing commander that more Messerschmitts "than ever before" were encountered in a late evening sweep yesterday.

Nevertheless, since dawn today, relays of British bombers and fighters have been shuttling across the Channel in attacks against Nazi-occupied territory.

Strongest Yet Encountered

The R.A.F. officer said the opposition was the strongest yet encountered and was compelling the R.A.F. to fight its way into France and out again.

Informed sources, however, dismissed German reports of having destroyed 54 R.A.F. planes yesterday as "the same old Goebbels stuff" and asserted that their own announcement of 15 planes lost agiasnt 11 German planes destroyed "tells the whole story."

"It should be known by now that we are not in the habit of saying anything extravagant."

Some sources expressed belief that the R.A.F.'s pounding of Germany and the occupied territories day and night, in good weather and bad, has had the major effect of enabling the Russian Air Force to meet the German Air Force on reasonably even terms.

The relays began only a short time after the last of the R.A.F.'s night bombers had returned from raids in which, authoritative sources said, industrial targets at Frankfurt and Mannheim, in the Rhine Valley, were bombed for the third successive night.

Just before noon, one exceptionally large formation was heard thundering over the water above the heat haze and minutes later watchers on the Kent coast heard distant thuds as though big bombs were exploding some distance from the French coast.

Trying Low-Level Attacks

In the afternoon another big formation streaked across the Strait apparently intending to hit the French coast between Boulogne and Calais.

Although a large number of planes were flying at only about 1,500 feet it was almost impossible to see them through the heat haza and observers remarked that if the skies were the same across the Strait the R.A.F. evidently was set for daring low level attacks like a recent one on Rotterdam.

Body of Canadian Victim of Torpedoing Last May Washed Ashore

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 24—(CP Cable)—The body of Capt. J. R. Townshend, Royal Canadian Artillery, Fort Frances, Ont., was washed ashore this week at Rathlin Island off North Antrim. It was taken to Ballycastle for burial.

(Capt. Townsend was listed as missing and believed drowned after a ship was torpedoed in the Atlantic in May.)

Trombonist Trooper Sees Possibilities of Regimental Orchestra

Somewhere in England, July 24—(CP)—Switching from trombone to tanks, Tpr. Frank L. Johnson, negro swing artist from Verdun, Que., came to the war—and it looks as if his Quebec regiment in the army tank brigade will eventually have an orchestra to chase the blues away. Tpr. Johnson, who played a hot trombone in Toronto night clubs and around Montreal, says there is talent in his regiment for an 11-piece band. They even brought their own instruments with them.

3 AXIS SHIPS IN CONVOY SUNK, DESTROYER HIT

Two R.A.F. Bombs Seen to Hit 7,000-Ton Ship, 6,000-Ton and 5,000-Ton Vessels Struck

TANKER DESTROYED

Cairo, July 24 (AP)—The Royal Air Force announced today that its bombers sank at least three ships from an Axis convoy off the Italian island of Pantellaria, in the channel between Sicily and Tunisia, on Tuesday.

One of the Italian destroyers escorting the convoy of four medium sized merchant ships, also was hit by an air-launched torpedo and damaged heavily at the stern, the R.A.F. communique said.

Two bombs were seen to hit a 7,000-ton ship and set it afire and the vessel later was observed submerged with its stern up while two destroyers stood by picking up survivors, the communique added.

Two hits also were scored on a 6,000-ton vessel, it said, and a 5,000-ton ship "which apparently was carrying munitions was hit by three bombs and immediately blew up and disappeared below the surface of the water."

Fleet air arm planes followed up the bomber attack later in the day when the convoy consisted only of one 7,000 ton tanker and another merchant vessel.

Two torpedoes hit the tanker, making it a total loss, it said, and another damaged the escorting destroyer.

11 SEA SCOUTS UPSET BY BOAT'S SWELLS, ALL ARE RESCUED

Youth Captures Nazi Crew of Plane After it Crashes in Wheat Field

London, July 24 (CP)—A 16-year-old Isle of Wight boy, hunting with a double-barrelled shotgun this morning, captured the crew of a German JU-88 bomber after it crashed in a wheat field.

"I was out with my sporting gun after foxes," the fair-haired captor, Geoffrey Janes said, "and saw the plane circling around.

"Eventually it crashed and the crew all came toward me.

"I more or less threatened them with my gun, and two of the Germans who had automatics started waving them about. I tried to take the guns off them but they would not give them to me.

"I told them they had better come up to the fort with me and we had just moved off when Stanley Woodnut, a bricklayer, came up. About five minutes later we were met by a Royal Air Force escort who took charge of the prisoners."

Asked what he would have done had the Germans tried to shoot at him, Janes' answer was, "I would have shot back at them."

5,000 SERBS REVOLT, ATTACK HUN STRONGHOLDS

Hundreds of Serbs Swoop From Mountain Hiding Places, Capture Nazis

GUERILLA WAR, REVOLT

New York, July 24 (AP) — The BBC reported today that 5,000 Serbs had risen up against the German invaders in Yugoslavia, attacking Nazi outposts and strongholds.

The broadcast also quoted a dispatch from Ankara as saying 200 Serbs had swooped down from mountain hiding places north of the village of Mish, attacked a German garrison, and retired into the hills with prisoners.

London, July 24 (CP)—Dusan Simovich, Prime Minister of the Yugoslav government in London, told a press conference today his countrymen were continuing opposition to Axis forces either through guerilla activities or open revolt.

He said Yugoslavia was conquered, but "she did not capitulate."

Guard Discovers Radio on Back Under Nazi's Coat

Germans in Internment Camp Will be Disappointed at Hitler's Failure to Enter Moscow According to Nazi Prediction

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—A group of Germans in a Canadian internment camp no doubt will be greatly disappointed today.

This is the date set for Hitler's "triumphal entry" into Moscow—but unless the Nazi forces can travel about 200 miles through the Russian lines in a few hours the interned Germans may wonder if the report one of them picked up on a secreted radio was correctly timed.

Pte. J. Belasco, a guard at the internment camp—now a patient in a local hospital after suffering a broken leg in a car accident—says he discovered the German listening to a German newscaster.

"I'm a Czechoslovakian and can speak German," he said. "It was on July 9 that the German officer went off by himself and lay down in a shady spot. I was close to him and heard a voice giving German news. After the news was finished the officer got up and just as he did so, his coat fell back and I saw a metal box strapped under his armpit. It was a radio.

"He immediately called all the Germans together and repeated the news that had come over the radio a few minutes before. I, of course, reported the incident to the officer commanding."

Belasco added that every German in the camp believes Hitler is coming to Canada and will conquer it and the United States. "They honestly think Hitler will land before winter."

GAYDA IS SUSPICIOUS

Rome, July 24 (AP)—Virginio Gayda Fascist editor, declared today there is "suspicion more than well-founded" that United States submarines are operating with the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

Third Raid on Moscow, Like its Predecessors Branded As a Failure

Berlin, July 24—(AP) — Strong Red Army resistance and bad roads are hampering the German invasion of Russia, the Nazi High Command conceded today, but it claimed progress on the whole eastern front nevertheless.

Again, the communique from Hitler's headquarters gave no detail of the vast operations, but D.N.B., the German news agency, claimed the defeat of a large, trapped Red Army force at Nevel, north of Vitebsk, with "extraordinary heavy losses."

It asserted 13,000 prisoners were taken there and declared Russian losses were high because Red Army political commissars "compelled their troops to continue hopeless resistance."

Another 5,000 captives were claimed by informed Nazis to have been taken in the Mogilev sector, on the south side of the Smolensk salient.

Summed up in Sentence

Again, the communique from Hitler's headquarters summed up the land operations in the one sentence:

"The operations of the German armed forces and of their Allies are taking their planned course on the entire east front in spite of difficult roads and strong local resistance."

Of the third successive night assault on Moscow, the communique said: "Strong bomber formations last night again dropped explosives of all calibres on vital military objectives in Moscow."

Admit Plane Losses

Spokesmen claimed Soviet air losses yesterday were 111 planes. German losses were not stated but were described as "hardly one tenth" of that.

While German armored units battle on the road to Moscow Nazi infantry 100 miles to the rear was said to be locked in an equally fierce struggle with masses of Russian troops allegedly split by the armored drive.

Dispatches telling of this phase of the struggle were coupled with reports of adverse weather delaying the drive on the Ukrainian capital of Kiev, further south.

Rainstorms of cloudburst dimensions were said to have turned the highways west of Kiev—at the best none too good—into a gluey sea of mud impeding the movement of trucks, heavy artillery and other essential equipment.

Military commentators, writing in Berlin newspapers, emphasized "unusual military tasks" confronting German soldiers in the Smolensk sector west of Moscow.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said the advance of mechanized units created a fighting front in this sector more than 95 miles deep.

German infantry, following in the path of the armored forces, was said to be confronted with the task of mopping up centres of Russian resistance which the mechanized forces failed to destroy.

The paper's military commentator did not disguise the seriousness of these operations, which was enhanced by the reported arrival of fresh reserves from Moscow, but in the same breath he declared the Russian position was "hopeless."

While bitter fighting raged all along the front, the German air force was claimed to be raiding Russian communications far behind the lines.

Moscow, July 24—(AP)—German bombers, attacking in relays for 5½ hours, subjected this city to its third successive nocturnal bombardment during the night, but today the Russians branded the raid — like its predecessors — a failure.

No change in the fighting front was indicated by the Russians, an afternoon communique saying stubborn engagements continued during the night in the directions of Porkhov, Polotsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir. The Red air force was credited with bombing German motor units and airfields.

Though approximately 150 planes were estimated to have taken part in last night's assault on the capital, authorized sources said only a few had penetrated the curtain of steel lung up by anti-aircraft defences and declared no military objectives had been hit.

Some casualties were acknowledged, but many of the bombs were said to have been dropped "at random" on the outskirts of the city.

A number of the raiders were reported shot down by ground batteries and night fighters, which were credited with destroying some 10 per cent of the Nazi aircraft participating in the two previous raids.

Particularly heavy fighting was reported to have raged all day yesterday in the Smolensk and Polotsk-Nevel sectors west of Moscow, in the Zhitomir area west of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev, and along the Bessarabian border in the south.

The communique gave no details of the fighting in the first three sectors but said that at one point on the Bessarabian front Russian forces "routed an enemy motorized detachment, capturing 400 armored cars, 300 motorcycles, 32 tanks, 25 guns and eight mine throwers."

Guerrilla Forces Effective

The early morning bulletin placed great emphasis on the effectiveness of Russian Guerrilla Forces operating far behind the German lines.

It declared that in one sector of the front Russian Guerrillas had killed 65 German soldiers and oficers, captured 19 motor vehicles and other equipment and taken a number of prisoners.

At another point, the communique said, a Russian detachment remained hidden on the east bank of a river while German engineers threw a bridge across the stream. When the bridge was completed the Russians were said to have rushed from concealment, swarmed across the bridge and killed 300 of the Nazis.

WOMAN STABBED BY UNKNOWNS ON TORONTO STREET

Tells Police, Before Succumbing to Knife Wound, "They Tried To Drag Me in the Car"

WIDE SEARCH STARTS

Toronto, July 24—(CP) — The stabbing of a young woman in that part of Front Street that is bounded by railway yards and freight sheds just west of the Toronto downtown section caused police to launch a city-wide hunt today for the perpetrators of what they said was one of the most callous slayings of recent years.

The victim, tentatively identified as Mrs. Ida Charlotte Adair, 24, Orillia, died in hospital early today from a knife wound in the left lung, just below the heart. A knife with a one-inch blade was used for the single blow, police said.

After her admittance to hospital she retained consciousness just long enough to deny she had been thrown from a car, as suggested by one of the detectives who sought to question her as to the identity of the assailants.

"I wasn't in a car," she managed to tell the group around her bed. "They tried to drag me in the car."

She died shortly afterward without revealing any more information.

Early today police said they talked with a former Toronto boxer, whom they did not name, a close friend of the dead woman. They said he told them of driving Mrs. Adair to a hotel last night and leaving her there.

Investigating officers said they are trying to trace the woman's moves and companions between 7.30 p.m. and the time she was found. Police said Mrs. Adair came to Toronto a year ago from Orillia and has been dancing at parties and banquets. They added she has a husband living in the Sudbury district and a child living with a sister in Capreol.

The woman was found reeling along Front Street west last night by Russell Lynch, who was motoring by with his wife. Lynch told police he stopped and ran to the woman's aid, reaching her as she collapsed.

"I've been stabbed," Lynch quoted the woman as saying. The motorist ran to a nearby freight shed, roused the watchman and had him summon the police.

An ambulance, rushing to the scene of a traffic accident just a few blocks away, was commandeered by police to remove the woman to hospital and another ambulance ordered out for the victim of the auto mishap.

$350,000 LOSS AS PAPER PLANT, PEMBROKE, BURNS

225 Employees Will be Thrown Out of Work Indefinitely

LUMBER BURNED

Pembroke, Ont., July 24—(CP)—Fire destroyed the plant of the Consolidated Paper Corporation here today along with a large quantity of lumber. The fire originated in the boiler room.

An official of the company today estimated damage at from $300,000 to $350,000 but said these figures were tentative pending a check-up on the burned over properties. The plant employed 225 men and will be out of operation indefinitely.

All available fire-fighting equipment in Pembroke was rushed to the plant on the shore of the Ottawa River a short distance from the Canadian Pacific Railway station. The flames shot 100 feet in the air at times and only lack of wind saved the station from catching fire.

The west half of the company's yard was burned over along with the plant and between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 feet of lumber were destroyed.

Ready to Impose Restrictions on Japanese Gov't

Possible British Military Action to Offset Threat Against Sinapore Naval Base

OCCUPATION IMMINENT

Washington, July 24—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain were reported poised today for swift and drastic counter-action against impending Japanese occupation of strategic air and naval bases in the south of French Indo-China.

Indications both here and in London were that the United States Goverment stood ready to impose sweeping economic restrictions on Japan, paralleling possible military action to offset the threat against the Sinapore naval base and the Netherlands East Indies which would be created by establishment of Japanese bases in Southern Indo-China.

That the occupation was imminent if not actually underway already was indicated by dispatches from Saigon, French Indo-China.

Foreign consulates here said today their representatives in Hanoi had been advised by Indo-China Government of a French-Japanese agreement granting in the Japanese certain naval and military concessions in the southern part of the colony.

Such concessions have been regarded as possibly foreshadowing Japanese military expansion southward toward Singapore and the East Indies, with their rich resources of rubber, tin and oil.

Transports Move South

The Chinese military intelligence officer at Chungking, China, told foreign correspondents that 30 Japanese troop transports convoyed by three warships were observed sailing southward past Hongkong, on July 18, in the direction of Indo-China. In addition, he declared seven heavy Japanese warships, three aircraft carrier and 55 destroyers were sighted moving southward from Japanese waters Tuesday.

At Shanghai early today foreigners who had booked passage for Japan on the Kobe Maru were halted at the gangplank and told that travel had been stopped for an indefinite period However, 500 Japanese were permitted to go aboard. A similar ban also was invoked at Dairen—apparently to prevent foreigners from seeing Japanese ship movements.

Singapore circles heard reports that authorities at Hanoi had ordered all French merchant ships to remain in Indo-Chinese ports or proceed there immediately.

Britain Prepared for Any Move

As for demands made, Vichy admitted only that the Japanese had asked the right to take military measures because of alleged military developments along the British Colonial and Chinese frontiers of Indo-China, which Japan has guaranteed to defend.

French Foreign Legionnaires Now Recruits in Allied Forces

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Beirut, Lebanon, July 24—(AP)—Topsy-turvy war developments finally have caught up with the French Foreign Legion, that colorful military organization composed of adventurous men of all nationalities.

A number of White Russians, some of whom served the Czar and others who left Russia as children when the Bolsheviks took over, have asked the British to help them get back to their homeland to help the Red Army in its fight against Germany.

"We never thought we'd want to fight beside the Reds, but now that Russia is in danger we're all Russians," one of them said.

These men, strangely, are only 13 days removed from bitter fighting against British troops. They were part of the Vichy army which opposed the allied invasion of the Levant.

Among Legionnaires seeking a way out of the Levant with the idea of joining in the war against Germany are former Spanish Republicans who fled over the Pyrenees into France when Franco won in Spain's Civil War.

The men were kept in vast concentration camps in the south of France, but with the outbreak of European hostilities many joined the Foreign Legion. Two battalions of them were sent to Syria.

Some of the Spaniards deserted to the Free French and crossed into Palestine where a company of them was formed in a British unit.

Both Russian and Spanish Legionnaires fought against Australians on the coastal road leading to this capital. They underwent at Damour, south of here, an artillery barrage in which the Australians and the Royal Navy were estimated to have hurled 17,000 shells before breaking through to Beirut's outer defences.

New Listening Post Of NBC Picks Up Broadcasts Everywhere

New York, July 24 (AP) — The National Broadcasting Company's new listening post which can pick up broadcasts throughout the world was dedicated yesterday in the presence of 150 newspaper and radio men.

Niles Trammel, President of NBC, said the news broadcasts would be noted by monitors and made available to the nation's press "in order that we in a democracy can hear all sides, and with our free and undictated minds, decide what we believe to be the truth."

Located at Bellmore, Long Island, about 40 miles from New York, the listening post will be operated by a crew of 24 of whom 12 are foreign language experts and 12 engineers. Teletypewriter circuits private telephone lines a microphone circuit and a program transmission line link the post with NBC's headquarters in New York.

Toll in Crash Raised to Two

Iroquois Falls, Ont., July 24. —(CP)—The toll of an airplane crash yesterday at Porquis Junction, 35 miles east of here, was raised to two early today when Alec MacDonald, the plane's pilot, died from injuries received in the crash. Lorne Taylor, Timmins business man, was instantly killed in the accident.

Witnesses said the plane plunged to earth after the motor apparently cut off.

MacDonald had both legs fractured and suffered serious internal injuries. A miner he had resigned his job yesterday to become a regular employee of the Algoma Air Transport Company, and needed only his cross-country flying certificate to qualify as a commercial pilot.

Taylor, native of Prince Albert, Sask., was at one time a member of the famous Regina Pats Hockey team. For a while he resided at Barrie, Ont., where his father, D. Roy Taylor, is well known.

Helsinki Spends Most of Night In Shelters

Explosions were heard throughout the night but official reports claimed anti- aircraft fire held off Russian planes attacking the capital.

Other southern Finnish cities also were raided including the port of Turku. Five Russian planes were claimed shot down.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

MATTER OF DAMAGES AMICABLY SETTLED

Two motor cars of a rather ancient vintage all but collapsed when in collision at the intersection of Bleecker Ave., and Station St., last evening, Constable Wm. Evans reported after investigation.

Hugh Reid, 26 John Street, was driving an ancient model vehicle north on Bleecker Ave., and was about to turn into Station St., when his motor car was in collision wit another motor car of equally ancient vintage, driven east on Station St., by Kenneth Green, R.R. No. 6, Belleville.

"The two cars nearly fell apart when they struck together", stated Constable Evans in his report, that added damage to at least a $100 resulted to the vehicles concerned. The matter was amicably settled without charges being preferred.

MAGISTRATE BUTLER NOW ON VACATION

While Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. of this city is vacationing, two outside Magistrates will take over His Worship's various police courts.

Magistrate J. B. Garvin of Kingston will preside at the sitting of County Police Court held in Belleville and vicinity, while Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook, will ascend the bench to hear police court in Belleville and Trenton. Magistrate Garvin assumed his additional duties as presiding Magistrate at the County Police Court held at the Court House today.

RED RASPBERRIES ADVANCE SHARPLY

Due to increased prices being paid by canning factories of the district raspberry quotations on the city market advanced sharply from twenty cents the box to twenty-five cents, and forty-five cents for two boxes. Berry stocks were not as heavy as the usual midweek offering, and this is put down to the diversion of the heavier lots to the factories.

Homegrown tomatoes were plentiful but prices remained steady at $1 the basket or twenty cents for the berry box. Huckleberries were $1.10 the 12 quart basket. New potatoes were 50-55 cents the peck, and fresh corn on the cob 35 cents the dozen. Blackberries were 25 cents the box and gooseberries ten cents. New beets, onions, carrots, sold in five-cent bunch-lots as did radishes. Cabbage was from 5-10 cents the head with cauliflower a little dearer. A few broilers were available at from ninety cents to $1.25 the pair, according to quality.

Whitefish sold at 22 cents the pound.

GASOLINE CAUSES MINOR BLAZE

Further warning was issued today by Fire Chief William Lynch regarding the use of gasoline in the home and around buildings. "This product should be conserved as much as possible as it is in the country's interest," he pointed out," and in addition there is a dangerous fire hazard."

Chief Lynch illustrated his point with the story of a minor blaze, which occurred on Starling Street, where the occupant of a house used gasoline for cleaning purposes in a bedroom. The gas ignited and resulted in the loss of the mattress and damage to the bed and to the house. Fire department trucks rushed to the scene and reduced the blaze before major damage was done.

ALBINO WOODCHUCK SEEN ON HIGHWAY

An unusual sight, even to lovers of wild animal life, was the appearance of an albino woodchuck that ambled across the highway a few miles north of Madoc the other day. According to travellers returning from that district the animal was pure white with a brown streak of fur running down its back.

It showed no fright, but ran down the road a few feet ahead of the slowed-down car, before disappearing in a roadside thicket.

DROPPED CARTON OF SOFT DRINKS

That series of minor explosions that occurred in a Front Street grocery chain store this morning was not a stick of small bombs from an invading plane, nor the playful pranks of small boys indulging in their favorite firecracker sport. The "bangs" occurred when somebody inadvertently dropped a carton of soft drinks on the floor of the shop.

GERMAN CONSULS STILL ON BOAT

Italian Consular Group Released Wednesday and Proceeded to Italy

Lisbon, July 24 (CP) — German consuls, their staffs and Nazi agents ousted from the United States passed the night aboard the United States naval transport West Point, eyed longingly by some of the 1,700 war refugees waiting here for a chance to get to the new world.

The Italian consular group was released yesterday. The Germans were held pending arrival in Portugal of American consuls and their staffs from Germany.

The Americans were reported by the United States embassy in Madrid to have crossed into Spain from France last night and were expected here today. With them are United States ambulance drivers held by the Germans since the sinking of the Egyptian ship Zam Zam.

A train bearing 85 Americans from Italy arrived here last night and a plane from Rome carried a few others from the Balkans.

The 1,7000 French refugees — Poles, Belgians, Hollanders, Germans, French, Czechs, Yugoslavs and Danes—are all that are left of about 50,000 persons who crushed into this city a year ago.

The largest single group of refugees is Polish. About 1,000 of them are stranded in Portugal and like the others they have no visas nor any prospects of getting any. They came here months ago with visas for South American counties only to find their credentials branded fraudulent.

There are many cases where families have been split, a husband or a wife here and the mate somewhere in occupied territory and unable to leave, one of the more celebrated cases is that of Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world chess champion, who has been waiting here three months now for his American-born wife who is in Paris.

FRIENDS HONOR BYRON O. LOTT ON 86TH BIRTHDAY

Presented With Gold-Headed Cane by Residents of the County

BAND IN ATTENDANCE

Stirling July 24 (Special)— With Belleville Municipal Band in attendance under the leadership of bandmaster Fred Jobson, friends from all parts of the county gathered to pay tribute to one of its most colorful citizens last night, as Byron O. Lott was honored on the occasion of his eighty-sixth birthday.

When from the hands of his old friend Col. Ketchesan the guest of honor was presented with a handsome gold-headed walking-stick, there was once again evidenced the enthusiasm and zeal upon which his popularity is based, as the guest of honor made a touching reply to the many compliments paid him by his friends. Dr. G. H. Stobie acted as Chairman for the brief ceremony and Dr. E. A. Carleton of Stirling made the address as the presentation was made.

Still enjoying fine physical and mental alertness Mr. Lott was deeply impressed by what he termed the "kindly gesture" as members from all walks of life joined in the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Farmers, clerks, doctors, lawyers and prominent businessmen from Belleville and all parts of the county representing all the major political affiliations, fraternities, churches and municipal boards formed the assembly that gathered at his Sidney Township home.

Born in Rawdon Township

Born in Rawdon township, where for many years he was Reeve of the Council he has and still enjoys a vigorous career in the political life of the district. Many halls in every corner of the county have echoed his voice in historic political campaigns of the past. Today having passed his eighty-sixth birthday he enjoys the admiration of associates and opponents alike.

His first political ballot was cast in 1878 an event of great importance in his life and one which he delights to recall. In 1896 he became Reeve of the township of Rawdon and was reelected for several years by acclamation. He finally resigned the office to accept the Liberal nomination as candidate for the provincial legislature assembly. Though not elected he enjoyed what he terms a "swell fight."

Showed Many Favors

Many of the friends gathered at his home last night can sincerely thank him for personal favors, which he willingly rendered and immediately forgot. Because of his political experience and associations his advice on many important matters has been sought by those needing advice regarding parliamentary rules and laws and he has always been ready to take the necessary steps to see that such laws were carried out to the letter, when they affected the lives of any resident of Hastings County. Quietly and without show he made life more pleasant for a host of people, whom he now counts amongst his closest friends.

"The essential element in the pursuit of happiness" he declared last night, "is making life a game and playing it for all it's worth, observing the rules and taking the bumps with all the joys of the lighter and brighter moments. Life has been kind to me, I have lived a good deal more than the allotted three score and ten and have hopes of reaching four score and ten." It is such friendly displays and gestures of this kind that make all men want to live on and enjoy the fellowship of such a fine group of friends." I can't think of anything more to say at such a time than with all the sincerity one man can generate. "Thank you all."

Car Badly Damaged as Cow Killed

A Chevrolet coupe owned by the Municipal Spraying Co., Toronto, and driven by S. H. Ballamy was damaged to the extent of $200.00 yesterday, when it struck and killed a cow being driven on highway No. 14 north of Stirling. The cow was owned by Harry Cooke of Stirling. Constable Sam Eggleton investigated the accident. It was an unfortunate day for Mr. Cooke who lost another cow earlier the same day through illness.

TO PERFORM AUTOPSY ON W. MORRIS McGEE

Hamilton, July 24 (CP)—Although a telegram has been received by police here requesting release of the body of William Morris McGee, 35 year old sailor from Thessalon, Ont., recovered from the bay yesterday, Coroner Dr. Leeming Carr said today the body could not be released until an autopsy has been performed, possibly later in the day.

"It is not likely that an inquest will be conducted," Dr. Carr said. "However, the remains can not be released until an autopsy has been performed."

Police are seeking to determine how McGee suffered a bruise on his right eye.

Parity Prices for Agriculture Advocated by Agnes Macphail

Former Member of Parliament Addresses Federation of Agriculture at Sandbanks

SPORTS PROGRAM

Picton, July 24.—(Special)—The aim of the future should be parity prices for agriculture. The farmer is all right whatever his prices are if the prices of the goods and services he requires are at the same level. It is the disequilibrium that is injurious and unjust declared Miss Agnes Macphail addressing a picnic of the Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture at the Sandbanks, Wednesday afternoon. Just now the farmer suffers from rising costs and fixed low prices. The farmer has suffered much in recent years. From 1929 to 1932 the total income of Canada fell 45 per cent but in the same period the agricultural income fell 79 per cent. It is still 32.9 per cent below the 1926 level.

Favors Co-operative Enterprise

Those interested in agriculture must work to build co-operative enterprises that will give us some control over our economic life declared Miss Macphail. Organization of the great masses of people is needed along with adult education within these organizations to develop the individual and encourage him to conduct all his affairs, social, occupational, economic and political.

Miss Macphail urged that there should be preparation for an after the war slump. There should be a powerful federal committee working exclusively on plans to absorb labor after demobolization, she said.

Want Better World

We do not want the same kind of a world as before the war! We want a better world with more opportunities in it, said the writer as she instanced hardships many experienced previous to the war. She urged a better understanding between city and country and declared business men should give the lead in agriculture as in service clubs since they are dependent on it.

I believe in co-operation not only for selling but for buying necessities as well, said Miss Macphail as she described the benefits of co-operative efforts in the United States.

We must think of democracy not only as a way of giving people some control over our political life but also as a method to give control over their economic life. Who but the people have built the big mercantile and manufacturing establishments we have today? asked the speaker. I think co-operation is the way to the future because our problem in the future is consumption, not production. Capitalism did a good job at increasing production and cutting down the unit cost but cared too little for human values and does not do anything to increase the people's power to consume goods while co-operation does, declaired Miss Macphail.

Introduced by Senator Horsey

Given a rousing welcome by a crowd of three thousand Miss Macphail was introduced by Senator H. H. Horsey as a lady who is a credit to her sex and to the province and he expressed the belief she would gain champion agriculture's cause in parliament.

The necessity of organization to make the demands of agriculture heeded were stressed by James Hepburn, M.L.A., George Tustin, M.P., V. S. Millburn, Toronto, secretary of Ontario Federation of Agriculture Warden D. O. Reynolds, Burton Baxter. Havelock Robb, Kingston, recited a poem and there was a program of sports which resulted as follows:

Farmers Need Immediate Aid To Help Garner Harvest

Those Who Can Spend at Least One Day a Week on a Farm in the Vicinity of Their City, Town or Village Should Offer at Once

MUST SALVAGE CROPS

With farm helpers few and far between, Ontario farmers are in desperate need of immediate aid to salvage the harvest, states A. MacLaren, Director, Farm Service Force, Ontario Department of Labour.

Canada is committed to large quantities of food for Great Britain —112,000,000 pounds of cheese for 1941 and millions of pounds of bacon as well as vast quantities of powdered milk. This means that the harvest must be placed in barns in good condition. This cannot be done with the pitiful amount of man power at present available on farms and calls for quick action on the part of men who could spare at least one day a week on a farm in the vicinity of his city, town or village.

Thousands of High School boys have been placed with farmers in various parts of the Province, and the farmers are so pleased with the magnificent response of youth and the efficiency shown that the Farm Service Force has been asked to supply an additional 500 boys.

By enlisting for Farm Service, Ontario Youth is letting Prime Minister Churchill know that "Here's the Food to finish the Job". Adults who are not engaged in essential war industry should follow the example set by youth and heed the farmers' appeal by volunteering to work one day a week to help garner the limited hay crop.

The 6,000 Farm Service Force boys and girls who are doing such yeoman service have made a hit with their employers and farmers who originally were not sold on the idea are now clamouring for them. Adults as well as Collegiate boys and girls, who can step into this agricultural breach, should write at once to the Farm Service Force, Department of Labour, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. Your help will aid in Ontario going over the agricultural top in providing Britain with the food necessary to help Churchill finish the job. They also serve who feed the Empire!

Sugar Beet Webworm Moths in S. Alberta

Lethbridge, Alta., July 24—(CP)—Thousands of small moths fluttered today throughout Southern Alberta and entomologists described them as the moths of the sugar beet webworm.

Reports of the moths were received from the international boundary to Wainwright, 250 miles north. A motorist driving here from Calgary said the flight was so heavy it resembled a blizzard in one area.

If the moths lay eggs, serious infestation of the sugar beet crop may develop, entomologists said.

'Shooting War' Not Likely In the Pacific

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 24.—(AP)—Evidence accumulates that Hitler is finding his great 'crusade" against communism tougher going than he expected and s seeking diversions.

It helps explain the sustained Nazi bombing of Moscow, which has come under foreign fire for the first time since Napoleon's campaign in 1812. It also underscores the crisis in the Far East, momentarily expected to flare into some sort of Japanese military action, but not necessarily into a "shooting war".

The Moscow bombings, which could just as easily have been carried out by the Nazi air force days or weeks ago, imply that German victories in the field have thus far failed to shake the will of Russians in the mass to fight on. Official Nazi accounts admit fanatical courage in the Red Army. German guerrilla forays behind the lines and peasants burning their homes and crops in sullen retreat.

Premises Unfulfilled

Moscow has made no attempt to conceal heavy losses from its people. The Germans have said nothing as to theirs. Yet a tide of human war wreckage and word of German war dead left behind must be drifting back through all Germany to fray the long-strained nerves of the civilian populace.

Devastating victories to end the bloody battle quickly were long ago promised by Hitler. They are still deferred. To offset that unexplained delay and to attempt against Russians the same sort of terroristic bombing of great cities that has so signally failed to shake British public courage, Moscow has been assailed from the air According to neutral eyewitness reports the results have been just as dubious as they were in England.

In the Far East there can be small doubt that Berlin has been prodding Tokyo to move in some fashion. Short of a still improbable Japanese attack on Russia, which could have small effect in a military sense on the Nazi-Soviet battle, Japanese occupation of air and sea bases in French Indo-China seems most likely to be Tokyo's answer. And the trend of all rumors flooding the cables is that it is imminent—with Vichy probably assenting under stiff pressure from Berlin.

If that does come, it means the Japanese will be participating, for the present at least, only in non-bloodletting phases of the war in Europe. It will be primarily part of the war-of-nerves technique, a long-familiar Hitler method.

Hopes to Divert U.S.

Berlin's prime purpose in fostering a Japanese raid on Indo-China would be to divert British and United States attention. Hitler may hope to limit the extent of American naval or other aid to Britain, or Russia. At the same time, some further strain on Russian public morale might be created.

Nazi propagandists would be certain to thunder into Russian ears that, with Japan on the move, American Pacific interests must take first place in Washington policy-making to the exclusion of effective aid to Russia.

Yet Japanese seizure of bases in Indo-China uncontested by French garrisons would not involve Tokyo in a shooting war. Moreover, if only relatively small Japanese forces were sent to man bases in Southern Indo-China, Japan would not have to risk any grave exposure of her main fleet.

There is ample evidence that Japanese Navy and Army politicos are at odds on policy. The navy men, by and large, shun military operations southward on a scale that draw the fleet to great distances from its home stations.

They never lose sight of the United States Fleet in the Pacific. It would be in the long, exposed flank of sea communications between Japan and the major seaborne military adventure to the south. Whatever Japan may be planning, she is not apt to take that risk with a sailor at her foreign affair helm.

BURCHELL NAMED TO NEWFOUNDLAND

Former High Commissioner to Australia to Establish New Post

Ottawa, July 24—(CP)—In the second enlargement of its diplomatic representation in less than a week, the Canadian Government has ordered Charles J. Burchell to return from his post as High Commissioner to Australia to establish a new High Commissioner's office in Newfoundland.

Last Monday, Mr. Burchell announced at Sydney, N.S.W., that he was leaving Australia to take up special war work. Last night a formal announcement from Prime Minister Mackenzie King's office made public what those duties would be.

The new Post was established "to facilitate the handling of many problems of mutual interest between Canada and Newfoundland," the statement said. It "completes Canadian representation in the various dominions."

"Though Newfoundland is smaller than the other dominions, its relations with Canada now are more intimate and varied than those of any of the overseas dominions and give a special importance to the new post," the statement said.

Mr. Burchell, familiar with commercial, shipping and fisheries matters important both to Canada and Newfoundland, will return to Canada "immediately."

Last Monday appointment of Jean Desy, former Canadian Minister to Belgium and the Netherlands, as first Canadian Minister to Brazil, was made public. Intention to open a legation in Argentina has been announced, but no appointment to the post has been made.

Hay Fever Driver Speeds at 80 m.p.h. But Excuse Fails

Publo, Colo., July 24 —(AP)— Lewis W. (atchoo!) Mack of Denver hailed into court for speeding 80 miles an hour, explained (atchoo") he was allergic to certain plants in arid regions—thus his haste in Colorado prairies. "The excuse," observed Peace Justice William Barber, "is quite original, but the fine will be $5."

Toronto Pilot Killed in N. S.

Dartmouth, N.S., July 24—(CP) —Sgt. Pilot R. M. Bryant, 27, Toronto, was killed yesterday in the crash of a small plane at nearby Lawrencetown, Royal Canadian Air Force officials announced today.

No details of the accident were available, but R.C.A.F. authorities said an official investigation was being held. The accident was announced last night but the pilot's name was withheld pending notification of his family.

Sgt. Pilot Bryant's next-of-kin was his father, Joseph W. Bryant of Toronto. His identification number was R-65736.

Wing Commander Hobbs, Officer Commanding the Eastern Passage air base near here, issued the following statement last night:

"At about five p.m. today a small single-seater aircraft on a practice flight crashed into Lawrencetown Lake. The pilot was killed."

U. S., Willkie Says, Will Probably Become Involved

Los Angeles, July 24 — (AP)— Wendell Willkie told a mass meeting for National Unity last night the United States probably would be involved in war regardless of the position it took on developing international affairs.

The real issue now, he said, in a prepared address, "is whether we are going to live in the future as free men, or whether the attack of the totalitarian powers is to destroy our prospect of freedom, and force us, in desperation, to undertake another form of government."

Willkie said the United States was not seeking war in establishing outlying bases, but was moving to secure outposts from which its freedom could be defended.

"As the international situation develops there will doubtless be other moves we will be compelled to make," he told his listeners. "In judging these moves, let us have one, and only one, criterion. Do they, or do they not, help to assure free lives for us and our children and our children's children? If they do not, then we should oppose them. But if they do, then whatever our party or whatever our creed, we must give them our support."

LORD BENNETT

Canada's former prime minister, Lord Bennett, has taken his seat in the House of Lords as the Right Honorable Richard Bedford, Viscount Bennett of Mickleham, Surrey, and Calgary and Hopewell in the Dominion of Canada.

The new peer of the realm did not forget Canadian place names in his choice of title. He remembered Hopewell, New Brunswick; where he was born and the Canadian West city of Calgary where he lived the most of his mature years and spent his public life and which he represented in the Canadian Commons. In conformity with heraldic laws he chose the name of his place of residence in Britain it being a requirement according to heraldry that the name of a place in the United Kingdom should be associated with the title.

Because there is no other Lord Bennett, this is the name by which he will be known, the family name being preserved, because it is said the new peer did not wish to change his family name so late in life.

To Canadians he would always have been known by the name of Bennett because of his intimate connection with the public life of the Dominion.

NAZI GENERALS IN DISCARD

In a totalitarian state life must be miserable even for the lofty. Hitler has shown how he can make existence miserable even for the men who lead the German armies. His generals' views must coincide with the dictator's views and ambitions, even at the risk of error or out they go.

Through the New York Times news was given the other day of a shake-up of the German general staff, the relegation of General Keitel and General Field Marshal von Brauchitsch back to the tents and their substitution by others.

He who walks with Hitler or in his shadow has a precarious path to follow. Lack of immediate success in the Hitler-chosen blitz against Russia brought a blitz against these two generals who are said to have opposed the wilful aggressor's decision to throw the Hun armies against Russia.

The terror that stalked through the courts of the Emperor Nero, the spy system which was raised or lowered to the n-th degree by that Emperor who had his spies at work in the leading Roman households, have their modern counterpart in the Gestapo which can do its work not only among the people but also among the high-ups. As there is no security for the world with a Nazi at the helm of Germany, there is also no security even in the precincts of the inner circle of Nazism. Nothing protects those whom Adolf knows or has befriended if Hitler turns against them.

Generalship must feel unsound and unsafe in the presence of this neurotic figure whose martial leadership has yet to be proven. The Hitler that blitzed Russia contrary to the mutual non-aggression pact to the accompaniment of the familiar technique of allegation of plotting is the dictator who is said to have had an epileptic attack in the last few days.

The fact that these leaders did not favor the attack on Russia from a military standpoint did not secure to them any right of opinion when it countered that of the dictator.

No one is sure in the presence of the egoistic mania of this grim figure who has disturbed the world and dragged millions in the dust and broken the peace of Europe with his blitz warfare.

The man who turned on his friends some years ago in the army purge, respects no opposition nor opinion and before the end of this fanatic figure and his removal from the world scene there will no doubt be more symptoms of the fanatical nature of this aggressor.

TOURIST BAIT?

"Y'know," quoth Bill Snaggum, venerable angler of these parts, who claims to be a descendant of the gent who investigated the innards of the well-known Biblical whale while on a fishing party, "I've heard some tall fish yarns in me days but one I read this mornin' makes those anglin' Annanias' look like an old time evangelist."

"Huccome?" hiccoughed his crony, Jack Gaffem, between snorts of spiked sarsparilla?

"Noticed in a paper this mornin'" smiled Bill, "that the Peterborough Anglers' Association states that the lakes north of their fair city are so full of bass that there ain't enough grub to go around, and that they think steps should be taken to give some of the fish a summer vacation in other parts of the district."

Jack exuded a spray of spiked jungle-juice. He threw back his head and his roars of merriment echoed along the waterfront.

"Now, Bill," he grinned through laugh-wet eyes, "don't be too hard on those guys. I can remember a few years back, right here in Hastings County, when the pickerel were so thick in one of our northern lakes that the lads around the countryside played lake lacrosse on the surface of the water. And in another spot the grey trout, usually a deep water baby, was so pushed for room at the lake bottom that the smaller ones had to come to the surface. Jake Bonem, who wouldn't miss his mornin' dip for a million dollars, had to use dynamite to blast a hole big enough for him to swim in."

"Sure," agreed his crony, "I remember that case. The following winter, when the ice covered the surface of the lake, the fishes tails stuck up through the ice so thick that the boys had to use lawnmowers to cut them down in order to get the summer's ice supply."

"All this stuff reminds me," Jack said, between chews, "of a small village that used to get a lot of duckhunters and thereby increase the local revenue by plenty of dough. One year, when the village fathers thought the tourist business was falling off, out of the blue sky came a remarkable story. The aftermath was an influx of hunters that was reminiscent of the good old days."

"It seems," continued Jack, "that one mornin' a party of hunters went lookin' for ducks and came to a small lake. They scouted the water but hadn't gone very far when they noticed that the surface of the lake was literally covered with ducks. 'Shucks,' sez one of the lads, 'this is duck-soup,'" and accordingly let go with both barrels. Nothin' happened. He fired again and so did two of his pals. Then suddenly the entire surface of the lake seemed to rise in the air. The ducks were so thick that they rose like a carpet. The hunters stared. They couldn't believe their eyes. They knew that six shotgun barrels had been emptied into the flock and there must be casualties of some sort. They couldn't have missed with the ducks so thick."

The old sportsman paused and bit off a substantial chew of tobacco. Bill leaned toward him expectantly. "Yeah," he said, "and what happened "

"Well," he continued, "when the flock reached a certain height it seemed to spread a bit and believe it or not ten ducks fell into the lake. They had been so thick on the surface that when the entire flock took off it carried the dead ones with it."

"And that is the yarn that was responsible for one of the greatest influxes of hunters that the district ever saw, not that I am sayin' that the Peterborough folks would spread such a story as the bass bein' so thick that they are on food rations, but —well—you can take it for what it is worth."

Bill raised quizzical eyebrows. "I dunno'," he murmured, "that story of the bass bein' so thick that they are starvin' to death either means that there is a food shortage or a yen to invite more fishermen to the district. This has been one of the best tourist years in a long while, and the bass fishin' has been good in all parts of the district, and so has the pickerel and musky sport. But yuh never can tell. It sure does ring funny when some parts of the district has bass to burn and others not so far away are just average and just good enough to attract tourists. Anyway, there's no sport when all yuh have to do is to reach over the side and take your pick of the fish."

Removing Offensive Breath Due to Dry Catarrh

In looking for the cause of bad breath, physicians and dentists look first to some condition in the mouth—decayed teeth, spongy gums, infected tonsils, dry catarrh—or to some condition of the stomach and intestine conditions can generally be corrected, the most distressing type—due to dry catarrh—seemed to be incurable. Some satisfactory results were obtained by the use of a little rubber bag filled with water pushed up the nose and where possible into the sinuses and the water kept hot by means of electricity. This softened the crusts and when crust were removed, the odor disappeared.

Some months ago I spoke of the results obtained by Drs. John Rommell and T. C. Davis, Philadelphia, by the use of prostigmin in clearing up chronic catarrhal and sinus conditions. Prostigmin is in general use for toning up the muscles of the intestine.

More recently, I wrote of the work of Drs. H. Mortimer, R. P. Wright, and J. B. Collip, Montreal, in dry catarrh by the use of estrone—an ovary product. Even more recently I spoke of the work of Dr. I. H. Blaisdell, Boston, who got satisfactory results in the treatment of dry catarrh by spraying nose with estrone.

And now two Chicago physicians, Drs. L. B. Bernheimer and Samuel Soskin, in Archives of Otolaryngology report their experience with prostigmin which acts as does the ovary extract estrone in heating up and causing an increased supply of blood to the lining of the nose. The patients sprayed the lining of the nose four times a day with a weak solution of prostigmin.

Twenty patients were treated for periods varying from one month to one year. All other forms of treatment were stopped except washing out the nose once or twice daily so that the prostigmin would be sprayed directly on lining of nose instead of on any mucous that had accumulated. Ozena —the bad odor—was controlled in all the cases, usually at the end of second week. Crust formation was definitely decreased and in some cases disappeared entirely.

Three of the patients stopped treatment for four weeks. In all three cases the crusting, the bad odor and the dry throat returned showing that treatment must be kept up if the patient is to be kept free of symptoms.

These patients, as will all other patients, do not think this daily spraying with prostigmin too high a price to pay to be free from the offensive breath of dry catarrh.

How a Tanker Was Saved

By CLETUS KEATING

The San Demetrio was an oil tanker of 12,000 tons. With a crew of 42 and loaded with 11,000 tons of gasoline, she sailed from Halifax on Oct. 28, 1940, for the United Kingdom in a convoy of 38 ships escorted by the British auxiliary cruiser Jervis Bay. In the late afternoon of Nov. 5 the convoy was attacked by a German raider, which at once was engaged by the Jervis Bay.

After 15 minutes, the Jervis Bay, heavily outgunned and unarmored, came to a glorious end after giving her convoy a few precious minutes to scatter. With the Jervis Bay disposed of, the raider proceeded to attack the individual ships in the convoy, one by one. First the Rangitiki, then the Cornish City, then others were sunk.

Shortly after dark the enemy attacked the San Demetrio. Direct hits were scored on the tanker, damaging her superstructure severely. As the enemy obviously had got the range, the crew was ordered to take to the boats.

One of the lifeboats was commanded by Arthur Hawkins, second mate, and contained 14 others of the crew, including one American, Oswald Preston. Preston, a licensed American seaman, had represented himself as a Nova Scotian in order to get to the United Kingdom to join the British fighting forces. As darkness closed in, Hawkins' boat dropped astern and the tanker was seen to be struck by a heavy salvo of shells and to burst into flames that leapt high into the air.

As the night wore on the weather steadily got worse. A strong gale and mountainous seas all but swamped the lifeboat, which soon lost touch with two other lifeboats that had left the San Demetrio at the same time. Hawkins kept his boat laid-to by use of a sea anchor and constant pulling on the oars. From time to time shells screeched over the small boat as the raider attacked other ships of the convoy.

During most of the next day the wind and sea continued, and Hawkins and his men strained on their oars to hold the boat headed to the wind and to prevent her from being swamped.

In the late afternoon a tanker was sighted to leeward. Hawkins made his way toward her and found to his amazement that it was his own ship. She was still on fire amidships and aft, and was surrounded by gasoline floating on the surface of the water. Because of weather conditions, it was impossible to board her and, accordingly, Hawkins' boat lay off all night.

At dawn on Nov. 7 the wind and the seas moderated, and the San Demetrio was in view about five miles off. Accordingly, Hawkins hoisted a sail, and at noon he and his companions succeeded in boarding her with considerable difficulty, several of his men being painfully injured in the process.

The tanker was found to be in a critical condition. A fierce fire still was burning at, and she was glowing hot amidships. The bridge and all its surrounding structure had been shot away; compasses, sterring gear, charts, wireless all had gone. The only alternative method of steering, the hand steering gear aft, was partially destroyed, and all but four spokes of the wheel had been burned away.

The main deck structures were all holed and battered, and the deck itself above the after gasoline tanks was pierced in innumerable places by shells and splinters so with each roll of the ship spurts of gasoline shot high in the air and washed over the decks, causing the gravest risk of further extension of the fire and explosion.

The damage to the forehold was extremely bad. A shell which had struck the port bow had exploded in the forehold, tearing the collision bulkhead in several places. It was found impossible to plug the holes, so that water kept getting into the hold. Evenually 16 feet of water was found in the forehold.

The only part of the ship which was undamaged was her engine room, although that was flooded to the floor plates and the main steam line was damaged even beyond temporary repair.

As soon as Hawkins and his men got on board, the chief and third engineers, the engine-room storekeeper and one, Boyle, the greaser, manned the engine room and started to raise steam for the fire hoses, while the remainder of the crew set about extinguishing the blazes with buckets and fire extinguishers. After six hours of steam had been raised to put pressure on the fire hoses, which were then put into action.

Throughout the night of Nov. 7-8 the 14 men fought the old fires and the new ones which were constantly breaking out, and by the forenoon of Nov. 8 had extinguished them all.

Hawkins and his weary crew then set about getting the San Demetrio under way. A temporary steering platform was constructed near the remains of the after steering wheel, and in the early afternoon of Nov. 8 the crew succeeded in putting the main engines in operation.

By this time the weather again had become very bad. A northwest gale, with extremely high seas, developed and continued for six days without let-up.

Only four of Hawkins' crew were competent to man the wheel, and there were no navigational instruments available. Hawkins later stated that he succeeded in keeping an easterly course by the pole star, with a check by the sun and the moon. According to Hawkins, he always "knew that Ireland was there."

Steering was extremely difficult with the damaged gear in the heavy weather, and the ship was continually set down to the southward by the northwest gale. Further, the ship was badly down oy the head, and was in constant danger of large quantities of water being shipped to flood the forward compartments through the shell hole in the port bow.

As many hands as possible were kept at work constantly plugging the holes over the gasoline tanks on the main deck. A double lookout had to be kept constantly, and no lights could be exhibited because the electric gear on deck had been destroyed, and the danger of explosion from gasoline about the ship was too great to permit of oil lamps being lit.

Although the normal engine-room complement was 14 men and only four were available, a speed of nine knots was maintained night and day.

Three days after boarding the ship, Boyle, the engine - room greaser, died of internal hemorrhage and was buried at sea.

On Nov. 13, to the joy of all hands, a landfall was made out and, after cruising along the shore, Hawkins found a bay for shelter which proved to be Blacksod Bay, in Ireland.

No communication could be had with the shore, as all the signalling flags had been burned. The only flag left on the ship was the red ensign, which was still flying. The anchors could have been dropped, but there were no means of heaving them up again, as all the steam pipes to the winches had been smashed.

Early on Nov. 14 the tug Superman was sighted, followed by the British destroyer Arrow. A party of officers from the destroyer came on board the San Demetrio and supplied Hawkins and his crew much-needed medical attention, food and water.

On Nov. 16, at about 9.30 p.m., the San Demetrio, in charge of Hawkins and escorted by the Arrow, arrived at the Clyde with 10,000 tons of its gasoline cargo still intact.

For their skill and courage in salvaging their own ship Hawkins and his men were awarded £15,000 by the Admiralty court sitting in London.

For his part in the adventure Preston received £1,000 and the red ensign, the only remaining flag on the ship.

With respect to Boyle, the humble greaser who died of his injuries, the report of the owners' manager to the court stated:

"Apparenly this man suffered severe internal injuries when he fell into the boat when the vessel was abandoned. During his two days' agony in the boat he did not complain or shirk his turn at pulling or bailing. When the boat's crew returned to the vessel on Thursday Nov. 7, he went right down in the engine room and carried on his work with chief and third engineer until the job was away. By Saturday, Nov. 9, he was too ill to carry on oiling main engines, but would not leave the engine room, so the chief let him sit and take over the firing and maintaining steam in the boiler. By Saturday night he was too weak even to sit on the box in the stoke hold, so was put in one of the few rooms not gutted. On Monday morning he was dead in his bunk. In this unspectacular manner passed a hero."—N.Y. Herald Tribune.

THE BIBLICAL CONEY

Officials of the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens were very happy when a rare hyrax in the zoo gave birth to a litter of four young ones.

The hyrax is of especial interest because it is supposed to be the animal refered to as a "coney" in the Bible.

Two passages in the King James translation of the Bible have led many people to believe that rabbits and hares chew the cud.

These animals, however, are not ruminants and are not cud-chewers.

Leviticus 11:5 says: "And the coney, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you." and Deuteronomy 14:7: "Nevertheless these ye shall not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof; as the camel, and the hare, and the coney; for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof; therefore they are unclean unto you."

These two passages in the Bible present a classical difficulty.

"Coney" is an old English name for the rabbit, and it is well known that there are several species of rabbits or hares in Palestine.

Clearly there is some error either in fact or in translation.

Most modern Bible scholars are agreed that the word "coney" in the Bible refers to the Syrian hyrax a gentle little animal about the size of a rabbit.

This animal is now called variously hyrax, badger, bear-rat and rock-rabbit.

But there was no common English name for the hyrax when the early translations of the Bible were made.

This, however, does not solve the difficulty, because in the King James version of the Bible the hare as well as the coney is mentioned as a cud-chewer, and the hyrax does not chew the cud.

Where the English translations use the words "hare" and "coney," the Greek text uses "cherogrillus," meaning porcupine, and the Hebrew text uses "shaphan," which undoubtedly refers to the hyrax.

It has been suggested that the ancient writers erroneously thought that the hare and the coney chew the cud because they move their jaws as if ruminating, or re-chewing, a habit characteristic also of the hyrax, an animal not at all closely related to the hares and rabbits.

Germans Worried By Lack of Fats

London, July 24 — (CP) — Germany may not be starved into submission in this war but authoritative sources say that even with most of Europe in their grasp the Nazis have felt the effect of war on their diet.

Fats were described as the flaw in their food armor and the Nazis have sought to make up the margin between fat shortage and sufficiency by a huge traffic in ground nuts from French West Africa, sent to them under the Vichy government collaboration policy. Shortage of fodder and labor has complicated the food situation.

Reports reaching London on Germany's food position are varied. According to a memorandum on foreign affairs, published by an organization known as the Imperial Policy Group, there is little shortage of rationed food and supplies of fresh eggs are increasing. Fresh vegetables are scarce, possibly owing to the severe winter.

A neutral who worked in Kiel and Hamburg came to London and pointed to the main difference between British and German food positions. Here one can enter any restaurant and enjoy a meal without surrendering a ration card but this informant told British authorities every time he ate in Germany he had "to give up paper."

Limited quantities of sugar, jam, substitute coffee and eggs are supplied German hotels and restaurants but except for these no rationed foodstuffs may be obtained in shops, catering establishments, factory or office canteens without coupons. The result is that if a person desired meat in one of those places he might be forced to use a few fat coupons to make up for the deficiency in the number of meat tickets tendered.

Alarm Over Harvest

The Berlin correspondent of the pro-Nazi Aftonbladet pointed to the labor shortage's effect on the German harvest. He reported alarm in German circles over the possibility that the cold spring might result in simultaneous ripening of crops all over Germany and there would not be sufficient workers.

To meet the labor shortage, the Nazis drafted prisoners for farm work and ordered all women students to spend part of their summer in the fields. German farmers may have plenty of vegetables but urban dwellers have experienced a shortage — likely due to hoarding by the farmers.

In Vienna, the women's association recently staged a display of dishes made from weeds instead of vegetables. They recommended hopshoots for asparagus, nettles for spinach and dandelions for lettuce in salads.

Germany looks to the French ground nut supplies to maintain her margarine ration. Experts calculated that to keep the ration at existing standards Germany needed 260,000 tons of oil yearly — 200,000 tons above her production. Exploitation of the Balkan and Manchurian soy bean industries failed to make up the difference.

Vichy France obtains about 200,000 tons of ground nuts from West Africa yearly and officially admitted the Nazis took one-quarter of all shipments. Travellers, however, reported the percentage was nearer 60.

Swiss Bank Pays U. S. $2,020,769 For Alleged Fraud

Washington, July 24—(AP)—A 20-year-old case involving an alleged international fraud was written off the books yesterday when the United States accepted a cheque for $2,020,769 from the Swiss Bank Corporation.

The story goes back to the First Great War, when stock of the American Metal Company, later held by a court to be owned by the German Corporations, was seized by the alien property custodian. The corporations were the Metallbank and the Metallgesellschaft, of Frankfort-on-the-Main.

In 1921 the Swiss Bank Corporation and the Societe Suisse prevailed upon Harry M. Daugherty, then attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, then alien property custodian, to pay a claim of $6,967,987 based on proceeds from the stock. Daugherty and Miller were indicted for conspiracy to defraud the United States. The case against Daugherty eventually was dismissed but Miller was convicted.

The Socelte Suisse sued in 1930 for $700,000 interest alleged to be owing on the claim which had been paid. The United States filed a counter suit for both the full amount of the claim and interest.

The case, tried in 1937, brought a judgment of $14,000,000 for the United States after the court held that the two German corporations, not the Swiss Company were the owners of the seized securities.

The Society Suisse had no assets in this country, so Justice Department lawyers filed suit at Basle, Switzerland, in 1939. About that time the Swiss Bank Corporation opened an agency in New York and the Justice Department then filed a suit against the Corporation on the ground that it was jointly liable with the Societe.

Yesterday's settlement is the conclusion of litigation, Justice officials said that the sum paid represented 20 per cent of the original claim with interest at 2½ per cent since 1921.

Family of Three Lived All Alone On Desert Island

Sydney, Australia, July 24 — (CP) — Until three-year-old Joanne Manning left home with her parents for a holiday in Sydney she had never met another child because all but the first few months of her life had been spent on Christmas Island, one of those tiny specks on the map of the Pacific Ocean near the equator, and there were no other children there.

There were some on the ship but Joanne stuck to the adults. She knew where she was with them. Even when she got to Sydney she was not allowed to play with other children. The doctors said she should keep away from them until she acquired the immunity to germs which normally reared children have.

Her English father, T. H. Manning, is the administrator of the island which is the largest atoll in the world and has the biggest lagoon in the Pacific. With his Suva-born wife and Baby Joanne he went there for a year and stayed three.

"We took some garden soil. It grew tomatoes and beets for 12 months and then it would grow nothing," said Mrs. Manning.

Beef, Rice Diet

"In the last three months we were very short of food because ships never call there. Once a millionaire's yacht called and my husband was able to talk through its wireless telephone to his parents in England. We lived on canned foods mainly and towards the last my husband and I existed on beef and rice. Everything else we saved for Joanne. We were at the end of our supplies when we were taken off.

"I was never lonely," said Mrs. Manning. "We used to fish every morning and when we hooked one we had to fight the birds for it. The island teemed with them and they would swoop and grab the fish as we were pulling it in.

"On the equator it was so hot that we simply had to swim a lot. Every afternoon the three of us would go in, my husband on one side and Joanne and I on the other splashing to keep off the sharks. They were there in hundreds and we got so used to them that we took them as a matter of course.

"I have heard it said that sharks have no backbone but these had. One of our hobbies was to make them into walking sticks.

During their last year on the island the only other humans there were two native policemen from Gilbert Islands.

Handicapped with a skin of coarse texture almost any girl will give up hope of qualifying for pulchritude laurels. It is a tough job to combat this trouble. One must be patient and determined, never lose heart.

The cause may be lack of skin care in younger days, or the condition may come about through unwise eating habits, too much protein and fats that make the sebaceous glands over-active, not enough fruits and vegetables. Sometimes a coarse skin, like coarse hair, is an inheritance; then it is hard to overcome.

Treatment

Cut down on oily cosmetics, using just enough cream to keep the skin surface from drying out and getting flaky. Wipe it off in half an hour, never let it remain on over night. Use soap and water once a day, preferably at night. Do not overlook the benefits of friction that makes blood streams hop, skip and jump. When using soap suds tap and slap it on, always with an upward movement. When applying cream, give your face a good brisk spanking.

After the soapy scouring, rinse with tepid water, then with cold. Use cold water again in the morning, dry and apply an astringent. Witch hazel will serve. Wrap an ice cube in gauze and whisk over the face now and then.

Be brave when rich pastries are passed. Refuse even to look at them. They are not for you, if you are among those who would have a skin of finer fabric. Drink plenty of water. Take a small glass of tomato juice once a day, have orange juice or grape juice for breakfast.

The daily bath, using plenty of soap and a heavy brush, is part of the treatment. It stimulates the skin over the sentire body surface, assists it to function as an organ of elimination.

The Stars Say

For Friday, July 25
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

UNDER the predominant planetary impetus all affairs should move under high tempo, with new projects and plans particularly under pressure. Under such stimuli there should be no limit to achievement in a distinctly constructive and practical manner as the forces, energies, and spirit of initiative are unusually aggressive and well directed. The results are under very expansive auguries, promising wide scope and great productive support from capital and influential sources. The danger is from the mind and energies running away with emotional impulse anud there may be trivial alarms calling for restraints.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a very progressive and constructive year, with all things stimulated to high pitch of accomplishment. New matters and all major projects should flourish under aggressive and purposeful energies and enterprise, of great scope and power. In this support and capital may be counted upon from those in financial standing or other influential support. However, the mentality is prone to over stimulation zeal, and should be restrained or coolly directed. Personal anxiety may also call for calmness and moderation.

A child born on this day should have great enterprise and constructive ability attracting the solid support of capital and influence. Some measure of restraint might be advantageously put upon a high tensional mentality.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Exploit Personality When You Visit Army Camp

Good manners, even old-fashioned good manners, will see all of us through a good many places. But nowhere is it as well to pack good manners along than when visiting a boy friend at an army camp.

Don't be too noisy. Don't go poking in places you're not supposed to inspect. Granted that you're asquainted with a young officer, don't hail a man of inferior rank and introduce him to an officer. It will be an uncomfortable few minutes for them both. Above all things, do not bring the boy friend a gift unless you know it comes within the regulations.

A letter from a trainee in camp tells of a girl who visited him at the post, bringing all her 57 varieties of doing exactly as she pleases. This didn't go down well at all. She arrived bearing a gift which she insisted on displaying to some of the bunch. Of all things, the gift was a pair of green silk pajamas, and did the poor rookie get a razzing!

Also, this young lady went to the camp all by herself, though she wasn't engaged to the boy. In fact, there was another young lady, nearer and dearer, who came to the camp with her mother. The doughboy was scared half out of his skin, thinking that Girl No. 1 may hear about Girl No. 2 and the green silk pajamas.

If you're engaged to a soldier, or have a brother, cousin, or boy friend in camp, remember that training soldiers is a serious business, not to be disrupted by girls who don't understand army discipline. It's the wrong road to popularity to try to make a soldier depart from the smallest regulation. Leave the camp at least five minutes before the time you're supposed to be off the reservation. Give the lad a chance to settle down after you've removed your glamorous presence.

If he insists on escorting you to the entrance of the camp don't linger over the farewells if he has only a few minutes. His top sergeant is not open to any such arguments as "Parting is such sweet sorrow, that I shall say goodnight 'til it be morrow."

You may think it would be nice to take along your candid camera and snap pictures. But as picture-taking is almost universally prohibited around camps, it would be embarrassing for you to have your camera confiscated and your roll of film destroyed.

And so, my dear girls, while you may have been glorying in your independence and having cast aside the Victorian rules of your mother's day, it's just as well to shake these old-fashioned taboos out of your mental moth-balls and take them along when you visit an army camp.

TRAIN TRAVELERS:
A Study in Manners

"Much is discovered of How and Why
In the study of passengers passing by"

Passengers on trains, buses or other public conveyances are of two kinds: those who obviously take the point of view that they will not show any courtesy or consideration to people who are strangers to them; and those who, when they travel, inevitable take their gracious manners along with them.

One person is the type who blitzkriegs his way into a train or bus and into a seat. He or she is supremely oblivious to the comfort of everyone else. They brush by people with never a by-your-leave. They give the ugly impression that they never heard of the words "Please" or "Thank you" or "I beg your pardon.' This selfish kind of person is unattractive and warped.

Or are you the gracious and attractive kind of person who wants to make life fair and comfortable for other people? Are social amenities important to you? Is it your natural and spontaneous and pleasant habit to say "Please" and "Thank you" and "Do you mind?" and "I beg your pardon"?

We all have to decide whether we will live our lives with a gracious spirit, decently considerate of others, or with a grumpy point of view, discourteous and unkind to other people. When you travel, you inevitably show your design for living!

Divorced Mother Plans Daughter's Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Will you please advice me regarding proper procedure in my plans for the marriage of my daughter?

I am divorced from her father, but neither of us has remarried. Our divorce is a very amicable one, and all questions concerning our three children are settled by my husband and me with complete and pleasant understanding.

I will give my daughter her wedding at a church in Chicago and a small reception afterwards for the wedding party and a few friends. The father will give the bride in marriage, and since he lives out of town, he will just be here for the wedding.

How should the invitations and announcements read? Should they read:

Mrs. Mary Robinson
requests . . . . etc.
Bride's Mother.

Your plans for the wedding are in good taste.

If the wedding is to be formal, as I judge from what you tell me, you may properly, if you wish, give the invitations verbally, and write notes to those who live too far away for a verbal invitation.

If, however, the wedding is to be on the side of formality, the invitations might be engraved ones.

However, if you send formal invitations and, also, if you send announcements to those who are not invited to either the ceremony or the reception, I would like you to use the proper form for your name, even if you have not been accustomed to use the correct form. Instead of using your first name, you should prefix your maiden surname to your married surname, and use the form:

Mrs. Smith Robinson requests the honor of your presence
at the marriage of her daughter to etc.

The next best form is to use the initial of your first name. Mrs. M. Smith Robinson, but the first form is the really correct one.

Hint to the Hostess

The mood of the hostess provides the tone of a party. The successful hostess makes as complete and careful preparations before the party as she possibly can. Then she allows herself time to relax, to dress her prettiest and to make a resolution to stop fussing. A bothered hostess makes her guests—and the host!—uncomfortable.

Alluring Dances Easy When You Have Diagrams

You don't want to be among the "sittees" when it's a rumba! For you're as alluring as the dance itself as you sway to its exotic rhythm, to seed-filled "maracas" and clacking "claves."

Diagrams can show you how to rumba well enough to slay the stag line. Follow our diagram for the Rumba Open Step.

1—Take a quick, short step forward on your left foot, keeping it flat on the floor. Allow your hips to sway right. AND—Take a quick, short step forward on your right foot. Hips sway left. 2—Take a short, slower step forward on left. Hips sway right.

You see, the trick of the rumba is that at each step the hips sway slightly in the direction of the supporting foot.

Let your steps be short and smooth, keep the upper body erect and still and let your heels take some of your weight. You'll be thrilling to watch!

Learn all the popular rumba steps from easy diagrams and instructions in our 32-page booklet. Also diagrams and describes technique of fox-trot, Westchester, waltz, tango, Conga, Peabody, Samba and shag.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO DO THE NEWEST DANCE STEPS AND VARIATIONS to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont., Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Fashion Flashes

THIS YEAR the sweater seems more popular than ever, especially with the campus crowd. Ready for college is a handsome pullover sweater in black yarn and white sleeves with a band of green cable stitch over the armhole and around the high, round neck.

CAREFREE VACATIONS call for plenty of simple play clothes. Nice for general wear is a play dress of jersey, the shirt blouse half bright red, half bright blue, the wraparound skirt in white jersey.

IT LOOKS LIKE the tiered silhouette for autumn, judging from advance showings. A smart new frock is of black silk crepe with triple-tiered skirt, the center tier of black satin to match the turnback cuffs of the sleeves.

COOL COMFORT comes easy with the aid of a shower, some perfume and a comfy housecoat. Silk sheer is used for a grand coat in a twin-print design, green dots on white, and white dots on green. The dark green ground is used for the surplice front and wide front panel on the full skirt, as well as for the sleeves. Dark green print for side panels.

JUST RIGHT under the stars is a dinner dress of soft gray silk chiffon, the skirt finely knife-pleated. The jacket-top, buttoned with pink coral buttons rimmed with brilliants, is of matching gray crepe.

AS A CHANGE from the popular spectator sports pump of white trimmed with blue or brown, try white buck with heel and back quarter of red kidskin.

DOCTORS ANALIZE REASONS FOR FRIGHT PARALYSIS

People frequently say that they have been too scared to think, too scared to run, or too scared to fight. For that reason a specialist in diseases of the nervous system has recently described the paralyzing effect of fright. His observations were made in the hospital for mental disease at Huntington, W. Va.

The case which caused the doctor to become interested in this type of response was in itself an interesting one. A man, 31 years old, had been employed as a section laborer on a railroad. He was traveling east on a gasoline motor car on the track which is devoted to west-bound traffic. Owing to a misunderstanding of the movements of the trains, the foreman who was operating the car did not know that a west-bound train was coming until he saw smoke ahead.

When the foreman saw that a train was coming, he stopped the motor car, reversed it and sent a man ahead to stop the train. This train was coming at a rate of about forty miles an hour When he reversed the gasoline motor car, the foreman told the men to jump. None of the men jumped immediately but when the train was about 150 feet from the car, one man jumped and another man followed. The foreman continued to run the motor car in low gear until the train was 50 feet away, at which time he shut off the motor, applied the brakes and jumped from the car.

However, the man who was frightened was seated on the opposite side of the car, facing an embankment. Twice he tried to move but each time he settled back. As the locomotive approached the car, he found himself still unable to jump. He merely covered his eyes. Then when the locomotive hit the car, he was thrown over the side of the embankment.

The doctors have tried to analyze the reasons for the paralysis which made it impossible for this man to move or to jump. The human body is constituted to react in certain ways to fright. A cat, for instance, may be dozing comfortably when it suddenly becomes aware of the presence of a dog. Its bristles become erect, its pupils become dilated, its muscles become tense and the animal assumes an attitude entirely different from that of a moment before. From studies of the blood in the glands, we know that the adrenal gland, under these circumstances, begins to pour glandular material into the blood stream which increases the heart beat and raises the blood pressure. The liver begins to give out stored sugar for the use of the muscles.

In a man the same events take place ordinarily when he is frightened. However, the mentally deficient person or the one who is ill cannot respond as well as the one who is in health. Moreover, sudden fright may produce mental confusion. Fear tends to bring about a temporary suspension of rational conduct and to render people helpless. The relaxation of the muscles which takes place in those who are very frightened is an example of the paralysis. A man who is not frightened clenches his teeth. A frightened man drops the lower jaw. During a period of fright even the memory will suffer. A timid person may actually forget his own name in a time of fright. This has happened to men who have gone to a bank to withdraw money or to a city clerk to get a marriage license.

In lower animals the response to fright is instinctive. In man the instincts usually act with the intelligence. However, man also has a mind which makes him decide whether to fight or to run. A quick-thinking person can make up his mind promptly. However, a slow-thinker becomes confused. It takes him longer to make up his mind so that the danger may be on him before he can respond.

The man on the gasoline motor car was confronted with an embankment. The men who jumped had the clear side of the car before them. With them, to jump was instinctive. The man on the opposite side had to make one additional move and was too frightened to think clearly. As Dr. E. F. Reaser says, "His mental processes were stalled by a poorly responding physical mechanism and a degree of fright which temporarily overcame his intellectual activity."

He was mentally confused and the time was too short for him to be able to make an intelligent decision.

Re-Surfacing Part Of Stirling-Marmora Highway

Stirling — Stirling streets have been heavy with trucking traffic during the past few days as a fleet of trucks are transporting crushed stone from the gravel pit at Fuller to the stretch of highway no. 14, which is being re-surfaced by the Law Construction Co. of Toronto. When completed the work should provide motorists with an excellent road from Stirling to Marmora and will no doubt cause an increase in tourist traffic as this stretch links highways 14 and 2 in less than a twenty-five mile drive.

Mrs. William Ashe of Madoc has been spending a few days this week visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ross Holland and Mr. Holland, Oak Hills.

Had Bad Stomach; Backache Dizzy Spells And Headaches

Suffered Five Years — Was Surprised at Quick Relief Syntona Gave Him — "It is Years Since I Felt So Well At This Season," He Says.

"I don't know when I felt so well at this season before, and I attribute it to the fact that I have just taken a treatment of Syntona," said Mr. Herbert Faulkner, 511½ Dundas Street, London, Ontario, in a recent statement:

"For fully five years, I suffered with stomach troubles, headaches, dizzy spells and backache. Food just seemed to sour in my stomach and scalding, sour liquids would rise right up into my throat. In recent months the pain and lameness in my back was so bad I could hardly straighten up and I thought I would have to stop working altogether. I tried all kinds of kidney medicines, but nothing helped me until I began taking Syntona.

"Before I had finished the first bottle of Syntona, my stomach felt better and the pains in my back were not so bad. Now, after taking a few more bottles, the pains have left me entirely. I am free of headaches and dizzy spells, my food digests well and my whole system feels more healthy and energetic."

Syntona is a splendid medicine for anyone to take at this season.

MR. HERBERT FAULKNER

Each spoonful is loaded with the finest medicinal herbs to improve the action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and to rid the system of excess acids and irritating waste matter. Syntona is pleasant to take and will not harm even the most delicate constitution.

Canadian Picked To Win Singles Sculling Title

St. Catharines, Ont., July 24.—(CP)—The United States hold on the Association and Champion Singles Sculling event is in danger of being broken at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta starting today over the Old Welland Canal course.

Champion Joe Burk of Philadelphia has retired and the major single races this year will bring together Theo Dubois of Winnipeg, United States Amateur Singles Champion, and Joe Angyal of Brooklyn who placed second to the Westerner in the event at Minneapolis last Saturday. Dubois crossed the finishing line for the American championship 1 1-4 lengths in front of Angyal.

This year's entry list is smaller than pre-war years but indications are that the 59th annual regatta will retain the color and competition that has marked it as the Dominion's premier rowing classic.

Buffalo Westsides, 1940 Sweepstake victors and holders of the Hanlan trophy for senior eights and aggregate points, are again entered while Canadian standard-bearers include Hamilton Leanders, Toronto Argonauts, Ottawa Capitals, Brockville Riversides and St. Catharines.

TRIES FOR NEW MARK

Ab Jenkins

Although he is the holder of virtually all world endurance speed records on the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah, Ab Jenkins, ABOVE, Mayor of Salt Lake City, will take to the raceway again July 28 when he attempts to cover 4,000 miles in 24 hours. Jenkins points out that this is an average speed of 167 miles per hour. His present world mark is 161.3 miles per hour, made on a sensational 24-hour run in July last year.

ART GENEREAUX'S CIRCUIT BLOW HELPS POINTERS

"Cementmen" Win Second Game of Semi-Final Series With Esquire Kids

SCORE IS 7-4

Art Genereaux's ninth inning circuit blow, with two out, started the Point Anne "Cementmen" on a scoring splurge, that ultimately gave them three runs and a 7 to 4 win over the Esquire Juniors in the City League softball semi-finals at Coleman Flats last night. The win gave "Bubby" Gaulin's Cementmen a two-game advantage in a best-in-three series with the Esquires with the next game slated for Ox Point Friday.

The game developed into a pitchers' battle between Ken Campbell, hurling for the Esquires, and "Ding" Luffman, on the Cementmen's mound, with Luffman limiting the local kids to six hits, only one of which was of the extra base nature. Campbell held the Point Anne squad to six singles and four runs for eight innings, but was removed for a pinch hitter in the bottom half of the eighth. With two out in the ninth Genereaux connected for a homer. An infield mix-up put relief pitcher Power in a jam and before the dust had settled the Cementmen scored three and cinched the piece, as Luffman was on top in the last inning. As a matter of fact the Esquires counted but two hits and three runs off Luffman after the third inning.

Whitehead, Sero and Hutchings paced the winners at bat aside from Genereaux's round-tripper, while Whiting and Guay wielded potent bats for the kids. The box score:

Mulloy Looks Dangerous After Beating Kovacs

Sea Bright, N.J., July 24—(AP)—The path to a fourth singles championship in the Sea Bright tennis tournament has been smoothed considerably for Bobby Riggs—thanks to a player who never has beaten Riggs and who thinks Bobby still is the top man in the business.

The helpmate is Gardinar Mulloy, who practises law, teaches Economics at the University of Florida and still finds time to play first-class tennis. He scored the biggest upset thus far in the 54th annual tournament yesterday by eliminating lanky Frank Kovacs, the reformed "clown prince" of tennis.

Kovacs was Riggs' opponent in last year's final, and the former national champion had to play exceptional tennis to win the five-set battle.

Mulloy's performance against Kovacs was brilliant. Kovacs took the first set 6-3, but Mulloy kept hammering away and won the next two, 7-5, 6-4, with the best tennis the tournament has seen up to this stage.

Mulloy had a double explanation for his upset victory.

"I played a good game," he said, "and Kovacs helped beat himself. He's a great front-runner and doesn't like it when things start going against him. In the second and third sets of our match, he was pressing. As a result his shots were going haywire."

Mulloy now meets Ladislav Hecht, the former Czecho-Slovakian Davis Cup star, who gained the quarter-finals at the expense of the veteran Bitsy Grant. At the same time, Riggs will face young Jack Kramer.

Brooklyn Dodgers Score Five Runs in Late Frames to Beat Reds and Tie Cards for Lead

Elmer Riddle, Winner of His Last Eleven Games, Was the Victim

YANKS WIN AGAIN

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Brooklyn Dodgers have solved the Riddle, heretofore known as Elmer, the unsolved, and given the Cincinnati Reds their biggest shock since the New York Yankees swept the 1939 world series in four straight.

The young righthander had won 11 games without a defeat this season and become a symbol of hope for the beleaguered National League champions. He had been in tight spots, but always came out on top.

Last night, while a crowd of 30,000 at Crosley Field whooped in glee, Riddle gained a 4-0 lead over the groggy Dodgers in the first five frames and looked unbeatable. Then with two resounding salvos Brooklyn came from behind to crush him 5-4 and continue the first-place deadlock in the senior circuit.

This was some sort of ironic justice catching up with the Reds for scoring five runs in the ninth to beat the Dodgers 5-4 the day before.

McCormick Hit

Frank McCormick, last year's most valuable player in the National League, was knocked out by one of Kirby Higbe's fast balls, which struck him on the head, but an examination at a hospital showed he had received only a mild concussion and might be able to appear in the line-up tomorrow and preserve his "iron man" string of 549 consecutive games.

The victory checked a Brooklyn skid just in time, for the St. Louis Cardinals nosed out the New York Giants 5-4 in a 12-inning thriller earlier in the day in an effort to gain exclusive possession of first place.

Vince DiMaggio doubled with the bases loaded in the fourth inning of a night game to boost the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-2 decision over the Phillies.

Yankees Conquer Indians

In the other National League game, Dick Errickson's seven-hit hurling brought the Boston Braves a 6-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The New York Yankees conquered the Cleveland Indians again 3-2 to draw nine games out in front of the American League pennant race, so called.

The Chicago White Sox went on a rampage and whipped the Boston Red Sox 10-4.

A two-run homer by Frank Hayes helped the Philadelphia Athletics nudge the St. Louis Browns 5-4 and move within one percentage point of the fifth place Detroit Tigers, who were humbled for the 10th time in 14 meetings by the Washington Senators.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Dick Errickson, Braves—Beat Cubs with seven hit pitching.

Frank Crespi and Estel Crabtree, Cardinals—Their singles in 12th inning produced winning run against Giants.

Frank Hayes, Athletics—Two-run homer in sixth furnished winning margin against Browns.

Dixie Walker, Dodgers—Had perfect night at bat with three hits against Reds.

George Archie, Senators—Made three hits to lead assault on Tigers.

ROYALS SECOND BY DEFEATING ORIOLES TWICE

Jack Graham, Young Outfielder, Bats in Eight of the Runs in Two Contests

BEARS IDLE

(By The Associated Press

A lot has been said about how much Montreal Royals resemble a major league club, stocked as they are with former big leaguers sent down by the parent Brooklyn Dodgers. It comes as a surprise, therefore, to note that the real driving force behind the Royals' sudden upward surge is a youngster whose only big time experience came from sitting around watching how it's done.

Jack Graham, 24-year-old outfielder, batting at better than a .300 clip all season, really got hot the past week. In that stretch Graham connected with 15 hits in 36 times at bat for an average of .417, slamming out five home runs and batting in 14 runs.

He knocked in eight of these last night as the Royals took both ends of a doubleheader from Baltimore Orioles, 5-4 and 10-2, to move past Buffalo Bisons who lost to Jersey City 6-4.

Graham rapped out seven hits, during last night's party, including his 23rd and 24th home runs of the year, to pace the Royals' 29-hit attack on six hurlers.

The double victory left the "Little Dodgers" five games behind the league leading Newark Bears, who were idle.

The Jersey City Giants got to Earl Cook, Buffalo starter, for all their runs in the first seven innings, Mickey Witek leading the way with three safeties. Hal Feldham gave up eight hits in racking up his tenth triumph.

Rochester Red Wings scored six runs in the tenth inning to beat the Syracuse Chiefs 7-1.

WINS U.S. SINGLES

Wearing the coolrs of the Winnipeg Rowing Club, Theo Dubois won the senior singles title of the United States at Minneapolis by defeating Joe Angyall of Brooklyn. Dubois succeeds Joe Burke, American and Canadian champion of last year, to the title. Burke has since turned professional.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

'Tis rumoured "Twigg" Woodley, former C.O.B.L. umpire, has taken up deep sea diving, sometimes referred to as nautical salvaging. It seems "H.G.W." and some of his angling friends were endeavouring to entice some of those Moira River finny beauties to take their lures, when "Twigg" became slightly over-zealous during one of his casts and not only his plug, but the rod, steel and line flew gracefully out of Mister Woodley's grasp and sank in 12 feet of Moira River water. Oftimes Twigg has threatened to throw his fishing tackle into the water and forsake his angling diversion forever, but little did he ever think it would become a reality and were the motorists surprised and even embarrassed when they saw a bather diving into the water, but Twigg's deep sea diving efforts were finally rewarded as he brought his tackle to the surface and as Johnny Hibbard says: "We wouldn't be lucky enough to lose that angling Jonah."

While on the subject of fishing it might be well to note about this time of the year small mouth black bass, and for that matter pickerel too, become very sluggish and it presents somewhat of a problem for fishermen to land them. They refuse to take the bait. However, a good "recipe" is to use live minnows. The live bait, according to many anglers who have used it, is a sure-fire way to attract them, and most of the bass and pickerel caught at this time of the season have been taken with minnows.

Do you remember when Babe Ruth showed he could still hit home runs three years ago today when he drove out a 430-foot clout to win $50 in a long-distance slugging contest at St. Louis? Joe Medwick, a St. Louis Cardinal fielder, won the $25 second prize with a 425-foot drive.

It is rumoured that professional wrestling will get under way rather early this season, Civic Holiday night being suggested as the inaugural here, which reminds us that George Richards, the Jewish grappler who was always a ring favourite in Belleville, has joined the R.C.A.F. as a physical instructor.

Now that Mike Rodden has taken up residence in our fair community, we can relate one of his pet stories regarding old-time hockey incidents in Belleville. Older puck fans will recall the time the late Lou Marsh refereed here with Collingwood nearly two decades ago and ran afoul of the fans. That was the night of the "rink to clink" episode published by Lou.

At at any rate Mike Rodden was assigned to referee the next O.H.A. fixture in Belleville, Michael J. then being sports editor of the old Globe. Mr. Rodden did not look any too much unlike his ice-arbiting friend, Lou Marsh, in those days and the players and fans alike mistook Mike for Lou and the newly-appointed Reliance coach came in for a terrific verbal Bronx bombing before he could convince all concerned he was not the official who had previously come under their wrath. Mike gets a great laugh out of that incident and always tells it when he comes to Belleville.

Those New York Yankees are wowing the customers so regularly with their dynamiting that their defensive brilliance is being overlooked . . . they went into Tuesday's game with no less than 112 double plays to their credit . . . since the American League record, set by Cleveland in 1928, is only 187, it doesn't take a genius to deduce that the amazing New Yorkers are quite apt to put a new (and for them, quite different) mark on the books . . . incidentally, when they decided to stick that Flash label on Joe Gordon, they didn't go wrong . . . he hasn't the smoothness of a Gehringer, but he's all there—and "there" means everyhere . . . his ground-gobbling in Detroit over the week-end was nothing short of incredible . . . no slouches, either, for that matter are Phil Rizzuto and Johnny Sturm . . . Rizzuto, the Yanks' newest "Dago" is up to stay.

As soon as Lloyd Hicks learned the Dominion Government had not placed gasoline restrictions on previously scheduled American Power Boat Association meets he launched his new 222 cubic inch Miss Rugene, in which he hopes to establish a world record for the 225 power boat class. Mr. Hicks, who is Vice-Chairman of the A.P.B.A. for Region No. 13, launched his new craft yesterday and now has exactly two days in which to tune the Miss Rugene for the A.P.B.A. races at Valleyfield, Que. on Saturday. Incidentally the net receipts from all power boat meets in Canada this year will be given to the Canadian Red Cross.

Bubby Gaulin's Cementmen made it two straight over Red Townsend's Esquire kids by taking them into camp by a 7 to 4 score at the Flats last night. The game developed into a pitchers' battle between Ken Campbell and "Ding" Luffman—with the latter standing strong in the clutches. Campbell was removed for an eighth inning pinch-hitter, when the Juniors knotted the score. Mike Power went to the Esquire mound and with two out tossed up a home run ball to Art Genereaux, the other two runs being the direct result of some loose infield work on the part of the kids. It was one of those games where the breaks meant everything and to date the Esquire-Cementmen series has been productive of much better ball than has the Corby-Reliance series that resumes Friday.

Remember last year some gink came out with a bright idea to eliminate the umpire-in-chief and substitute a mechanical "magic eye", operated by a light ray. Yesterday George Sisler, semi-pro baseball Commissioner, banned the "magic eye" umps from the National Semi-Professional championships at Wichita, Kan. "I feel it is a detriment to baseball. Umpires aren't perfect, but neither are players, so we'll leave well enough alone," explained Sisler, the same George Sisler, whose batting record Joe DiMaggio shattered this summer.

Sport Spice — A team of golfers from the Bay of Quinte Country Club headed by Buster Alyer won 18 to 14 over a team of Toronto golfers here yesterday.... The proceeds were given to the British War Victims' Fund.... Bill Little and Charlie Spalding are planning a mammoth golf program for the fund on Aug. 24th.....They're calling the Yankees to win in a walk and no doubt establish a new all-time record for games won in one season....Brooklyn held fast to the Cardinals by beating the Reds yesterday, while the Cards took 12 innings to beat Carl Hubbell and the Giants....Atley Donald has won three games for the Yankees this year over the Indians, two of them being over Bob Feller....

ATTEMPT SOON TO RELEASE 'RAPIDS PRINCE'

Problem to Move Against Powerful Sweep of Current is Mighty One

SALVORS' PROBLEM

Montreal, July 24—(CP)—Amid reports that an attempt to move her was imminent, the excursion steamer Rapids Prince today remained the prisoner of the rapids she had defied successfully for several years.

The ship, specially constructed to negotiate the tricky stretches of the St. Lawrence, ran aground on a flat rock in Lachine Rapids 18 days ago while on a cruise from Prescott, Ont., to Montreal. Her 218 passengers were taken off in motorboats after spending a night aboard the stranded vessel.

Since then, the trim white craft has remained imprisoned amid the turbulent white water while marine experts have worked on plans to move her. Damage to the Prince when she slid up on the rock, 50 yards off her course, is considered negligible but the problem of moving her against the powerful sweep of the current has become a mighty one.

In shipping circles the possibility was seen that the ship's Underwriters might decide against attempting to release her on their own responsibility, making a partial payment of insurance claims and giving the company the right to make whatever arrangements it could for a salvage attempt.

Problem of Stable Base

The problem facing salvors appears to be one of creating a stable base from which to drop a cable down and tow the ship off the rock and up-river far enough to let her swing into the channel and complete the run down the rapids.

The Prince is resting near the head of a small island. Above her is a narrow channel through a rock ledge, and above that another channel equally narrow. To free the ship, she must be towed up through both channels against a cross-current before she can swing into the main channel.

No boat capable of slipping down the rapids to within cable-length of the Prince would be able to fight her way back up against the turbulent waters with the deadweight of the Prince behind her. Somewhere up above her, a powerful winch must be anchored in such a way as to remain unmoved when the up-river tow begins.

Farm Mothers, Youngsters Work In U. S. Fields

Best Farm Cash Income Prospects in 12 Years Are in Sight

Chicago, July 24—(AP)—Farm mothers and youngsters are working the fields in increasing numbers in many parts of the United States to help the head of the house realize on the best farm cash income prospects in 12 years. Many skilled farmhands have gone off to work for fancy wages in defence factories or train for the armed forces.

Dairymen in the milk sheds of Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Detroit are having a particularly tough time of it, he said, because they can't afford to meet the competition for labor offered by defence industry wages of $5 to $10 a day.

Compared with such scales, the average monthly farm wage in Illinois, for example, is $42 with board, $52 without and day rates are $2.50 with board, $2.75 to $3 without, for a long farm day of 10 hours or more against the factory's 8 hours or less.

The commander of Fort Sheridan, Ill., granted a 30-day furlough this week to Private John V. Prochaska, a selectee from Azalia, Mich., after his neighbors at home pleaded he owned and operated the only threshing machine in the community.

Canadian Who Flew Blazing Bomber Safely Back to England, Awarded D. F. C.

London, July 24.—(CP Cable)—A Canadian bomber pilot who flew a blazing damaged Wellington safely back to England after a raid on Muenster, Germany, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it was learned today.

The bomber, piloted by Sqdn. Ldr. D. L. Widdowson of Winnipeg, escaped unscathed from the Muenster raid but on the return flight was attacked from close range by a Messerschmitt-110 fighter.

The front gunner was wounded in the foot. The bomber's starboard engine was badly damaged. The hydraulic system was ruined. The radio was put out of action. The undercarriage flopped down. The bomb doors swung open. The pilot's cockpit was filled with smoke.

Flames shot out from the gasoline feed pipe in the wing, which was set on fire. A New Zealand assistant pilot doused the flames by climbing out on the wing and stuffing the cockpit cover into the hole from which they were shooting out.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In moving against French Indo-China, Japan is taking over the last territory in the Far East obtainable without a fight. The Vichy government not only is refusing to defend the colony but is aiding the Japanese aggression by advancing the absurd contention that Japanese protection is necessary to save the colony from a British invasion.

Japan's prime aim in Indo-China is to obtain good naval facilities within 650 miles of Singapore and within 1,000 miles of the heart of the Netherlands East Indies. Establishment of naval bases in southern Indo-China is a necessary preliminary to any Japanese challenge to British and Netherlands power in the South Pacific.

Sentiment in Britain and U.S.

Sentiment is strong in the United States as well as in Britain for counter measures. Armed intervention is out of the question, of course, at the present stage of events. That will have to await a Japanese attack on the Indies, or Singapore, or Burma by striking across Siam.

Economic retaliation is expected. Japan at present is obtaining 60 per cent of her gasoline requirements from the United States. There is concern in Washington, however, lest drastic action, such as a complete embargo on gasoline export, accelerate, rather than retard, Japanese designs on the Netherlands Indies, where substitute sources of petroleum are to be found.

Japan's Dismissal Performance

It is being asked whether Japan, after her dismal performance in China, would risk war with the United States and Great Britain in the Pacific. Unable to beat China, would she take on two of the world's greatest powers? Well, Germany, unable to beat Great Britain, has just taken on another great power and let herself in for a war on two fronts. That doesn't add up either.

Germany seems to have had a hand in encouraging Japan to get on the move again. The charges of a British plot made by the Vichy government bear a strong resemblance to the countless plots attributed to the "wicked British" by Von Ribbentrop since the war began.

Far Eastern 'Diversion'

It is certainly to Germany's interest to have a Far Eastern diversion. The Japanese navy based within striking distance of Singapore will necessitate a strengthening of the British fleet there, possibly drawing off some naval strength from the Mediterranean or elsewhere.

Berlin, however, probably would prefer a Japanese attack on Siberia, to give Moscow another front to worry about and prevent movement westward of any of the large forces the Red army has in the Far East. But before marching in this direction, Tokyo will want more tangible proof of German victories in western Russia than is contained in the sweeping generalities of the High Command communiques.

New League In Football To Operate

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—A move developed at a meeting of the interprovincial Rugby Football Union today to suspend operations for the duration of the war and set up a new league in the meantime with Toronto Balmy Beach as a member.

The meeting was called to discuss the fate of the I.R.F.U.—the big four of eastern football—following the announcement of Hamilton Tigers last week that they would not operate owing to the difficulty of obtaining players because of the war.

Tommy Alison, president of Toronto Argonauts, left the private meeting for a short while and told reporters that the big four would not operate for the duration but a new league would be formed with Balmy Beach, Argos, Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal.

The I.R.F.U. would be reformed after the war and Hamilton would resume its franchise, Alison said.

This decision was not final and official but it was believed it would be put into effect before the meeting closed. The big four executives invited Ab Box and Floyd Muirhead, president and sponsor of Beaches, respectively, to the meeting after the proposal was made.

Communists to Stay In Internment Camp

Melbourne, Australia, July 23—(CP)—Prime Minister Menzies announced today that Horace Ratcliffe and Max Thomas, Australian Communists, would not be released from internment.

"These men before their arrest deliberately attempted to hinder Australia's war effort," Menzies said.

"Now they say that Russia's entry to the war has changed their opinions, if not their hearts.

"The government cannot risk the country's war activities by accepting the assurance of citizens who profess to change their minds with such facility."

More Bachelors Than Married Men Confined in Prisons

Toronto, July 24—(CP) — More than twice as many bachelors are in Ontario prisons than married men, the recent annual report of Ontario prisons and reformatories revealed. However, married women were committed more often to prison than single girls.

The report shows that 10,387 married men, as compared to 20,830 single men, went to prison last year. A total of 972 married women were imprisoned, compared with 866 single women.

A test conducted by the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph showed that only 18 of more than 1,000 inmates would rank with a college or university student. The test also revealed that 857 inmates had the educational status of a grade five pupil or lower.

'V' for Victory Sign Sweeping Camp Borden Centre

Camp Borden, Ont., July 24—(CP)—The 'V' for Victory sign has swept the Canadian Armored Corps training centre here. The sign is posted nearly everywhere, on doors, windows, buildings, trucks and on mess halls.

All truck, car and other vehicle drivers make the sign every time they put out a hand to indicate a stop or a turn.

Boys on the camps highways, who are forbidden to hitch-hike, have borrowed the sign to indicate that they want a lift. They hold up two fingers, widely spread in the 'V' for Victory sign.

SIFTON CONTINUES TOUR

London, July 24.—(CP Cable)—Victor Sifton, Master-General of the Ordnance, Canadian Department of National Defence, today continued his tour of Canadian army formations accompanied by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps.

At the Canadian Corps headquarters, Mr. Sifton inspected Canadian-made Bren gun carriers.

Lieutenants R. C. Coleman, Montreal; A. B. Smith, Kingston, Ont., and L. F. Van Gorder, Hamilton, Ont. were in charge of the carriers during the inspection.

TWO KILLED IN BLAST

South Acton, Mass., July 24 (AP)—Two men were killed today in an explosion at the American Cyanamid and Chemical Company Powder Mills.

Buildings some distance away from the closely-guarded plant were shaken by the blast.

The mishap was the latest in a series of explosions at the plant since the first of the year, in one of which, in February, two men were killed.

The firm is engaged in the production of explosives under National Defence contracts.

EDEN DECLARES BRITISH POLICY DEPENDS ON SPAIN

Says Franco's Speech Makes It Appear Spain Does Not Desire Further Economic Aid

GOOD WILL NECESSARY

London, July 24.—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that Gen. Franco's speech of July 17 "makes it appear that he does not desire further economic assistance from this country" and accordingly British "future policy will depend on the actions and attitude of the Spanish government".

In that speech the Spanish ruler reaffirmed his loyalty to the Axis, said Britain and her Allies already had lost the war and warned the United States aganst intervention.

In a written reply to a member's query, Mr. Eden traced British efforts since the Spanish Civil War "to promote the economic recovery of Spain and to assist the Spanish people in their work of reconstruction".

Complete Misunderstanding By Franco

Franco's speech, he said, "displayed complete misunderstanding not only of the general war situation but also of British economic policy toward Spain".

The Foreign Secretary referred to the British-Spanish trade and payments agreement of February 18, 1940, providing for a British advance of £2,000,000 (about $8,900,000) for liquidation of Spain's pre-civil war arrears and another £2,000,000 loan for purchase of foodstuffs and reconstruction materials.

"If economic arrangements are to succeed there must be good will on both sides and General Franco's speech shows little evidence of such good will", Mr. Eden said.

Japanese Warships Nearing Indo-China

By FRANK MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 24—(AP)—Japanese warships have arrived off two strategic points of French Indo-China—Camranh Bay and Cap St. Jacques—and 12 Japanese transports are en route to Saigon, well informed sources reported today following Vichy's acceptance of Tokyo's military demands on the French colony.

Except for the formality of details and signatures, Japan has won naval and aerial positions in southern Indo-China two days by battleship and three hours by bomber from Britain's key fortress in the Far East, Singapore, at the tip of the Malay peninsula.

The 12 transports were said to be en route from Hainan, Japanese-occupied China island off the Indo-China coast which had been used for months as a troop concentration base.

Camrahn Bay already is a naval base on Indo-China's southeast coast, 800 miles from Singapore, and Cap St. Jacques dominates estuary of the Saigon River which ships must use to reach Saigon. This city has a modern airfield, less than 700 miles from Singapore.

Vichy's acceptance of Japanese demands on this colony caused a great impact on this city. While Vichy's spokesmen termed the action "an agreement for protection of Indo-China", the general reaction here was that it amounted to complete taking over of the colony. Business and commerce generally was halted.

The increased influence of the Japanese was typified today when Japanese photographers with cameras mounted on automobiles drove throughout Saigon, photographing streets, monuments and so on presumably their pictures will be used to illustrate another step in Japan's southward expansion.

VICHY AND TOKYO REPORTED AGREED ON NEGOTIATIONS

No Document, However, Yet Signed Over French Indo-China

CONCESSIONS SEEN

Vichy, France, July 24— (AP) — Vichy and Tokyo have agreed in principle on a "basis for Japanese aid in protection of French interests" in Indo-China, it was announced today, and negotiations have been shifted from Vichy to Hanoi where details for Japanese military bases are being worked out.

It was said that nothing had been signed yet and that the agreement in prospect at Hanoi, capital of the colony, would be referred back to Vichy for a final understanding.

The negotiations here had centred on two points:

1.—Recognition of Japan as the predominant power to safeguard peace in the Orient.

2.—Acceptance in the present instance of measures Japan deems necessary to safeguard Indo-China without detriment to French sovereignty.

Vichy sources said Japan had informed Vichy that she considered Indo-China menaced and asked Vichy if the French were able to defend the Colony.

Vichy replied that obviously they were not since it was impossible to reinforce the small garrison left after the war with Thailand. Vichy said there was "no question of Japanese pressure"—simply a mutual agreement.

Semi-official statements of the past twenty-four hours had left no doubt that Tokyo had gained concessions from Vichy.

The edition of the Paris Soir, published in German-occupied Paris, after repeating assertions that the British and Chinese were "plotting" against Indo-China, asked: "Isn't it comforting for us to know we are not isolated in Indo-China and to know that Japan can collaborate with us to reduce to nothing the cynical ambitions of our vindictive, implacable and universarl adversary, England?"

Vichy circles, however, withdrew slightly from their original charges that the massing of British forces in Burma and Malaya was responsible for the situation, declaring that what was referred to was mainly plane concentrations.

C. N. Passenger Train Collides With G.N. Express

Vancouver, July 24 (CP)—One man was killed, one is missing and nine others are in hospital, three in critical condition, following the collision of a Canadian National Railways passenger train "Continental Limited" and an outbound Great Northern passenger train headed for Seattle.

The collision occurred between here and New Westminster, 12 miles east, on the Great Northern line used by the C.N.R.

Both locomotives overturned and the baggage car behind it was splintered to kindling wood. The track was torn up for yards along the right of way.

A. Tillinger of Seattle, fireman of the Great Northern locomotive, was identified as the wreck victim.

Missing and believed killed is H. Krinks, Canadian National Railways baggageman.

Critically injured in New Westminster hospital is J. Carey, Seattle, engineer of the Great Northern locomotive.

U. S. Gov't Denounces Japan As Aggressor in Indo-China; U. S. Security Menaced

Sumner Welles in Formal Statement Asserts Japan's Act Primarily in Preparation for Further 'Movements of Conquest in Adjacent Areas' — No Hint Made of U.S. Steps

Washington, July 24 (AP)—The United States government strongly denounced Japan today as an aggressor in French Indo-China and declared the move there menaced American security and endangered American territory and interests in the Far East.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, issued a formal statement asserting that Japan's action was primarily in preparation for further "movements of conquest in adjacent areas."

Mr. Welles said the substance of his statement was given last night to the Japanese Ambassador during a half-hour conference.

The statement contained no hint of steps planned by the United States to counter the Japanese move.

It did declare that occupation of French Indo-China or establishment of further military bases there "endanger the peaceful use by peaceful nations of the Pacific."

These steps Welles said, also jeopardize American sources of vital defence materials such as tin and rubber—an allusion to the rich Netherlands East Indies.

"The steps which the Japanese government has taken," Welles declared, "also endanger the safety of other areas of the Pacific, including the Philippine Islands.

"The government and people of thisc country fully realize that such developments bear directly upon the vital problem of our national security."

"Present developments relating to Indo-China provide clear indication that further changes are now being affected under duress.

"The present unfortunate situation in which the French government of Vichy and the French government of Indo China find themselves is, of course, well known. It is only to clear that they are in no position to resist the pressure exercised upon them."

German Advance in Russia Has Slowed Down and May Be Stopped Altogether Reported

Nazi Command Admits Red Army Resistance and Bad Roads Hamper Operations

SMOLENSK NOT TAKEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Authoritative quarters in London declared today that the German advance into Russia has slowed down and may be stopped altogether.

The German High Command itself conceded strong Red Army resistance and bad roads are hampering the German march. The High Command again resorted to generalities, merely declaring operations "are taking their planned course on the entire east front."

Moscow dispatches pictured the Red Army's stand in the central sector as the most brilliant resistance of the war and Russian troops were said to be still holding on grimly in the Smolensk sector a week after the Germans struck in that direction.

The German radio today repeated the claim that the city of Smolensk, 230 miles southwest of Moscow, has been in German hands since July 16 and asserted "Order has now been fully restored there." The British Broadcasting Corporation, however, declared "There is every reason to believe that Smolensk is still in Russian hands."

Far From Leningrad

German pressure appeared to have been relaxed on the northern sector, with the German advance units still far from Leningrad, which the German High Command declared nearly two weeks ago to be in "immediate danger."

In the southern zone heavy combat was said in Soviet advices to be continuing in the region of Zhitomir and along the Bessarabian border, west and south of Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine whose fall a German military spokesman said July 14 could be expected "momentarily."

A Berne dispatch to the New York Times quoted Russian commentators as saying that after having met with costly checks on six consecutive days, the German army's efforts to widen the Smolensk salient finally were abandoned yesterday in favor of "defensive preparations."

Nazi General Removed

The Moscow radio claimed to have heard from "neutral diplomatic circles in European capitals" that the chief of the German High Command, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, and the commander in chief of the German army, Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, have been removed.

The broadcast said direction of the Russian campaign has been entrusted to Lt.-Gen. Erwin Rommel, recalled from his command of the German armored divisions in North Africa.

Informed quarters in London said the Royal Air Force's incessant daylight sweeps over Northern France have necessitated the recall from the Russian front of hundreds of German Messerschmitt fighter planes, thereby enabling the Soviet Air Force to fight the German in the air on a fairly even basis.

Axis Claims

(Italian)

Rome, July 24 (AP)—The Italian high command claimed today that a fierce air-naval battle in the Central Mediterranean, lasting from dawn to darkness yesterday, ended in an Italian victory with a British destroyer, two munitions-laden ships and another "large unspecified unit" sunk.

A big British convoy, escorted by battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats, and aircraft carriers was spotted by Italian aerial scouts at dawn, the communique said, and attacked by air until darkness. Then, it said, light naval units of the Italian fleet took up the fight.

(British naval sources in London had no comment to make on the Italian claims.)

Sank a 15,000-ton steamship and a 10,000-ton ship, both carrying explosives.

Torpedoed a 10,000 ton cruiser of the Southampton class and an 8,000-ton cruiser.

Bombed a battleship, a cruiser, a destroyer, another heavy steamer and "another unspecified unit."

In the night attack by naval forces, the communique claimed a destroyer and another "large unspecified unit" were sunk by motor torpedo boats, and a large vessel in the convoy was hit by torpedoes frm a submarine.

German

Berlin, July 24 (AP)—The German high command claimed today that the Royal Air Force lost 54 planes in daylight raiding yesterday in the Channel area against a German loss of three while German spokesmen asserted the R.A.F. is "bleeding to death in a useless offensive" on Germany's western front.

"The British air force in attempts to attack the Channel coast during the day suffered one of its worst defeats," said the daily high command communique.

"Chasers bagged 46, anti-aircraft and patrol boats each, and naval artillery two British planes. Thus the enemy lost 54 planes within a few hours. Three of our own planes were lost during these air fights."

(The British Air Ministry announced yesterday's losses were 10 fighters and five bombers. Eleven German fighters were destroyed.)

Increased Pay Recommended

Ottawa, July 24—(CP)—Increased pay for ship carpenters employed by the Saint John Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company, Limited, at Saint John, N.B., is recommended in the report of a board of conciliation made public today by Labor Minister McLarty.

Payment of Cost of living bonuses to meet increases which occur subsequent to July 1, last, additional to the rates proposed, is also recommended.

Repeats Objection to Road

Prince Rupert, B.C., July 24—(CP)—Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative parliamentary leader, arrived here yesterday on the last leg of a northern British Columbia and Yukon tour. He will return to Vancouver tomorrow morning.

In an informal interview Mr. Hanson repeated his objections to construction of the Alaska highway at the present time.

New C.N.R. Terminal At Montreal Complete 'Within a Year'

Montreal, July 24—(CP)—At a Press conference today, R. C. Vaughan, new President of the C.N.R. system, announcing that the new Montreal terminal of the C.N.R. will be completed and in operation "within a year," said he hopes and expects that the economies and increased traffic it will bring "will go far towards defraying its costs."

Asked whether the prospect of gasoline rationing would affect Trans-Canada Air Lines, a C.N.R. subsidiary, he said he would be surprised "if the government didn't allow T.C.A. enough gasoline to carry on its services."

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, another C.N.R. affiliate, now included in its fleet German, Danish, Italian and other foreign vessels taken over by the Canadian Government, he said. These new additions to the C.G.M.M. more than made up for ships lost through enemy action since the start of the war.

Montreal Harbor Water Dragged For Seaman's Body

Montreal, July 24 —(CP)— Police today dragged harbor waters for the body of James McGrath, 28-year-old Welsh seaman whose drowning last night was linked with a riot between civilian and seamen outside an East-End hotel 24 hours before.

The circumstances surrounding McGrath's death, police said, dated back to his presence with several companions last night at the Army and Navy Club where an argument arose concerning the previous night's rioting outside the hotel where merchant seamen are now billeted. Three men suffered injuries requiring hospital treatment in the fracas.

Police said the argument at the club grew so strong that McGrath and four other seamen were placed in a taxi and sent to the hotel. Three of the men got out at the hotel, but McGrath and another seaman, William Cook, decided to return to their ship.

When the taxi reached the docks, the driver told police, the two seamen refused to pay their 80-cent fare. The driver called police and when he returned to the cab to await their arrival, police said, McGrath lunged out at him with his fists. The driver stepped aside to avoid the blow and McGrath, losing his balance, fell over the dockside. He did not reappear.

BODY RECOVERED

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—The body of John Seymour, 49, of Toronto was recovered from Lake Ontario last night after extensive dragging operations by Toronto lifesavers.

Coroner Dr. W. J. O'Hara declared death was due to an accident. It was believed Seymour was in the water for three or four hours.

Prospect of Women As R. R. Conductors Aired at Conference, No Immediate Plan

Montreal July 24 (CP)—The prospect of women serving as conductors and in other non-clerical positions with Canadian Railways was aired today at a press conference called by R. C. Vaughan newly-named President of Canadian National Railways.

While stressing that there is no immediate plan to admit women to a greater variety of railroad jobs—as is the wartime policy of the British railways—the new President said Canada would probably follow Britain's example if a shortage of male workers developed.

INQUEST FINDS DEATH WAS DUE TO STRYCHNINE

Jury Recommends That Crown Continue With Investigation of Death of Roseneath Woman

MANY WITNESSES

Roseneath, Ont., July 24 (CP)—A jury investigating the death of Mrs. Lillian Parker at her home in Alnwick Township on June 5 brought in a verdict today in which a strong recommendation was made that the Crown continue investigation of her death.

"We are not entirely satisfied with the evidence produced and we strongly recommend that the Crown continue with the case," the verdict said. It was returned after six more witnesses were heard in the second day of the hearing.

Death was caused by strychnine poisoning, the verdict said. "We firmly believe that Mrs. Parker never realized what was happening to her life and that death was unpremeditated," it added.

Will Continue Investigation

W. B. Common of the Ontario Attorney General's Department, in charge of the examination at the inquest, said after the verdict was returned that the Crown would continue its investigation, particularly with reference to evidence brought out at the inquest.

Albert Parker, the women's husband, testified at the opening of the inquest yesterday that Mrs. Parker had taken pills in an effort to bring about an abortion. She had become pregnant in May and, Parker said, "my wife did not want any more family...She asked me to get some stuff to get rid of it."

Parker said he obtained some pills from Dr. George Fields of Roseneath and some capsules from Mrs. Gertrude Hoover, of Tonawanda, N.Y., a summer resident there.

Mrs. Hoover admitted she gave Parker some capsules, but said they were three-grain capsules which she had purchased at a drug store at Norwood, Ont., the previous day for a cold.

Dr. Fields testified that he had given Parker twenty caroid and bile pills on two separate occasions. He said he never kept strychnine in his office.

Prof. Joselyn Rogers, provincial analyst, said he had recovered seven-eighths of a grain of alkaloid of strychnine from the woman's stomach and other organs and that she must have had approximately two grains of a dose.

During Parker's testimony he admitted he might have been out with Mrs. Hoover alone in an automobile "a few times."

Woman is Pulled From Falls Rapids But Does Not Revive

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 24 (CP) An unidentified woman, about 60, was pulled today from the swift upper Niagara rapids, several hundred yards above the brink of the American Falls, but efforts to revive her failed.

Coroner Harry R. Emes said a woman's hat and a handbag were found on the shore near where the woman first was observed.

Officials sought to determine identity through a Niagara Falls hotel room key in the bag.

RUMOR RUSSIANS, JAPANESE CLASH AT CHANGKUGENG

Unconfirmed Reports in Shanghai Say Fighting Began Wed. Evening

PREVIOUS CLASH

Shanghai, July 24 (AP)—Reports which could not be confirmed immediately from any source but which circulated through Shanghai said today that Russian and Japanese troops had clashed on the Manchoukuo-Siberian border in the general vincity of Changkufeng.

These reports, which were represented as originating with sources close to the Japanese military, said the fighting started Wednesday evening.

At Japanese army press headquarters it was stated "we have heard nothing of such reports."

(Russian and Japanese forces clashed in the summer of 1938 in the Changkufeng sector in what became a vest-pocket war before an agreement was reached for diplomatic ironing out of differences over the border.)

Cost-of-Living Bonus for C.N.R. Settled Shortly

Newly-Appointed President Promises 'Satisfactory' Decision

Montreal, July 24—(CP) — The question of a war-time cost-of-living bonus for employees of Canadian National Railways "will be settled very soon to the satisfaction of all concerned," R. C. Vaughan, newly-appointed President of the system, said today.

Receiving the Press only a day after his appointment to the presidency to succeed S. J. Hungerford, Mr. Vaughan said the C.N.R. had always maintained good relations with its staff and the announcement of a "satisfactory" decision on the bonus question could be expected shortly.

He made no estimate of how much the bonus will cost, but said it is expected to run into "several millions of dollars a year."

At the same time, the President said that orders for about $20,000,000 worth of new rolling stock will be placed with Canadian firms "within the next few days," with a view to the increased war-time freight movement "which we are told we can safely anticipate."

The President announced that the system hoped this year to pay all interest on C.N.R. bonds held by the public and said that, if this hope is realized, it will be the first time since 1929 that all interest has been paid in full.

ESCAPED FROM STOLEN CAR

From the amount of blood in the car it is thought that one of the trio is seriously injured.

Burglars' tools, including two jimmies, were found in the wreckage of the stolen car.

The car was reported stolen from Forest Hill, Ont.

Slight Advance in Eggs and Butter

Toronto, July 24—Ready clearance of light offerings on the Toronto open produce market yesterday continued to edge butter and egg prices higher.

Very small available supplies kept the butter market on a firm price basis, and sellers experienced no difficulty in moving the Ontario first-grade produce at 36c a pound. In the retail section Ontario creamery prints reflected the strength of solids, first grades improving to the range of 37 1-4c to 37 1-2c a pound.

Fresh receipts still arrived on the egg market in light volume. These supplies were easily absorbed under good demand and another fractional increase occurred in prices to shipper on grades A-large and A-medium.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, July 24—(CP) — Produce market prices here yesterday as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First-grade solids, jobbeing price, 36 1-2c.

SLUGS HERON WITH PLUG

Lindsay, Ont., July 24 (CP)—Charlie Boyle of Lindsay had proof of this fish story.

He was fishing at Snug Harbor, Sturgeon Lake last evening and one of his casts went into a weed bed. He said the plug struck a blue Heron on the head rendering it unconscious. He brought the Heron home to show his little son and released it after bringing it to a newspaper office to substantiate his story.

Incidentally he caught a couple of nice bass too.

DUKE OF KENT TO VISIT CANADA

Brother of King George Will Inspect Establishments of Commonwealth Air Plan

Ottawa, July 24 —(CP)— Just a little more than two years after the King and Queen visited Canada and the United States, another royal visitor is coming to the Dominion.

The Prime Minister's office announced last night that the Duke of Kent, 38-year-old brother of the King, will come to Canada "shortly."

The brief formal statement making public the Duke's imminent arrival gave no definite information as to just when or where he will first set foot in Canada. Whether he will arrive by plane or boat was not disclosed and that information probably will be kept an official secret until he is actually within the Dominion.

The official announcement said merely:—

"With the King's approval H.R.H. the Duke of Kent will shortly be proceeding to Canada for a brief visit.

"His Royal Highness is greatly interested in the Commonwealth Air Training Plan and is desirous of seeing for himself some of the air training establishments where pilots and aircrews are being trained.

"The proposal has been warmly welcomed by the Canadian government and the Royal Canadian Air Force."

It will be the Duke's first visit to Canada since 1927 when he was travelling with his brother, then Prince of Wales and now, is Duke of Windsor, Governor of the Bahamas.

PRICE INCREASE OF PORK UNLIKELY

This is View of Officials of Agricultural Department at Ottawa

Ottawa, July 24 (CP)—Agriculture department officials reaffirmed today that a general increase in domestic fresh pork and bacon prices is unlikely, in spite of a Winnipeg packing house official's estimate the prices there would rise from ½ to two cents a pound on Monday.

A bacon board spokesman said that time would tell whether prices would rise, but a general rise was not expected by officials although it was possible that isolated markets would get out of line temporarily. Domestic market conditions did not seem to indicate a rise was coming.

Herbert Marples, Canada Packers official, said in Winnipeg yesterday that the increased price on Monday was expected.

Increase of $1 per hundred weight in the seaboard price paid Canada Packers for export bacon and a ban on shipment of hogs to other than Empire countries were announced Tuesday, along with a 25 per cent reduction in the amount of pork products which may be distributed for domestic use.

HEAVY DAYLIGHT

Reporting on night raids, the air ministry said "particularly large fires" were left in Mannheim. Docks at Le Havre, France, and Ostend, Belgium also were bombed, it was said and an R.A.F. coastal patrol set fire to a German ship and destroyed a German fighter off the Norwegian coast.

"None of our aircraft are missing from these operations", the communique said.

Describing the dawn patrol off Norway, the Air Ministry News Service said two coastal command Beauforts set a 1,500-ton tanker ablaze, forced the crew to abandon a 700-ton supply ship, and destroyed a German Messerschmitt-109 fighter.

After raking the supply ship with machine-gun fire, one of the Beauforts was attacked by two Messerschmitts. The rear gunner destroyed one with a single burst and the other fled.

During the operations a navigator sighted a group of fishing smacks and signalled "V" with the flash of a lamp.

"I got an immediate answer", he said. "V was flashed back several times with a white light".

German activity over the British Isles last night was described by the Air and Home Security Ministries as more widespread than in recent nights, but not on a heavy scale.

Liverpool seemed to be the principal objective of the Nazis. Bombs were dropped in boroughs on the Merseyside, but none were reported falling in the port city itself.

"One of the fiercest anti-aircraft barrages ever put up by Merseyside ground defences," greeted the German planes, an eyewitness said.

A shelter in one town was hit and a number of casualties were feared.

There were some casualties, too, in Scotland. One German plane was shot down.

In the operations over Northern France yesterday and last night, R.A.F. lost 15 aircraft while it shot down 16 Nazis. Late last evening Blenheims struck at Bethune, 45 miles inland from Calais.

(An unidentified plane dropped bombs on Dundalk Harbor, Erie, during the night, it was reported from Dublin.)

READY TO IMPOSE

London, meanwhile, disclosed far-flung military preparations at Singapore and other British Pacific outposts, readying them for any eventually with reinforcements of Royal Air Force units. British sources expressed confidence, moreover, that as a result of continuing close consultation the London and Washington governments were prepared to take any measures necessary.

While gravely concerned, State Department officials in Washington watched the situation without public comment. They were known to have planned for several months economic measures for use when and if Japan went against repeated United States protests and warnings to further upset the status quo in the Pacific.

Among these measures, one or more of which might be applied, were freezing of Japanese assets in this country just as the assets of other Axis powers have been tied up, embargoing shipments of oil and other vital materials to Japan, imposing restrictions against Japanese imports, halting purchases of Japanese gold and expediting increased military aid to China.

Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, received a report on the Japanese view of the situation yesterday from the ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura. Welles would not comment on the outcome of the conference, and Nomura, confirming that he "approached the subject from our side", would say only that he hoped "the feeling between our two countries will become better and better."

This capital regarded the Indo-China move as putting a severe strain on Washington-Tokyo relations, however, although there were evidences of hope that a general explosion in the Far East might be avoided.

Chairman Walter George (Dem.-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, indicated officials here retained some expectation that the status quo in the Orient might not be too greatly disturbed by Japanese incursions into Indo-China.

Whether the crisis would spread, at least at this time, appeared to depend on how quickly the Japanese might seek to press their strategic advantages against Singapore and the East Indies and whether they might also undertake some action against Russia in Siberia.

The Indo-China adventure of itself, it was believed would require comparatively small units of Japanese forces in view of the lack of French resistance. Thus the main Japanese, aside from those engaged in China would be free for other action.

While the extent of Japanese demands on Hanoi and Vichy were not officially disclosed, other than in the Vichy reports speaking of military measures, informed quarters here held the view that French concessions would result in permanent loss of French control over the colony.

A major prize for the Japanese—and the greatest threat to British, United States and Netherlands interests—would be establishment of a Japanese naval and air base on Camrahn Bay, 600 miles across the Gulf of Siam from Singapore, and just across the South China Sea from British and Netherlands Borneo.

Japanese warships based there would be in position for a speedy attack somewhere along the coast of the narrow Malay Peninsula from where an overland offensive—co-ordinated with naval action—could be made against Singapore.

Behind British guns and warships at Singapore lie the rubber and oil-rich islands of The Netherlands, administered by Queen Wilhelmina from her refuge in London.

Planting of Japanese bases elsewhere in Cambodia and Cochin-China, the southernmost Indo-Chinese states, would also place potential attacking forces within striking distance of Thailand (Siam), where strong Japanese influences already exist, and Burma, a rich British colony bordering Thailand and Indo-China.

Advised of Agreement

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 24—(CP)—Well-informed quarters reported today that Japanese warships had appeared off Cap St. Jacques and Camranh Bay following Vichy's acceptance of Japanese demands for military facilities in southern Indo-China.

The same sources reported that 12 Japanese tranport were en route to Saigon from Hainan, Chinese island off the Indo-China coast which the Japanese have been using as a concentration base for months.

Camranh Bay is a naval base on Indo-China's southwest coast and Cap St. Jacques dominates the mouths of the Saigon River by which ships reach this port.

Acceptance of Japan's demands for extension to southern Indo-China of the military grip she already holds on the north was reported officially.

Foreign consulates said they had been advised of the agreement by the Indo-China government.

These sources declared the agreement had been reached by representatives of the Tokyo and Vichy governments July 19, but details concerning its provisions could not be learned immediately.

While Saigon remained outwardly calm awaiting further news, Japanese authorities ordered the loading of Japanese boats halted and advised their nationals to stand by for evacuation if necessary.

Like other foreign officials, the United States consul-general at Hanoi, Charles Reed, was uninformed of the specific concessions Vichy was said to have made.

Blackout Cancelled

Many observers expressed belief there would be no hostilities in this immediate area and plans for a blackout of Saigon were cancelled.

It has been generally known here since last September that the Japanese desired to obtain a base in Camranh Bay as well as control of Cap St. Jacques and the Saigon airport.

Camranh Bay, 225 miles north of here by railway, has an anchorage area roughly equivalent to about 15,000 acres entirely surrounded by granite mountains and offering adequate shelter and sites for defence fortifications. An island 1,000 yards long guards the entrance.

Cap St. Jacques guards the sea approaches to Saigon, while the airport here is described by experts as the best in the southern Pacific except Singapore.

Called "Vichy's Surrender"

London, July 24—(CP) — While one British source held today that the prospective Japanese occupation of French Indo-China offered no military threat to Singapore, United States quarters in London, commenting on naval and political aspects of the move, indicated mounting concern.

The British Government has been in close consultation with the United States and Australia and it was widely hinted that some basis for action necessitated by the Japanese move had been reached. The Times spoke this morning of economic measures against Japan possibly agreed upon by the consulting governments.

The authoritative quarter which surprised correspondents by saying Japanese occupation of Indo-China was no threat to the Singapore base declared on the other hand that the "real threat" was to the Burma Road, supply line of the Chungking Chinese Government.

(From the map it appeared that the only extra threat to the Burma Road would be a military invasion of Southwestern China from bordering Indo-China, aimed at Sunnanfu, at the Chinese end of the highway from Burma.)

United States military observers here declared that Singapore, less than 700 air miles from Saigon, would be considerably exposed to naval assault by a Japanese fleet based on Camranh Bay.

By occupation of Indo-China, the Americans said, Japan would "knock 1,000 miles off naval supply lines." The modern air field at Saigon could be used by Japanese bombers "within a week or so" to bomb Singapore, one source said.

The News-Chronicle remarked that "Far Eastern appeasement after a very long run is now very near its end."

It said it seemed likely that concerted British-American plans soon would come into operation and added "if Japan comes into war she stands an excellent chance of committing hara-kari."

Vernon Hartlett, Independent M.P., and New Chronicle writer, said any seizure of bases in Indo-China would place the Japanese "very definitely in the ranks of our enemies. Even should there be no sharp and sudden British response (since we too may have our reasons for avoiding new war) there has been very complete Anglo-American preparation for this development. It should not be forgotten that no other great power is so much at the mercy of economic pressure as Japan."

The Daily Express wrote that "if Japan goes to the south to the oil and spices she covets in the Dutch East Indies she will meet the warships of the United States and British warships from Singapore."

The Daily Telegraph said it was obvious that Japan's primary purpose in Indo-China was to use it as a jumping-off place for eventual military designs on British, Netherlands and American interests in the western Pacific.

General Agreement Indicated

Singapore, July 24 (AP)—Observers said today indications were that Tokyo had obtained a general agreement with the Vichy government for new concessions in French Indo-China but details must still be settled with Admiral Jean Decoux, governor-general there. Negotiations with Decoux last year delayed more than a month capitulation to Japanese demands for bases in northern Indo-China.

Only Solution Says Tokyo

Tokyo, July 24 (AP)—A Japanese view of the situation in the Far East was summed up today by a headline in The Times Advertiser: "Indo-China sees collaboration with Japan the only salvation."

The newspaper Yomiuri printed a picture of Marshal Philippe Petain and a Vichy-dated front-page story quoted him as saying:

"We must defend our overseas colonies for France against Britain whose attitude is becoming more and more positive. That is the only way to save the colonies from an aggressor. We must make military preparations to meet an emergency."

CHAPTER SIX

The Big City

"Don't raise your blood pressure about expenses, Chief," Al Martino said. "I've kept within the limit. You know the game. We go into a night club, I slip the headwaiter a five spot to pass around the word there's a beauty prize winner in the dump and to point her out. Right away the he-bees in the dump begin to buzz around. Chief, this Millville blonde can pick up more suckers than Oregon has apples. Especially the bald suckers."

Palmer Watson roared with laughter. "What's wrong with her taking 'em if they ask to be took?" he managed, between roars. "We didn't bring her up here to keep her in hiding, did we? "She's not Little Goldielocks. Er—that reminds me, how old is she? We don't want any stuff about minors—"

"Don't worry. There'll be no Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children angle. She's twenty-four. Told me she was twenty when she signed up for the contest. Her kid brother spilled the beans. She got her age mixed up with her sister's, that's all."

"Umm. Sister? Not a Beauty Bouqueter, huh, like this one?"

"Chief, the backward blonde's sister makes her look like a morning-after gardenia. She's the sweetest, cleanest—aw, what's the use! You can't describe a girl like Marilyn Marsh. Old Webster just hasn't got the words."

"Aha! So now we have it." The Chief was immensely pleased with himself. "The sister. He falls, like a brick house—for the sister. So he gets leary. He thinks maybe the beautiful blonde will cut too many capers. Maybe he can't handle her. Maybe he'll get in Dutch with the family. Am I right, my boy? Do I have it?"

Al moved from the corner of the desk to a lacquer red leather chair resembling a cavern.

"You win," he said. "My new torch song's 'I Left My Heart in Millville'. I'm serious this time, Chief. That's why I'm asking you to give me a transfer. I don't like the way Blondie trots. Last night we dropped into the Blue Parrot, you know, that hotsy-totsy joint in East Fifty-fourth. I slipped the headwaiter the usual five, he went into his act and right away a Good Time Charlie showed up at our table. He started feeding Blondie champagne cocktails. Chief, the way that gal can lap up champagne cocktails is a panic. Like water from the old oaken bucket. I saw she was starting to fizz, so I asked her to take a recess. She squawked, and she squawked loud. She lapped up another couple of rounds just to show me who was boss. So I showed her. I took the next one away from her and told the buyer to beat it. Had a hell of a time getting her out without playing rough. That's my story. Now will you give me a transfer?"

The Chief scowled so that his brows covered his eyes.

"Umm," he muttered. "Things don't look so good. Scandal, maybe. Metropole can't have scandal with its clients. You call up her hotel. See if it's all right. Better we make a change."

Marilyn Marsh and Sally Meacham walked down the shady side of Main street. It had been a tiring day in the Bon Ton. A book sale. All the customers wanted the same book.

Sally spoke. "How's it for a soda, Lynn? Nice sirupy chocolate with chocolate ice cream. It's chocolate soda's made me what I am today." She observed her reflection in the shop windows. "Oh, well, what's a soda more or less when you're already a fudge-pudge. Let's stop in the Sugar Bowl. They double-dip their sodas."

"I am thirsty," said Marilyn. "I'll go for an orangeade — fresh oranges."

"The thin one's take orangeade, the fat one's take double-dip. Here we are. Follow me. I know the table under the fan."

Seated, Sally began on the real purpose of the visit.

"Look here, Lynn," she said, "you've simply got to go to the charity ball. It's the best party of the year in Millville; in fact it's the only real party. Every one we know will be there—that is every one we want to know, and it's stacks of fun. Why do you turn it down? Is old age creeping up on you?"

Lynn said, with a smile for Sally's twitting, "My years have not overcome me, entirely, but they are getting me down. If you must know, Miss Pry, I'm not going to the charity ball because I can't afford a new evening dress, and the vintage one I've worn for two years has now become rags and tatters."

"Lynn Marsh," indignantly, "you make me furious. A girl with a thousand dollars in her own name, complaining about not being able to afford a new dress. What do you expect to do? Sit on your money to see if it will hatch?"

"I'm not complaining and I'm not an old hen. Nor, Miss Pry, have I a thousand dollars in my own name."

"What did you do with it?' Sally wanted to know. "Put it in the name of your lawyer?"

"My lawyer is out of town. I put half of it in bonds in the name of William Marsh, Jr. They will mature at the time Bill goes to college. Any objections?"

"Of course not, foolish." The depth of her friendship was in Sally's eyes. "It's great, your being able to help Bill. He's a cute kid, even if he is your brother. But half a thousand—that leaves five hundred, the way I was taught arithmetic. What about subtracting the price of a dress from the remaining five hundred? What about the blue and silver net we raved about in the Bon Ton. It's a sample, a real one, not a phoney. Sophie in the dresses told me it's such a small size no one has been able to wiggle into it. You said yourself it was the size you wear. They've put it one the sale rack, practically giving it away. Lynn, please nab it the first thing in the morning, will you, and go to the ball?"

"Sally, you're a dear for wanting me to go, but I can't. I'd rather not, honestly. You know I'm helping dad fix up our house. It needs dozens of things done to it. Nothing fancy, just repairs."

"I suppose house-fixing does run into money. But listen, Santa Claus, aren't you going to break down? Aren't you going to buy anything for yourself?"

Marilyn's smile teased. "I was waiting for that. Of course I'm buying something for myself. Something simply stupendous. Something I've wanted so much it hurts. Guess!"

"Lynn, you're torturing me." Sally rolled her eyes. "Tell me what it is this minute. You know I'm no good at guessing games."

"Very well, if you'll promise not to pester me again about the charity ball. Promise?"

"I'll try. Heaven knows I'll try."

"I'm going to work only part time at the Bon Ton this winter. The manager has agreed to keep me part time. I'm going to Millville Academy. You remember I took shorthand and typewriting in high school. It's just a skeleton course, so I'm planning to build on the framework I have, take a real course. I've registered for a course in English. Now you know why I'm not buying a new evening dress."

Sally swallowed a blob of ice cream so large it choked her.

"Well," she spluttered, "I swan! Back to the campus. If I didn't love you so much I'd turn green and envy would ooze from my pores. What's your ambition, Miss Marsh? Private secretary and marry the boss?"

"If he's handsome and doesn't dunk his doughnuts. Seriously, I'm not aiming at any particular mark —not yet. Just shooting in the general direction of bigger and better work."

In the kitchen after supper Marilyn detached white collar and cuffs from the green chambray dress that was uniform for women clerks in the Bon Ton. She must launder them for tomorrow. The manager was particular about appearance.

Mrs. Marsh finished putting away the dishes. Lynn noticed her mother was prolonging the task.

"Why don't you go out and rest in the swing, Mums?" she said. Her mother's face was flushed. "It's close in the kitchen."

"I was wanting to help you," said Mrs. Marsh. "I'm faster than you are with the iron. Only takes me a minute to press out your collar and cuffs."

"So you're trying to take my job away from me?" sternly. "I'll have to report you to the union. Out with you. Begone!"

Mrs. Marsh was flustered. "Baby, I don't like to do this—I've been wanting to tell you all evening—I had a letter from Clara today. I didn't say anything about it in front of the others because—you see it was confidential. That's it, confidential."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his appetite, and we started to go passed the big white house with the lawn all around, pop saying, That's the little place Fill Buckner bilt for himself, the lucky stiff.

How was he lucky, pop? I said, and pop said, He had a few hundred dollers and a chance came along to invest it in a machine to sew buttons on pants, or pants on buttons or something. What could be luckier than that? he said.

Well G, pop, maybe it took brains to see it was a good investment, I said, and pop said, Nonsense. Fill Buckner never had a brain in his life. I went to school with him and he didn't know one fraction from another and couldn't spell his own name correctly without referrig to his notes. Some people just have all the luck and others are like me, he said.

Well jimminy, pop, if you had a chance to make an investment like that, do you think you'd reckonize it? I said, and pop said, I'd reckonize it like a magnet reckonizing a steel filling.

Well how about a invention to make a piece of chewing gum last a whole day instead of just a few minutes, do you think that would be a good investment? I said. I mean suppose you had a chance to invest in that invention, what would you say? I said, and pop said, I'd say leed me to it, I'd say it was a gold mine lined with platnum and set with diamonds, I'd say I'd bild myself a house twice as big as Fill Buckners, with eleven baths and 2 showers in every bath.

Then here's your chance, pop, because I've invented it, I said. All you do is tie a little bag of flavored sugar to every package of gum, so every time the flavor disappears all you have to do is stick the end of your tongue in this little bag. So how about it, pop? I said, and pop said. Well, there might be a little difficulty obtaining a pattern for it, but I'll think it over.

Being what he says every time I remind him.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Men Dodge Bucksaws At Auction, Women Buy Them

Keene, N.H., July 24—(AP)—Auctioneer James F. Cady held up a buck saw and told those attending a sale this week: "During the past five years of my auctioneering I have never sold a buck saw to a man. It is always bid off by a woman; the men purchase easy chairs. Now what am I offered?" Bidding was brisk and the saw finally went for 45 cents—to a woman.

Billy the Goat Dies, Owners Gave Him Whisky

Grand Prairie, Tex., July 24—(AP)—Billy couldn't survive the hangover. His owners gave him whisky Sunday for a joke. He died today. The owners—two men—were charged with being drunk and disorderly after they told police they had been drinking and matched each drink with one for the goat. Billy, they added, was willing. District Attorney Dean Gauldin found the Cruelty to Animals statute would not fit the case.

Training Course For Engine-Room Artificers

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—A training course of six to eight months for engine-room artificers to be taken into the Royal Canadian Navy will be inaugurated at the Galt, Ontario, Aircraft School, "about the middle of August".

Plans for the school were formulated Tuesday at a meeting of the inter - departmental committee handling the Dominion-Provincial War Emergency Training program in Ontario. Announcement was made by Hon. N. O. Hipel, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests.

The limited quota of students is 120 between the ages of 17 1-2 and 20 years and minimum educational requirement is Grade 8 but preference will be given to applicants with some secondary school education. Subsistence allowance will be similar to those in effect at the Galt Aircraft (Royal Canadian Air Force) classes.

Syllabus for the course will be planned by instructors at Galt Aircraft School and Naval Engineering officers and will conform to training laid down for naval artificer apprentices. A naval officer will supervise training throughout the period.

At the conclusion of the course, youths who have shown aptitude to the work will be enlisted into the navy as stokers, 2nd Class, Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve or as artificer apprentices for additional training for advancement to ordnance and electrical artificers, or engine-room artificers.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Nevada City"

Replete with thrills and boasting an excellent cast, "Nevada City," a Republic musical western starring Roy Rogers is now at the Capitol Theatre.

The setting for "Nevada City" in California in the 1860's, with an unscrupulous financier, Amos Norton, plotting to gain control of both the California Central Railroad and the Morrison & Liddell Stage Co. Norton has his lieutenant, Black Bart, make raids on both companies, making it appear to each outfit that the other is responsible. Then Black Bart, under the name of Jim Trevor, joins Hank Liddell of the stage company, and urges him to open war on Mark Benton, railroad company president.

However, Jeff Connor (Roy Rogers), a stagecoach driver, knows Benton is honest and refuses to take part in the war. When Liddell fires Jeff and his pal Gabby (George Hayes), they go to work for Benton. Jeff soon suspects Jim Trevor of being Black Bart. But just as he is about to prove this, Benton is made to believe that Jeff and Gabby are accomplices of the desperado, and jails them.

The following day Jeffs learns that Black Bart is intending to blow up a tunnel which will prevent the completion of the railroad and keep Benton from receiving the subsidy promised by the Federal government. He and Gabby escape from jail and head for the tunnel. The exciting clash between the two pals and Black Bart's whole gang provides a thrilling climax the like of which has not been equalled in years.

Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Sally Payne, Billy Lee, Joseph Crehan, Fred Kohler Jr., Geo. Cleveland, and others of the cast all turn in sparkling performances.

"Father is a Prince"

The Capitol Theatre's other attraction with "Nevada City" is a delightful light film, Warner Bros.' "Father is a Prince" with a talented cast including Grant Mitchell, Nana Bryant, John Litel, Lee Patrick and two charming youngsters in the romantic roles—George Reeves, of "Gone With the Wind", and comely Jan Clayton.

"Father is a Prince" tells the story of a crotchety old man who makes his family's life miserable through his small, miserly ways, although there is deep affection under the veneer. He won't let his wife have a maid—he comes to dinner without shoes when his daughter is entertaining her fiance's family — and the family romps through all kinds of telling experiences until father comes to his senses and proves that "Father is a Prince."

The same program includes the latest news and the third chapter of "The Mysterious Doctor Satan."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Time Out for Rhythm"

Now at the McCarthy Theatre, Rudy Vallee, Ann Miller and Rosemary Lane, in the hilarious new musical comedy hit "Time Out For Rhythm". In addition to the principal trio of entertainers, such other favorites as Allen Jenkins, Joan Merrill, Brenda and Cobina, Richard Lane, The Three Stooges, Six Hits and a Miss, Eddie Durant's Rhumba Orchestra and Glen Gray and his Caso Loma Band.

A down-to-earth, but realistically true story of how stars are made and careers are broken, "Time Out for Rhythm" is a back-stage story which expertly blends music and zany comedy, romance and heartthrobs and spectacle. Under the showman-like direction of Sidney Salkow, with the dance routines stages by LeRoy Prinz, the new film possesses a delightful wallop, of the kind which comes only when every element in a film is just right.

Cast as a theatrical booking agent desperately seeking to obtain a "break" for his newest discovery, Vallee gives the screen his greatest performance to date— a characterization which mingles music, mirth and romance in brilliant proportions. Petite Ann Miller, lovely twinkle-toed star, proves herself not only a gorgeous dancer, but an equally talented singer and dramatic actress in her performance as Vallee's protege and romantic lead. And lovely Rosemary Lane, abandoning her heroine roles for the nonce, is seen as an attractive singing star determined to advance her career in spite of any obstacles in her way. Lesser performances turned in by the supporting players, either in character parts or through such hilarious high-jinks as are the specialties of the Three Stooges and Brenda and Cobina, make "Time Out for Rhythm" a film well worth while.

The songs heard in the new musical romance were penned by Sammy Cahn and Saul Chaplin.

"Prairie Law"

Belleville's favorite western star George O'Brien in "Prairie Law" is also now at the McCarthy Theatre as the second feature attraction. A new cartoon novelty "Tom Thumb's Brother" rounds out this splendid week-end show.

AT THE BELLE

"Power Dive"

With most of the world powers racing for air supremacy today, Paramount's stirring air epic, "Power Dive," which is now on the Belle Theatre screen comes as timely and thrilling film fare which everybody should see.

Filmed realistically and powerfully, "Power Dive," is the story of planes and the men who design and test them and is as replete in thrills as anything that has reached the screen to date. Against this blood-pounding and inspiring background of air thrills, "Power Dive" tells the story of three young people in an unusual love triangle, which gives the picture its romance.

Richard Arlen, a test pilot, falls in love with Jean Parker, daughter of an airplane inventor. His kid brother, Don Castle, has also lost his heart to the titian-haired beauty. Te girl, it seems, loves them both and the manner in which she makes her choice supplies the film with some surprise and lots of charm.

There is one scene in "Power Dive" which the theatre-goer will find hard to forget. This comes about when the test pilot realizes that he and his brother are dashing to their death in the two-seater geodetic trainer. Zooming down at the rate of ten miles a minute, he manages to toss his brother overboard in a parachute to safety. He turns back to the jammed controls and feverishly tears up the floorboards until he manages to free the cables. With bleeding hands, he grips the elevator controls and brings the ship down to a bad, but safe, landing.

The entire cast gives a brilliant performance. In addition to Richard Arlen, Jean Parker and Don Castle, the players include Roger Pryor, Helen Mack, Cliff Edwards, Louis Jean Heydt and little Billy Lee.

We congratulate Producer W. C. Thomas and Director James Hogan for this educational sky drama which can't fail to make a three-point landing with you.

"Las Vegas Nights" Tuneful

There is a gay jamboree of jive, swiftly moving action, bright comedy in the companion feature attraction "Las Vegas Nights," Paramount's new comedy with music.

With Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra, and a group of swell entertainers and comedians "sendin solid," "Las Vegas Nights' turns out to be a piece of screen amusement that ought to please practically anybody looking for a happy time. Heading the grand cast are Bert Wheeler, an ever-welcome comdian; Constance Moore, a lovely young, talented personality; handsome Phil Regan, with a first-rate singing voice; Lillian Cornell and Virginia Dale, two lovely singers and dancers coming along fast towards stardom, and young Betty Brewer. Ralph Murphy did a grand job of megaphone - handling on "Las Vegas Nights."

Lively, tune-filled and bright with funny comedy situations and crisp with smart dialogue, "Las Vegas Nights" is a picture that can be set down as highly amusing and entertaining screen fare.

"China Fights Back" is the title of the new edition of the March of Time to be exhibited on the same program.

Looking Back on Canada

with FRED WILLIAMS

On This Date

Students of Canadian history must often be impressed by the coincidence of dates as regards certain events. Take, for example, Fort Niagara. It was on July 24, 1687, that Denonville arrived at the mouth of the Niagara river to rebuild the fort left by LaSalle, but later destroyed. It was on July 24, 1759, that that same fort was lost to the French by its brilliant capture by Sir William Johnson. This victory was, in fact, the basis of the British conquest of Canada. It struck a death blow at French control of the "upper country" and was a fitting prelude to the battle on the Plains of Abraham at Quebec two months later, because it blocked the passage of French troops in the west to the relief of Quebec and led to the abandonment of Fort Rouille, on the site of the Toronto of today and laid the road open for that remarkable expedition by which General Amherst was able in 1760 to complete the British conquest by taking his army down the St. Lawrence and forcing the surrender of Montreal and the capitulation of Vaudreuil in September of the latter year.

Had it not been for Bradstreet's capture of Fort Frontenac in 1758 and for Johnson's victory at Fort Niagara along the gateway to the French posts in the interior, it is doubtful whether Amherst's strategy would have succeeded. As it was, possession of Fort Niagara gave the British the key to not only Lake Ontario, but to the upper lakes as well.

Visitors to the restored Fort Niagara nowadays can find many mementoes of the battle of 1759 and can see for themselves Johnson's castle in which he later signed treaties with the Indians and secured their friendship by recognizing their rights, in marked contrast to the French, who had seized what they wanted and thus aroused Indian hostility. Johnson's feat was a remarkable one. His force was smaller than that of the French, who had also the heavier armament; but the British, in face of great odds, won the victory and made history for both America and Britain.

DEFENCE MEASURES IN MALAYA TAKEN BY BRITAIN

Britain Puts on Biggest Bombing Show of the War

30 German Planes Shot Down in Day—Nazi Men O'War at Brest and La Pallice Straddled With Bombs

U.S. EXPLOSIVES USED

London, July 25—(CP)—Large fires and great damage were left in the German naval bases of Kiel and Emden when the Royal Air Force finished night raids there, the Air Ministry announced today.

While Kiel on the Baltic and Emden on the North Sea were being hammered, other R.A.F. forces attacked objectives at Wilhelmshaven and Rotterdam and blasted air fields in German-occupied France. Five British planes were lost.

Weather Favored Thrust

Weather favored the thrust in force into Northwestern Germany where the naval bases lie, the Air Ministry said, and heavy loads of bombs were dropped." The attacks on Wilhelmshaven, another North Sea naval base, and on Rotterdam were by smaller forces.

British raids are serving a political end for Britain under her joint action pact with Russia. Informed sources said the vigor and extent of the offensive were expected to quiet Russian calls for greater aid. Conversations between British and Russian officials at the Soviet Embassy for the past two weeks are said to have been marked by pleas for more British air activity.

It was authoritatively reported that the R.A.F. shot down 30 German planes in yesterday's offensive sweeps.

Eighteen Nazi planes, an announcement said, were shot down yesterday afternoon in addition to the 12 previously reported destroyed during the morning.

A Terrific Show

Britain put on her biggest bombing show of the war, the Air Ministry indicated today when four types of big planes raided Brest and La Pallice three times in attempts to knock out Germany's twin 26,000-ton battleships, the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau.

The R.A.F. has been after the Nazi men-o'war ever since last March when the two were reported docked at Brest for repairs. Both were straddled by R.A.F. bombs a number of times, it was said, but the Scharnhorst was moved recently to La Pallice, about 240 miles south of Brest.

Starting with a raid, the night before last, the R.A.F. risked squadrons of its best bombers in two daylight forays yesterday over Brest and La Pallice, the Air Ministry said.

Attackers Fly in Layers

The attackers flew in layers.

Four-engined planes went over extremely high while twin-motored aircraft manoeuvered at various lower levels, the Ministry said.

There was the three-raid score the Ministry reported:

Seven direct hits on the Gneisenau at Brest.

AIR AND PENSIONS MINISTERS ARRIVE BACK IN CANADA

G. C. Power and Ian Mackenzie Outspoken in Praise for British People

OFFICIALS RETURN

Ottawa, July 25—(CP)—Air Minister Power, Pensions Minister Mackenzie and a large group of other high officials today began wading through accumulation of business piled up during almost a month when they were in the United Kingdom.

They arrived back in the capital last night in two planes, tired after a dawn-to-dusk flight across the Atlantic.

Mr. Mackenzie who issued a prepared statement was outspoken in his praise of the British people under war hardships and air raids.

"There is no thought of compromise," he said. "No matter how long and hard the road they will march to the very end."

With Mr. Mackenzie when he left England were Col. Clyde Scott, military secretary to Defence Minister Ralston; Brig. K. Stuart, deputy chief of the General Staff; Air Commodore N. R. Anderson, Royal Canadian Air Force; Air Commodore G. O. Johnson, deputy chief of Air Staff; and J. J. Lowther, private secretary to the Duke of Kent who shortly will visit Canada.

Officials Accompany Ministers

Maj. Power was accompanied to Ottawa by Vice-Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of Air Staff; Air Commodore H. Edwards, Group Capt. K. G. Nairn and James Sharpe, secretary to the Minister.

Maj. Power and Mr. Mackenzie had been in Britain more than three weeks, conferring with British officials, inspecting various phases of Britain's war effort and visiting the Canadian Forces overseas.

The Air Minister crossed the Atlantic chiefly to discuss the future of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

He arrived just in time to witness presentation to Prime Minister Churchill by Mr. Mackenzie of the Victory Torch, symbol of Canada's war effort and oversubscription of the $600,000,000 Victory Loan, 1941.

"Originals" to Meet

London, Ont., July 25— (CP)—The annual convention of the originals' Association with war veterans from many parts of Ontario expected to attend, will be held here August 2, 3, and 4.

Officers will be elected on the final days of general business sessions.

TWO-THIRDS B.C.'S SALMON OUTPUT GOES TO BRITAIN

Trade Minister MacKinnon Announces Agreement Made With British Food Mission

SEND CANNED HERRING

Ottawa, July 25 (CP)—Conclusion of an agreement whereby two-thirds of British Columbia's 1941 production of canned salmon will be shipped to the United Kingdom was announced today by Trade Minister MacKinnon.

The announcement said negotiations for the agreement were conducted between the British Food Mission in Washington acting on behalf of the British Food Ministry, and the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce, acting in consultation with the Department of Fisheries.

The Fisheries Department will be responsible for arranging the supply of canned salmon to the United Kingdom, Mr. MacKinnon said.

"It is expected that the total quantity of canned salmon which will be supplied to the United Kingdom will be in excess of 1,000,000 cases and that this will be a very much larger quantity than has ever been supplied to the United Kingdom from Canada in the past," he added.

"In order to provide the quantity needed for United Kingdom requirements steps are being taken to ration the quantities available for shipment to other markets."

The minister did not disclose what form these "steps" to ration shipments to other markets would take.

Mr. MacKinnon disclosed also that negotiations to supply the Food Ministry with 35,000 long tons of canned herring are proceeding.

"It is confidently expected that these negotiations will be brought to a successful conclusion before the end of this month," he said.

Performance of Russian Airforce Exceeding Hopes of Its Champions

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, July 25 (AP)—Whatever the claims and counterclaims on the long Eastern European front, it seems reasonable to assume after a month of war that the Russian air force has been giving a better account of itself than even its champions dared hope for.

Moscow communiques say Russian warplanes are still in action in numbers, fighting off German bombers over the capital and attacking both German airdromes and invading columns.

That is reported in spite of German claims of having destroyed more than twice the number of planes that creditable sources said the Russians had for "first-line" defence at the start of the German invasion. The number then was put at about 4,000, based in European Russia.

Have 15,000 Planes

One independent estimate as late as January, 1940, placed the overall strength as high as 15,000, including those machines held in reserve and dispersed in Asia.

Air strength in the final analysis depends on the rate at which airplanes and personnel can be replaced. Some authorities have written that the Soviet has 15 airplane and four engine factories, built considerably inland from vulnerable frontiers. Their rate of output never has been published.

Pilots have been given primary instructions at 32 schools before undertaking military training. Russian youths by the scores of thousands have been trained in flying in gliders

Glenn D. Angle, aviation expert, said in the 1941 edition of "Aerosphere," an encyclpedic document, that Russia's medium bombers can fly faster than 300 miles an hour with heavy bomb loads.

Measured by most standards, that is a good performance.

United States Will Retaliate With Specific Action Saturday Against Japanese Aggression

—Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N.Y., July 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today that the United States would retaliate with specific action tomorrow against Japan's occupation of naval and air bases in French Indo-China.

He told a press conference there would be something out of Washington tomorrow, but would not say exactly what.

But to members of the Presidential party spending the week-end here the most likely move appeared to be the freezing of Japanese credits and assets in the United States.

Many persons, indeed, considered that step inevitable. But whether the United States was ready to take additional measures appeared to be awaiting future determination, depending on how the international situation develops in the Pacific.

To a question whether "events in the Far East have sharply accentuated the dangers in the international situation"' Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the answer be put this way:-

Events in the Far East are bringing a greater awareness on the part of the United States public to the dangers of the world situation.

Entire German Division Wiped Out by Russians, Moscow Repulses Raid

Moscow, July 25 (AP)—Stubborn fighting throughout last night in the directions of Petrozavodsk, Porkhov, Polotsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir was reported by the Soviet information bureau today.

Soviet troops defending the road to Moscow were reported earlier to have wiped out an entire German infantry division near Smolensk, and the Russian capital's air defences were credited officially with beating off a fourth successive night assault by the German air force.

Annihilation of the Nazi division was claimed in a communique which indicated the Germans were throwing great masses of troops into action in an effort to smash Russian resistance in the Smolensk area, some 230 miles west of Moscow.

Fresh Division Smashed

The communique said the division was 'freshly arrived at the front" and was smashed by Red army units "resisting the offensive of large enemy forces."

There was no hint in the bulletin that the German offensive had gained any ground, either in the Smolensk sector or elsewhere.

Heavy fighting was reported in the vicinity of Porkhov, 150 miles south of Leningrad, and Zhitomir, 75 miles west of Kiev on the Ukraine front—sectors which have been mentioned so consistently in Russian communiques as to give the impression that the Germans are stalled there.

Other Sectors Quiet

"In other directions and sectors of the front," the bulletin added, "no great battles were reported."

The German air force struck twice at Moscow during the night, but an official announcement said only one raider penetrated the capital's defences and that it was shot down. Another plane was reported destroyed outside Moscow.

Many of Moscow's residents, anticipating a continuation of the night aerial attacks, had retired to underground shelters long before the first warning sounded. Early in the evening throngs of women and children, carrying bedding and food, filed into the city's modern subway system, which is being used as a refuge by government decree.

Red Air Force Active

The Russians again reported their own air force was giving a good account of itself.

One Russian air squadron alone was credited officially with downing 71 German planes and destroying 35 others on the ground since the start of the war June 22.

S. A. Lozovsky, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs and Soviet spokesman, summed up the aerial defence of Moscow last night by declaring that only three to four per cent of the German raiders being sent against the capital are reaching their objectives. Ten to 11 per cent of the planes starting out are destroyed, he said.

Barrage balloons and night fighters, as well as ground batteries are proving effective in meeting the air attacks, Lozovsky asserted.

Entire Crew of 23 Safe

Lunenburg, N.S., July 25.—(CP)—The entire 23-man crew of the Lunenburg Schooner John H. McKay, lost off Newfoundland last week, is safe aboard another vessel at sea, it was learned here last night.

Details regarding the sinking of the fishing boat and the rescue of the crew were still unknown.

Berlin, July 25—(AP)—The German High Command reiterated today its claim that the current offensive against Russia continues "according to plan" despite "stiff fighting" which Nazi spokesmen asserted was marked by Russian orders for a defence of the Stalin line to the last man.

The High Command's brief summary of action on the Eastern front added that "a large number of prisoners and war material are being captured daily" and that individual planes "bombed military objectives last night in the Eastern part of Moscow and North of the Kremlin."

Spokesmen claimed the number of prisoners taken in the Nevel region had reached 20,000 up to last night and that the number of "deserters" was increasing, "especially at points where political commissars among the Red Forces have fallen." Nevel is about 300 miles due west of Moscow.

North of Smolensk

(This region is just north of the Smolensk salient where the Germans claim to have advanced to within 230 miles of the Russian capital.)

Spokesmen reported—without any confirming claim by the High Command—that a strong Bunker group of the Stalin line—the Emil Exyn fortifications—south of the Pinsk marshes was surrendered to the Germans yesterday after a 24-hour struggle.

The commander of the fortifications, these spokesmen said, had been given strict orders to defend the position to the last man.

German air operations along the entire front were reported by D.N.B., German News Agency.

The agency said main lines were interrupted at many points and large junctions were especially heavily bombed. Several trains were halted and two derailed.

In the southern Ukraine a single bomber was reported to have blasted a 2,600 foot long railway bridge across the Dnieper River last Tuesday, cutting off retreating Red army forces.

The bridge was near a big station jammed with 10,000 soldiers, retarding trains on many tracks ready to go westward, D.N.B. said.

The High Command communique usually less extravagant in language concentrated mainly on reports of stubborn Russian resistance and difficulties imposed by the terrain which German troops are operating. SeoHs

'Aeroplane' Editor Freed on Probation

London, July 25. —(CP)—Edwin Colston Shepherd, editor of the magazine "The Aeroplane", was freed today in probation after a closed hearing on a charge of publishing information which might be useful to the enemy.

The Temple Press, the Magazine's publisher, which had been charged with Shepherd, was ordered to pay 15 guineas in court costs, but the presiding judge declared: "No sort of reflection can be made upon any of the staff of the Aeroplane". The directors, he said, left the court "without the slightest stain on their characters as patriotic Englishmen".

OIL EMBARGO TOPS LIST OF POSSIBLE U.S. MEASURES

Washington Deeply Concerned Over Japanese Expansion into French Indo-China

ECONOMIC ACTION SURE

Washington, July 25—(AP)—Abandonment of the two-year-old policy of giving Japan access to United States oil in order to prevent aggressive action in the Pacific was considered a distinct possibility today, now that Japanese forces have moved southward to occupy strategic military and naval bases in French Indo-China.

Informed quarters here were agreed that extraordinary countermeasures were in the making as a result of the Indo-China affair—measures designed to express this country's opposition to the action already taken as well as to any further Japanese step in the direction of Singapore, the Netherlands East Indies or the Philippines.

Capitol Hill heard increasingly frequent speculation on use of the Navy to safeguard United States Far Eastern interests, while immediate prospects here were for some kind of economic action.

2,000 CANADIAN WOMEN REQUIRED FOR C.W.A.A.F.

Unit Will be Completely Organized Within Two Months State Officials

18 TO 43 TAKEN

Ottawa, July 25—(CP)—More than 2,000 women will be required for the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force which will be completely organized within two months, Royal Canadian Air Force Headquarters said today.

This is the second Auxiliary Service to announce the number of women required. Defence Minister Ralston said recently that the Canadian Women's Army Corps would require 1,500 women "very shortly."

The Air Force announcement today said formation of the Corps was now under way and "it is anticipated the force soon after it is in active operation will provide more than 2,000 Canadian women to take over positions with the R.C.A.F., thus relieving airmen for other duties."

Recruits between the ages of 18 and 43 will be enlisted at the rate of 150 a week once definite plans are completed, officials said.

The C. W. A. A. F. Training School, which will probably be located near Toronto, will give instruction in any of nine trades which include Administration, Cooks, Clerks, Equipment Assistants, Mess-Women, Telephone Operators, Fabric Workers, Mechanical Transport Drivers and General Duties.

Two administrative women officers of the British organization—the Women's Auxiliary Air Force—have been loaned in an advisory capacity to the R.C.A.F. by the British Air Ministry to assist organization. They are Wing Officer L. M. Crowther and Sqdn. Officer E. C. Bather.

Eden Declares Japanese Action Potential Threat

Nature of Measures Taken Not Disclosed—Britain Maintains Contact With U.S., Dominions, Netherlands Authority, China

WELLES' WORDS 'TIMELY'

LONDON, July 25 (CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told parliament today that "certain defence measures in Malaya already have been enforced to meet the potential threat" of the Japanese occupation of French Indo-China.

The House of Commons cheered when Mr. Eden said the British government had "been in close communication with the United States government" on the latest developments in the Far East.

He declined to discuss in detail "the measures which His Majesty's Government have prepared to meet these and other possible developments," but promised a further statement at an early date.

Japanese Demands Potential Threat

Japan, Mr. Eden said, had presented demands to the Vichy government "for the occupation of naval and air bases in south Indo-China and their occupation is imminent." He declared the demands were a potential threat to British territories and interests in the Far East and that close contact had been maintained in the face of this with the Dominions and The Netherlands authorities as well as Washington.

"There has been diplomatic contact with China constantly, he added, and "it is inadvisable to state the measures taken as they affect other governments."

Welles Statement 'Timely and Salutary'

"The attitude of the United States government has been publicly announced in no uncertain terms by the acting Secretary of State," he declared, referring to Sumner Welles' statement yesterday denouncing Japan as an aggressor. He called the statement "timely and salutary."

The Japanese actions he described as "plain threat" to British territories.

Although official news of conclusion of a definite agreement between Vichy and Tokyo for Japanese occupation of Indo-China bases is lacking, it is quite evident that this event is "imminent," he added, and went on:

Demands 'By Threat of Force'

"The fact that occupation of bases in southern Indo-China is taking place with the consent of Vichy does not obscure fact that Japan achieved her object by making demands and by threats of force if they were not complied with.

"The miserable plight of the Vichy government in the face of these demands provides one further example of blessings of collaboration with the Axis.

New Humiliation of Vichy

"So to the sorry table of humiliation to which the Vichy government has subjected the French people is added the new indignity of having to accept the so-called protection of Japan against a threat which, as everyone knows, does not exist."

U.S. Navy Learns From Dunkerque, Organizes Auxiliary of Small Craft

San Francisco, July 25—(AP)—Taking a lesson from Dunkerque and the priceless aid rendered Britain by a motley volunteer fleet of small boats, the Navy is organizing an auxiliary of small craft along the Pacific Coast for close-in patrol work in case of war.

The little fishing and pleasure boats that ply coastal waters and know every inlet and bar are being mobilized by the hundreds and arrangements have been made to fit them with suitable guns if a coast defence emergency arises.

It is all being done on a volunteer basis. Skippers, along with their crews are being inducted into the naval reserve at San Francisco, Monterey, Eureka and a dozen other ports, towns along the west coast.

Indo-China Developments

(By The Canadian Press)

Japan's dream of conquest in the Pacific moved toward reality today with the reported mobilization of 1,000,000 men, while at sea her ships blanked out in silence and turned away from American shores.

In London, Foreign Secretary Eden told parliament that "certain defence measures in Malaya have already been enforced" to counter "the potential threat" of the Japanese occupation of French Indo-China.

Foreign intelligence reports reaching Shanghai said the Japanese mobilization—the greatest since July, 1937, when the war with China began—had been in progress since July 17 and was still continuing.

Troop Destinations Secret

Troop destinations were kept secret, but advance contingents were expected to occupy newly-won air and naval bases in southern French Indo-China on Sunday, and as one Hanoi newspaper put it:—"Indo-China is on the way to Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies."

In Berlin, Nazi spokesmen declared Japan has informed Germany she is determined to oppose by every means "any British attempt on French Indo-China" or any threat to Japan's "new order" in the Far East.

San Francisco reports said Japan, taking no chance of having her finest liners and cargo ships seized by the United States, imposed strict orders of radio silence on her vast merchant fleet, halted suddenly on the high seas.

Japanese Ships Mark Time

Forty-two Japanese ships were reported marking time or turning back toward Japan. There were indications that one liner, the Tatuta Maru, was headed for the Mexican port. Other Japanese vessels in Pacific Coast ports rushed loading operations for a quick getaway.

Maj.-Gen. Raishiro Sumita, chief of the Japanese military mission in Indo-China, was expected to arrive at Saigon tomorrow to direct the occupation which reports suggested would be begun with a contingent of more than 40,000 troops.

Counter-measures to the Japanese move were hinted in Washington. Informed sources in Washington said the United States government probably would bar all oil exports to Japan.

The serious view Washington took of Far Eastern developments was underlined by a statement by Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, who called Japan's move on Indo-China one of aggression.

89 Millions Gift Or Loan Made By Colonial Empire

London, July 25 —(CP)— The Colonial Empire has sent more than £20,000,000 (about $89,000,000) by gift or loan to help the war effort, Colonial Secretary Lord Moyne told the House of Lords.

He said several colonies had offered their surpluses as outright gifts but it was decided the funds would be accepted only as a loan to be repaid for post-war development.

Meantime, he said, the war must not be allowed to lessen Britain's obligation to raise the standard of all classes in the colonies below an adequate minimum and urged colonial governments to frame plans for the future.

Lord Moyne established in the colonial office a small committee, headed by Lord Hailey—veteran of the Indian Civil Service and conductor of an African survey—to pave the way for post-war discussions necessary to plan colonial economics.

Factories in some parts of the district have almost reached former levels and the majority have produced seventy-five per cent of the former reduction.

Timely rains brought back the milk flow, but the present hot weather is likely to have a depreciating effect, it was stated.

Parachute Firm Closes As Orders Lacking

Fort Erie, Ont., July 25 (CP) — The branch plant in Fort Erie north of the Irvin Airchute Company today closed down owing to the lack of parachute orders and 50 employees working steadily the past year and a half were thrown out of work.

The Fort Erie council appealed Monday to the Department of Munitions and Supplies to keep the main factory in Fort Erie West in operation, if necessary under government direction. Scarcity of orders has caused a reduction of 50 per cent in the number of persons employed in the main factory.

No reply has been received yet from the department.

Playground News

Upwards of 35 of the older girls and boys from the two Belleville playgrounds were taken to the Outlet Beach on Wednesday where swimming and land sports were enjoyed for their season's first outing.

The first playground horse shoe pitching contest was held this week when H. Martin and G. Reeves of the West Hill grounds won the doubles championship, defeating N. Mills and B. Sword 21 to 18 in the finals.

In the Bantam series of the city playground softball league the West Hill kids again triumphed over the East Belleville lads 19 to 18 yesterday, while in the senior series the East Hill boys downed their West Hill rivals again by the score of 23 to 5. Ab Bunton twirling for the winners had little trouble disposing of his rival batters. Every member of the East Hill nine counted at least one safe hit.

Messerschmitts Crash Head-on, Tumble in Drink

London July 25 (CP)—The Air Ministry News Service today told how a 25-year-old Spitfire pilot with a bag of 24 German planes to his credit "helped two Messerschmitts destroy themselves without firing a shot at them."

The pilot was escorting bombers to a raid on Brest yesterday when he was attacked by the two German planes which he said "came at me one on either side in a dead straight line.

"I side-slipped quickly and they hit each other head-on," he said. "There was a terrific impact as the planes crumbled up before crashing into the drink."

UNITED STATES

Speaking in the past tense in Washington yesterday, the President had enunciated a policy under which the government had been letting Japan obtain oil from the United States with the objective of restraining her from invading The Netherlands East Indies for petroleum.

President is Questioned

"As of today," a reporter asked, "will this government follow the policy you outlined yesterday?"

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not talk about that. He said he had been describing what had happened up to the time he wa sspeaking.

"You left the intimation that that policy might be over with," a reporter remarked.

But, Mr. Roosevelt said, he did not say as much.

"We are trying to get you to do so today," his questioner replied.

Smilingly the President said he knew that was the case but that he just didn't have any news along that line.

Putting up to Mr. Roosevelt what he termed a blunt question, newsmen inquired what the Japanese move into Indo-China and its implications would mean to United States neutrality.

A Terrible Iffy Question

That, the President said, is a terribly iffy question.

"Yes" his interrogator agreed, "but that's the interest of every American in this thing."

So many things have not happened, however, Mr. Roosevelt replied, and things that have not happened cannot be discussed. If there were some one definite line that could be banked on as being the one that would happen, he said, one could talk on it. But that isn't the situation.

Japan's entry into Indo-China was a specific move, Mr. Roosevelt was reminded.

But we do not know what the move will be tomorrow or the next day, the President asserted.

In response to questions, Mr. Roosevelt said he thought the American people were no more aware of the international situation in the Far East than they were in the west.

But he said he had received yesterday reports from a newspaperman, two magazine writers, a cabinet member and two other persons who had been around and found that since March and April there had been a tremendous change, and the people were far more cognizant of the danger in the international situation.

Nevertheless the President declared, there still is insufficient awareness.

DENIED ADMITTANCE TO U.S.

Pictured aboard the Spanish liner which brought her to the U.S. is Miss Nancy Cunard, British writer and daughter of Sir Bache and Lady Cunard of the English shipping family. Miss Cunard was not permitted to land on arrival at New York because she lacked an American visa on her passport. She explained that the American consul in Havana, Cuba, had refused to issue a visa. She will stay aboard the Spanish ship until it docks at Bermuda, where she plans to go ashore.

National War Services Dep't And Compulsory Military Training

Officials of the National War Services Department report gratifying and ready response from young Canadians being called for military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

They state, however, that while each man receives a mailed individual and personal notice of his call to training, as his period arrives, a number of enquiries are still being sent direct to Ottawa. Major-General LaFleche, Associate Deputy Minister of The Department of National War Services, under whose direction the mobilizing of trainees is being carried out, points out that the Regulations have been planned to smooth out possible difficulties for the trainee by dividing Canada into thirteen Administrative Divisions, with officials and headquarters offices in each Division, authorized to handle procedure and operations locally.

To the Divisional Registrar of National War Services in the area in which they are registered should be forwarded all communications concerning business arising from the provisions of National War Services Regulations. All men from 19 to 45 are warned that notification must also be given promptly of change of address or martial status. Failure to do so incurs the risk of fine or imprisonment.

Young men in this area, liable for military training, requiring further information regarding their obligations or applications for postponement should communicate with the Divisional Registrar for this District, whose name and address are given below for their convenience, along with the names of other members of the Board:

Division C

Chairman of the Board:— Hon. Mr. Justice A. W. Greene, County Court House, Kingston, Ont.

Members of the Board—James R. MacLaren, Brockville, Ont., Wm. A. Parisien Montreal Road, Cornwall.

This Administrative Division of National War Services comprises the electoral districts of Carleton (95); Durham (98); Frontenac-Addington (104); Glengarry (105); Grenville-Douglas (106); Hastings-Peterborough (113); Hastings South (114); Kingston City, (119); Lanark (122); Leeds (123); Northumberland (131); Ottawa East, (133); Ottawa West, (134); Peterboro West, (139); Prescott (141); Prince Edward-Lennox (142); Renfrew North (143); Renfrew South (144); Russell (146) and Victoria, Ont., (150).

Halloway Pilot Flies Bomber To England

It didn't take very long for Flying Officer Cecil Langstaff, of the R.C.A.F. and who hails from Halloway to reach England. In exactly ten hours and fifty minutes after his bomber zoomed into the air from a Canadian air station, he set the ship down somewhere in England.

Later he was taken to where the Royal Family were staying and chatted with the King and Queen and the Princess Elizabeth for an hour.

A letter written by the pilot officer follows:—

"I am still waiting to be posted and expect it to come soon. I have been grouped with a number of pilots of the Eagle Squadron, but will be separated from them very soon.

I met the Royal Family yesterday and talked personally with the King and Queen for about twenty minutes, as I was the only one in the group of officers who had flown across the ocean. With the rest of the lads it took from ten to twenty-one days and I was only ten hours and fifty minutes.

Shown Through Castle

It took about three hours to show us through the castle with its abbeys and different courts and then as a final beautiful climax we were taken to the Pink Room where we waited and were introduced to the Royal Family. The Queen is very beautiful, as is the older Princess. They were extremely friendly and chatted for about an hour while we had tea.

Some of the Eagle Squadron, having been shown through the White Hall in Washington last year, said it could not be compared to the intricate splendour and sheer beauty of the castle, especially the churches. I have a couple of small souvenirs that I will send back to you.

I met a school-chum over here whom I had not seen for seven years. I must close now

As ever,
Cecil.

Speedier Flow of News Across Atlantic Urged by Campbell

Montreal, July 25 (CP)—Sir Gerald Campbell, newly-appointed Director General of British Information Services in the United States, was in Montreal for a short time last night, between his arrival from England and an eastern Canadian airport and his departure by plane for New York.

Sir Gerald said he spent most of his two weeks in England discussing with British officials arrangements for speedier flow of news across the Atlantic.

"I emphasized to our authorities in England the necessity of keeping countries on this side better informed, particularly where hot news is concerned," he said.

POLICE COURT

Herbert Gouchie and Edward Bouten, two transients who have been held by city police for the past week pending investigations, were today released from custody by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, of Northbrook, who presided at local police court.

"Are you willing to leave the city and not return?" His Worship asked both men. Upon receiving replies in the affirmative, Magistrate Lloyd released the men.

Gerald Lawrence was assessed $10.00 and costs after pleading guilty in writing to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without adequate brakes. "The brakes of this car were exceedingly defective, I'm told," stated Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., before the penalty was imposed.

An L.C.A. case concluded the court.

TO SHARE $1,000,000

Lilyan Andrus

Mary Alice Rice

Mildred Borst

These three former showgirls and a fourth, beauties of the Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll extravaganzas of other years, will "share and share alike" the entire estate of the late William Guggenheim, millionaire philanthropist, who died June 27. Three of the beneficiaries are, Lilyan Andrus, who in 1929 won the title of "Miss America"; Mary Alice Rice whose beauty enhanced the Ziegfeld extravaganzas, and Mildred Borst, as theatre audience often saw her. The four women will share equally in about $1,000,000, according to unofficial estimates. Guggenheim left no provisions for his widow or son in his will. "I have amply provided for them during my lifetime," his testaments assert. Florence Sullivan is the fourth woman. Guggenheim's widow is contesting the will.

ANOTHER COMMON ENEMY THAT'S A MENACE TO MANKIND

Summer diarrhoea of babies, typhoid fever, eye diseases and other dangerous and painful infections come in the wake of the common house fly. We face this danger every year during the hot weather. Lectures and writings by medical men, health authorities and other experts have done a lot towards educating people to fight this menace.

However, you cannot educate a fly and flies, being no respecters of persons, still invade our homes and stores with impurity. When you consider that the bacteria on a single fly's hairy body may number five million and that these carriers of germs are born and bred in filth which may be deposited in food or on the infant in his cot, it can readily be understood how important it is to exterminate every fly without delay.

And flies, if left alone, multiply phenomenally, too! Of the many methods for killing flies, probably the quickest, most humane and most deadly is to place a few Wilson's Fly Pads in the most suitable places throughout the house. They're inconspicuous and kill all the flies — once and for all. It's such an easy way to eliminate the fly menace in our homes and stores and thus help make our community a healthier place in which to live.

And another point of interest to people who suffer from those troublesome and destructive pests —ants—Wilson's Fly Pads offer a sure-death remedy. Just a teaspoonful of sugar, water and a Wilson's Fly Pad is all that's needed.

Looking Back on Canada

with FRED WILLIAMS

On This Date

Fifty years ago today (July 26, 1891) New Brunswick mourned the death of Hon. William Henry Odell, one of the original senators for the province. Little is known of his career outside of his native province, but there he is recalled as a man who by his own initiative acquired distinction in public life. Born in 1811, he was called to the bar of New Brunswick in 1838. Thereafter he was, in succession, clerk of the supreme court of New Brunswick, deputy provincial secretary, registrar and clerk of the executive council. In 1847 he was appointed a judge of common pleas. Three years later he was called to the legislative council, where he won distinction by his clear discussion of public questions. Although never a member of the assembly, he was highly regarded by the people and was a most satisfactory postmaster-general of the province, 1865-66.

Mr. Odell was fourth on the list of the first New Brunswick senators. He took a decided stand when the interests of his province were affected; he was, like Sir Leonard Tilley, very religious and an ardent advocate of prohibition of the liquor traffic. He continued to travel to Ottawa every year until shortly before his death at the age of 80, quite active for a man of his years and much esteemed by his colleagues of the "Red Chamber."

Bob Hope, who stars with the lovely Dorothy Lamour in the witty, hilarious comedy hit, "Caught in the draft," next at the Belle, after three weeks at the Uptown Theatre, Toronto.

FILM ENTERTAINMENT IN ONTARIO

In this time of war, the British motion picture industry continues to improve, Technical standards have been raised by the producers and Canadian audiences have been quick to notice these changes and favorable comment is heard wherever a British film is being featured. This is indicated in the annual report of inspection and censorship in Ontario. Success of British patriotic pictures has reached new heights, being bigger and better productions and featuring many of England's best known stars. Britain is represented in the number of films shown in Ontario by 67, Canada by 16 and the United States by 1903.

Another interesting feature of the report deals with the perennial question of crime or horror. During 1940-41 films with these motives as topics have been fewer in number. In their treatment objectionable aspects have been removed. The Board notes also that drinking scenes and drunkedness are permitted only in as far as that which is essential to the development of the theme.

One reference is of great interest to parents. It concerns the juvenile film fare for children. There is a tendency today to provide entertainment of adult type, the reports says, and as a consequence the theatre owner who desires to offer amusement that is genuinely juvenile in character faces a great difficulty. The Board, however, expresses the opinion that the situation can be met by an appeal to the parent to exercise control over the child in matter of entertainment. It says, "It is a not uncommon sight to see adults taking children to theatres to view entertainment which in itself cannot be described as harmful or objectionable to the adult mind, but definitely out of line insofar as children are concerned ... . The Board has done its utmost to meet the situation but can make no definite progress until it enjoys the co-operation of parents."

Distributors of news reels are commended for their efforts in keeping the Canadian audiences well informed on the latest happenings in the war theatre. Ontario audiences have been supplied with Canadian or Ontario events of interest.

The strong appeal of the motion picture is indicated by the steady growth in the number of theatres. The report shows "that there has been a steady increase in theatre construction, there being approximately twenty per cent more theatres at the close of the fiscal year than of March 31st., 1937."

The phrase of Shakespeare, nearly three and a half centuries ago "The play's the thing," fits the modern form of drama in the films as it does the stage itself. Their appeals are enduring.

A FERTILE FIELD AGAINST HUNS

Of all aggressors, the Germans have won the most universal detestation in history. Everywhere in Europe the Hun is despised and hated because under Hitler in this war and under the military group in the last war Germany has resorted to the vilest crimes and cruelties. The universal abhorrence of the enemy is therefore based on a moral foundation for the Huns have proven themselves the agents of the very spirit of evil. The endurance and the steadfastness of the peoples who are fighting the aggressor are unique, for everywhere there is the same opposition to the Hun, even though the people are under the enemy's heel.

This moral of spirit provides ground for a movement against the enemy, a movement which will gather momentum and be a potent factor in the Nazi overthrow.

In a world which has seen the principles of right and justice flouted by the enemy, and the spirit of destruction and evil exalted by the Hun, it is not strange that the "V for Victory" movement has a fertile field in which to work. Countless millions of peoples who have been overrun will exercise in due time a mighty force against the enemy.

Down in Yugoslavia, one of the late countries to feel the diabolical cruelty of the Hun, the Serbs are shown as unyielding. From their hiding places they come out to assail the unspeakable foe. In Poland and in Czecho-Slovakia are millions who will play their part in the great day. So it is across Europe.

What a difference a letter makes. Below are some of the heads and typographical errors noted in various publications, and in which the substitution of a letter has turned the usually sedate to the humorous.

A Columbus Dispatch editor must have had his mind on putting out the fire in Europe when he garbled a headline as follows:—

HITLER AND MUSSOLINI

A head that made the managing editor of the Ogden (Utah) Standard stand on his head and call for highballs all round was:—

A large chunk of white space in the Burkbennett, Texas, Star was graced only by this legend at the centre:—"This space belongs to Henry Grace (reporter) who went off to Iowa Park with the copy in his pocket."

CHILD MARRIAGE?

"MARY T. MALLOY Bride AT 4 TODAY"
—Allentown Morning Call.

An unexpected wedding incident was reported by the society editor of the Raleigh (N.C. News and Observer:—

"Mrs. Raglund, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a soft blue lace gown, which fell to the floor."

The Modesto correspondent of the Springfield (Illinois) State Journal ducked down the side streets for a week after the paper printed one of his items as follows:—

Mrs. Nathan Walkington recently fell and broke her right arm. The accident occurred when she STRIPPED and fell in the church during a quilting party."

When Editor Walter Buckner of the San Marcos (Tex.) Record received a wire announcing the birth of a fourth son to Bing Crosby, radio crooner, he headed it this way:—

"BING, BING
BING, BING"

And here is a quote by a columnist in the Marshall (Tex.) Messenger:—

"People who say the hometown newspaper doesn't print all the news should be glad that it doesn't."

A startling, if true, revelation by the International News Service as reported in the Washington Times-Herald:—

"Today it was learned that the Simpsons sent their 11-months-old baby to the United States more than a year ago."

And this must have happened before rigor mortis set in:—

POLICE BELIEVE SLAIN GIRL

—Washington Post.

This one raised the eyebrows of its socialite readers:—

BRIDE-TO-BE HONORED FRIDAY
AT STORK SHOWER
—Lomita (Cal.) Progress.

It was probably a fortunate thing that the proof-reader of the Titusville (Fla.) Star Advocate caught the error in the society page item which included the following sentence:—"Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Osteen entertained last week at a louse party."

But imagine her surprise when the mistake was revised to read "souse."

The latest in strip-tease was revealed in a headline in the Columbus (Ohio) State Journal which read:—

"Girl prisoner gives slip to captor."

The trouble with travelling on the straight and narrow highway is that you miss all the fun of the sideroads.

NO TOURISTS IN WAR TIME

There's a great ship lying empty at an idle New York pier,
And she should be filled with laughter at this lovely time of year.
Oh, she should be thronged with young folk sailing eastward on the sea
Bound for what was Merry England in the peace that used to be.

Time was her rails were crowded, going out or homeward bound,
And her bands were always playing, but today there's not a sound.
The guards are at her gangway and no friends approach the pier,
And few trips are made to England through this sad and troubled year.

Grim and gray the great ship loiters and it's plain as plain can be
With war in sky and ocean she's afraid to put to sea.
How long, how long, I wonder, will she fret at anchor chain?
How long ere Merry England will be merry once again?

Lost Empire 'Above Clouds' Uncovered

By TOM WOLF

New York (CP) — Huge Inca cities, a buried empire rivalled in size only by the Egyptian pyramids and Angkor, have been dug from the rich jungle humus high in the windswept fastness of the Peruvian Sierras.

Three megalithic caves in one of them hint that it perhaps is the fabled "Tampu Tocco," the long-sought cradle of Inca civilization.

This is the word that comes from the Wenner-Gren Scientific Expedition to Hispanic America which plunged for eight months into the unexplored "Green Hell" of the Amazon's upper reaches and the eastern slopes of the Andes.

With the co-operation of the Peruvian government, the expedition, which was financed by the Swedish industrialist Axel L. Wenner-Gren, set out last May from Puerto Maldonado in the Madre de Dios province of Peru. Dr. Paul Fejos, a Hungarian-born American citizen who has been a Rockefeller Foundation physician and a Hollywood movie director led the group.

At the end of a 250-mile, adventure-frought boat trip up the Rio Madre de Dios and Rio Colorado, the party scaled the Andes and arrived at the famed Macchu Picchu Inca ruins near Cuzco.

Historians have long known that sometime in the first centuries A.D. the Incas, then living in the lowlands, were badly beaten by hostile tribes and fled to the impregnable heights of the Sierras. There they built a system of huge city-fortresses, interconnected by miles of roads. Here they prepared for centuries to avenge their defeat.

Then, sometime around 1000 A.D., led by three brothers, they started from a place called "Tampu Tocco"—the place of the windows, or caves—for the great Incaic conquest. For 500 years, until the conquistadores shattered, it their civilization flourished from Bolivia to Ecuador. Then they returned to their hidden mountain fortresses.

Macchu Picchu, unearthed in 1912, was the most important of these fortress-city ruins known when Dr. Fejos and his band of archaeologists, ethnologists, and geologists arrived there early last November.

Then, in one of those history-making episodes that are half skill and half luck, the Wenner-Gren expedition discovered on November 20, an ancient paved road leading from the Macchu Picchu region. It led, after diligent searching, over the Macchu Picchu ridge, past several buried Inca buildings, to two ancient cities, heavily overgrown with bushy vegetation, moss, and occasional trees.

The Indian porters gave the cities Quechua (Incaic) names: The first, Phuyu Pata Marka ("The City Above the Clouds"); the second, Sayaq Marka ("The Inaccessible City"). Dr. Fejos officially named the group of ruin complexes after his sponsor, called them the Wenner-Gren Ruins.

Phuyu Pata Marka, of which 14,000 square yards have so far been cleared, goes precipitously up a mountain to a small fort, 12,000 feet up. The city, which is remarkably well preserved, has four distinct groupings. Uppermost is a large, solid granite promontory surrounded by a corridor. Off this four granite stairways run into the four parts of the city. The four groups of houses and towers are connected by a maze of stairways, streets and terraces, swinging into the valley. The houses are well intact, but have not yet been cleared inside.

In the valley are five baths, fed by an intricate maze of water channels and a large plaza. A highway which bisects the city crosses the water channels by a monolith bridge.

In the lower part of the city, under heavy forest growth, three cave-like structures were found. They had been built by digging under huge granite boulders which had fallen into the valley. Masonry walls support three sides. The fourth is open. Was this the "Tampu Tocco"?

Sayaq Marka, built on an inaccessible promontory 12,000 feet up, is wedged into a 3,600-square-yard area which clings to the mountain side.

Topped by a watch tower, the city is split into three parts — with baths, houses, plazas, terraces, temples, stairways, and water channels similar to those at Phuyu Pata Marka.

These, Dr. Fejos thinks, are just the beginning.

"There is not the slightest doubt in (my) mind," he wrote Mr. Wenner-Gren, "that the region of the Cordilleras eastward from Macchu Picchu, towards the slopes of the montana, probably extending as far as Madre de Dios, holds an enormous empire of the megalithic races that are today called the Incas."

Dr. Fejos should know about Madre de Dios if any one does. He is one of the few white men ever to come out of the region alive. His trip up the Rio Madre de Dios en route to Macchu Picchu pales fiction thrillers by comparison.

TREE COTTON

American agricultural experts are exploring Mexico and Central America to see whether the supply of tree cotton needed by the United States may be grown in those regions.

Tree cotton is known by several different names—kapok, silk cotton, gossampine cotton, and Java cotton.

It is the fine, silky, white cotton-like fibre that grows in the seed pods of the Randoe tree, or kapok tree, which is native to Java, Ceylon, Ethiopia, the Philippines and other tropical regions.

The United States every year normally imports hundreds of thousands of tons of kapok from the East Indies and takes about half of the total production of Java, in the Netherlands East Indies.

Unlike ordinary cotton, Java cotton does not cling to the seed but is a part of it.

Kapok, which is gathered from wild trees in the Old World tropics, possesses many remarkable qualities and accordingly has many commercial uses.

Its resilience makes it desirable for filler in mattresses, pillows, cushions and upholstery.

Ordinary cotton absorbs water, but tree cotton rejects it, and its specific gravity is less than that of any other durable vegetable fibre. The buoyancy of kapok is five times that of cork.

It is widely used in life preservers and other life-saving appliances.

Kapok is an effective insulating material for both heat and sound and is employed in the manufacture of sleeping-bags, suits for aviators, refrigerators, cold-storage rooms and insulated road and rail vehicles.

The long fibres, an inch or more in length, lend themselves to being specially processed into blankets an inch or two in thickness.

Tree cotton seeds yield an oil used for soap-making and for food.

It is believed that kapok could not be grown profitably in North America north of Mexico but there is every reason to suppose that it would thrive in the American tropics.

In fact, when Columbus first visited the West Indies he found the Indians using a kind of native tree cotton for sleeping hammocks, fillets for the arms and legs, winding sheets for the dead and various crude garments such as loin cloths, aprons, tunics, and sleeveless jackets.

A TIP FOR SUFFERERS FROM RHEUMATIC PAINS

If you suffer from rheumatic pains here is a good tip—a method by which you can get the best out of any treatment, and one which has brought relief to thousands of people.

Take Kruschen Salts in a glass of warm water every morning. Kruschen helps rheumatic pain sufferers in two ways. It cleans out the poisons which exist in almost every person's bloodstream (these are the poisons which give you local pains and aches) and it helps the kidneys to filter out fresh poisons which may be forming. Try this simple treatment over a month and watch the results. Kruschen can be obtained from any drug store. 25c and 75c.

OIL EMBARGO TOPS

Cut Short Visit

In this connection it was regarded as significant that Treasury Secretary Morgenthau cut short a visit with his parents in Bar Harbro, Me., to return to the capitol today, explaining that the national emergency made it necessary for him to do so. In the past Morgenthau has been active in working out anti-Axis economic measures.

The possibility of an oil embargo arose after President Roosevelt in short blunt sentences—all phrased in the past tense—suddenly broke official silence on why the Japanese have been allowed to obtain American oil thus far.

Done to Keep Peace

Had the oil been cut off, he told a gorup of civilian defence workers at the White House late yesterday "they probably would have gone down to the Dutch East Indies a year ago, and you would have had war."

Widely considered to be among the most significant aspects of the President's statement was that it was put in the past tense. From this was drawn the generally accepted inference that since Japan have acted in Indo-China he might be ready to impose an oil embargo along with other strong economic measures.

At the capitol, Senator George Norris (Ind.-Neb.) declared that if the Japanese moved against the Dutch Indies it would constitute a serious threat to this country and eventually "might reach a point where the use of our navy would be justified."

Likewise, Senator Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared that the Japanese "are threatening our vital interests in the Pacific and we should use any means necessary to preserve those interests."

While the Welles statement said the Japanese move into Indo-China was taken with French agreement because of Japan's threat to use force, Senator Norris declared it furnished reason for the United States to break off diplomatic relations with the Vichy government of France.

Must Give Up Idea

"We must give up any idea that the Vichy government represents a sovereign state or that it is a government with which we can do business", Norris told reporters.

"The reported Vichy decision to hand over bases in Indo-China to the Japs couldn't have been done more to Hitler's liking if he had done it himself".

Should an embargo be ordered the government had a promise of full support by the oil industry on the West Coast.

Its Public Relations Committee at Los Angeles announced last night that the industry would "cooperate with the government's wishes regarding sales of oil to Japan as it has in the past and will stop those sales any time the State Department requests it to do so".

In addition to the oil embargo possible economic weapons which might be used against Japan included a ban against imports of Japanese silk, the freezing of Japanese assets in this country and discontinuance of gold buying from Japan which has put about $500,000,000 in Japanese hands in the last three years.

Cigarette Shortage In Old London Shows Contrast

By WILLIAM STEWART

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 25 (CP)—The contrast between life today in War-time London and any Canadian city is brought home as sharply by the cigaret shortage as by any other factor.

A Canadian just arrived in London from Canada, where you can go out, and buy 10,000 cigarets if you want to and have the money, becomes aware of the shortage immediately.

"Sorry—we are all out of cigarets and tobacco," they tell you, not in one tobacco shop, but in one after another.

A fellow-worker here has managed to keep well supplied on the strength of his acquaintance with shop-keepers and tobacconists with who he has done business for many months.

No Chance For New Arrival

A new arrival in England doesn't stand a chance when old customers are lined up before shop counters. But in some cases, regular customers are no more fortunate than newcomers.

I saw an aged gentleman standing sorrowfully in one shop on the Strand while the girl behind the counter told other would-be buyers:

"He's one of our oldest customers, and we can't even supply him."

Some British cigaret manufacturers have been running advertisements in the London newspaper promising smokers that retail supplies will be restored if consumption is temporarily curtailed.

The advertisements urge smokers to use fewer cigarets to permit factories, operating at capacity, to catch up.

Nazi "Scoop" . . . Roosev elt a Mason . . . Tsk-Tsk!

Here is that picture with which the Nazi press made good its threat to "tear the lid right off Roosevelt." It shows the President, CENTRE, seated amid a group of men, all of whom are wearing Masonic regalia. To the Nazis this may come under the heading of a "sensational expose," but to the literate world it is no secret, for all reference books on F.D.R. list his Masonic membership. The Nazis described the photo as having been made in 1930. Actually it was made in 1935 when the President attended the initiation of his sons, James (immediately behind his father) and Franklin, Jr., to the RIGHT of James. Also shown in the photo are Justice Ferdinand Pecora and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, LEFT.

Men of Fifty, Woman of 40 May Be Called

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 25—(CP)—Growing demands for manpower by the armed forces and industry may require mobilization of men of 50 and women of 40 for essential war work, it was reliably forecast.

The prediction was made as the Labor Ministry disclosed plans for registering, between Aug. 2 and Dec. 6, men of the 1897, 1896 and 1895 classes, estimated to total 900,000 and about 2,100,000 women of the 1916 and 1910 classes, inclusive.

It was predicted that the registrations may not stop even with men of 50 and women of 40 because replacements are needed in the growing industrial army for younger men called up for the armed forces.

The women are needed not only for industry but for auxiliary services as well.

NORMAL TRAFFIC IS RESUMED

Fourth Trainman in Head-on Collision Near Vancouver, Dies

Vancouver, July 25 (CP)—Normal traffic schedules were resumed today on the single track used jointly by Great Northern and Canadian National Railways between here and New Westminster where a head-on collision yesterday between passenger trains of the two systems brought death to four trainmen and injury to 22 other persons.

Charles Lynman of Vancouver, crewman of the second section of the Canadian National westbound Continental Limited, died in hospital at New Westminster, 12 miles east of here, last night, fourth trainman to die as a result of the crash.

Killed in the wreck were A. Hager, fireman of the Seattle-bound Great Northern train; H. H. Mills, of Vancouver, C.N.R. engineer, and H. H. Krinks of Vancouver, C.N.R. baggageman.

Krinks' body was recovered last night from the wreckage of his baggage car by joint crews of the two railway companies working to clear the line.

On Single Line

The collision occurred on the single track line just east of a double track section where the Great Northern train had already passed No. 2 Section of the Continental Limited.

No reason was given by either company for the wreck but C.N.R. officials said both sections of the "Limited" had "right over the Great Northern train from New Westminster to Endot Siding which is the east end of the double track."

Great Northern officials at headquarters in Seattle did not comment.

Still in hospital in serious condition was John Carey of Seattle, G.N. engineer.

Also in hospital were 21 passengers, many of the Prairie visitors en route to the coast on vacations. Hospital authorities said most of those admitted suffered "head and chest injuries" and were in "good condition."

A score of other persons from both trains were treated at the scene for minor injuries including shock and abrasions.

AT THE BELLE

"Power Dive"

Gripping the audience with thrills and suspense, Paramount's latest sky spectacle, "Power Dive," zoomes the screen on the Belle theatre to a new high in air pictures.

Blood-pounding scenes flavor the absorbing story behind the making of a new type of airplane a geodetic plastic army trainer. With the huge wave of preparedness sweeping America and with aircraft progress in the forefront of public interest, "Power Dive" is almost timely and important.

The story concerns itself with a beautiful girl, the daughter of an airplane inventor, who interests two brothers, a test pilot and an engineer, in her father's radically new ship. Excellent adventure in romance takes place, when both brothers fall in love with the girl. But the titian-haired beauty, Jean Parker, keeps them guessing until they succeed in making her father's dream come true. Richard Arlen, the test pilot hero, and his kid brother, Don Castle, risk their necks and their hearts for the girl they love, and America's new air defense program.

In addition to this trio of outstanding performers, the other feature players include Roger Pryor, Helen Mack, Cliff Edwards, Louis Jean Heydt and little Billy Lee.

"Las Vegas Nights," Funny

A story of night life in one of the last frontier towns in the country, the wide-open, always-gay little town of Las Vegas, Nevada, will be on view from Paramount's new comedy with music "Las Vegas Nights," which is the added feature attraction.

Merging swing music and fast-moving comedy, "Las Vegas Nights" features in its cast the swing orchestra of Tommy Dorsey, one of the most popular bands in the country; Bert Wheeler, Constance Moore, Phil Regan, Betty Brewer, Lillian Cornell, Virginia Dale, and Red Donohue and his mule "Uno."

Told against the exciting background of the gambling halls of Las Vergas, the film relates the story of the adventures of a vaudeville troupe whose members find quick riches and romance when they come to "The Friendly City" to collect an inheritance.

Bob Hope Drafts Laughs

Notice to all citizens of Belleville;

Beginning tomorrow if you see people walking around the streets wearing a silly grin don't be alarmed. They're doing their patriotic duty, according to Bob Hope who has joined the army in "Caught in the Draft," Paramount's all-out comedy to strengthen the American laugh, which opens next at the Belle theatre.

If you're the type that finds it hard to laugh—don't worry—there's Hope for you. And with him is Dorothy Lamour, an assurance that the picture is in great shape.

Filled with a wealth of brand new army gags delivered in the inimitable Hope fashion, the story describes a rookie's life in the army. Against a background of running-wild tanks comedy warfare, parachute drops and catchy new tunes, the film promises to be an even funnier show than Bob's comedy hit, "Road to Zanzibar."

Bob and Dorothy are assisted by Lynne Overman (a scrooge) and Eddie Bracken (a stooge) who do their best to show the army a few new ricks. Clarence Kolb becomes the most irritated colonel in the whole army when his daughter Dorothy campaigns to make her sweetheart a hero.

The rookie gets his cookie, but not before he proves himself a hero to her father in a hair-raising episode that takes place during some army war games. The embryonic General saves the army from the last of the Hope-Lynne-Bracken unmilitary strategy.

"Respect the Law," is another of the crime-does-not-pay stories to be exhibited on the same program with "Olive's Sweepstake Ticket" and the Belle latest world news events. On Saturday matinee the newest Chapter of "Winners of the West" serial will be exhibited. Continuous shows will be shown on Saturday starting at 2.30 p.m.

Fashion Flashes

THE COLLEGE CAMPUS crowd is thinking in terms of clothes for next semester. A smart outfit consists of a cardigan in light green pin whale corduroy with blazer binding in dark green flannel to match dark green flannel skirt.

OF COURSE IT'S EARLY to be thinking of fur hats, but the shops are already doing their ordering. Safari brown sealskin is used for a handsome and enormous off-face heart-shaped beret. There is a large maching muff.

STEPPING OUT from the covers of yesteryear issues of magazines is a delightful series of frocks. Adapted from a cover of 1903 is a ballroom dress of pastel blue satin with off-shoulder neckline, draped skirt and opulent rhinestone embroideries.

PUT YOUR BEST FOOT FORWARD and wear those grand sabot suedes for walking. Wine red suede is used for a sabot shoe with very wide strap. Raised strips and decorative stitching trims the front quarter.

AT LAST something new in the watch line. It consists of a tiny watch around which is another dial with movable hands to mark the hours of an appointment.

CARRYING OVER into autumn is the dress with its matching jacket. An advance model done in wine, red or green soft woolen has a hiplength jacket buttoned down the front and trimmed with big crescent-shaped pockets of nutria that are separate from the jacket. A youthful bow collar of the nutria.

The snarling lips, the glaring eyes, the beetling brows—these are the aspects of the villain—and they come to life on the screen in the characterization, as above, of Alan Mowbray in RKO Radio's hilarious re-creation of one of the old melodramas, under the title of "The Villain Still Pursued Her!," starting Sunday midnight at the Capitol. Harold B. Franklin produced the opus, which is enriched with a notable cast of characters. Inset is a conventional stage villain from an old wood-cut of the kerosene-lamp period.

Engagement Party for Sister

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My sister is planning on becoming engaged in the near future, and I would like to give a party in her honor. I am somewhat puzzled as to just how to go about it.

1.—Who invites the guests.

2.—Would a cocktail party be in order?

3.—Should my mother and father and my sister's fiance's mother and father be present, as well as all members of the immediate families? Should both men and women be invited?

4.—Should written invitations be sent?

5.—Do the guests usually bring presents to this kind of party?

Polly

1.—I am not entirely sure whether your questions refer to a party to announce your sister's engagement, or a party in her honor after the engagement has been announced.

The announcement of an engagement is made by the parents of the bride-elect. When the announcement is to be made at a party it is the girl's mother who invites the guests. In her invitation she includes her husband's invitation.

But if this is not an announcement party, you, the hostess, would invite the guests to your party. If you live with your mother and father, it would be polite for you to begin your invitation like this, "Mother and I would be so happy if you will come to an informal little party that we are giving for . . . ."

2.—For either the announcement party or the party in honor of your sister, any type of party is appropriate. A late afternoon party, a tea party or a cocktail party (or a combination of these) is at a convenient hour and will mean that you can invite more guests.

3.—Yes, for either type of party the mothers and fathers relatives and friends would be invited. Both men and women should be invited.

4.—The members of the families might properly be invited verbally, and notes written to invite the other guests.

5.—Sometimes guests bring engagement presents to this kind of party. Engagement presents are not very customary except from close relatives and close friends. If they are given, they are more often given at other times than at a party.

Must Announcement be Acknowledged?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

What is the proper procedure when I receive an announcement of a marriage? There was a church wedding, but I was not invited.

D.R.

A marriage announcement does not really demand any kind of acknowledgment. When there is a fairly large church wedding, and we have not been invited, but do receive an announcement, the evident idea is that we are considered only an acquaintance and, as such, are merely notified that the ceremony has been performed.

However, many polite people, even though they realize that it is not "strictly necessary" to acknowledge a marriage announcement, always send a gracious note of acknowledgment and of best wishes. This courtesy takes only a few minutes and has special grace.

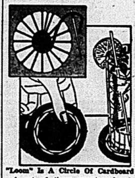
Set of Cheery Coasters You Will Enjoy Weaving



"Loom" Is A Circle Of Cardboard

A set of these smart red-and-white coasters is so delightfully easy to weave!

You use soft cord on a "loom" which is really a 3½-inch circle cut from heavy cardboard. To prepare this "loom" for weaving you divide its edge, with pencil marks, into 16 equal sections. Cut V-shaped notches at each mark and a 17th notch between any 2 notches.

Then paste one end of the red cord to the centre and carry it across the loom, through a notch, and through notch across loom to opposite notch.

When you have wound through every notch, you've set up what's called the warp threads. Then bring cord back to centre where you start weaving with it, going over and under warp threads as in darning.

When your circle's 2¼ inches in diameter cut the red cord and tie white cord to it, weaving with the white for 2 rows. Then go back to red, finishing by slip-stitching cord to the nearest loop.

You can easily make yourself doilies, belts and purses, too, on cardboard "looms." Our 32-page booklet tells how, in detail. Also explains simple methods of weaving lovely place mats, pillow tops, knitting bags, other useful novelties.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO WEAVE USEFUL NOVELTIES to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Tired of Pursuing Will-o'-the-Wisp

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've just finished re-reading Robert Louis Stevenson's "Virginibus Purisque," in which he says if someone takes the peach you've had your eye on before the dish gets 'round to you, you pick out the next one that strikes your fancy.

This is my case exactly. I've been languishing over a particular peach ever since I left college. I'm in the draft now and think it more than likely I shall not serve beyond this year. Frankly, I'd like to settle down with some other peach as my wife, though I haven't met her up to the present time.

J.W.L.

You're very sensible not to waste your youth and chances of a normal happy life on so unresponsive a girl as you describe. Solace yourself with the old adage: "If she be not fair for me, what care I how fair she be?" Let the indifferent peach do the worrying. When you drop out of her life, like thousands of other girls, she'll probably decide, "I never knew I loved him 'til I lost him."

Broken Up Over Wife's Conduct

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We have been married 14 years and have always been very congenial. But now a freind of ours claims he has fallen in love with my wife. He has a wife, but they are not getting along well and she is going to leave him.

My wife says she likes him also and wants to see him now and then for about two months to see if she loves him. I love her very devotedly and am all broken up over this. I can't believe this has happened to me. We have a boy of ten years.

I think my wife still loves me.

Very Heart Broken.

I cannot imagine a woman in full possession of her faculties making such a proposition to her husband, and I wonder at your patience in dealing with it. One sees plots like this in the movies sometimes, and perhaps your wife has been seeing too many flickers of this type. Let's hope that she'll come to her senses concerning your friend.

Worthwhile women who have boys of ten usually have a feeling of responsibility for their welfare.

Wasting Her Time?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been in love with a boy for over five years and have gone with him off and on. He says he likes me a lot, but outside of that he doesn't show any sign of affection for me. He seems to take my love for granted, and knows that I jump at the chance to be with him.

I think the main reason he is so stand-offish is because of the likelihood of his being called for training. What shall I do? Shall I be patient and go on loving him, hoping that he may learn to love me? Please help me.

Anxious.

If you've been going with him for five years, the likelihood of his being called up did not come into the picture until at least three years after you became acquainted. It seems unwise to me to attribute his dilatory tactics to this. He seems to be one of those young men who is not above wasting a girl's time.

Try to take an interest in someone else. Don't let him feel that you jump at the chance to be with him.

For Saturday, July 26

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WHILE this day's aspects promise much opportunity for advancement, preferment, public recognition and cooperation, with fair support for all sorts of cooperations, fraternities, political or diplomatic circles, yet there may be upsets, obstacles, postponements and delays as well as other anxious and depressing situations to cope with. This may involve a complete about-face in plans, associations, interests, objectives and environs.

Those whose birthday it is, although encountering a year of promise for promotion, expansion, and public or group honors or support, yet may find impediment, limitations, delays and disappointments to challenge the abilities as well as patience and fortitude. Large organizations and influential friends may be counted upon to come to the rescue if diplomatically and sagaciously convinced of the worth of propositions.

Many Cases of Low Back Pain Due to Protruding Disks

A few years ago an individual with pain in the small of the back and down the leg was said to have rheumatism in the form of lumbago and sciatica. The treatment was the same as for rheumatism, that is, removal of any infection and application of heat. Later the non-starch diet was made part of the treatment.

More recently, as low backache became even more common, it was found that many cases were due to injury—raising a heavy weight, stepping downward where ground or floor was thought to be level, striking at a golf ball and missing it, stretching leg to put on brake of a car. By various methods—brace, putting bones into place under an anaesthetic and even operation—most of these cases recovered.

I spoke recently of another cause for low backache—where the disks or cushions between the bones of the spine in the lower back protruded or stuck out into the joint so that any movement, any shock or shaking of the body such as sneezing or coughing caused pain. Five physicians reported their experiece with these cases of "protrusion of intervertebral disks" at the last annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association in Toronto.

In Archives of Surgery, Drs. J. G. Love and M. N. Walsh report their study or analysis of 500 cases in which operation was performed for protrusion of one or more of these disks or cushions and about 30 or 60 per cent gave a history of injury to the back.

Most of the patients with protruding disks complain of pain down one side—hip, thigh, lower leg—which is increased by coughing, sneezing or straining. The protruding disk can be seen by the Xray after lipiodol or air have been injected.

While rest and wearing a brace helps to relieve most low back symptoms, the usual treatment in intervertebral disk protrusion is operation by a skilled surgeon.

The thought, then, is that where low back pain persists after infection has been removed or persists when low back is supported by a suitable brace, the possibility that a protruding disk is causing the pain should no be forgotten.

DIET PLAYS IMPORTANT ROLE IN BRIGHT'S DISEASE TREATMENT

One hundred years ago an Englishman named John Bright described the condition of failure of the kidneys which is now known as Bright's disease, called scientifically chronic nephritis or inflammation of the kidneys. In Bright's disease, the inflammation which takes place in the finer structure of the kidney permits the protein material to filter through, so that one of the common signs of Bright's disease is the presence of albumin in the urine.

One of the fundamental functions of the kidneys is to maintain the delicate balance between acid and alkali in the blood. When the fine tissue of the kidneys is inflamed, this function is interfered with and, therefore, the tendency to acidosis is great.

It was recognized early that people with Bright's disease must be careful about their diets, including not only the foods which they eat but the amount of such foods, and also the amount of water and salt taken into the body. Naturally, before a doctor can be absolutely certain as to the kind of a diet that such a patient ought to take, he has to study the individual patient.

Every person with an inflammation of the kidneys has a different amount and degree of inflammation. The amount of fluid and salt that the patient gets depends on the water, salt, protein and the nitrogen content of the fluid material of his blood; also on the volume of urine that he gives out, and on the changes in his weight. Much depends on whether or not he has developed a swelling of the legs or other portions of the body, due to failure to eliminate fluid.

The presence of headaches and high blood pressure may still further complicate the situation. In Europe, for years, it has been customary to treat high blood pressure by fasting and by diets low in salt, at the same time taking considerable quantities of fruit juices and tomato juice. After the fast, the patient takes fresh fruit or salads but limits his fluids.

However, depression, nervousness, and weakness develop in patients who are without satisfactory amounts of food. Dr. Soma Weiss of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, in Boston, emphasizes particularly the importance of avoiding any fixed routine for all patients. The person who is in the early stages may have one kind of diet while another in a later stage may require a different diet.

In chronic Bright's disease, which lasts many years, it is necessary to build the patient's nutrition to the highest possible point. Overweight must be controlled by controlling the amount of carbohydrates. Prolonged restriction of protein is harmful because it results in body weakness and anemia.

There has been a popular belief that meat in any form is harmful to people with Bright's disease. Modern diets emphasize the importance of adequate amounts of protein. If the blood shows a deficiency in protein, the amount is increased. Indeed, Dr. Weiss suggests that the protein content of the diet be from 80 to 120 grams daily. In the absence of any swelling of the tissue by fluid, water intake is not restricted, but patients are warned against drinking excessive amounts of fluid. They are permitted to take alcohol, tea, and coffee in moderation, if they have become accustomed to these substances.

TOKYO PRESS MORE HOSTILE

Japan Times and Advertiser Links Thailand With Indo-China

Tokyo, July 26 (AP)—All of French Indo-China obviously is in need of adequate defence which will guarantee the integrity of the region, the Japan Times and Advertiser declared today as the Tokyo press adopted a more antagonistic attitude toward Great Britain and the United States.

Maintenance of stability in Thailand (Siam) was closely linked with the "serious situation" in Indo-China by the Times and Advertiser, organ of the foreign office.

The paper made no reference to reports from abroad that Japan had gained the right to establish bases in southern Indo-China but it asserted Japan was "fully warranted in countering hostile activities" within her previously defined "co-prosperity sphere."

The paper referred caustically to the "encirclement of Indo-China by Anglo-American and Chungking interests," which it said took the form of "aerial, naval and military bases extending from India and Burma around to Malaya and the Philippines."

Says Rights 'Infringed'

Japan's newly-acquired commercial rights in Indo-China, the Times and Advertiser said, have been "imperilled" by these developments. It added:

"In these delicate circumstances it is imperative that adequate defence steps be taken by Japan, because if her commercial treaty (with Indo-China) is menaced, the economic rights of Japan would be in jeopardy."

Maintenance of stability in Thailand is related to this issue, the organ asserted.

Although reports from Vichy and Saigon said Japan had gained the right to install important bases in the French colony, the Japanese government refused to admit that any settlement had been reached.

A spokesman, asked to comment on the reports, said only that the foreign office was making inquiries at Vichy.

Charges By Newspaper Yomiuri

The newspaper Yomiuri charged that the United States and Britain planned to obtain air bases in China to raid Japan under the guise of strengthening the Chungking Air Forces. It added that British-American activities in the Far East now really threaten Japan.

Yomiuri said it was significant to Japan that the United States had established an aircraft plant in India and that Britain now permitted the United States to advance into India.

There was no elaboration of the reference to the aircraft plant but the newspaper said:—

"Such activity is definitely not in the best interests of Japan."

Asahi's Claims

Asahi reported that Britain had increased her forces along the Burma and Malaya borders.

"Meanwhile malicious anti-Japanese propaganda is spread in Thailand in order to create uneasiness among the natives" it charged.

Any action by the United States and Britain to freeze Japanese credits was not expected to take the government by surprise, for special representatives of the Finance Ministry have been making inquiries during the past week about the assets of foreign corporations.

The government spokesman indicated Russian Ambassador Constantin Smetanin would see Foreign Minister Vice-Admiral Teijiro Toyoda for the first time this afternoon at a formal gathering of foreign diplomats.

The spokesman, Ichii Kishi, of of the Cabinet Information Board, described Russia as "a friendly power with which we have treaty relations."

It was Kishi who declared that "Japan never has given up hope of betterment of relations with the United States.

HAROLD PHILBROOK HELD FOR MURDER IN STABBING CASE

Max Kedin, Boxer, Held as Material Witness in Woman's Death

ACCUSED IN HOSPITAL

Toronto, July 25. —(CP)—Police said today that investigation into the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Ida Charlotte Adair, 24, was complete with arrest of Max Kedin, 31, former Toronto boxer in a downtown apartment house Thursday night. Kedin, in custody without bail, is being held as a material witness.

Events followed swiftly after Mrs. Adair, described by police as a party dancer, died in hospital shortly after she was found wounded in a downtown street early Thursday morning.

Harold Philbrook, 31-year-old meat-packing company traveller, was charged with the murder and a police guard was stationed at his bed in the hospital. He was removed to hospital suffering grave injuries after his automobile crashed through a guard-rail above railroad tracks 400 yards from where Mrs. Adair was found about the same time as the accident occurred.

Police Quote Kedin

Police quoted Kedin as saying that he had taken the woman to a downtown hotel early in the evening and had not seen her again until he was taken to the morgue by police to identify the body. Police said Kedin told them he had been living with the woman as man and wife since June.

Questioned by police shortly before she died, Mrs. Adair told an incoherent story of being attacked when she refused to enter a man's car.

Police said Philbrook had given them a statement in which he described a fight with the woman in his car "I don't know what happened!" police quoted him as saying. "There was a fight. I was stabbed in the stomach and the knife was there in the car and we fought on. The woman got out of the car. I drove away in a zig-zag manner".

Mrs. Adair's body was released last night and taken to Orillia for burial.

Axis Grabs First Colony Of France

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—The "men of Vichy" have ingloriously surrendered French Indo-China up to Japan in order to "protect" it from wholly mythical dangers of British-Chinese-Free French invasion. This would be a laughable incident of the war but for the grave complications for other peoples, including Americans, which might flow from it.

If any nation covets that far eastern outpost of France's once vast colonial empire, it is Japan. Once fully entrenched there, the flag of the Rising Sun will be difficult to get rid of.

In effect, if not in words, Vichy has assented to an Axis dismemberment of Colonial France. It is trading the actuality of Japanese garrisoning and fortifying of strategic bases which reduce Indo-China to a virtual Japanese puppet state for a tongue-in-cheek assurance from Tokyo that French sovereignty there will remain unimpaired.

Sovereignty without the power to exercise it, the military power, is an empty asset. The history of the last two years is studded with examples of what "protective occupation" means in the Axis lexicon, Norway, Denmark and the Low Countries in the west, Rumania, Bulgaria and all the Balkans in the east are shining examples.

Nursery Tale for Vichy

Even Poland was ravaged by Hitler on a "protective" excuse and Hitler's Russian accomplice in that destruction of a nation is now learning at first hand what Axis "protection" moves mean. Hitler proclaims himself the protector of the world from communism.

If Admiral Darlan and his Vichy colleagues are familiar with the story of 'Little Red Riding Hood' they might recall that when she remarked on the large teeth of Grandma Wolf, she was told they were the better to eat her up. Japanese fangs in the form of naval and air bases in southern Indo-China may be a potential threat to Singapore, to the Netherlands East Indies or to the Philippines. There is nothing potential about the grip they set on a valuable French colony.

Just where the hobgoblin of Chinese-British-Free French invasion of Indo-China was to come from neither Vichy, Tokyo nor Berlin troubled to point out. China, infested with a Japanese army of occupation 1,000,000 or so strong, certainly is too busy at home to go adventuring in that direction. British Empire forces at Singapore have a protective job of their own on hand forbidding territorial forays. If there are any Free French in that part of the world, they must be in Indo-China itself.

Frenchmen not bitten by the Axis collaboration bug cannot reasonably hope for return of Indo-China to French control short of an Axis defeat. The tripartite pact with which Japan hitched her wagon to the Axis star itself awards her unchallenged sway in the Far East. That either Berlin or Rome would be greatly interested in forwarding the interests of their Vichy satellite by challenging continued Japanese occupation of the colony is at least open to doubt.

Neither Frenchmen in the colony nor the native population had any say in the deal. Their fate was sealed by Vichy and Tokyo. Yet it the deal brings Japanese planes based in Southern Indo-China within range of British defenses at Singapore and Burma, it also brings Indo-China in range of British Air Force bombers in the event of hostilities.

And German, Japanese and Vichy denials that Hitler had anything to do with the deal fail to ring true. The diversion effect of the Japanese move while he is faced in Russia with at least a possibility of bogging down for the winter is obvious. Berlin is not a disinterested bystander by any stretch of the imagination.

3rd Sidney

3rd Sidney — Miss Ida McKenzie, Toronto, Travelling Secretary of the Dominion Board Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada addressed a gathering of women at Aiken's Church on Monday afternoon.

This meeting was in charge of Mrs. C. E. Macklin of Stirling, Vice president of the Belleville Section, with Mrs. Fred Westover, President of the Aikens Society, assisting.

In these days of unrest and anxiety we can only find peace in Christian living, said Mrs. Macklin, in the opening worship service.

Through Christians surrendering their wills, and in prayer with faith to be "still and wait" for God to speak, obedience and service will follow, stated Mrs. Macklin. A poem "Who does God's work will get God's pay" was her message in closing.

A solo — "The Stranger of Galilee" was rendered by Miss Parks of the Marsh Hill Auxiliary. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Percy MacMullen of Mount Pleasant. In her address on "What the war may mean to our auxiliaries", Miss McKenzie said that Christian people everywhere must attack the problem of creating unity in our Christian churches and to maintain our faith in God. It is wonderful, she feels, that the missionary enterprise throughout the "orphan countries" (those invaded by the enemy) has been maintained throughout the years of war, with no centres closed. This is through the generosity of the Christian churches in all parts of the world. The British Isles, she said, had maintained their missionaries and had added to their givings to the "orphan" missionaries. The missionary movement depends on individual loyalty and Miss McKenzie continued her address by a practical talk on the basis of the work in the local societies stressing the necessity of a devoted worship-service at each meeting. A vital feeling of true fellowship to build love and understanding was needed, she said, to create loyalty and co-operation from the members. Givings should be sacrificed and enthusiasm was stressed by Miss McKenzie. She told the story of a community woman who attended a W. M. S. meeting for the first time, who said — Has this work been going on all these years and I never knew it. You are good missionary workers but the world's poorest advertisers.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes of Belleville expressed the appreciation of the assembled crowd to Miss McKenzie for this inspirational talk. Lunch was served by the Aikens members with Mrs. Bruce Hogle and Mrs. Harley Hubble presiding at the tables.

Is YOUR JOB wearing too?

TOO MUCH WAR-TIME RUSH? TOO LITTLE EXERCISE?

HIS JOB IS MUNITIONS — Whatever your job, there's no need to endure the dull headaches, the listless days which are the symptoms of incomplete elimination. But is the answer "nasty doses"? No!

SHE RUNS A SWITCHBOARD — Just resolve to get enough "bulk" in your diet to keep food wastes moving. And get this "bulk" in a form you'll really enjoy, so you'll eat it every morning through the year!

HERE'S A TIP FOR TENSE TIMES

These days especially, avoid "blue" spells, headachy feelings. Don't be depressed by incomplete elimination. But, shun harsh cathartics! Instead, follow the lead of happy thousands! Every morning through the year, eat delicious KELLOGG'S BRAN FLAKES WITH OTHER PARTS OF WHEAT. Gently laxative in a natural way, they help supply valuable minerals and proteins, too. And they taste so downright good you'll gladly make them a daily habit. Order Kellogg's Bran Flakes today. Now in two sizes. In restaurants ask for the triple-wrapped individual package.

"With all these war-time orders, my job is extra tiring. But I keep well! Take my tip! No harsh cathartics! Instead, I eat delicious Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning in the year."

KEEP FIT WITH KELLOGG'S every day in the year!

Follow these two rules of health:

1. To get well, see your doctor. 2. To keep well, watch your habits. For an alert mind, a healthy body, guard against incomplete elimination. Better eat this crisp, delicious cereal every morning in the year! Ask your grocer for a couple of packages today — and insist on Kellogg's in the golden-yellow package. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Meeting war-time needs

The new "VICTORY POLICY"

Whatever your job, whatever your income, you should be investing regularly in War Savings Certificates. Yet your family needs adequate protection, too!

The new "Victory Policy" developed by The Mutual Life of Canada enables you to meet both these essential needs. Premiums are exceedingly low for a fixed period of years, while you are investing in War Savings Certificates. And even at the end of this period, when the rate is adjusted, the premium is still lower than you would normally pay. You will be able to use the proceeds of your War Savings Certificates as they mature to pay the premiums.

Permanent protection

The "Victory Policy" is a permanent plan of life insurance. It has been specially prepared to meet your immediate needs and to provide future protection as well. The new "Victory Policy" is available to every adult who is insurable . . . and is especially attractive to men and women with modest incomes.

Ask your nearest Mutual Life representative for complete details of this plan. Or write to The Mutual Life of Canada, Waterloo, Ont.

Cards Sweep Series From Giants With Hurler Ernie White Given Credit for All Three Victories

Saved Game in Tenth Thursday by Fanning Two in That Frame

YANKEES WIN

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

There will never be another "gas house gang" until there is another Pepper Martin, but the present St. Louis Cardinals are the next best thing.

They are a hard-hitting, fast-running, never-say-die gang with a bristling, fiery-eyed little boss named Billy (the kid) Southworth who plays his cards with an abandon never equalled in the major leagues.

This explains how the Redbirds have performed such phenomena as winning 20 games by one run and one pitcher, Lefty Ernie White, winning three games in three days to sweep an entire series from one club, the New York Giants.

The Cardinals nosed out the Giants 3-2 yesterday to bag their second extra-inning game in two days and White, last of four pitchers used by Southworth, fanned two men in the tenth to get credit for his tenth triumph of the season.

Giants Tied For Fourth

The defeat tossed the Giants into a fourth place tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates, who edged out the Phillies 3-2 in the ninth for their 19th victory in 26 games.

Babe Dahlgren's sixth-inning homer, his 14th of the season, snapped a tie and gave the Chicago Cubs a 5-4 victory over his former teammates, the Boston Braves, in the other National League game.

The New York Yankees continued their triumphant stride at the front of the American League, beating the Cleveland Indians 4-1 and stretching their first place margin to 10 games. Charley Keller's 24th homer with one on in the fifth decided the issue.

Bill Dickey Hit

Catcher Bill Dickey was beaned by one of Jim Bagby's fast balls, but the blow was a glancing one and he was able to walk off the field unassisted, apparently just shaken up. However, he was kept in a hospital overnight.

The Philadelphia Athletics made 13 hits, including homers by Sam Chapman and Benny McCoy, to whip the St. Louis Browns 9-7 and take over fifth place from the Detroit Tigers, who were beaten again by the Washington Senators 6-5.

The Boston Red Sox retaliated for Wednesday's shellacking by the Chicago White Sox with an 11-1 thrashing of the Chicago crew.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Jim Brown, Cardinals—Hit double in tenth inning to knock in winning run against Giants.

Charley Keller, Yankees—His two-run homer, 24th of season, clinched victory over Indians.

Sam Chapman and Benny McCoy, Athletics—Their homers paced 13-hit attack that downed Browns.

Stu Martin, Pirates—Delivered pinch single with bases filled in ninth to beat Phillies.

Babe Dahlgren, Cubs—Hit home run for deciding tally in victory over Braves.

McNeill Puzzled As Net Slump Continues

Sea Bright, N.J., July 25 (AP) — The enigma that is Donald L. McNeill, tennis champion of the United States, remains unsolved.

McNeill knows there's plenty wrong with it but no one yet has been able to offer an explanation for the disintegration of a game that carried the modest soft-spoken Oklahoman to the top of the heap last year.

Yesterday in the quarter-final round of the 54th annual Sea Bright tournament McNeill fell victim of the tournament's biggest upset. He was beaten by 20-year-old Ted Schroeder in straight sets, 6-3, 7-5.

"This sudden change from clay to grass does make a difference," he said afterward, "and besides, Schroeder is no soft touch, and he did play fine tennis today."

McNeil wasn't the only victim of the switch to grass, for while McNeill was being defeated by Schroeder, Frankie Parker, who had scored virtually a grand slam in clay court competition, was being crushed by Wayne Sabin, 62, 6-4.

ROYALS BACK IN FULL CRY

Win Twin Bill to Cut Bears' Lead to 4½ Games

(By The Associated Press)

The International League-leading Newark Bears have turned back more challengers to their supremacy the past three months than Joe Louis, but like Louis' opponents they keep coming.

Montreal's Royals, who trailed in second place for the better part of two months before taking a wrong turn somewhere, are back again in full cry.

Royals stretched their winning streak to 10 games last night, taking a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs, 7-2 and 8-2 to clip a half game off the Bears' 4½ game margin. Newark defeated Buffalo, 3-2 in an afternoon game.

Royals teed off on Ken Burkhart for 12 of their 13 hits in the opener, and drove Tom Sunkel from the mound in the second inning of the nightcap, in which they collected 11 more safeties.

John Lindell won a tight pitching duel from Virgil (Fire) Trucks in the afternoon contest, when Bob Patrick, Buffalo outfielder, dropped a fly to let in the Bears winning run.

In the only other game, the Baltimore Orioles ended a six game losing streak by turning back the Rochester Red Wings, 4-3.

WHIRLAWAY GOES IN ARLINGTON

Favored to Win $60,000 Classic at Chicago on Saturday

Chicago, July 25. (AP)—Whirlaway dares the grave yard of champions at Arlington Park tomorrow.

The king of the American turf will go to the post the top heavy favorite in the $60,000 Arlington classic—a race in which many a favorite fell before the stretch charge of unheralded long-shots.

Last year Galladhadion, Kentucky Derby winner, and Bimelech, one of the biggest failures in turf history, staggered home behind the victorious Sirocco, which paid off at $28.20.

Back in 1931, Mate, at 5 to 1, conquered Twenty Grand which had set a record in winning the Kentucky Derby that year. Twenty Grand was an even money shot.

Whirlaway probably will go to the post at odds of 1-6, and by all calculations the winner of the Kentucky, the Preakness and Belmont figures to triumph, yet, it's a horse race, and anything can happen.

Pros Out to Stop Little Ben Hogan

St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—(AP)—Maybe little Ben Hogan can add more cash to the $11,000 or so he has won already this season by finishing well up in he $7,500 open golf tournament starting today, but if he does it will be only after a battle.

Grapevine reports say Hogan's feat of placing in the money in 52 consecutive tournaments have aroused the other pros and they are out to stop him this time But the 135-pound Texan will take some stopping, for he apparently is definitely on his game.

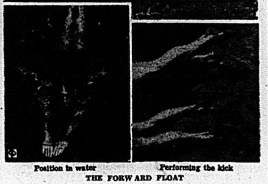
Hogan fired a 67 in the pro-women preliminary round over the sun-baked Keller Course yesterday, which is five under par, but he still was behind Sam Snead, the Canadian Open Champion from Hot Springs, who blasted out a 66.

Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif., also turned in a 67 yesterday as did Johnny Bulla, the big, hard hitting Chicagoan. Mangrum's score, coupled with a 77 for his partner, Mrs. Lucille Mann of Omaha, Neb., was good enough for first place in yesterday's event.

Editor's Note:
This is the second in a series of eight articles on "How to Swim", a Central Press Canadian feature presented by the Ontario Intelligencer. It is designed to help the water neophyte learn the fundamental strokes of swimming and help all to better enjoy the water sport during the summer months. The series will run every other day.

HOW TO SWIM

Aileen Riggin, ex-Olympic star, shows youngsters proper position of the arms for the forward float



Position in water

Performing the kick

THE FORWARD FLOAT

In the last lesson you learned that conquering fear of the water is important. Also that the body has a certain buoyancy in water and how to kick — from the hips rather than from the knees. Remember the kick for it is to be used in this lesson.

Once you have entered the water, go through the steps of lesson one. Now, with your back to the rail, lift your arms and place them straight before you palms down, on the surface of the water. Incline your head forward until your face is submerged. Then draw your legs up, and, placing the soles of the feet firmly against the wall of the pool or the rail, push yourself forward in a face down float.

Remember to stay in water not over your chest in depth.

Repeat this manoeuvre several times until you can do it smoothly. Keep your legs together as you slip through the water. Do not raise the head for breathing, but when you need air, simply lift your head up, allow your legs to touch bottom and stand and rest for a moment before doing the float again.

After you have practised the face-down float, proceed to the next step which is exactly the same plus the addition of the crawl or flutter kick. After you have pushed off, move your legs up and down, swing them freely and easily from the hips. Do not attempt to kick too hard at first, for you will only stop the forward motion of your body.

Practice this diligently for it is very mportant. You will be surprised to see how much forward motion results from the kicking movement alone (after you can do it smoothly) without any arm motion whatsoever.

The kick in any stroke is fully as important as the arm motion.

Sunday Morning Class Team Are Provincial Champions

Champions of all they survey, including the Ontario girls' senior softball title, as well as that of the City of Toronto, the Sunday Morning Class senior girls' softball team will appear in Belleville versus the City "All-stars" in a dual bill of girls softball on Civic Holiday with all proceeds to be given into the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund.

Last year the renowned Sunday Morning Class won the senior girls' softball title of Toronto and then continued on to win the Ontario senior title, disposing of teams from Hamilton and London in their march to a provincial championship. Frank Doughty, genial manager of the S.M.C., has gathered around him star softball players from all parts of Ontario including the Genereaux sisters, Marie and Kay, who hail from Point Anne and who originally learned the fundamentals of girls' softball in Belleville and at the Armouries' diamond, where they will return to show their vast army of admirers that they have become two of the most feared hitters in girls' senior softball circles.

Bea Hughey Heavy Hitter

However, the Genereaux sisters are only two of the many stars boasted of by Manager Doughty and his Sunday Morning Class squad. For instance there is Bea Hughey, their leading hitter, who boasted of a season's batting average of .441 late last week. Miss Hughey is considered one of the most dangerous and consistent hitters in the Ladies' Senior Sunnyside League where she is the leading hitter at present. Next in line is Dora Watson, who also was hitting well over the .400 mark when the last league official batting averages were released.

Bea Hughey

Manager Doughty promised the local girls' league executive to bring both of his ace pitchers, Marge McDonald and Bet McRae to Belleville for the Civic Holiday softball attraction.

NEW FOOTBALL SETUP ENABLES BEACHES TO ENTER

Big Four Suspended for Duration but Three Clubs Ready for Schedule

SAME OFFICERS

Toronto, July 25—(CP)—The East's most select football circle bowed today before the stress of war time and the clamor of the fans and admitted to temporary membership Toronto's "Orphan" Club, the East-End Balmy Beach squad.

At a meeting here yesterday, the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union executive decided to suspend operations for the duration of the war and immediately afterward three of the clubs—Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto Argonauts—agreed to play with Balmy Beach in a new organization called the Eastern Canada Rugby Football Union.

This momentous step—the Big Four, as the I.R.F.U. was commonly called, has been in operation 34 years—had its origin in the decision of the Hamilton Tiger Club executive not to operate during the war. Balmy Beach immediately applied for permission to replace the Tigers and the meeting yesterday dealt with the application.

The constitution of the Big Four, however, did not permit the inclusion of a new club except by approval of the annual meeting. The other three clubs, faced with the prospect of a lopsided schedule, discussed the matter at some length and it was ultimately agreed to set up a new league that would permit the inclusion of Beaches.

Officers of the new group will be the same as those who directed the Big Four with the addition of Ab Box to represent Balmy Beach. James McCaffrey of Ottawa is president; Bob Gamble, Toronto Argos, first vice-president and L. A. Peto of Montreal, second vice-president.

Box was made a member of the executive along with Eddie Emerson, Ottawa; Tommy Alison, Argos and Fred Porter, Montreal.

The former Big Four schedule was adopted with Balmy Beach filling in the dates allotted Hamilton. Opening games on Sept. 27 will send Montreal to Ottawa and Argos against Beaches.

Status of the senior series in the Ontario Rugby Football Union now that Balmy Beach has withdrawn from that league remains uncertain. Secretary Harold Bailey announced however, that Montreal, Kingston, Hamilton and Camp Borden are contemplating entry.

First Dead Heat In Canadian Henley Rowed at St. Kitts

Port Dalhousie, One., July 25 (CP)—A dead heat has been entered in record books of the Royal Canadian Henley for the first time in the regatta's 59-year-old history.

The record-breaking event occurred as the regatta wound up opening-day competition yesterday. A 10-men field entered the open quarter-mile singles dash and at the finish judges were unable to separate Harvey Hutcheon of St. Catharines and Art Gallagher of the Penn A. C.

The two rowed the distance bow to bow. To further complicate matters, judges and spectators couldn't decide on a third so closely bunched were the others behind the double winners.

Hold Special Race

Hutcheon, 1940 Association singles winner and Gallery, who won the United States sprint at Minneapolis last week, will meet in a special race before the opening of today's program to decide the dash championship.

Meanwhile, Toronto Argonauts and Buffalo Westsides, traditional rivals for the aggregate championship, ended the day with 19 points each. Both clubs posted two victories and a second in the four finals.

Art Thorburn carried Argos' colors to victory in the 140-pound singles sprint and an Argo four beat off Westsides' stretch finish to take the junior 140-pound event.

Westsides won both the junior heavy fours, with a boat stroked by J. Cahill, and the 150-pound fours, stroked by R. Perew. Cahill's four crossed the finishing line with a foot margin over Argos and in the 150-pound fours, the Buffalo club whipped Hamilton Leanders by 10 lengths.

GOSSIP & COMMENT

Did you know—if New York Giant Hank Lieber ever decided to quite baseball, he probably could do all right in professional football....When he was full back for the University of Arizona, he once made 90 yards in seven consecutive plunges against Southern California....George Pavish villainous wrestler who was holidaying in Belleville this week, refereed the preliminary bouts at Ottawa recently when "Two-Ton Tony" Galento was the official arbiter for the main go....On Wednesday Boston Red Sox Bob Grove only needs one more win to bring his total pitching victories up to 300....Since 1910 only five pitchers have entered this select circle, Cy Young, Eddie Plank, Walter Johnson, Christy Matheson and Grover Cleveland Alexander....There is no baseball being played between Toronto and Kingston this season...Walt Gerow's Toburn Mine nine suffered their first defeat, in six starts, Wednesday.

While pitching for the Butler, Pa., team of the Penn State League recently, Ralph "Highpockets" McCabe, former Belleville moundsman, struck out four batters in one inning, which is really one for the book. McCabe struck out Koenig and McBride of the Oil City Club and then threw three strikes by Wood, but Davis his catcher dropped the ball and Wood scampered to first safely. McCabe then proceeded to strike out Durrett, making four strikeouts credited to him in the box score in one regulation inning. Incidentally McCabe was struck in the face with a line drive recently, but after six X-ray photographs at the Butler hospital it was announced no fracture had resulted. Against the Johnstown Club in the Penn loop, McCabe struck out 13 batters last week, when he registered his ninth straight win in class "C" company without having sustained a single loss. Incidentally Ralph has only to remain one more week with the Yankee 'chain gang' in order to collect a $500.00 bonus he was given in his contract. No doubt we will find McCabe firing for the Newark Bears of the International League at the end of the Penn State schedule on Labor Day.

Do you remember when world heavyweight champion Jim Corbett successfully defended his title against Billy Maynard 39 years ago today at New York. Corbett scored a knockout in the second round of the bout.

Things We'd Like to See Department—The Cardinals and Reds tied for the pennant and going into a play-off game with these batteries: Cards—Cooper and Cooper; Reds—Riddle and Riddle. It probably would be the first time in the history of baseball that two "brother batteries" faced each other.

The softballers tie into it tonight with two semi-final playdown games in the Senior Men's loop and a girls' tussle at the armouries, where the Corbin lassies must win over the Vikings gals or face elimination from the league play-offs. Down at Point Anne the Esquire kids face the same problem at the hands of "Bubby" Gaulin's Ox Point nine. Gaulin may be persuaded to rest his ace moundsman "Ding" Luffman and send Doug Bennett to the Cement's firing line, while following the fine performance of Ken Campbell, Skipper Townsend would not be ill-advised to start the elongated Foxboro youth right back at the Point Anners. However, the big game will be at the Flats, where the Reliance and Corbys [illegible] tangle in a third game, tied with one win each. Corbys enjoyed a certain amount of luck, when they evened the series last Monday, as poor management on the part of the Reliance placed them in a vulnerable position that the slugging Corbys were quick to take advantage of. The team winning tonight will have a decided edge in the best-in-five series.

The baseball writers who acted as official scorers during Joe DiMaggio's consecutive hitting streak have a big load off their shoulders now. It frequently was up to them to decide on close plays whether Joe had made a hit or whether a fielder had made an error. Dan Daniel of the World-Telegram, who scored the Yankees' home games, tells of a tough one.

"DiMaggio has pasted the ball with every ounce of his strength. He stumbles a little, he dashes for first. Tabor (Jim Tabor, Boston Red Sox third baseman) is playing deep. The ball almost knocks him over. Jim has to make a hurried heave—the throw goes wild and Joe reaches second. The Yankees have piled out of their dugout and are looking up at me. The fans are looking at me. The other writers are looking at me." P.S.—Daniel held up one finger, meaning it was a hit.

Toronto's Balmy Beach Club was admitted into the old Interprovincial grid loop yesterday replacing the Hamilton Tigers, who have disbanded for the duration. Actually there is no more Interprovincial Union, the new loop, that composes Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto Argonauts and Balmy Beach, is to be known as the Eastern Canada Football Union, but 'tis safe betting the press boys will not abandon the "big four" moniker. The schedule opens Sept. 27 and closes Nov. 15 following a play-off.

SPORT SPICE:—Not a single Belleville softball transfer was announced by the O.A.S.A.......Kingston was granted no less than nine transfers......Wonder what Bill Walshe's "mushball" contemporaries are up to.......The O.A.S.A. play-off dates will be announced next week......Ten games out in front of the American League, the Yankees can sit down and roll into a pennant......As the Dodgers were idle the Cardinals moved into the top slot in the National League by winning over the giants, as a matter of fact the amazing Red Birds swept the series from the Polo Ground entry......Summer must be getting well advanced, the Country Club posted its club championship and handicap draws yesterday

Little Benny's Note Book

I was the last one down to breakfist and pop said, Here he is now, herraw for Benny, 3 cheers.

Three more from me and many of them, ma said, and I said, Why, what's a matter?

This is a celebration, pop said, and ma said, It's a celebration in your private honor.

G, what for? I said, and pop said, Like all truly great men he is panefully modest. I suggest that we make this anniversity the occasion for a copper shower he said.

And he took all his change out of his pocket and separated the pennies and threw them in my plate, being 4 of them, and ma said, Let me join you in the festive occasion, I think I have some right here on the buffay.

And she got up to look and came back with 3 pennies and dropped them in my plate, making 7 altogether, and I said, G wizzickers, do you mean it's all mine for keeps?

It's all yours till the end of time, or at least till you meet some avaricious store keeper, pop said, and ma said, Please except it as a token of our appriciation and admiration on your anniversity. It's just a half a day since you came home in time for dinner for the first time this week, she said.

Meaning last night and being partly sourcastic but making me feel lucky just a same, and pop said, Dont you think we ought to have a little speech from the guest of honor?

Meaning me, and I said G thanks, And G roozlem it wasn't just luck either because wait till you see how early I get home tonight I said.

Being a pretty good of a speech but not turning out exactly true.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

CHAPTER SEVEN

A Job For Martino

Marilyn pulled the electric cord from the iron, came to stand squarely in front of her mother.

"Mums," she said firmly, "Is Clara in trouble?"

"No, no. Not in trouble, that is, not exactly. She says she's run short of money. She wants me to send her as much as I can. She says to get it from you. I'd ask your father, only I know he's short this month. He had to pay his insurance."

"But, Mums, Clara had a hundred dollars and all her expenses were to be paid."

"Yes, Baby, I know, but things cost so much in New York, Clara says. I only have a few dollars house money myself—I'm sure I don't know what to do."

"Write Clara and tell her the answer is 'NO'. I'm sorry, Mums, but that's the way it is."

Marilyn returned to the ironing board. Hot tears stung her eyes. Refusing her mother was a kind of blinding agony.

Al Martino had an unpleasant thing to do, so he took the delay avenue of escape. Palmer Watson, president of Metropole Amusement Company, had instructed Al to ring their beauty contest winner, Miss Clara Marsh, at her hotel and find if "things are all right."

Al had a pretty definite idea things would be anything but all right. A champagne headache is not conducive to buoyant spirits and a cheery disposition. By all the laws of nature, a champagne headache would be what Clara Marsh was suffering from this morning, and Clara was not inclined to be angelic even under normal circumstances. And the number of champagne cocktails she had consumed last night and until dawn of this day was, to say the least, abnormal.

Al stopped by this desk and that in the Metropole offices, exchanging repartee with their occupants. Eventually he ran out of desks and at the same moment ran right into an "outside" telephone.

He thought, "Well, I'm in for it so I might as well take my punishment sooner than later." He picked up the receiver gingerly, as though it might be hot, and dialed Clara's hotel.

"Room 369, please," he replied to the voice on the other end of the wire. The customary wait and the voice said "R-r-room three-a six-a nine does not answer."

"That giggle water must have knocked her for a loop," Al said to himself. Then to the voice on the wire, "Er—Miss—Miss—what did you say the name is?"

"Never mind," impatiently.

"Miss Nevermind—say that's an odd name. Look, Miss Nevermind, let's you and I play fire alarm. There's a box of candy in it for you if you'll play. Do you care for candy? You don't. Then how about a pair of ducats for the movies? Ah, you can go for the movies. I'll bring 'em to you in person. Wanna play? Good. Then lean on the 369 plug and see if we can't get action."

"I'll try again, sir.'

Al drew three zebras on the desk pad and blacked in every other stripe while he waited. At last!

"Sorry, r-r-room three-a six-a, nine does not answer."

"Now you're starting to frighten me. There must be some one in that room—here's an idea! You get a bellboy, a fast one. Send him to Room 369. Tell him to make a noise on the door like a police raid. Tell him as soon as the young woman inside answers to hop back and tell you. I'll hold the wire. I know it isn't regular but I don't want to let the hotel in on our secret. There's a fiver in it for you if you help me out. You're talking to the man who never broke his word."

"If the chief operator catches me I'll be in a fix." The voice denoted hesitation.

"How can a chief operator catch a smart girl like you?" Al kept the anxiety out of his voice.

"You got quite a line, Mister," yielding now. "Hold it. There's a bellhop coming to the board right now. I know him, so it's okay. If we get cut off ring back and ask for Miss King."

"Okay, but I'd rather call you Miss Queen. I'm holding on."

Ten weeks later—ten minutes actually but to Al it was at least ten weeks—the voice awakened him from a nightmare:

"Sorry sir. There's no one in R-r-room three-a six-a nine but the maid. The boy said the maid was doing the room. She said the young lady staying in the room went out an hour ago."

"Holy cats! Thanks. You're a swell little playmate. Look for the ducats any minute now. They'll be wrapped in green paper with a five-spot on it."

Al turned over a half dozen chairs and ran down a file clerk making a dash for Palmer Watson's private office. This time he did not stop to batter on the door. He burst in and exploded in the president's face.

"Chief, something's gone sour. The Big Blonde's not in her room. She left the hotel an hour ago."

Palmer Watson turned beet-red, then pale grey.

"Left the hotel!" he shouted. "For good?"

"No, for bad, if I'm any judge of poultry. She didn't fancy my clipping her wings last night so she's flown the coop. Wants to see how she can do on her own. She'll be back with her feathers all wet—only we can't wait that long. We've got to find her before she blows the top off Metropole."

"We'll find her," Watson raved. "We'll hire detectives; we'll call out the police; we'll—"

"Ring all the fire alarms. Calm down, Chief. Do you want to make Blondie's walk-out a front page story? Start spilling it to the police and you'll have the news hounds down on you. What we have to do is to work fast and keep under cover. A doll like Blondie shouldn't be hard to find. She looks like a Christmas tree and she'll probably be lit up like one when we find her."

"Find her! How you going to find her? How you going—"

"Where would a doll like Blondie head for if she had a hangover and was sore on the fellow who piped her down and was looking for a Big Time Charlie to cheer her—Chief! I've got it!"

"You mean you know where she's gone? You're sure?"

"Practically. Last night I left the table to powder my nose. When I came back I saw her hand Good Time Charlie something under the table. I thought then they were playing hands, but now I know it was a handout. When I told her we were getting the heck out of there and started getting, Charlie made a crcak I didn't pick up at the time. 'I'll be seeing you tomor—' he said but stopped this side of 'tomorrow'. I'll be a Dutchman's uncle if I didn't muff it a mile."

"Make sense," Watson bellowed. "Make sense. All this Good Time Charlie and holding hands and under the tables—"

"You don't get it?" Al was aghast. "It was a date, Chief—a date. She wrote out her name and address—I showed before she could hand it to him. So she slipped it under the table. I wondered why a big noise like him let me elbow her out without trying to blow me down. Of all the dumb clucks, I take the—bye, bye, Chief, I got stuff to do." Al buttoned his double-breasted coat, yanked his collar into place.

"Here," yelled Watson, "where you going? Where you think—"

"To the Blue Parrot. Don't let your blood pressure get you, Chief. I bring 'em back alive."

Wright - Hargreaves, Preston, Teck Hughes, Kerr-Addison and San Antonio firmed 5 to 10 cents.

Massey-Harris pfd continued on the up grade, adding 1-2 and better prices ruled for Dominion Foundries, Dominion Steel, British American Oil and Bathurst A.

WALL STREET

New York, July 25—(AP)—Cotton and import commodities held the speculative limelight in financial markets today while listed securities generally had difficulty in negotiating a definite trend.

Growing tenseness of the United States relations with Japan caused many potential share buyers to stand aside, brokers said, but the fact offerings never were urgent aided sentiment.

Shares attracting support included U.S. Industrial Alcohol, which touched a new 1941 top; Pathe, American Sugar Refining, South Porto Rico Sugar, N.Y. Shipbuilding, Electric Boat, Bath Iron Works, Eastern Air Lines and American Airlines.

Among laggards were Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont, American Telephone and Sante Fe.

Canadian Stocks were very inactive today. Canadian Pacific gained 1-8 and Distillers Seagram held unchanged. In the Bond Market Canada 4s held unchanged.

MAY COMPROMISE ON EXTENSION

Washington, July 25 —(AP)—United States administration leaders made known today a willingness to compromise on a one-year extension of military service for selectees, national guardamen and reserves, if they were convinced such a move would increase Congressional support for legislation to keep the present army intact.

Senator Lester Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, told reporters he would offer no objection to a "reasonable" restriction on the additional time citizen soldiers might be called upon to serve over the present one-year limit.

"If we can unify support behind this measure," Hill said, "I would be willing to accept a limitation of one year on additional service for these men. We want to see this bill passed by the greatest possible margin for its psychological effect both at home and abroad."

The declaration of emergency was sought in proposed legislation sent to the committee yesterday by War Secretary Stimson. Committee members were called into closed session today to consider this and a half dozen other proposals.

Produce Prices Remain Steady

Toronto — Egg prices on the Toronto open produce market yesterday remained on their gradual upward course, while butter held steady in quiet trading.

With the exception of grade "C", prices to shipper on graded eggs recorded a general advance of 1-2 cent per dozen as prevailing good demand absorbed the continued light arrivals of fresh receipts. In the retail section of the market quotations improved 1-2 cent to 1 cent per dozen in line with the graded division's recent increases.

In afternoon dealings on the butter market trading tapered without having any effect on prices. Both offerings and receipts appeared in small quantities and there was sufficient local buying interest to keep supplies moving. Ontario No. 1 creamery solids held at 36 cents a pound. Buyers, however, ignored offerings of the Western produce at 36 1-2 cents a pound.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, July 25 (CP)—Produce market prices here yesterday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Man 16 Service Stations

"Although it is primarily intended to man the 16 service flying training schools now in operation under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, it is probable the scheme will be extended," the announcement said. "With the plan in full swing there will be three officers and 136 air-women to each service flying training school.

"Airmen in any one trade on any particular station will not be replaced entirely by women. For instance, a number of women cooks will work with the men already employed in that trade.

"A ratio of skilled workers according to a sliding scale will be absorbed similarly.

"The W.A.A.F. have the distinction of being the first women's service to have been adopted fully by its parent fighting service and from the start the W.A.A.F. has been an integral part of the R. A. F., proudly wearing the same uniform and badges of rank and being administered in the same way and through the same channels.

"The C.W.A.A.F. will be in the same honored position—it will form a component part of the R.C.A.F. and Canadian air-women will be proudly working alongside Canadian airmen as members of the same service."

The "air-women" will occupy the same type of quarters, will eat the same food and be subject to the same or similar discipline, air force headquarters said. They will be administered within the R.C.A.F. by their own officers and non-commissioned officers.

Pay Slightly Lower

Pay will be slightly lower than the prevailing rates of pay and trade pay of the corresponding ranks of the R.C.A.F. subsistence and travelling allowances also will be paid.

In addition to pay and allowances, an air-woman will be given an allowance for underclothing. They will be provided with food and lodging at the station to which they are posted. They will draw clothing and be given medical and dental treatment.

As in the W.A.A.F., Canadian women will be given a complete blue uniform including skirt, tunic, cap, greatcoat and raincoat. They will receive shoes, stockings, badges and insignia of rank and the smaller articles that go to make up the active service kit of the airmen.

It is expected there will be a slight difference in the Canadian skirt and in the cap as compared to the English issue.

Modelled Along Lines of W.A.A.F.

The C.W.A.A.F. will be modelled largely along the lines of the W.A.A.F., Headquarters stated. It will have the benefit of practical experience of trained staff officers of the W.A.A.F. who had been actively engaged since its inception and have been loaned to the R.C.A.F.

Wing Commander Crowther of London has been employed in selection, posting and promotion of officers in the W.A.A.F. since September, 1939.

Sqdn. Officer E. C. Bather of Hampshire, Eng., a justice of the peace and member of the county council, served before the war with the First and Nursing Yeomanry (Women's Transport Service). In June, 1940, she was posted to the Air Ministry to take charge of W.A.A.F. training.

Ranks in the C.W.A.A.F., compared with the R.C.A.F., are the same in enlisted ranks. There will be "Aircraftwomen Class 2" as well as Sergeant-Majors, First and Second Class.

H. M. S. FEARLESS SUNK, MERCHANT SHIP DAMAGED

Admiralty Announces Convoy Attacked in Mediterranean by Italian Bombers, E-Boats

DETAILS LACKING

London, July 25 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that a British convoy in the Mediterranean had been subjected to a heavy attack during which a destroyer was sunk and a merchant ship damaged.

(The Italians claimed yesterday a heavy raid on British shipping in the Mediterranean in which they said four British ships—two merchantmen a destroyer and an unspecified unit—were sunk).

The Admiralty identified the destroyer they lost as the Fearless.

An Admiralty communique said:-

"Naval operations connected with the passage of a convoy through the Mediterranean have been taking place.

"During these operations our forces were subjected to a series of heavy air attacks by day during which a number of enemy aircraft were shot down and to attack by E-boats (motor torpedo boats) by night.

Able to Move Convoy

"Only preliminary reports so far have been received, but it is known that only one merchant ship was damaged and that she was able to continue with her convoy under her own power.

"The Board of the Admiralty regrets to announce that in the course of these operations the destroyer H.M.S. Fearless (Commander A. F. Pugsley R.N.) was sunk. The next of kin of casualties will be informed as soon as possible.

'Further details of the operation will be announced when fuller reports are received."

The Fearless, for which a 1932 class was named, was a 1,375-ton vessel with normal complement of 145 men. She was completed in 1934 and was capable of 36 knots.

She carried four 4.7 inch guns and six smaller ones and had eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Having a Snooze When Torch Arrived

Ottawa, July 25—(CP)—When Canada's Victory Torch arrived in the back garden of No. 10 Downing Street last month, Prime Minister Winston Churchill didn't expect it and was having a snooze, it was disclosed last night by one of the Canadian officials who crossed the Atlantic by air during the day.

Mr. Churchill was awakened by the confusion in his garden and shuffled to the back door, rubbing his eyes, to see what was going on.

"Well, well, I say, what's going on here," he roared.

Then the situation was explained. Mr. Churchill pulled himself together, methodically checked over the scroll containing the names of hundreds of Canadian officials, and read the three-page message which accompanied the symbol of Canada's war effort across the Atlantic.

Not before he had all the facts in his mind did Mr. Churchill begin his unprepared speech of acceptance—a speech since declared to be one of his finest.

The torch was presented to Mr. Churchill by Pensions Minister Mackenzie, one of the Federal officials who returned to Canada yesterday.

3,000 STOCKINGS OF "CIRCULAR TYPE"

London, July 25 —(CP)— Three thousand sea boot stockings made of wool spun by people of Tibet and knitted by natives of Bengal were received by the Navy League Seafarer's Comforts Fund. They were of the "circular type" because the natives don't know how to knit heels.

German Fighting Plane Left Behind By U. S. Bomber

Ottawa, July 25—(CP)—Capt. Daniel Loomis, officer of a Canadian Highland Regiment who recently returned from Britain by plane, disclosed last night that during the crossing the four-engined, American-built bomber in which he rode put on speed and left a German fighting plane behind "as though it were standing still."

"The aircraft being supplied to Britain from the United States can show a clean pair of elevators to anything Germany has yet produced," he said.

"It won't be long before these big planes from south of the border are showing their speed not to run away as we did with our passenger load but to fly over and all around Hitler's air force."

EDEN DECLARES

gave great prominence to yesterday's statement in Washington by President Roosevelt.

The government was understood to be closely studying the remarks in which the President spoke —in the past tense—of the reasons Japan hitherto had been permitted to obtain American oil.

The President's statement was given page one display, with its references to Indo-China eliminated. (The Japanese press is not yet permitted to discuss the program for bases in that French colony.)

Welles Statement Withheld

An earlier statement by Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, was not published here, for obvious reasons. Officials withheld formal comment until, they said, an official text is received, but indications are given that its blunt references to Japanese aggression claimed close attention.

BRITAIN PUTS ON

Two direct hits on the Scharnhorst.

Loss of 15 bombers and seven fighters.

Destruction of 30 German planes.

Some of the four-engined planes were Boeing Flying Fortresses from the United States, which the R.A.F. calls "Fortress Aircraft."

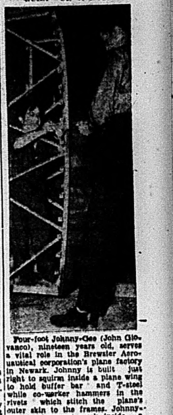
It was not disclosed whether they had encountered Nazi fighters but it was reported reliably all returned safely to England.

The Boeings dropped American-made explosives, the Ministry News Service said.

It was assumed the bombers lost were twin-engined Hampdens, Wellingtons or Stirlings, all of which took part in the raids.

German aerial activity over Great Britain during the night was described by the Air and Home Security Ministries as very slight, causing neither damage nor casualties.

BUILT FOR THE JOB



Four-foot Johnny-Gee (John Giovanco), nineteen years old, serves a vital role in the Brewster Aeronautical corporation's plane factory in Newark. Johnny is built just right to squirm inside a plane wing to hold buffer bar and T-steel while co-worker hammers in the rivets which stitch the plane's outer skin to the frames. Johnny-Gee is shown at work inside a plane wing with a six-foot co-worker punching in the rivets from outside.

U.S. MAY HAVE TO PROTECT AZORES

General Antonio Oscar de Fragosa Carmona, president of Portugal, is shown inspecting members of the Portuguese Legion during a recent military display in Lisbon. Portugal's Azores, strategic island group in the Atlantic, has been much in the news lately and the United States has strongly intimated that it is ready to take drastic action should the Axis powers threaten to annex these islands.

Two mobile canteens purchased by the citizens of Gananoque, Thousand Islands district, for the Salvation Army Service among British bombed victims, were recently dedicated before the William Booth Memorial Training college in London. Participating in the dedicating ceremonies were Major H. M. Humphrey, General G. L. Carpenter and Brigadier Phelan.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

If today's reports from Shanghai that Japan is in the midst of a great mobilization are true, military adventures of greater scope than the unresisted occupation of southern Indo-China must be looked for. Perhaps the Japanese ruling groups have decided it is now or never if the hoped for southward expansion is to be achieved.

At any rate the Tokyo press has lost no time in turning from Indo-China to what may be the next item in Japan's expansionist program—the kingdom of Siam, or Thailand as it has been called in recent years, which lies to the immediate west of the colony so obligingly placed under Japanese "protection" by the Vichy government.

Million Men Called

Today's Shanghai reports said upwards of a million men are being called to arms in metropolitan Japan to supplement the huge armies now stationed on the Asiatic mainland. The mobilization was described as the greatest since this month four years ago, when the Japanese began the war with China.

As in the Indo-China affair, when the necessity of saving the French colony from a mythical threat of British invasion was cited the Japanese press today centred its attention on alleged attempts by Britain to "disrupt the good relationship which has developed between Japan and Thailand."

Constitutes a Grave Threat

The large land forces Japan is now said to be mobilizing would be needed if Japanese sway over Indo-China were to be extended to Siam. Occupation of that kingdom would constitute a grave threat to British security since Rangoon the capital of Burma is within striking distance in the north while to the immediate south lies the rich peninsula of Malaya with Singapore at its southern tip.

Great Britain and Thailand have a recently concluded non-aggression treaty and an invasion of the latter would possibly call for British intervention to prevent the Japanese out-flanking the powerful defence system centred around Singapore.

Singapore is a naval base primarily, and British plans for defending Malaya, The Netherlands East Indies and surrounding territories have been worked out largely as a naval problem. Early in the war, however, the possibility of large forces attempting a land attack through Thailand was foreseen, and in recent months large air force contingents and sizeable units of British Australian and Indian troops have arrived in the Singapore area.

U. S. Long-Range Bombers to Alter "Outward Appearance of Berlin" Lord Halifax Tells Employees

San Diego, Calif., July 25 (AP)—Lord Halifax British Ambassador to the United States told Consolidated Aircraft employees yesterday the Royal Air Force intends to use the company's long-range bombers to "alter the outward appearance" of Berlin.

In an interview after inspection of the huge plant Lord Halifax disclosed he plans to fly to London next month probably in a consolidated bomber to report to his government.

"As the nights get longer the Liberator bombers you send to us will be sent over Berlin and we hope to be able to alter the outward appearance of that city and make some parts of it look like London now" Lord Halifax said.

Asked if he believed American troops would be necessary to win the war against Germany Lord Halifax said Americans would rely on the statement of the British Prime Minister that if the United States provided the tools-planes, ships and materials—"we will finish the job."

Lord Halifax told the aircraft workers that despite German successes there was no elation in Germany because of a haunting fear they have.

"This is because Hitler and the German people know that unless they can break down Great Britain, that little country you could put in your state of Virginia, they have not won the battle nor solved the problem," said the Ambassador.

He warned that Hitler may offer peace terms after he finishes his Russian adventure.

"But when he turns around and offers a negotiated peace we in England will not trouble to answer a letter with his signature at the foot of it."

1,000,000 Men Called to Arms In Japan Report

Shanghai, July 25 AP)—A foreign intelligence report reaching Shanghai today said that "upwards of 1,000,000 men" were being called to arms in Japan in the greatest mobilization since July, 1937, when the unfinished war with China began.

(These advices coincided with reports from Saigon and Hanoi that an agreement had been concluded between Tokyo and Vichy granting Japan military bases in southern Indo-China and that occupation would begin Sunday of soon thereafter.)

PEOPLE'S ARMIES INSPIRING SIGHT

Correspondent Describes Rise of Russian Armies Awe-Inspiring

By HENRY CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, July 26. — (AP)— The serious-looking citizen with the khaki cap pushed back on his head and the rifle slung over his shoulder thrust his weatherbeaten face into the window of the car and said:—

"Show your documents "

It was after midnight, Moscow's curfew hour, and I had parked outside the Central Telegraph office to send some dispatches.

I produced my foreign office credentials. The citizen studied them under the red-bulbed blackout flashlight, then stepped back in the dim semi-twilight of the Russian summer night and said "Pass".

Soldier of People's Armies

He was a soldier of the New People's armies now taking over their first duties of guarding strategic points behind the lines.

In two weeks after Joseph Stalin issued the call for creation of these armies, millions of men rose to arms.

The response to that call was an awe-inspiring sight. Day after day columns of civilians marched out of the capital to training centres. It was like an immense swarm of wasps stirring out of a nest.

Now they have started back, bearing arms, and settled down to an army life.

Col. Nicolai Podorozhny, military commentator of the newspaper Izvestia, said the volunteers can be used to guard strategic points, patrol rear lines, supervise communications and transport, relieving regular troops from these tasks for service at the front, and eventually could go into battle themselves if necessary.

Early this afternoon the western sky became overcast, and slight movements of air sprang up.

JAPAN WILL TAKE BASES ON SUNDAY

Maj. Gen. Sumita to Direct Occupation of Bases Granted Japan by Vichy

Hanoi, French Indo-China, July 26 (AP)—Usually reliable sources said today that an agreement reportedly signed between Vichy and Tokyo granted Japan the use of several air and naval bases in southern Indo-China and permitted her to establish large military forces there.

Occupation of the bases, these sources said, probably will take place Sunday or shortly thereafter.

Maj. Gen. Sumita in Charge

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 25 (AP)—Maj Gen. Raishiro Sumita, chief of the Japanese military mission in Indo-China, will arrive here tomorrow to direct occupation of bases said to have been granted Japan by the Vichy government, it was reported today.

Members of the French military staff in Saigon departed meanwhile for Tonkin in northern Indo-China and French aircraft also were said to be scheduled for transfer to th north.

(The dispatch from Saigon did not attempt to explain the significance of these moves, but it appeared the French might be withdrawing their forces from southern Indo-China prior to Japanese occupation.)

58th Casualty List Issued by R. C. A. F.

Ottawa, July 25.—(CP)—Death of nine airmen—five overseas and four in Canada—was reported today in the Royal Canadian Air Force's 58th casualty list of the war.

Four men were reported missing after operational flights overseas, and one overseas flier was designated missing, believed killed, raising total air force dead and missing officially reported since war began to 467.

The five overseas fatalities occurred as a result of flying accidents. In addition, one man previously reported missing was listed "presumed dead for official purposes". Two men were listed seriously ill.

In Canada, two fliers were reported killed in flying accidents and one death as the result of injuries suffered in a flying accident was noted. One man met death by drowning and one was reported dangerously ill.

Concessions to Japan In Fr. Indo-China

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 25—(AP)—Concessions gained by Japan in French Indo-China were reported authoritatively today to include the right to station warships in Camranh Bay and at Saigon, several air bases in southern Indo-China and permission to post troops at several coastal points.

Maj.-General Raishiro Sumita, chief of the Japanese military mission in Indo-China, was expected here tomorrow to direct occupation of the bases granted by the Vichy government.

"Several thousand" Japanese troops, authoritative sources said, will be stationed at Saigon and also along the southeast Indo-China coast and within Cambodia.

The Japanese, it was indicated, also, have gained control of several southern Indo-China airports, where it is understood they will establish garrisons.

U.S. Army Head Wants "State of Emergency"

General George C. Marshall, U.S. army chief of staff, is shown, LEFT, shaking hands with Representative Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs committee. The chief of staff appeared before the committee to testify in connection with the plan to retain draftees and guardsmen for more than the prescribed year. Asking for a state of national emergency, the general said it offers the best chance of avoiding war. "It gives us a chance to make ourselves so strong that we can do things to avoid war."

Pleads Guilty To 49 Charges False Pretences

Pleading guilty to forty-nine charges of fraud, false pretenses with intent to defraud and obtaining money unlawfully, Kenneth A. Johnson of Picton was remanded for sentence by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Belleville Police Court today. It took Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., and Chief Kidd exactly 95 minutes to present the 49 indictments.

The charges were preferred in the Belleville Court, but most of them were issued in communities all across Ontario, from Athens in the east to Kitchener in the west. Only three of them were laid locally, but Johnson was arrested in Belleville and elected to stand trial for all of the counts preferred elsewhere.

There were 22 charges of obtaining money under false pretenses and 27 charges of issuing worthless cheques, to wit fraud, Crown Attorney Donnan announced after the lengthy ordeal. According to police authorities Johnson had procured a rubber stamp indicating a School Section number. On practically all of the cheques issued by the accused the correct name of the secretary-treasurer of the district school section was forged. In Belleville he passed three cheques for identical amounts, namely $18. Magistrate Lloyd remanded Johnson in custody, stating he would pass sentence next week. The accused man has a previous jail record, Mr. Donnan announced.

400 Men Enlisting Voluntarily Every Day Says Ralston

Halifax, July 25—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston said at a press conference today military authorities were "engaged in study to see if we can give the reserve army a more definite and useful role in Canada's defence."

"I really feel," he said, "that the reserve army has done a good job in furnishing recruits for the active army and Canada can never forget that our active army is built on the reserve army."

Of men called up for four months compulsory training, Col. Ralston said they would be given the right after two months in camp of deciding which of the three services they would like to join. If they had no preference they would be posted to units for which their officers think they are best suited.

Since the nation's first recruiting campaign ended, there has been a daily average of 400 men enlisting voluntarily the Minister said.

Fusiliers Welcomed On Parliament Hill

Ottawa, July 25 (CP)—The Sherbrooke Fusiliers were officially welcomed to Ottawa today when Mayor Stanley Lewis took the salute in a ceremony on Parliament Hill.

On their way to Connaught Ranges for further training, the regiment made the final stop of its 326-mile trek at nearby Gatineau River near the town, causing something of a sensation in their zeal for overcoming the heat.

A girl reporter on her way to the camp for a story was both startled and effectively turned back by the discovery that many of the boys felt it was too hot to endure the formality of a bathing suit when when plunging into the river.

For a while she was stymied, but finally got her story with the help of a male reporter who "took over" during the bathing sequence.

The Fusiliers started their long march from Sherbrooke early in June. They have been in training 11 months.

Morrison Warns To Prepare For 'Winter of Strain'

London, July 22.—(CP) —Home Secretary Herbert Morrison told a Labor Party meeting tonight to prepare "for the worst winter of strain and struggle that ever descended on our country".

Britain, he said, must remain aroused to peril despite Russia's stubborn fight against Germany.

"We are facing a tremendous enemy who for four years in the last war sustained a terrific struggle on two major fronts and certainly is not less strong today", he said.

TOBRUK GARRISON ACTIVE

Cairo, July 25 —(AP)— Another swift-striking British night patrol dashed three miles out of beleaguered Tobruk to pound a strong point of the siege lines around the Libyan port with hand grenades in the darkness Wednesday, the British Middle East Command announced today.

The patrol, using tactics designed to fray the nerves of Axis forces in the desert siege ring, inflicted casualties and then withdrew, the communique said.

BRITAIN SUSPENDS COMMERCIAL TREATIES WITH JAPAN, ROOSEVELT FREEZES ASSETS

Heaviest, Most Powerful R. A. F. Bombs Dropped in Heart Berlin

Raiders Illuminate Targets With Flares Before the Attack

Equal Success Enjoyed by Night Bombers Over Hamburg And Hanover

QUIET IN ENGLAND

London, July 26 (CP)—Huge Royal Air Force bombers dropped some of Britain's heaviest and most powerful bombs in the heart of Berlin last night, the Air Ministry news service announced today.

"There was no doubt about where they had fallen," the news service declared. "Huge flashes were right in the centre of the city."

It said the raiders circled over the German capital and illuminated their targets by dropping flares.

It reported equal success in the Royal Air Force's night bombing of Hamburg and Hanover in attacks from which, the Air Ministry announced, nine bombers have not returned.

The main weight of the air attacks was concentrated on Hanover and Hamburg, the communique said, and a "small force of four-engined bombers attacked objectives in Berlin." British fighter planes, meanwhile, were making still another series of raids on air bases in occupied France, it added.

Informed sources declined to say whether the four-engined bombers were American-built Boeing flying fortresses but it was noted that Britain's own Halifaxes and Stirlings were equipped also for long-range, high-altitude attacks.

One R.A.F. captain was quoted as saying Berlin anti-aircraft batteries at first attempted to fool the raiders by giving no sign of their existence. But as soon as the planes arrived over the capital and British bombs began falling, he said, the defence batteries opened fire "since it was no longer any use for them to pretend Berlin wasn't just below us."

"We had flown through storms and above clouds on the way out but there were no clouds over Germany," he related. "We passed through two vast belts of searchlights before we reached Berlin.

"They looked brighter than ever in so dark a night—and so did the flashes of our bombs in the centre of the city."

The raid on Berlin was the 46th since the outbreak of the war, but the first directed against the German capital in almost two months.

The assault on Hamburg and Hanover was described as heavy.

Only Minor Damage Reported

Only a few German planes were over Britain during the night, the government said, dropping bombs on Eastern England. Only minor damage and no casualties were reported.

The raids followed assaults the previous night on naval bases at Kiel and Emden where bombs started large fires and on docks at Wilhelmshaven, Germany, and Rotterdam, Holland.

The Air Ministry said attacks carried out Thursday on the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau were launched by new "flying fortresses" from an altitude of 35,000, the highest ever staged. At that altitude specially picked men were used to withstand effects of rarefied air.

London, July 26 (CP Cable) — Commodore H. E. Reid, Deputy Chief of the Canadian Naval Staff, has discussed every aspect of the battle of the Atlantic in long talks with British naval authorities, it was learned today, and will take back to Canada proposals and suggestions for countering further Nazi thrusts at Britain's lifeline.

Lightning Kills Hawkesbury Youth

Hawkesbury. July 26 (CP)—Raymond Raoul Duval, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Duval of Caledonia township, was killed by lightning yesterday.

Duval, accompanied by his 21-year-old brother-in-law, Arthur Page, for whom he was working at the time, was walking from the barn to the house, a distance of about 100 feet, under a steel clothes line.

The bolt which killed him travelled along the line into the kitchen, stunning Mrs. Page and demolishing the opposite wall.

Page was stunned by the bolt and is suffering from shock. He said that all he saw was a "ball of fire."

Dr. H. H. Kirby, District Coroner, decided an inquest was unnecessary.

A hen and 14 chicks, six feet from the two men, were killed.

NOT A SINGLE MERCHANT SHIP LOST IN CONVOY

Italian Claims Discredited by British Admiralty Statement on Action

DESTROYER LOST

London, July 26 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that the whole British convoy which was heavily attacked by Italian air and torpedo-boat forces in the Mediterranean during the week has made a "successful passage" without the loss of a single merchant ship.

A previous admiralty communique, based on the then incomplete data, said Thursday that a British destroyer, H.M.S. Fearless, had been sunk and a merchantman damaged.

Italian communiques had claimed a toll of more than 70,000 tons of British merchant shipping — six freighters and two warships sunk as well as 10 other ships damaged in three days of assaults on a heavily-guarded convoy moving eastward through the central Mediterranean.

The Admiralty declared a minimum of 12 attacking planes were shot down, at least four others were damaged and probably destroyed, one torpedo boat was sunk and another probably destroyed and a submarine also may have been destroyed.

(The Fascist war bulletin acknowledged today that an Italian submarine is missing.)

Rome, July 26 (AP)—The Italian High Command admitted today that one submarine and one bomber were lost in a three-day aerial and naval attack on a British convoy in the Mediterranean.

The Italians alleged earlier Britain's losses in the attack, which ended yesterday, amounted to at least 70,000 tons of shipping — six ships of the convoy of 18 sunk, along with a British destroyer. Several other escorting warships were reported damaged.

The Italians claimed 10 other British ships, some of them warships, escorting the convoy of 18 ships, were damaged.

In addition, the High Command said, an Italian submarine in the Atlantic torpedoed and sank the 5,358-ton British steamship Rupert De Larringa and the 8,194-ton auxiliary cruiser Lady Somers.

(The British Admiralty announced the sinking of the Lady Somers, a converted Canadian National steamships vessel, July 17. All 175 members of the crew were saved, they said.)

Simultaneously with the attack on the Mediterranean convoy, Italian air forces were said to have bombed Valetta, the British naval base at Malta, Thursday and Friday nights. The communique said seven British Spitfires were shot down in fierce fights over Malta yesterday afternoon with a loss of three Italian planes.

Twenty-one British planes were reported shot down during the attacks on the convoy.

Few Bombs Dropped On Alexandria, No Casualties

Cairo, July 26 (AP)—A few bombs were dropped on Alexandria in an air raid early today. The Egyptian ministry of the interior said damage was slight and there were no casualties.

All-Party Panel of British M. P.'s Hears Ministers' Opinions Secretly

London, July 26 —(CP)— To keep British members of parliament acquainted with war developments a group known as the all-party panel has been formed to hear ministers' private opinions in an atmosphere as "hush hush" as a House of Commons secret session.

The panel already has heard Food Minister Lord Woolton twice, several other government members and hopes for an early talk by Foreign Secretary Eden.

The panel owes its existence to inter-party jealousy because the Conservative private members' committee, which always met in similar fashion, refused to allow other party members to attend its sessions, even after Labor members joined the government.

It became necessary, as a result, for ministers to go from group to group telling the same story. To remedy the situation, Sir Percy Harris, Liberal, was chosen to bring members into the panel, which includes all groups but the Independent Labor Party.

'About Dozen' Axis Torpedo Boats Sunk

London, July 26.—(CP)—"About a dozen" Axis torpedo boats were sunk today in an attempt to attack the harbor of Valetta, capital of the Mediterranean Island of Malta.

A joint Admiralty, War Office and Air Ministry communique said:

"An attack by E-boats was made on the harbor of Valetta, Malta, early this morning. It was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

"Full details are not yet available but it is already known that about a dozen of the attacking E-boats were sunk by coastal defences and by aircraft of the Royal Air Force.

"A number of prisoners and bodies have been recovered".

MARX DORMOY IS ASSASSINATED

Socialist Leader and Minister in Leon Blum's Cabinet Killed by Bomb Placed in Hotel Room

Vichy, July 26 (AP)—Marx Dormoy, Socialist Leader in the French Republic, was assassinated last night at the Hotel Relais De L'Empereur at Montelimar, where he had been detained.

He was killed by explosion of a bomb placed in his hotel room.

The former Minister of the Interior in Leon Blum's Popular Front government had taken a leading part in dissolution of the Rightist "Action" Organization, the Croix de Feu, and other nationalist organizations.

The 53-year-old Socialist was arrested Sept. 26, 1940, a few months after the armistice and was held with other political prisoners who had led the defeated republic.

Once Ousted Doriot

He once ousted Jacques Doriot, former Communist and now a leading French Fascist, as Mayor of St. Denis and was frequently attacked by anti-Communists and Rightists. Many of the men who attacked him now are in important government posts.

Dormoy refused to testify in the trial of a Russian singer charged with complicity in the Paris kidnapping of Gen. Eugene De Miller, chief of the White Russian Veterans Association. When the prosecution charged that he blocked police investigation, Dormoy wrote that he refused to explain his acts as Minister except to parliament.

Montelimar police revealed the time bomb went off at 2:10 a. m. People in the hotel could not be reached since police threw a guard around the building, allowing none to enter or leave.

HUN THRUST FAILS, STILL IS STYMIED AFTER FIVE WEEKS

Germans Pictured As Unable to Break Thru in Smolensk Area

HUN FLIERS CHASED

Moscow, July 26 (AP)—The Russians reported today that Moscow came unscathed through its fifth successive night of dwindling air attacks and declared the Nazi land assault still was stymied in the last day of its fifth week.

No bombings whatever were reported in last night's Moscow raid which caused an early evening alarm lasting an hour and 15 minutes.

In a communique so nearly like those of the past several days that the German offensive was pictured as held to a standstill, the Red Army reported "during last night stubborn fighting continued in the directions of Politsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir."

The fighting in the Smolensk area, where the Germans made their deepest thrust toward Moscow, entered its 11th. day with the Germans pictured as unable to break through to the east.

"The enemy is suffering heavy losses," the Moscow war bulletin declared. It listed 45 German planes shot down last Thursday.

The Red Fleet continued attacks on German lines and bases, striking yesterday at Nazi mechanized forces near the fighting front, airdromes behind the lines, and the Rumanian Black Sea ports of Constant and Sulina, the Russians said.

Says Nazi Plan Attack on Turkey

Meanwhile they declared, their troops found documentary evidence of German plans to carry the war next to Turkey in a surprise attack.

Foreign Vice-Commisar S. A. Lo-
Foreign Vice-Commissar S. A. Loseized in a captured German field headquarters and said the Turkish government would be informed of their contents.

He intimated the Nazi attack was to be sprung soon and said the documents contained detailed maps of European Turkey, the Bosporus and Dardanelles, and reports on Turkish troop positions.

Moscow Explains Defence

Moscow credited its own stiff defence, by night fighter patrols, anti-aircraft barrages, balloon barriers and searchlight stations — with cutting down the scale of Nazi night raids steadily since last Monday night.

Altogether, revised Russian figures listed 47 night raiders shot down.

The first two nights the Nazis struck in waves—the largest of these numbering approximately 70 planes—but later shifted tactics to repeated single plane attempts to break through to objectives.

The Russians said that of more than 200 attackers the first night only 12 to 15 actually got over Moscow. Of 150 planes the second night 20 were estimated to have penetrated the defences. Eight to 10 planes got through the third night, and only one the fourth, the Russians declared. Last night apparently none broke through.

The Russians said that after attempts at dive-bombing the first night the Germans came over at 18,000 to 22,500 feet in their second try and in later raids attempted to reach the city screened by a layer of clouds at 6,000 feet or more.

Russian pursuit planes were said to have chased some of the bombers more than 100 miles back toward their bases.

Nazis Say Ukraine Resistance Broken

Berlin, July 26 (AP)—The German high command claimed today that Soviet rearguard resistance in the Ukraine has been broken and Axis troops are continuing to pursue the retreating Russians.

In a Carpatho-Ukraine district south and southwest of Korosmezo an attack by strong Soviet units freshly thrown into battle was halted by Germans with heavy losses to the Russians, a communique claimed.

British Ambassador to Tokyo Instructed to Inform Japanese Government of Action Taken

Dominions of Empire Agreed on Action Taken by British Gov't in Far Eastern Situation

ACT WITH U. S.

London, July 26—(CP)—A reliable source declared today Britain had suspended all commercial treaties with Japan.

This source said Sir Robert Craigie, British ambassador to Tokyo, had been instructed to inform the Japanese Government of the action.

Treaties suspended were said to include the Anglo-Japanese Treaty of 1911 defining General commercial and economic relations, the Indo-Japanese Commercial Convention of 1934, and the Burma-Japanese Commercial Pact of 1937.

Authoritative circles said later that dominions of the Empire had been consulted on these matters and that all agreed to the action taken by the British Government.

Besides commercial relations, the treaties govern the acquisition of property, conditions of residence in the two countries, navigation rights and trade in general, it was said.

The United States and Great Britain took parallel action on "all these matters," the source said.

Great Britain will continue to maintain consulates in French Indo-China, it was said. The source added that the British would follow the United States in controlling Chinese assets if so directed by the Chungking Government.

Papers Express Satisfaction

British newspapers expressed satisfaction with the freezing action announced last night in retaliation for Japan's expected move on Indo-China, officials let it be known that a total blockade of Japan has been studied.

Ont., July 26 (CP)—Mrs. Duncan Graham, wife of Professor Graham of the Toronto General Hospital and the University of Toronto, is in hospital here with her two young daughters, Mary and Lorraine, suffering from injuries suffered when the car Mrs. Graham was driving left Highway No. 7 and overturned in a ditch 10 miles east of here last night. A tire blew out and the automobile went ino the ditch, rolled over and collided with a tree. Mary Graham, most seriously hurt of the three, suffered a fractured leg.

REV. DR. R. M. HAMILTON DIES IN BROCKVILLE

Brockville, Ont., July 26 —(CP)—Rev. Dr. R. M. Hamilton, 82, retired minister of the United Church of Canada and former pastor of the Presbyterian and United Churches here, died during the night after a brief illness.

He served at Eglinton (Toronto), Brantford and Weston churches before coming here in 1913. He had been moderator of the Brockville Presbytery and of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa.

Shanghai Likely To Be Taken Over By Japan Gov't

Japan struck back today in the new economic war with the United States and the British Empire by freezing United States assets in her own empire. Indications were that the same retaliation would be applied to Britain and that Shanghai would be taken over completely from third powers there.

American circles at Shanghai said Japan probably would occupy the International Settlement and the French concession, the principal parts of the city which, out of deference to extraterritorial rights of Occidental powers, had been left unoccupied when the Japanese invasion of China enveloped Shanghai.

The French concession and the International Settlement very likely will be yielded without resistance. The first is under the administration of the Vichy government whose capitulation to the Japanese plant of "joint defence" of French Indo-China was followed by the economic counter-steps of the British Empire and the United States against Japan.

The International Settlement is virtually undefended against the thousands of Japanese already in Japanese-controlled parts of the city. The settlement is garrisoned by the Fourth Regiment of United States Marines and has a corps of lightly armed volunteers whose functions have been of a police nature.

Japan was held likely to take over the third power areas through the Tokyo-sponsored Nanking government for China which has long threatened to abolish foreign holdings.

The British and American authorities indicated they still had many a trump to play in the economic game. The controversy promised to become a series of retaliations and counter-retaliations.

Britain followed up the freezing of Japanese funds by suspending all commercial treaties with Japan. The United States on January 21, 1940, let lapse her own 28-year-old treaty of commerce and navigation with Japan. Trade since then had been on a day-to-day basis.

The supreme weapon of the economic arsenal of Britain and the United States remained unused — total blockade. Economic experts in London said this could bring Japanese industry to its knees in six mnths. The British press called months. The British press called that the policy of appeasement was dead.

The Japanese march into southern Indo-China—she has held control in the north for many months—was expected to reach its full swing with the arrival of naval, air and land forces at the start of next week.

Three bombers bearing General Raishiro Sumita, head of the Japanese mission to the French colony, and his staff landed on Saigon's modern airport today about the time that a train of military trucks reached the southern city.

The Japanese occupation of Indo-China, now in prspect, has been do-China now in prospect has been cans as a potential threat to Singapore, the great British fortress of the Far East; The Netherlands East Indies and the Philippines, if not the whole southern Pacific sphere which Japan says is hers to lead.

FDR Calls to U. S. Armed Services Military Forces of Philippine Gov't

Hyde Park, N.Y., July 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt called into the armed services of the United States today all of the "organized military forces" of the Philippine government.

There was no immediate official explanation of this step, but it was generally regarded as another indication of United States displeasure at Japan's southward moves in the Pacific.

It followed the freezing of Japanese credits as Washington's reply to Japan's occupation of southern Indo-China.

The Philippine military forces are to be placed under a U.S. army officer with the rank of General, who will designate the times when the individual units and personnel shall be taken into the American armed services

U.S. Assumes Offensive in Economic War Against Axis By Tightening Down On Exports

$131,000,000 FROZEN

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 26—(AP)—The United States assumed the offensive in economic war against the Axis in the Pacific today by "freezing" all Japanese assets and providing machinery for tightening down drastically on exports which would be vitally needed by Japan for an aggressive move on Singapore or the Netherlands East Indies.

President Roosevelt's executive order immobilizing more than $131,000,000 in Japanese funds and property, including that of some of an estimated 70,000 Japanese residents in United States territory, was issued in full knowledge that Japan might take immediate retaliatory action.

Only a few hours after Mr. Roosevelt issued his order, Britain swung into a parallel course, freezing Japanese assets in the far-flung British Empire while the dominions were ready for similar action. There were indications as well that other interested governments which were immediately notified—including the Netherlands and the Latin American Republics—might act with the same objective.

The President's action was a quick counterstroke to Japan's move to assume military control in French Indo-China. Acting Secretary Welles had denounced Tokyo's step as a menace to peace in the Pacific and declared it endangered American territory (the Philippines) and adjacent areas on which the United States depends for many raw materials vital for national defence.

$217,000,000 U.S. Funds in Japan

A retaliatory freezing order by Japan would immobilize an estimated $217,000,000 in United States assets in the Japanese Empire, an amount which would be materially increased if the Japanese-dominated governments of Manchoukuo and Japanese-occupied China took similar action.

An estimated 4,400 Americans, mostly Japanese born in the United States (including Hawaii) live in the Japanese Empire, and a large number of the estimated 6,000 Americans still in China are in areas occupied by Japanese forces or under the jurisdiction of the "puppet" government set up by the Japanese army at Nanking.

All Chinese Assets Included

The President's freezing order also included all Chinese assets in United States territory but a White House statement explained such action had been taken at the request of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek to keep Japan from benefiting from any Chinese-owned assets under American jurisdiction.

The treasury immediately issued a general licence releasing assets under control of the Chinese government at Chungking (recognized by the United States) or the Bank of China thereby making the order effective only against Japanese controlled areas.

The order—which went into effect at the opening of business today—tied up Japanese assets in the continental United States, Hawaii, the Philippines and other American territory.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

DEPARTMENT SQUADS ANSWER TWO CALLS

City Fire Department squads answered two alarms in the city yesterday but both were minor blazes and no major damage was done. Believed to have been caused by the intense heat and combustion, some old rags caused a momentary alarm at the Trudeau Service Station on Front Street. Last night, an electric motor, part of a refrigerator in the home of Dr. G. S. Cronk, Coleman Street burned out. No material damage was done.

LOCAL NEWSBOY NOW IN NAVY

The number of former Ontario Intelligencer newsboys enlisting in the Empire's fighting services, is gradually increasing. The latest to offer his services to the Royal Navy is eighteen year old Jack Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mason of Cannifton Road. Jack now wears the uniform of the senior service and is in training as a radio-signaller at a eastern Canadian port. He joined the navy a month ago.

Wooler Bush Fire Now Under Control

A bush fire of considerable proportions threatened the farm of Edward Merion, three miles north of Trenton, on the Wooler road on Friday. The fire started in a dry swamp and smouldered until deep clouds of heavy white smoke filled the sky and blanketed the surrounding countryside, as the fire gained progress in the lowlands.

Unable to cope with the spreading fire Mr. Merion asked the assistance of the R.C.A.F. fire-fighting unit near Trenton. Upwards to 100 airmen were dispatched to the scene of the spreading fire early Friday evening, but it was not until many hours later that the fire was brought under control.

Today Trenton police told the Ontario Intelligencer that the fire had been subdued and was under control although there were signs of smouldering fire in the low sections of the swamp on Mr. Merion's farm. No serious damage resulted, but the smouldering fire threatened the upper timber lands nearby.

Hughes Comments On Eastern Development

Sydney, Australia, July 26 (AP) — Hon. William Morris Hughes, Australian Navy Minister, said today that Australia's grave position will be more appreciated when the present wave of industrial hysteria dies down.

He added that the heavens are darkening and, though happenings of the next few weeks in the Pacific area are unknown, the need for ships might become incomparably greater than their need today. Mr. Huges spoke at a New South Wales' dockyard, prior to the launching of a new battleship by Dame Mary Hughes.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 26 (CP) —C. Ellison Kaumeyer, manager of the Niagara Parks Commission since 1934, has resigned and he will become manager of the new Rainbow Bridge.

No successor to Mr. Kaumeyer as parks manager has been appointed but it is understood a Fort Erie man is slated for the position.

Mercury Scurries To 98 Degrees In City Friday

Staggering under almost knock-out blows from a flaming "Old Sol" who sent thermometers scurrying upwards to ninety-eight degrees yesterday, Belleville awakened this morning to face another round of the current heat wave.

A sweltering populace vacated steaming houses, apartments and rooms last night for the comparatively cool reaches of the bay front, the bay bridge and other spots where there was a semblance of a breeze.

The more susceptible people slept on verandahs, lawns and in some cases in the basement of their homes. In one case the back seat of the family jalopy provided a cooler if not as comfortable bed

In the market square and other exposed places, heat waves danced a shimmering rhumba from pavement and roadway. Outside thermometers exposed to the sun, registered from 110 to 115 degrees. Sidewalks reflected a white heat that "fairly bounced in your face," as one pedestrian puts it.

Trees and shrubbery drooped their foliage as the sun struck with all its force during the noon hour and early afternoon. Lawns are gradually assuming a yellowish tinge. Any tin or metal roof would be a fitting setting for anyone desiring to fry eggs.

Near and distant summer resorts were crowded with perspiring urban residents. Oak Lake, West Lake, the Moira River, the Outlet and other popular places were alive with heat-smitten crowds.

But, residents of the city stayed by their guns and refused to bow to the heat invader. No cases of prostration were reported by hospital authorities up to eleven o'clock today.

And the weekend offers but little respite. Weather probabilities state that Sunday will be fair and warm. Aftermath will probably result in one of the largest exoduses of people seen since the heat-wave of 1936.

Kiwanis Club To Give Away Plymouth Car

Belleville and district will be treated to one of the finest and most elaborate street Karnivals ever staged in this city when the Kiwanis Club goes to bat for the underprivileged child and other Kiwanian projects on August 20 and 21. The committees have all been appointed with Jack McVeigh, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, as general chairman, and Frank Domenico handling the games.

Of special interest will be the draw for the fine new Plymouth sedan being given away by the Kiwanis Club. Mills Marr, popular member of the club and a real enthusiast in any project where some one is going to benefit, is the chairman of this committee and he has as his helper, George Lee, who with others in the club some years ago made such a success of a car draw. Thousands of tickets have been distributed in Belleville and the surrounding district and altho' the Carnival is some three weeks away, a fine response has already been given to the Kiwanis effort. Since the war started the work of Kiwanis has greatly increased and it is with this in mind, that the Club has decided to secure a sufficient fund that none of the services that the club has undertaken will be stinted.

The car has been placed on view on the city streets and attractive girls have given of their time to help in the sale of tickets. The car will be taken to other villages and towns in the surrounding district in order that people will see just what they are to have if they are fortunate in holding the winning ticket. Members of the Kiwanis Club have donated their services to help sell the tickets and from now till Karnival time, these members will be seen with the car on city streets requesting sales.

Many new innovations will be seen at the Karnival this year, especially a number of new and interesting games. The street will be gaily decorated for the occasion and all the Kiwanis members will be on hand to greet new and old friends. The ladies of the Kiwanis Club are much interested in their draw of the Hope Chest. This has been an annual feature for many years and Mrs. Jim Barclay, who is in charge, believes that a greater sum than ever will be realized.

Heavy Volume Of Farm Produce On the Market

Approximately ninety degrees of heat failed to deter a heavy volume of farm and garden produce from making its appearance on the city market today. There was a steady parade of Saturday morning shoppers and transactions were brisk up to noon.

Prices generally were steady with Grade 'A' select eggs maintaining last week's quotations of 35 cents a dozen. Mediums priced at 33c. Chicken offerings were fair, with broilers demanding from 90c to $1.25 per pair; fowl 75c each and Spring birds, averaging 25c per pound. Butter was steady at two pounds for 75c.

Raspberries which advanced five cents a box on Thursday to 25c and two boxes for 45c held steady at these prices today. The blue variety sold at 20c a box. A few blackberries were offered at 18c and varieties of currants were quoted at 15c. Gooseberries were priced at 10c.

New Potatoes Plentiful

New potatoes were plentiful at 45c and 50c the peck. Cauliflower went at from 10c to 30c the head, cabbage 10c to 20c; new beets, carrots and onions sold at 5c a bunch; vegetable marrow 10c and 15c each.

Fresh corn on the cob, in the heaviest offering of the season, dropped 5c to 30c the dozen, hand selected. Common run went at 25c in some cases. Home grown tomatoes held their levels with 6-quart baskets offered at from $1 to $1.25 each and berry box lots at 20c each.

Home cooking concessions in the inside market did a land-office business, the heat causing housewives to pass up the Saturday cooking for the market varieties of table necessities.

White fish was offered at 22c the pound and fresh lake trout at 30c. A few young pigs were available at from $4 - $5 each.

Great Britain Must Smash Nazi Warships

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, July 26 (AP)—The escape of a German warship from Brest to a French port less menaced by British bombers is a serious development fully warranting costly Royal Air Force operations to deal with it.

London reports say the escaped ship, described as the 26,000-ton battle cruiser Scharnhorst, has again been struck by bombs in sustained daylight air raids. She now lies at La Pallice, 240 miles southward down the Bay of Biscay—and therefore she is much further from British air bases than she was at Brest.

The disconcerting fact from the British viewpoint is that, despite incessant British bombing at Brest since last March, the ship was repaired and put to sea, presumably at night and under her own power, for the dash to La Pallice.

British information indicates that her sister ship, Gniesenau, still at Brest, along with the 10,000 ton cruiser Prinz Eugen, is in a worse state and probably out of action for months. The condition of the cruiser, which was the consort of the ill-fated Nazi battleship Bismarck, and which took refuge at Brest after the sinking of the Bismarck, is not clearly indicated.

In these three fast and powerful surface craft and the uncertain number of other heavy ships still available in German waters, the Nazi high command holds a weapon that could increase British sea losses in the Atlantic. As winter approaches and longer hours of darkness and bad weather combine to render submarine and air attack less effective, roving raids by big and powerful surface fighters would hold a special menace.

Having reached La Pallice, a long step further for British bombers to go across German occupied territory to strike at her, the Scharnhorst becomes a greater danger than she was at Brest. If she is not quickly put out of commission there, it follows that a redisposition of British battleships and battle cruisers to guard against her escape to sea where she might be refitted without British molestation would be necessary. And any naval craft withdrawn from Atlantic convoy duty to keep watch on the Scharnhorst would impair the convoy system.

Job for Air Force

Once they reached Brest, the three heavy Nazi ships became the responsibility of the British air force, not the British navy. They have been bombed so frequently night and day that news readers have long ago lost count. Major repairs and replacements where necessary, and in the case of the Scharnhorst have been accomplished sufficiently for the ship to get to sea again despite the bombardment.

That testifies both to the intensity of Nazi anti-aircraft protection which forced British bombers to high altitude attack and to the relative ineffectiveness against small targets of that form of air attack. There can be small question, however, that British air force orders now call for sustained daylight blasting at the Nazi ships both at Brest and La Pallice.

That means British plane losses, as the admitted toll of fifteen bombers and seven fighters missing in the Brest-La Pallice attacks indicates. To offset it somewhat London announced a dozen German fighters downed.

Whatever the risks or losses, however the Scharnhorst and Gnesenau and—to a lesser extent the Prinz Eugen are such important factors in the sea war that they call for every British effort to smash them beyond repair. Until they are, they will remain a deadly threat to Britain's sea life lines.

POLICE BLOTTER

Stolen from the Hastings' Motors used car lot here earlier in the week, a Reo coupe was recovered abandoned along Highway No. 7 near Kaladar yesterday. Chief C. J. Hayes of Tweed, found the vehicle in the ditch where it had apparently been driven by the car thieves when the vehicle ran out of gasoline.

Constables Wright and Thomson answered a call to 84 Yeomans Street late Friday night, where a family disturbance was reported in progress. A younger woman is alleged to have assaulted her mother-in-law following verbal altercations. Charges will be preferred by the elder woman, police were told after peace and quietness had been restored.

Held on a nominal charge of vagrancy, a man who gave his name as Percy Smith of Ottawa, was apprehended by Sergeant Arthur Booth yesterday. The man claimed today he is suffering from amnesia. Ottawa authorities are being contacted regarding the man's identity.

A new bicycle, bearing city bicycle licence number 867, was found abandoned on the street last night and taken to the police station for safe-keeping. Two other bikes of a more ancient vintage are awaiting owners at the police station also. No licence plates are attached the latter two bicycles however.

ANOTHER CORVETTE IS LAUNCHED

A Canadian West Coast Port, July 26 (CP)—Industrial plant and ship whistles blended their shrill greetings with the cheers of a large gallery of onlookers as another Canadian corvette was launched here last night. The vessel was named the Dundas in honor of an Ontario community.

GERMANS REAPED GREAT HARVEST IN CZECH STATE

Seized Gold, Occupied Banks and Reduced the Nation to One of Farm Laborers and Industrial Workers

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 26 (CP).—Two years of Nazi tyranny and exploitation resulted in the looting of Czechoslovakia of "one-third of the national property left at Munich", official sources in London estimated.

The Germans carried out their policy of making the Czechs a nation of agricultural laborers and industrial workers by seizing the gold stock, occupying banks, expropriating business firms by declaring them Jewish even if only one director was a Jew, the publication "Two Years of German Oppression in Czechoslovakia" said.

Apart from his rich haul, the Germans gained unestimated amounts of timber by exploiting the Czech forests and huge stocks of supplies by requisitioning Czech butter, cereals, cattle and fruit. By the invasion, Hitler boasted in a speech April 28, 1939, he took over the Czech army, thereby gaining complete equipment for 40 divisions.

In Slovakia, once part of the Czech republic, "investments, the whole of the industrial production, indeed even the sowing plan and everything without exception must today be conducted according to German requirements."

If the Germans could not "invent" legal titles to justify taking a property in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, the other part of the republic, they usually obtained their ends by applying compulsion to the victim.

The book mentioned the cases of Dr. Bachrach, chairman of a distillery organization, who was tortured to death in jail, and Dr. Trebicky, the 70-year-old chairman of the Central Czechoslovak Chamber of Commerce, who was kept under arrest until he resigned in favor of a German.

Fixed Exchange.

Another means of plundering was by artificially fixing the rate of exchange between the Czech crown and the Reichsmark—as the Nazis did in France with the franc after the collapse last year. One mark was made equal to ten Czech crowns after the occupation, compared with a pre-Munich rate of one mark to four crowns.

The Germans gained every time they made a purchase in Czech shops but their haul was made more extensive by an order compelling the Czechs to exchange all stocks of precious metals, diamonds and foreign currency for the German paper mark.

Outright control of Czech concerns, including the great Skoda arms factory, followed Nazi manipulations which gave them ownership of banks. In the case of Skoda, it came to the Germans when the Bank of Dresden took over a Czech bank.

Plundering of Czechoslovak economic resources entered a new phase after introduction of the customs union last October 1. This took away from the protectorate the right to form its own economic policy. As a result the protectorate became a sort of super-district of the German revenue area with a high commissioner in Prague at the head.

"From now on there will be only such industries in the protectorate as are acceptable to the Reich," the book declared.

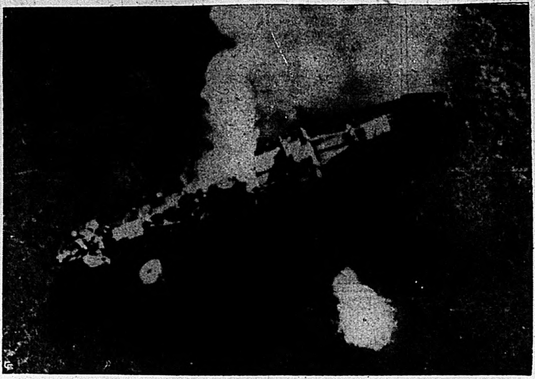
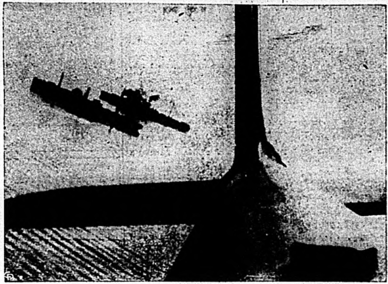
AS ROYAL AIR FORCE BLASTS NAZI SHIPPING IN THE NORTH SEA



The German supply ship Elbe is shown, ABOVE, burning after a direct hit by a British naval plane. Other bombs can been seen sending up geysers of water beside the stricken vessel. When sunk, the Elbe was reported to have been disguised as a Norwegian ship.



Two ships of a German convoy are shown here as they appeared from the Royal Air Force plane which attacked the convoy. The ship farthest away from the camera is burning after a direct hit was scored. The tail of one of the attacking planes is in foreground. For weeks past the R.A.F. and units of the fleet air arm have scoured the North Sea and inflicted heavy losses on Nazi shipping.

Water Cools Milk Quicker Than Air

Milk should be cooled to 50 degrees F., or lower, immediately after it is drawn in order to prevent bacterial growth and subsequent spoilage. At the same time, while the cooling of milk is very important, it cannot take the place of clean milking, but milk cooled without delay will keep sweet many hours longer than will another portion of the same milk, the cooling of which has been delayed for an hour or two. When milk must be shipped long distances without adequate protection during warm weather, immediate cooling may make all the difference of its being accepted or rejected at the plant.

The speed at which milk can be cooled depends upon the rate at which the heat in the milk is passed on to something else which will absorb it. Some materials absorb heat much more rapidly than others. Air absorbs heat very slowly. Consequently, if a can of warm milk is placed in a refrigerated room where the air temperature is at freezing point, it will be about 12 hours before the temperature of the milk has fallen to 50 degrees F. This explains, states the War-Time Production Series Pamphlet of the Agricultural Supplies Board, No. 58, on "Cooling Milk on the Farm", why attempts to cool milk in winter by setting the cans in a snow-bank or exposing them to outdoor temperature so often lead to trouble.

Water absorbs heat much more rapidly and will cool milk more than 20 times faster than air. As milk must give up its heat to the surrounding water, the larger the volume of water and the lower its temperature, the more quickly the milk will be cooled. Cooling is more rapid when either the milk or water or both are kept in motion. In stirring milk there is a risk of adding bacteria if the stirring rods are not thoroughly washed and sterilized; hence stirring the water is the better method. The many methods available for cooling milk are discussed in detail in the bulletin which may be obtained by writing to Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Looking Back on Canada

with FRED WILLIAMS

On This Date

It is 130 years ago today (July 26, 1811) that the first party of Scots sailed under Lord Selkirk's philanthropy for the Red River, to found what became Manitoba, the gateway to the Canadian west. It was then Selkirk's intention to visit the scene of his great venture at the earliest convenient moment and give the settlers his personal assistance in meeting the problems and dangers they would face. No sooner had the first group of immigrants arrived in the new world in the fall and begun to prepare to winter at York Factory than it became apparent that they would need any aid his lordship might be able to give them. But the plan to colonize Red River was threatened with obstacles in the old world as well as in the new and it was partly owing to this that the earl was forced to postpone his visit. When, at last, he did arrive in Canada, en route to Red River, four years had passed since the first contingent of settlers had landed on the shores of Hudson Bay and the colony in Assiniboia had suffered so many disasters and still faced so many dangers that succor from the proprietor seemed more necessary than it had at the very beginning. Had Lord Selkirk known what further mischief the partners of the North West Company of Canada were already planning in order to thwart his colonization project he would have been aghast and would have moved with all speed to defend his settlers by force of arms. Later than should have been, he determined to organize a military force to defend Assiniboia. His plan was to raise a corps of "fighting Irishmen" (mostly old British soldiers) and send them to York Factory and so to Red River. But he found it difficult to find his Irishmen. Those who wanted to come to America preferred Boston and New York to the rigors of the "unknown north," and in the end the Selkirk settlers had to defend themselves. This interlocking of Selkirk's plans with emigration from Ireland is interesting in many ways. Students of the subject will find valuable material in "The Selkirk Letters" in the current issue of The Canadian Historical Review.

IN THE WARM WEATHER

When the mercury rose high in the nineties in Belleville was a time when one knew the advantages of sensible dress in "the good old summer time." Fortunately there has been a healthy and sane trend in dress and when all is said and done there is also a marked restraint, none of styles are radical, but they are sensible.

Children have the real advantage in sensible clothing. They get very close to nature and the sun has an opportunity to send its rays to infiltrate into the skin to store up health in the young bodies against the dreary sunless days of winter. Children wear delightful attire. They have colors in their clothing and they have no supercargo of cotton and wool to carry about.

Women have also gone far on the road to the practical and sensible in dress without becoming freakish or outside the range of common sense. They do not weigh themselves down with attire but they know how to dispose their light attire to fine advantage, so that the woman's dress today is something both practical and beautiful.

Even men, conservative in dress as if they were ancient Medes and Persians whose laws were supposed never to be broken, have slowly but really followed the trend. Truly they dress so that they stay within style but their clothes are light in weight and in color and they do not mind shedding their coats and most of them now leave their head uncovered.

So when the mercury approaches the one hundred mark the temperature is fairly bearable to many because they are prepared for sudden rises of temperature. While some still cling to the older notions, most people realize that it is not only sensible but it is a common duty to make oneself comfortable. It is true economy of strength, energy and temper.

Credit for this must go in no small measure to the stylists who have added to the beauty of dress and have made apparel comfortable and fitting for the seasons as they come and go. The retailer too has the opportunity to serve and he stocks his shop with these styles for the warm season.

WAR IN EAST EUROPE

An interesting light on the war is provided by the Russians. They have imagination. This is seen in the ability which they possess to use reports or stories which kindle the imagination. It is they who told of German wooden artillery in emplacements to take the place of big guns being removed to the eastern front, and of the Huns using canvass and timber to make mock tanks and so impress the Russian troops. Russians have outwitted the Germans by stealing Nazi signals, red flares to open fire, white to attack, green to cease fire. The Germans, letter-perfect in the art of war as they fight it, do not like this at all and claim it is unfair.

Russia, a land of vastness and untold possibilities, a land of different races, has developed peoples different in their methods in fighting from the Germans who have Teutonic patterns to follow, which have been handed down from the past. The Russian, if he draws on his inheritance, has an almost infinite reservoir of motive and inspiration to draw from while the Hun is limited largely to adoration of brute strength and cruelty and mass effort and self-worship.

It was Russia which took the lead in parachuting and in glider warfare. The Huns saw the advantage of these types and seized upon these possibilities.

Britain gave the first tank and in the second world war the Hun piled mass upon mass into his tanks and his initial major successes were done largely with the aid of these when the war began. But he is out-tanked by Britain which has now the new "Crusaders" which can cut circles around the Germans and race as fast as many express trains.

The German mind is not so flexible as that of the British and of the Russian. Britain is steadily improving her method of modern war but the Hun entered the war one hundred per cent armed and trained in his school and style of warfare, which will in the long run leave him stranded.

Hitler pits his cold, cruel, calculation against Russian weight and mass and imagination. The world is watching the course, already disappointing to the Germans.

FISHING

Fish can be caught in the market place
But it isn't fish I am after,
I want to be free from the care-drawn face
And back to an honest laughter.
I want to get out where skies are clear
And rest by the river brink,
I want to get out where the woods are clear,
I want a few hours to think.

Oh! It isn't the fish I go to get
But there's joy in the swishing line
And a splendid thrill when my hook is set
And a speckled trout is mine;
But my soul seems cramped in the stilly air
That is heavy with talk of gain,
And I want to get where the world is fair
And there isn't so much of pain.

Oh, fish can be bought in the market place
But there's joy in the running stream,
And I want to get free from the care-drawn face
And the city of dreadful dreams;
And I want to get out, just my soul and I,
On some sun-kissed shore
And be, as a few man hours rush by,
The man that I am, once more.

"BE PREPARED"

Canadian Boy Scouts have long enjoyed the reputations of being resourceful, loyal and possessed of a keen sense of their duty to their organization, their fellow scouts, and their country.

Many scouts have been decorated for bravery, and others have shown a remarkable aptitude to do the right thing in tha face of emergency.

A striking incident of this was exemplified a few days ago on the banks of the Moira River a few miles from the city.

Scouts Ross Watson, Charles Street and Bruce Diamond, Foster Avenue, were playing along the river bank when Diamond stepped on a broken bottle, inflicting a severe gash on the bottom of one of his feet. Blood spurted from the gaping wound but Watson, recalling his first aid scout training, quickly applied a tourniquet.

Making his pal as comfortable as he could, the young scout crossed the river and hitch-hiked to a farmhouse. Unfortunately there was no telephone available, but the dauntless scout trudged the remainder of the distance to the city where he notified Diamond's parents. They immediately left in their car and brought the wounded boy to the hospital. There the injury was treated by Dr. G. S. Cronk, who inserted six stitches in the wound.

The doctor stated that the tourniquet was applied in a fine manner and under the circumstances the knowledge of Watson and his ability to act in the face of an emergency actually prevented more serious consequences.

The young scout is to be complimented on his foresight, and recognition of his actions should be given. It is such youths as these that grow into the men who are now fighting Britain's battles in the war-scarred skies of Europe.

WHEELER - LINDBERGH

Veronique Hall, writing in the New York Herald Tribune, answers a query as to the definition of a "wheelbergh."

A wheelbergh, writes Mrs. Hall, is a not so quiet bird-man of the ostrich family (also dimly related to the dodo family). Its main habit is in the temperate zone, where it enjoys all the fruits of Nature, but it is noted for its refusal to defend these advantages, appears only too willing to share them with despoilers who have only to growl from a distance.

A further distinguishing characteristic of the wheelbergh is "day-blindness," which causes it to ignore dangers plainly seen by others and yet can see non-existent dangers in a poorer light.

The wheelberghs favorite trick is to bury its head in sand.

The only sound the wheelbergh makes is something like "A-pease! A-pease!" It is a harsh scream.

The wheelbergh can fly, but never makes any attempt to do so. As a result, its wings are becoming atrophied.

OF ALL THINGS GOOD

Of all things good the home is best,
Shelters safe wherein to rest;
Roof and wall and step secure
Long as faith and love endure.

Of all loveliness and grace,
Fairest is love's dwelling place;
Where, when busy day is spent,
Hearts find comfort and content.

Of all treasures richest far
Pretty glass and china are,
Shelf of books and carpets deep
Young and old are proud to keep.

Of God's blessings as they fall,
Joy of home excelleth all.
Home, where everything appears
Love has worked for down the years.

Diabetes

When I was a boy, I noticed that the father of one of my playmates was becoming very fat. He was of medium height and his excess fat made his figure almost square because he was a strongly built man. Then I began to notice that he was losing some of his fat but did not look very well. He finally died of diabetes.

What is diabetes? Diabetes is a disease in which the body is not able to use all the sugar in the food. In a normal individual, this unused sugar is stored up in the liver, in the muscles and under the skin, or stored away on the inside or outside of the body as fat. Thus starch foods such as bread or potatoes are valuable as foods as, after supplying heat and energy to the body, they can be stored in this way for future use.

In diabetes, however, the body is unable to get from these starch foods enough fuel or energy for the ordinary needs of the body and none at all to store away for future use.

"When the tissues can neither use nor store sugar, the symptoms of diabetes appear. Sugar piles up in the blood and this causes thirst. Drinking large amounts of water to quench the thirst results in a frequent desire to pass the urine. An excessive amount of sugar is found in the urine, because this is the way in which the body gets rid of the sugar it cannot use".

An excess of sugar in the urine, excessive thirst, and a frequent desire to pass the urine are the outstanding symptoms of diabetes.

The physician also tests the blood. If there is an excess of sugar in the blood also, it is diabetes as excess sugar may be found in the urine of normal individuals.

Fortunately diabetics can now be kept alive by use of insulin when formerly they died within two or three years.

Slow Down! Save Gas!

The "man at the wheel" can cut down drastically on the use of gasoline by keeping the speed of the vehicle down to reasonable proportions, speed tests have demonstrated. Every bit of gasoline he conserves helps to release fuel for our tanks and armored cars, our fighting planes and our bombers.

Actually, the experts say, it takes a third more gasoline to go a mile at 60 miles an hour than at 40. The Carter Carbuetor Corporation in the United States which has distributors in Canada, has recently issued figures showing that the normal economy of a car capable of giving 25 miles per gallon (20 miesl per American gallon) at (20 miles per American gallon) at under different driving conditions.

Constant speed tests prove that the motorist will get 25 miles per gallon at 20 miles per hour, as compared with 22.9 miles per gallon at 40 miles and 10 miles per gallon at 70 miles an hour, according to the figures distributed by the corporation, and

Tests have shown also that it requires approximately 10 additional horsepower to increase the speed of a six-cylinder car about three miles when it is running at 70 miles per hour.

Here are the seventeen easy ways towards a fifty percent gasoline saving, as approved by automobile experts:

Reduce driving speed from 60 to 40 on the open road.

Avoid jack-rabbit starts.

Avoid useless or non-essential driving.

Turn motor off when not in use, do not leave idling.

Don't race your engine; let it warm up slowly.

Don't strain your engine; change gears.

Keep carburetor cleaned and properly adjusted.

Tune up motor, timing, etc.

Keep spark plugs and valves clean.

Check cooling system; overheating wastes gasoline.

Maintain tires at right pressure.

Lubricate efficiently; worn engines waste gasoline.

Drive in groups to and from work, using cars alternate days.

For golf, picnics and other outings, use one car instead of four.

Take those short shopping trips ON FOOT and carry parcels home.

Walk to and from the movies.

Boat owners, too, can help by reducing speed.

PARFAIT GENTILE KNIGHTE

All the finest virtues of romantic knighthood are supposed to have reached their zenith in the person of Sir Philip Sidney.

Soldier, statesman and scholar, he was a typical Elizabethan in the wide range of his activities.

He was the last of the mirrors of knighthood and the noblest-minded the most magnanimous and the most gallant of the cavaliers who ornamented the reign of the Virgin Queen.

When the English intervened against Spain in the Low Countries in 1585, Sir Philip Sidney, then 30 years old, was made governor of Flushing.

On July 22, 1586, the Happy Warrior headed the English column against the Spanish at the battle of Zutphen.

During the fighting a Spanish shot penetrated his light armor and wounded him in the thigh.

The gallant knight clung to the saddle while his high-spirited charger galloped with him a mile and a half back to the English lines.

When the wounded Sidney complained of his burning thirst, an English officer, with great difficulty, obtained for him a flask of water.

As he raised the water to his lips he observed the longing look in the eyes of a dying English soldier lying near him.

Still the perfect gentle knight, Sir Philip handed to the dying soldier the precious draught, untasted, and as he did so uttered the never-to-be-forgotten words:

"Poor fellow, thy need is greater than mine."

His wound proved mortal, and after severe suffering, Sir Philip died at Arnheim October 17 of the same year.

When his body was interred in old St. Paul's Cathedral, February 16, 1587, all England mourned the loss of the last embodiment of the golden age of knighthood.

More than 200 elegies were composed in honor of Sir Philip.

Edmund Spenser lamented him in his "Astrophel," and used him as the model of his Prince Arthur in "The Faerie Queene."

When King David was hiding in the cave of Adullam he longed for a drink of water from the well of Bethlehem; but when three faithful followers passed through the lines of the Philistines and brought it, David poured it out to the Lord, saying: "Shall I drink the blood of these men that have put their lives in jeopardy?"

A Village is Blitzed— And a Sheep Killed

The war has come to the Northern dales. The last time I was there this meant evacuees, children mainly, and a few adults whose closely-detailed accounts of blitzed cities were listened to with characteristic patience and courtesy.

"You don't know there's a war on up here," said the evacuees.

"No, that's right," nodded the villagers without resentment.

Occasionally, of course, they would hear in the night a plane droning up their remote dale but they would mutter something about "yon fellow being lost," and turn over, and go off to sleep again, because they had to be up as soon as there was light enough on the hill roads to the pastures.

"Where we come from," the evacuees said with admonitory relish, "when we heard planes we got bombs."

"Oh, they nivver drop nowt here," said the modest villagers.

"Don't you ever get an alert?"

"Well, we have a whistle in t' village, like, but fowk weeant let t' warden blow un. It nobbud wokkens 'em up, and they've nowheer to go. There's no shelters up here."

The Winter wore on, and the villagers dug their cottages out of the snow. And then the snow went, and the Spring came, and the planes still droned occasionally up the dales, only now they sometimes dropped an exploratory bomb.

By rights, the villagers ought to have had something to say about this to the evacuees, but they kept a good-humored silence. If they talked about their new experience it was only under pressure from the latest arrivals, who seemed anxious to know whether they had picked on a safe place to live in.

"Well, we've had a bomb or two," the village butcher said one day, with a kind of comical diffidence.

He has a dry wit, the village butcher, and the evacuee who had pressed him into conversation stared at him suspiciously, but there was nothing but mildness in his pale blue eyes.

"But don't you blow the whistle when you hear a bomb?"

"Nay, there's someb'dy in t' village has a weeak heart, and t' whistle wouldn't do un any good."

A farmer struck into the conversation. "You need no whistle if you've getten a pheasant or two about in t' trees. I thowt I'd heard a bump or two t'other night, and I stuck my heead out of t' window to see if t' pheasants 'd heeard owt, but they were varry silent, so I went back in ageean. Them birds'll hear thunder afore us, and they hears bombs an' all, and then they mak's a fuss and you can hear 'em a long way off."

As the year began to draw out, planes were heard more regularly. This was not a fact of any great local significance. The head warden in one of the village pointed out that if you drew a straight line across the map it "just about nicks the top off't our church spire."

They were all going over, though one or two of the dafter pilots now and then dropped incendiary bombs that hit the fells and lit them up.

There was one noisy night, according to a village oracle, when a count showed that upwards of 60 planes had gone over.

That was the night they dropped a bomb just over the top of the hill.

"Fair shook this place, but it nobbud fell in a quarry, like, so it's be doing somebody's bit o' work for 'em."

And then one night a village was blitzed. The Luftwaffe only sent one plane over, but then there was only one short street of cottages and farm buildings to bomb. Bombs were dropped in the fields behind the cottages, and then the plane scattered incendiary bombs along the street.

The dales people who saw what happened from their cottages higher up the hillside say it looked like a fireworks display.

They do not yet know why they were bombed. They were scratching their heads about it up and don the dale and offering various opinions. One was that the village lads had been standing at the street end, talking and lighting their pipes and cigarettes, but this suggestion was knocked on the head, as it was long past the time of night for that sort of thing. Another was that "it were them theer new cow houses," whose newness showed up a bit but then they were not as new as all that. A third was that it happened just on lambing time, and somebody might have been carrying a storm lamp up t' back.

But another reason was also gently sketched in. The dale had somehow "fairly smelled trouble" that night, as it does when there is a bit of bad weather blowing up, this village in particular, and the whistles had been blown in its one short street.

"You could hear 'em reight up on t' tops, they made that mich noise, and then t' machine comed and bombed 'em. It were them that got it. Funny that, weren't it? Happen they blew tiv hard?"

Windows were blown out. According to one of the villagers, they counted several hundred incendiary bombs afterwards. Some fell in the cottages, but were soon put out.

The roof of a two-storey workshop caught fire, and the hero of the blitz was the man who broke in and drove out a lorry with the flames just above his head, petrol all about him, and the sound of the plane coming back down the dale. But the whole village worked with a will.

"We were on tiv owt we seed."

Fortieth Anniversary of Wooler And York Road Institutes Marked With Interesting Joint Program

Wooler — An interesting event took place in the parlors of the United Church, when the branches of the East Northumberland, Wooler and York Road Women's Institutes met to celebrate the 40th anniversary of their organization. Many changes have taken place regarding its work, for the better, it is well known.

In the beginning the late Mrs. Walter Dempsey was president for Wooler and the enthusiasm with which she and the few members installed, carried on the work, as more and more members were added to the list showed good results and it was decided to divide the organization in two branches. This also proved a success as a wider development in every theorem has been demonstrated. Mrs. Way is president for the York Road branch now, while Miss Gwena Elford is filling that position creditably for Wooler. An excellent program was another interesting feature and the following numbers:

Address by Mrs. Clarke, district president, Mrs. M. E. Maybee, Trenton, Mrs. W. A. McColl and Mrs. George Anderson, all former presidents for Wooler; Mrs. Snider and Mrs. Alexander of Smithfield, a piano duet; Georgina May, a piano solo and Miss Ruby Smith, a vocal solo. Small tables looked lovely in the parlors attractively laid with choice viands and Wooler ladies serving the repast. A wonderful afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed and the singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting.

Canadian Poultry In South Africa

Two pens of Barred Rock pullets shipped in the Fall of 1940 from Canada to the Orange Free State, South Africa, set up a record for high production in spite of the long ocean trip. Their owner in South Africa recently reported to the Live Stock and Poultry Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, that the birds arrived in excellent condition.

Four days after arrival, two pullets started to lay. In six days all were laying and kept on laying. In the following 49 days the birds averaged 43 eggs each, or close to 90 per cent. production. Hatchability was also exceptionally high. Recently inquiries for Canadian-bred birds have been received from Jamaica and Trinidad. The inquiry from Jamaica was for two pens; that from Trinidad for an unspecified number. The latter inquiry came as the result of a successful shipment from Canada two years ago.

Temperance Program At Aiken's Church

Third Sidney, July 26.—Mr. Murney Jeffrey, Temperance Secretary of Aiken's Sunday School, presented a fine temperance program at the close of the regular session at Aiken's Church on Sunday morning. Readings were given by Mrs. Leon McMullen, Don Hubble and Gordon Grills.

Friends of Mr. Lee Grills who is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, regret that it was necessary to undergo a second minor operation on Thursday morning for the removal of another spinal abscess. His condition is reported as satisfactory.

Mrs. Harley Hubble spent Thursday with Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, second line.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Donaldson of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell of Thurlow spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bush. Miss Freda Mitchell returned home with her parents, having spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. Bush.

Mrs. Joe Langman spent a day last week with Mrs. H. Hubble and family.

Mrs. William Bowers spent the week-end with his brother, Mr. C. Bowers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shorey, fourth line.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bush attended the Bush family picnic held on Wednesday on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McMaster, York Road.

Aiken's Woman's Missionary Society sponsored a meeting on Monday afternoon when they were "at home" to ladies of the surrounding district. Miss Ida McKenzie of Toronto addressed the meeting which was in charge of Mrs. Macklin of Stirling, vice-president of the Belleville section.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Westover, Miss Jennie Moon and Mr. Douglas McPherson were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jones, Consecon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jeffrey visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jeffrey, fourth line, on Sunday.

Mrs. Allan McDonald of Shannonville is spending this week with her daughter, Mrs. Lee Grills.

Mr. Bert Hinchliffe of Dryden, Ontario, and Mrs. John Hinchliffe of Wallbridge called on the latter's niece, Mrs. E. K. Hubble, on Friday afternoon.

Farmers are busy cutting and stooking grain which has matured early this season owing to the hot dry weather. A light crop is reported in most sections with some fields yielding a fairly good sample.

Mr. Harold Cummings started threshing last week, and Mr. Byron Harder has been operating one of Mr. Lee Grills' threshing outfits during the illness of Mr. Grills.

Canada is Making The Tools of War

A new town has sprung up almost overnight in Quebec province, a town with its own post office, restaurants, hospital, fire and police stations, named streets, even an abbreviated railway system of its own, but no dwellings. The population cannot be given, but it runs to several thousands.

Visitors are not welcome in this town, nor are many people anxious to visit it except on business. High, closely-knit steel fencing surrounds every inch of the townsite. Powerful floodlights illuminate the area to daylight brilliance at night. Armed and uniformed guards carry on a ceaseless patrol inside and outside the fences. Every visitor must be in possession of passes signed by high authorities and abundant proof of identity as well.

This is an explosives town, a $15,000,000 development that is a key piece in the coast to coast jigsaw of Canada's huge munitions program. Millions of shells, thousands of bombs, will be filled with explosive in this town.

Actually there are two towns—a town within a town. In the outer ring are administration buildings, storehouses for materials, cafeteries, fire and police stations, and construction buildings. The inner town is separated from this outer ring by fences, and everyone who passes through the gates is subjected to an even more searching examination than at the main gate. Smoking is absolutely taboo in this inner town. Traffic regulations are strict. Under no circumstances may the driver of one vehicle turn out to pass another.

The buildings in the outer town are in orderly array, but those inside the second fence seem to be scattered almost haphazard. They are unimpressive, almost ugly, in appearance. Many are surrounded by concrete and timber barricades higher than their roof-tops, solid retaining walls that hide the buildings themselves.

Behind these walls men handle some of the most powerful explosives known. They know the full potentialities of these chemicals and treat them with respect. The old saying, "Familiarity breeds contempt", does not hold true in an explosives plant. Rather, familiarity breeds respect and caution. A tiny infraction of the rules, the slightest bit of carelessness on the part of one worker, might endanger the lives of a score or more. So every worker automatically polices his fellows. For his own sake, he permits no carelessness on the part of his fellows and watches his own actions scrupulously.

One visits such a plant with trepidation, but learns quickly that the danger is slight unless someone becomes careless.

The visitor arrives in a division of the explosives plant. Before entering, he must produce his passes and credentials and sign a register. He then goes to the change room, where he surrenders to the attendant most of the contents of his pockets — matches, cigarette lighters, cigarettes and tobacco in any form, food, chewing gum, pocket knives, keys, nail files, sometimes even watches and coins. To make certain that nothing is overlooked, the attendant searches the visitor in expert fashion. He turns out pockets, feels along the linings of coats and vests, to make certain that no stray match or match head is secreted amid the fluff which accumulates in the clothing of most men.

The visitor is then taken to a barricade, fitted with a metal stile. Signs indicate that the room on one side of the barricade is "dirty", the other side "clean". This is highly important. Mounting the stile, the visitor pulls on a pair of freshly-washed rubbers before he may step down upon the "clean" side of the barricade. If these rubbers as much as touched the apparently spotless floor of the "dirty" side, the visitor would have to change to a fresh pair before setting foot on the "clean" floor. The whole purpose of the precaution would be undone if metal or grit were carried into the "clean" section of the plant.

Workers in the plant do not wear rubbers, but leather shoes which are entirely sewn and contain no metal. They also wear long overalls of grey flannel, which they don in the "change room" and discard before they leave the plant.

These formalities over, the visitor is guided along corridors which seem to stretch for miles, "walkaways" connecting with side corridors leading into separate buildings where various processes are carried on. Some of these buildings are comparatively small, with thick walls, where dangerous operations are in progress. Others, where less danger exists, are as big as trolley car barns.

One series of buildings is reserved for the filling of aerial bombs. The steel bombs are unloaded from freight cars and stacked for preliminary inspection and a thorough cleaning, inside and out. The bomb is up-ended on a special cart and the big base plug is removed. A cardboard former for the fuse is then inserted in the nose end and sealed firmly in place with plastic. Another former is fixed in the base end for the second exploder.

The building where actual filling is done is three storeys in height. On the top floor is the steam-heated oven in which T.N.T., normally a granular substance similar in appearance to old-fashioned brown sugar, is melted to a liquid resembling maple syrup. The T.N.T. is mixed with another chemical in a machine which finds a use in domestic industry as a bread-mixer.

The resultant mixture is a yellowish-brown fluid which pours readily to the first floor through a combination of pipes. Here workers operate valves which allow the explosive to flow into the bombs; it pours slowly so that every crevice may be filled.

From the filling room the bomb goes to a department where workers tamp down the explosive with wooden clubs, smooth off the surface at the base end, seal it with plastic, and insert the base plug. After final inspection the bomb is ready for shipment overseas.

The tail assembly, a light metal framework that serves to keep the bomb in an upright position during its downward flight from the plane, is shipped separately. So are the detonating mechanisms, known as pistols, which explode the charge of high explosive. These are inserted in the bomb, and the tail assembly put on, by the air force armorer when he prepares to load the cargo of death on the bomber before it takes off. The bomb itself is comparatively safe for handling until the detonating devices are installed.

JAPAN TAKES NO CHANCES

San Francisco, July 26 (CP) — Japan, taking no chances on having her finest liners and cargo vessels seized by the United States, imposed strict orders of radio silence Friday on her merchant fleet, halted suddenly on the high seas.

Japan was clearly apprehensive as a result of President Roosevelt's denunciaton of Indo-China occupation.

Fall Rye for Early Pasture in Spring

Perhaps it may seem too soon to be talking about next spring's pastures at this time of the year when there is such a scarcity of feed, but that is what should be done to be assured of adequate pasturage throughout the year, states F. W. Nowosad, Division of Forage Crops, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Fall rye seeded as early as August 1, may provide some late pasture, but it makes its best showing in the early spring. Seeded around September 1st, it should give excellent spring pasture at least two weeks earlier than other seeded pastures and will give the grass a chance to get well established so as to carry the stock longer and well into the summer months.

At the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, fall rye seeded at two bushel per acre the firt week in September was ready for grazing on May 18 in 1939, on May 14 in 1940, and on May 2, in 1941. It remained productive for about a month when used in rotation with other pastures. Fall rye land can be ploughed up around June 10th and corn, sudan grass or millet can be planted immediately in order to make full use of that area and provide additional forage for live stock. The recommended varieties of rye are Horton, Crown and Dakold. The latter variety is late and prostrate in habit of growth at first, but it furnishes good pasture later than the other varieties mentioned.

Plenty Clean Fresh Water for Poultry Always Essential

One of the first essentials to efficient production of eggs is plenty of clean, fresh water for the hens. Eggs are two-thirds water and water is the most economical source of material for eggs. Hens are so constituted physically that they require plenty of water, especially in the summer months. If water is not available to them for a moderate length of time they will soon die. A hen will die from lack of water. Practically all the water a hen drinks is exhaled from the lungs and if it is withheld the lungs soon dry up and the hen will die like a fish out of water.

Hens have a peculiar habit or way of drinking—they throw their heads well backwards in order to swallow. Many drinking fountains or troughs are not adapted to easy drinking for the hens. The best water receptacles are those which provide a constant stream of running water, preferably in open containers, raised well above the floor so as to avoid contamination. The water the birds are given to drink should be as clean and the receptables also as clean as they would be if used for human consumption.

Egg Producers Can Help War Effort by Greater Efficiency

By early fall of this year the shipment of 230,000 cases of Canadian eggs, the balance of this year's order of the British Ministry of Food to a total of 514,000 cases will have been shipped. There is a probability of larger orders for eggs from the British Ministry being placed. If these orders from Britain materialize and the domestic demand for eggs is maintained as seems certain, then the maximum efficiency in production of eggs will be necessary on the part of every poultry producer in Canada.

Increased efficiency in egg production—more eggs per hen—more eggs per pound of feed, will be the challenge to everyone with a poultry flock, large or small.

One of the great achievements in the poultry industry in recent years has been the avoidance of pullorum disease in young chicks. Mortality of 20 per cent or over used to be common; now if a poultry keeper has from two to three per cent mortality he becomes alarmed. Unfortunately, however, the stage of mortality has been changed from that of the baby chick to the mature bird, or the bird just placed in the laying house. This mortality costs the producer more money than had the bird died as a baby chick. Officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, who have made a study of the trouble, believe that one of the principal causes of this mortality is due to over-crowding in the colony house.

Lice and mice in the poultry plant also exact a heavy toll among the birds. In efficient production there should be no lice or mites because they are comparatively easy to control. Cleanliness in the houses is the first essential. Roosts and other parts of the buildings should be treated with a prepared disinfectant or with crank case oil diluted with kerosene. Cleanliness and proper hygiene and sanitation can be maintained with little cost and intelligent effort and will pay big dividends in what it will do to help reduce mortality and increase production, which just now is so essential in the war effort.

A Social Asset to Play a Good Game of Golf

Know Right Way to Swing

If your attempts at golf have been feeble and discouraging how marvelous the club champion seems as, with a mighty swing, she drives the ball 200 yards down the fairway.

Yet she probably once did as badly as you and she may have no more strength or ability. But with right instructions she has learned how to use her strength.

Golf is such fun, wins so many social rewards when you play well. Test your swing. Do you feel cramped, make a conscious effort to lift your club, turn your body- Then you're not really swinging, you're wasting your strength.

Golf is such fun, wins so many social rewards when you play well. Test your swing. Do you feel cramped, make a conscious effort to lift your club, turn your body? Then you're not really swinging, you're wasting your strength.

For a powerful accurate stroke swing the club in a smooth arc, allowing the body to respond to the outward pull of the club, but making no forced effort to pivot.

A good trick to get the feel of a real swing is to take a string with a weight attached to one end and swing this in a gradually increasing arc. Now take up your club, swing in the same way.

Your golf improves rapidly when you understand the principles. In our 32-page booklet Ernest Jones, teacher of champions, tells how to hold the club, how to stand and swing with the maximum of power and efficiency. For beginners and more advanced golfers.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

No Definite Rule About Toasts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1. At the wedding reception should the bride's father propose a toast?

2. If the sender of a wedding gift can be thanked personally, is it necessary for the bride-elect to write a thank-you note?

3. Is it necessary to include "At Home" cards in the wedding invitations?

Marie

1. Usually it is the best man who proposes a toast to the bride and bridegroom, but there is no definite rule about this, and it may be the bride's father or anyone else.

2. It is certainly more gracious for the bride-elect to write a note to anyone who has sent her a wedding present, even if the giver has been thanked verbally. In other words, there must be no feeling on the part of the giver that the bride has been casual about thanking for the thoughtfulness, the time and effort that have gone into choosing the wedding gift.

3. No, it is never necessary to include At Home cards, either in wedding invitations or announcements. This is entirely a matter of personal choice.

Double-Ring Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

In a double-ring ceremony who holds the rings?

L.

The best man has the responsibility of taking care of the bride's ring, of producing it and handing it to the bridegroom at the proper time in the ceremony. When the bridegroom is also to have a ring, the maid of honor hands the bridegroom's ring to the bride at the same time that the best man gives the bride's ring to the bridegroom.

Tip On Letter-Writing

Avoid beginning and closing a letter with a word ending in "ing." For example, instead of beginning a letter, "Having just arrived here, I...", write, "I have just arrived here and wanted to tell you that.. ..". Instead of closing a letter, — "Hoping to hear from you soon, I am," write, "I am looking forward

Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married in about two months, and already I am disturbed about what to plan to serve at the reception that is to be given at our house. My daughter and her fiance have not yet decided on the hour for their wedding, or even if it will be a day or evening wedding. Have you some information that will tell we what, in general, is served at a wedding reception? We cannot afford a caterer.

Mary's Mother

I realize that when the bride begins to ponder on what type of wedding dress she is going to wear, the bride's mother begins to ponder on what type of foods she will plan to serve at the wedding reception.

The hour of the reception does, of course, make a difference in the menu to be planned. If your budget is limited, the wise thing to do is not to plan to have the reception at an hour that is an actual meal hour. In-between-meal-hours foods can be simple, appropriate and inexpensive.

I have a pamphlet on "What To Serve At The Wedding Reception" — it has suggestions for appropriate menus for morning, afternoon, and evening receptions. I shall be happy to send it to you if you will send me a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

Improper for Near Kin to Sponsor Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for my fiance's mother to give a shower for me?

Bride-to-be

Because of the nature of a shower — the invitation means that a guest is expected to bring a present — it is not considered appropriate for the immediate relatives of the prospective bride or bridegroom to give a shower.

When the shower is given by a close friend of the prospective bride or a group of her close friends, it impresses us as being given in just the proper spirit. But when relatives plan the shower, the idea seems unattractively obvious — to wangle presents from other relatives and friends.

Also, when members of the families give showers it gives the impression that the bride-to-be hasn't any devoted friends to plan the shower for her.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Didn't Realize She Cared

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old and in love with a young man or 21. When we had been going together for some time I decided I wanted to go out with another boy. I did that, but it didn't seem to worry my boy friend. Then I stepped out the second time and decided to call it quits with my boy friend, because I like the other boy better.

Now I see it was all a mistake, because I really care for the first boy. When I told him I was sorry for what had happened and wanted him back, he told me he had gone over to his old girl friend, and that we'd better not go together again.

But I want him to go with me again. I can't seem to become interested in other boys. How can I get him back?

A Reader

I'm wondering if you really care about this first boy as much as you imagine, or if it's only another case of "Blessings brighten as they take their flight." Girls often regard a faithful admirer as a possession, and when someone else acquires that possession there's a tug at the heart-strings.

At the lovely age of 18, all sorts of reconciliations are possible. Let me add a grandmotherly note of warning, let this be a lesson to you.

Found Perfect Mother-in-Law

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I read your article about a girl whose mother-in-law proved to be a friend in need. Well, I had the same experience as this girl. My husband begged me to go and meet his mother. I thought she would be the same as the often-misjudged mother-in-law.

But since I've met her, I think she is the finest person in the world and has done me more good than any one. I think she is just something sweet that came down from Heaven, and has been a perfect mother-in-law for twenty years. I only hope I can keep her with us the rest of our lives. Nothing is too good for her and she's one in a million.

Another Daughter-in-Law

Not always do mothers-in-law measure up to a witch's yardstick, as this wife has discovered to her benefit and happiness. In marrying into a family, it's just as well to give a mother-in-law a chance.

Is He Married?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past few months a married man has been bothering me by trying to get me to go to a show with him. He says it's just for friendship's sake. But I am not the type of girl who will go out with a married man, and I have told him so. He continues asking me, although I've refused him numbers of times. What can I do or say to impress him?

Pat

Numerous letters have come to this column from girls who've been bothered with married men, who hang around them with the persistence of flies. These correspondents have confided to me various methods of ridding themselves of troublesome married men. One sauce-box said: "It's not that you're married, but that you personally don't appeal to me." He dropped her, thinking she was a person of wretched taste.

Another said: "I'm so sorry but I'm afraid you bore me." The following week he was seen at a movie with his neglected wife.

A third said to a young man who had been married not much more than a year, and who was a brand-new father: "You're only inviting me to sidestep walking the floor with the baby."

There's no reason at all why any girl, living in these United States, should go to a show or anywhere else with a man, single or married, whom she doesn't like. The best way to get rid of bores is to make them a saucy reply.

Medicine in the News

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Peak Season for Drownings at Hand

Sixty-five per cent of drownings that occur in the United States are in the period from May to August. The National Safety Council warns, therefore, "Don't take chances when you go to the beach this summer. Keep a close watch over the children."

Year after year, health authorities everywhere repeat these warnings. Word comes from Iowa, nevertheless, that the rate for drownings is more than twice as high as it was last year. As long as people refuse to recognize that rivers, streams and gravel pits are potential death traps, the number of deaths from drowning will continue.

Several of the drownings have been accidental deaths of children who fell into the water while playing on the bank. Children should be taught as early in life as possible about the perils of water for those who cannot swim and particularly for those who swim in unguarded areas.

Each year in the United States two hundred people die from serious injury sustained while diving. Two-thirds of these people failed to find out the depth of the water before they jumped. The cause of death in these cases is not drowning but a broken neck.

Fourteen out of one hundred accidents occurred because of rocks in the bottom of the water. One man cracked his head on an oil drum and another hit a tree stump. In one unusual case two people died at the same time as a result of hitting their heads together in the water.

The majority of cases of drowning occur in men. In California it was found that middle-aged men are the easiest drowning victims. Few deaths occur between the ages of 20 and 34, perhaps because these people are at an age when they swim fairly well and have sufficient vigor to withstand the rigors of exposure. In California the group of men from 35 to 54 form the largest group in the records of people who died from drowning.

One of the directors of a great life insurance company, after an examination of the records of that company concerning people who died from drowning while swimming, offers the following twelve rules for safety during the swimming season:

1. Do not go swimming alone or at night.

2. Don't overestimate your strength. Because you have been able to swim a certain distance several times that day that does not mean that you will be able to do it again.

3. Never swim across lakes or rivers or from headland to island, etc., or in unknown or dangerous waters, unless accompanied by a boat and a strong, level-headed companion trained in life-saving.

4. At the first opportunity learn how to rescue drowning persons without unduly endangering your own life, and learn how to administer artificial respiration.

5. Do not attempt to swim to a drowning person's rescue in rough or deep water unless no other help is immediately at hand and you are confident you are capable of effecting a rescue without sacrificing the drowning person's, as well as your own, life.

6. If possible before starting to a rescue, call to someone to get rope or a boat. If you are dressed, remove shoes, coat and trousers.

7. Don't swim for at least two hours after eating, and never swim beyond your depth in very cold water.

8. Never drink any cold beverage immediately before going swimming.

9. Skylarking in a boat is dangerous. Learn how to enter and leave boats and canoes and how to manage them properly.

10. Don't duck or "tease" your friends who are not as good swimmers as yourself. This may create a panicky mind which, in an emergency, may result in death.

11. Teach your friends who are poor swimmers to go bathing in pairs (preferably with someone who is a good swimmer), to stay in shallow water, to beware of hidden holes and sudden drops in the sea shelving, and to beware of heavy breakers and undertows.

12. Never dive in unknown, shallow or rocky waters. Even in clear waters remember that "a deep dive is a dangerous dive."

AT THE BELLE

"Caught in the Draft"

Bob's in the army now,
He's meet a gal that's a wow.
Her name is Lamour.
There's more to be sure.
In this rookie's life— and how!
There's a new Hope for the army

now that Bob has joined up. For America's new defense Army has its Hollywood counterpart in 'Caught in the Draft", Paramount's up-to-minute comedy film which is now on the Belle Theatre screen. The picture burlesque the trials and tribulations of the rookie's life in the Army.

The comedy corps is headed by Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour. Fresh from the hilarious and romantic higway they paved in "Road to Zanzibar", the two gay-happy film pals are joined by Lynne Overman and Eddie Bracken, two fluke recruits who get more than they bargained for trying to keep Bob out of the guard house.

Dorothy, the colonel's daughter, wants her rookie to be a hero before she says "yes" and turns the colonel into a kernel to make her dream come true. Hope plays the part of a movie actor who's in the army as the boomeranged result of one of his own practical jokes. He is the gun-shy, goose-pimply hero who'll floor you with his brand new stock of Army gags.

Bob and his two musketeer rookie friends, Overman and Bracken, reach the climax of this all-out comedy film when they take part in some war games that rival any slapstick hair-risers in the memory of this screen reviewer.

Loaded with sparkling wit, tuneful melodies and laugh-lines that explode in split-second precision "Caught in the Draft" is prize entertainment—the kind that even the Army boys at the camps will write home about.

COMPLEXION Control

COMPLEXION
Control

You can choose the tone of skin you wish by controlling the process of sun tanning without burn or irritation

HITCH your beauty wagon to the sun and choose the complexion you wish. Be brown as an Indian or pale as the driven snow; acquire a light or a dark tan, or keep your fair skin fair and affect a tanned complexion. This season, more than ever before, you can choose your complexion by controlling the tanning process, and you can do it without sunburn or irritation to your skin.

For the average or delicate type of skin, a sun-proof cream that controls the skin's tanning process is the preparation to use. The heavier the application of sun-proof cream on the skin before exposure, the less likely it is to tan. But whether you wish to tan or remain fair, it is important that this, as well as all protective aids, be used frequently during exposure. A light film of this cream, used over the skin before exposure and occasionally during your stay in the sun, will encourage soft and glowing beige tones in tanning.

To control the process of tanning and to encourage your favorite shade of tan, use a sun-proof cream.

If you want to be doubly certain that your skin will remain as soft as satin under its new tan complexion, a special suntan oil is ideal. It comes in two shades, one for encouraging a honey-gold tan and the other for inducing an Indian brown tan. These two shades also come in two forms, in bottles and in convenient capsules which are easy to carry and fun to use. If you are one of the lucky ones who tan without burning, blistering and peeling, an application of this ideal oil will do the trick and serve as a perfect protection and skin-smoothing agent. But if you burn at the first peep of the sun on your skin, use a film of the sun-proof cream or lotion under the coating of this oil to double up on its protection and to achieve a doubly nice complexion.

To tan quickly and without harm, use the splendid sports jelly which makes the skin literally shine.

If you want to remain fair because if you tan you freckle, or because you like your fair complexion, employ either a protective lotion or cream. Use either type of protective aid generously before going out in the sun's tanning rays. Use this same aid as a make-up foundation when actually indulging in sports or when you are a happy spectator. Use it on your hands, too, if they generally get as brown as a berry while the remainder of your exposed skin is well guarded and remains pale.

Check your complexion at its present stage of tanning by using this protective cream or lotion for the balance of the outdoor season. A light film of this splendid aid, in either form, used as a foundation under your regular make-up will keep your complexion satin smooth and the right shade, at the same time giving it a dressed-up and well-groomed look.

If you like your present shade of tan, use a protective aid, a cream or a lotion, before exposure.

If you've missed out with the sun and are as pale as you were last season, you can catch up with other summer-tanned beauties by using a splendid sports jelly which will make you tan quickly and painlessly while giving your skin a lustrous look. This suntan aid is especially recommended for use on dry skin which easily becomes irritated from exposure to sun or wind. Use this outdoor complexion beautifier and burn-preventive with a touch of true red on your lips and nails, and let the sun's rays hasten the tanning process while you relax and look lovely.

To satisfy a whim and put a tanned complexion over your too-pale skin, to accentuate a slight tan, or to patch up uneven tan and hide shoulder strap marks or sunglass-rings around your eyes, use the specially-created lotion that covers the skin with a simulated bronze glow. Use this same bronze-toned liquid to conceal winter-white legs now revealed in shorts or short summer togs.

To remain fair or to discourage a crop of freckles, use the protective cream or lotion very liberally.

For a quick brown to make a white or any pastel dinner gown or playsuit more startling and becoming, cover shoulders, face, throat, arms, and all exposed skin with a glowing bronze tone. Rouge and eyeshadow in harmonizing shades are available or, if you are determined to simulate a tanned complexion all summer long instead of letting the sun have its way, the complete set of bronze make-up aids is a practical purchase. It includes these three items, plus liprouge and powder, and will see any skin through the whole season in all its glowing bronze loveliness.

In previous articles this season I stressed the importance of protecting the skin against over-burning and the eyes against strain caused by glaring sun rays. Don't get careless with your skin and eye protective aids just because you already have a tan, and by the same token, guard your eyes.

Now let's sum up these summertime beauty tips for guarding the complexion or acquiring a flattering tan:

First, use a sun-proof cream designed for the average or delicate type of skin. This cream encourages a tan while preserving the good looks of the skin.

To tan speedily and at the same time make or keep the skin satin-smooth, use the ideal suntan oil under a coating of sun-proofing cream.

To acquire a light tan, use the lotion especially made for promoting a honey-gold complexion; to sport an Indian brown tan, use the darker shade of lotion, and use either of these in liquid or capsule form, whichever suits your fancy.

To remain fair as a lily, to prevent further tanning, or to keep freckles in their place, use the protective cream or lotion before exposure to the sun. Use this same cream or lotion as a make-up foundation if you want to guard your skin against tanning due to everyday exposure.

If you've missed out with the season's tanning and want to become as brown as a berry in double-quick time, use the jelly for hastening the tanning process while giving your skin a lustrous look. Counteract the drying effects of sunning, especially if the skin is sensitive and unduly dry, with liberal and frequent coatings of this same aid in jelly form.

To satisfy a whim and bring a tan which you can put on or take off at will, use the make-up aids that give the skin a rich bronze glow and a smooth appearance.

Choose your complexion this season and be in the swim, as it were, with the skin tone you like best.

To have skin as soft as satin beneath your new tan, or if you burn easily, use suntan oil under your coating of sun-proof or protective cream.

To patch an uneven tan, or to hide shoulder strap marks, use the liquid that gives the skin a lovely, even bronze glow.

Delight Dixon Says:

HASTE makes waste and it also makes for a tired, woe-begone facial expression. It's better for your nerves and kinder to your good looks to get up half an hour earlier than usual in order to have ample time for your morning grooming rite. Defeat the heat by moving about leisurely but thoughtfully so that you won't waste time or motion in performing the day's necessary tasks. Shelve your cares when you go to bed and relax in the knowledge that you have done your day's work well.

Digging in and playing around your garden or window box can be a real treat to your good looks if only you will let it. Protect your skin before going out-of-doors. Dig your nails into soap so that there won't be room under nail tips for soil. Wear clothing that won't be ruined by kneeling and bending and let your outdoor stretching and stooping exercises help keep or make your body nimble and slender.

Is all harmonious in your home? Do the decorations serve as a fitting background for you? Are the colors suited to your complexion and coloring and are they keyed to your tempo? Watch your lamps, too, and see that every light is flattering to you. You can make your home an important beauty background without spending an extra dime. It's all accomplished by selecting your home colors with an eye on the colors most becoming to you.

Keeping beauty creams and certain other aids in the refrigerator during hot weather will serve a double purpose: First, the creams will stand up better and be pleasanter to use. Chilled lotions and fresheners will feel more refreshing on the skin and will seem more fragrant. They'll also be easier to handle and the freshening-cooling purpose of the lotions will seem to be specially cooling to hot, soiled skins.

Now is the time to consider a healthful as well as figure-improving diet. Appetites aren't too hard to control in the summer-time and vegetables and garden greens are plentiful. Consider a diet from a health as well as figure angle, and eat the good things which are so abundant and which are so good for you.

If you are a sophisticate and want to add a touch of charming simplicity to your ensemble, by all means add a scent reminiscent of new mown hay to your wardrobe of fragrances. This new scent acts as a cooling breeze to soothe the emotions and give one the tranquil look of a shady pool. Companion fragrances are narcissus, freesia, lilac, jasmin and lily of the valley.

Don't go in for a heavy make-up when you go in the water. Affect naturalness of complexion, but use liprouge and lash darkener if they give you a feeling of being better groomed. One lash darkener, originated for the belles of the acquacade, at the New York World's Fair, is waterproof and won't come off until deliberately removed with cream or soap and water. The lipstick, too, stays on indefinitely, no matter how many dives or dips, and comes in colors flattering to all complexions.
